A WEEK-ENDING DUKE BOWED IN BY ROOSEVELTS

Union Jack Flies at Hyde Park.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

President Roosevelt met the 39 year old brother of King George VI. of England at the door of the rambling home. On the portico above the doorway the British Union Jack flew beside the Stars and Stripes in tribute to the visitor.

The flags also fluttered from staffs on the motorcycle escort which raced the royal visitor at a speed of more than 50 miles an hour from New York City, where the duke arrived in the United States by plane from Canada earlier in the day.

Guarded by 200 Police.

More than 200 police guarded the royal party at New York airport. Police guards also were on duty along the route the duke took thru New York City and to Hyde Park. No crowds lined the route, however, and the motor cavalcade occasioned no stir except in the Roosevelt household.

This was in sharp contrast to the welcome accorded Kent's brother, the king, on his drive over the same route with Queen Elizabeth during the visit of the royal couple in June, 1939. Crowds lined the route and a large gathering stood at the gates of the Roosevelt estate to catch a glimpse of the king and the queen.

As the President exchanged a warm handclasp with the duke, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, the President's 86 year old mother, and Mrs. Roosevelt came up to greet the royal visitor.

The Door Is Closed.

The door closed as greetings were being exchanged and secrecy was clamped on the President's entertainment of his guest as effectively as it enveloped his recent sea conference with Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

Altho the duke's visit was described as purely social, no entertainment was planned for the week-end stay. The duke dined quietly with the family. Long hours were left free for discussion of the administration's efforts to aid Britain.

The only other guests in the home were the members of the duke's party. They are four sturdy Britishers—Wing Commander Sir Louis Greig, personal pilot and aid; J. A. Lowther, the duke's private secretary; H. J. Evans of Scotland Yard, and J. W. Hales, the duke's valet.

Arranged as Afterthought.

The duke's visit to Hyde Park and to the White House on Monday was arranged as an afterthought to a tour of Canada designed to stimulate dominion interest in the war. The duke's plans were revised to include a brief American excursion, according to Washington sources, in an effort to further the British campaign to obtain more lease-lend billions and ultimately to obtain the use of American ships and manhood.

The duke's last appearance on American soil was in 1928 when as a lieutenant aboard H. M. S. Durban, the royal yacht, he took French leave to go to a Hollywood party with four movie actresses. The escapade brought the duke two days of freedom and joy and 30 days under arrest in quarters on his return to the vessel.

Kent and the President had met before. In March, 1935, while the Duke was on his honeymoon with the former Princess Marina of Greece, he called upon Mr. Roosevelt as the latter was on a fishing cruise in Bahaman waters aboard Vincent Astor's yacht Nourmahal. The yacht was purchased by the British at the outbreak of the war and was sunk in line of duty.

A Paradox of History.

Kent's visit to the United States is one of the paradoxes of history. He was greeted as an honored guest of the 31st President of the United States on soil which George Washington, the first President of the United States, took away from his great-great-great-grandfather.

And Kent's week-end visit to the head of a nation founded on a popular revulsion to monarchy in 1776 may have much to do with the saving of the British throne for his family. If Kent's visit is a complete

"Titanic" battles with German invaders on both the Leningrad front in the far north, the Smolensk area facing Moscow in the center, and the Odessa area in the extreme south were admitted early today by Russian army reports. Pressure in all three sectors was increasing with Leningrad admittedly in "terrible danger" and its inhabitants being exhorted to fight to the last man—soldier, worker, and all. Fierce assaults on Leningrad were reported from the Kingisepp and Novogorod sectors. In Odessa, the Reds claimed their troops were cutting Rumanian divisions to pieces as they stabbed at the Black sea port.

Berlin also told of vicious hand-to-hand fighting by Nazi-Rumanian forces endeavoring to capture Odessa and said that in the north waves of bombers were smashing Russian airdromes on the outskirts of Leningrad as ground troops advanced. DNB news agency reports also claimed the capture of the Dnieper river city of Cherkasi, 90 miles southeast of Kiev.

DOWN ON FARM WAR'S LEAST OF THEIR WORRIES

RainMoreImportant Than Europe.

Marcia Winn, Tribune reporter who recently wrote a series of articles on the war hysteria in Washington and New York, has seen and talked to middle west farmers and their wives on the same subject. Her first story follows:

BY MARCIA WINN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 23.—Here in the heart of America's farm belt, far removed from the moil and strain of city life, is another world, a world as remote from the warring east as Arcturus from the earth and equally as indifferent.

It is a fertile, pastoral world, a world with troubles of its own. Ask a farmer what Russia is doing, and he'll say he hopes it is doing well, but he surely does not know. But ask him about hogs, and he'll tell you they are $11.40 a hundred pounds, as against $3.85 a hundred last year.

It is a world as alien to the drums of Mars as rows of growing corn are to Michigan boulevard. It is a world too individually concerned with its own struggle for existence to devote much thought to the rise and fall of nations, for the farmer has his own worries, grave ones:

Rain or the lack of it; chinch bugs, sleeping sickness—the horses have it again; hog cholera; farm labor—some of the boys go in the draft, but more go to work in armament industries where 67 cents an hour means much more than $40 a month.

A Shrewd, Kindly Man.

But the farmer of the midwest is independent, for he is his own master. He has initiative, for his livelihood depends on his own prowess alone. He is shrewd, kindly and intelligent with a retentive and brooding mind. He thinks lucidly and with perspective.

He has no use for Hitler, but he does not want to fight unless Hitler comes over here. He remembers the economic chaos following the World war. Many worry about war, but rarely talk it. When they do, they readily identify themselves as noninterventionists, altho perhaps not by that name.

Right now the farmer, pleasurably pursuing the somewhat lax preharvest weeks, is busy wandering around to county fairs now under way. Seen from a fair, America is the land of inexhaustible fertility. One farmer from Tampico tends his Swiss dairy cows. He says everything is going up: milk, eggs, beef, hogs, even lard hogs that no one would spit at last year, much less buy. It is his 30th state fair. Willingly he talks of the war.

"Them big guys there will get us in," he says in anger. "See that ring," pointing to one in the nose of a small bull. "Ought to put one in the noses of some of them congressmen. Don't know what they're doing."

"We Don't Fancy War."

SIX SAY IT'S TRUE, AND WHO ARE WE (HIC!) TO DENY IT!

Belleville, Ill., Aug. 23 [Special].—After imbibing freely of beer, four workmen at the army's nearby Scott field sat talking about flying last midnight in a third floor room of the National hotel here.

"Why, I can fly," suddenly hiccuped one of them, Victor Fuller, 36 years old, a steamfitter of Paducah, Ky. "I'll fly right out of this window and back in that one over there. Watch me."

Flapping his arms, he went out the window in a graceful swan dive. His horrified companions rushed down stairs to lift his mangled body from the concrete sidewalk. But he wasn't there.

"Are you looking for somebody who just came down from that window?" asked a man passing by. "He's in the hotel bar getting a drink."

And so Fuller was, to ease the pain of a dime-sized bruise on his elbow, his only injury. Still hoisting a few today, the "flyer," his three companions, the passerby, and Philip Wolf, proprietor of the hotel, refused to admit that the account they gave wasn't the whole truth and nothing but.

DISARM SENTRY, ELUDE PURSUERS

Fort Sheridan Prisoners Flee to Chicago.

With the aid of a confederate two soldiers under arrest at Fort Sheridan escaped yesterday afternoon by threatening a sentry with a pistol and disarming him. To get into Chicago, where their trail was lost, the pair used an automobile and two taxicabs.

The fugitives are Ted Wegeman, 25 years old, originally of Reedsville, Wis., and Harry R. Pearson, 20 years old, once of South Bend, Ind. They were already awaiting trial on charges of desertion.

Don Hidden Civilian Clothes.

Under guard of Private Louis Summers, the two men were working at the hauling of supplies when Wegeman drew a pistol and menaced the guard, compelling him to drop his rifle. Both then pulled civilian clothes from the seat of the wagon they were using and donned them.

Forcing Summers to accompany them, they climbed a fence at the northeast end of the reservation, where the confederate awaited them. He drove the trio into North Chicago via Sheridan road, where he left them with the remark, "My contract is fulfilled."

Still menacing the guard with the pistol, Wegeman called a taxi and the three were driven into Waukegan. At Washington street and Sheridan road they entered the Waukegan hotel, leaving the sentry in the cab. They fled thru the hotel side door while Summers drove to the police station to get help.

Take Cab to Howard Street.

Meanwhile the two men entered a cab driven by Chauncey Trulock and directed him to Chicago. Trulock drove down Skokie road and delivered his passengers at the North Shore railroad station on Howard street.

The taxi bill was $8, but the soldier fugitives had no money. Pearson fled. Trulock followed Wegeman into the station and was tagging him closely when the soldier dashed up the stairs to the train platform. The cab driver was joined by an Evanston policeman, Arnold Baltzerson, but by the time they reached the platform Wegeman had escaped.

Wegeman was described as wearing a blue slack suit and Pearson a green striped shirt and green striped trousers. The Chicago police were asked to aid in the search.

Authorities at the fort indicated that Summers was not blameworthy.

Mr. Ickes Runs Gas Station--- for Sole Benefit of Mr. Ickes

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—Harold L. Ickes, the administration's petroleum dictator, is one motorist on the eastern seaboard who doesn't have to worry about a gasoline shortage, it was learned today. Hidden away on his Maryland estate, about 20 miles from Washington, he has his own little gasoline station, complete with underground tank and regular filling station pump.

Ickes has placed other motorists in the east under a strict gasoline rationing system, first of its kind in American peacetime history. He has ordered a 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. curfew for gasoline stations to reduce motor fuel sales. A few weeks ago, he proposed that Washington police arrest drivers whose cars were giving off exhaust smoke, their crime being, said Ickes, that they were wasting gasoline needed for war.

Curfew Becomes Boomerang.

The police flatly refused to have anything to do with this part of the campaign. The gas station curfew, meanwhile, became a boomerang. Gasoline consumption jumped 8 per cent in the two weeks after it was put into effect.

Meanwhile, it developed today, Ickes has had plenty of gasoline at his disposal at his private filling station. The underground tank reportedly has a capacity of 500 gallons and is used to supply gasoline to three heavy passenger cars. Ickes is known to operate a station wagon and two tractors, which are used to work the land on the $85,000 estate.

Tractors Boost Consumption.

The passenger cars get about eight miles to the gallon and at least one of them, according to neighbors, travels the 40 miles to town and back three or four times a day. The neighbors, among whom the oil dictator enjoys no great popularity, say they haven't checked on the amount the station wagon uses, but they do know that the two tractors average 20 gallons per day when in use.

Ickes pays 13½ cents per gallon for gasoline in wholesale lots, including tax, which is approximately 2 cents less per gallon than it costs the ordinary motorist. He buys his oil in 50 gallon drums, also at wholesale prices.

A reporter and a photographer who went to the Ickes estate to find out about the oil dictator's gas station and to get a picture of it found the retainers on the place shy about displaying the tank and pump.

Pump Blends with Foliage.

A turn in the drive near the barns reveals the Ickes gas station in all its glory.

The pump is not easily seen at a distance because of a coat of bright green paint that blends perfectly with the surrounding foliage.

"Hey, what do you think you're doing?" he demanded.

"We're just looking," was the reply.

"All you're looking for is dirt," he declared angrily. "Why can't you let the secretary alone?" [Ickes is also secretary of the interior in President Roosevelt's cabinet.]

"How do you know it's a pump?" the hired man asked.

"Because we can see it . . ."

"You won't get any pictures here," the Ickes retainer interrupted. "If I catch you on this place again I'll shoot your tires—and you, too. Wait till I get a pencil, I'm going to take your license number . . ."

The hired man, after searching thru his pockets in vain, borrowed a pencil from the reporter to take the license number. Meanwhile the photographer snapped a picture and then the visitors drove on their way.

Surveys have shown that many high ranking government officials are among the chief consumers of gasoline in the capital. Cabinet members have cars furnished by the government as well as their own private vehicles. The White House alone has 12 large cars assigned for use by the President, his family, and his staff.

Report More Tankers Going.

The shortage of gasoline is caused by the transfer of 80 tankers to Great Britain for wartime use. It was reported in official circles here today that the government plans to release 100 more tankers to Britain in the near future. The America First committee charged last week that Britain does not actually need these ships inasmuch as she has 500 more tankers than she needs for supplying her war machine.

The motoring public in eastern states, facing a threatened gasoline shortage and a generally confused gas situation because of the diversion of oil tankers to Britain, will get all the gasoline it needs for the Labor day week-end, under a plan announced yesterday in Washington, D. C. Stocks were dwindling, however, prices were going up in many areas, and a gasless Sunday was scheduled today in numerous cities. [Story on page 9, part 2.] A picture of the gasoline pump on the Maryland estate of Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior and the administration's petroleum dictator, is on page 4.

Detroit Strike Truce Hinges on CIO Stand

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 23.—Settlement of the strike which has deprived this city of the use of its municipally owned transportation system since 4 a. m. Wednesday apparently hinged tonight on whether a peace plan approved by the city and by leaders of the striking Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Operators [AFL] is agreeable to the State, County and Municipal Workers of America [CIO].

Mayor Jeffries.

The strike does not involve wages, hours or working conditions. It has to do solely with which organization shall collect dues from 5,500 city employés of the traction system. The walkout was precipitated by a dispute over which union should be allowed to post notices on bulletin boards in the city owned car barns.

Acts to Prevent Violence.

The AFL operators walked out, and Mayor Edward J. Jeffries ordered complete suspension of operations in order to prevent violence and possible bloodshed. Since then he has been in almost constant negotiations with AFL officers in an attempt to end the strike and restore service.

Mayor Jeffries announced this evening that a compromise had been found acceptable to the city and to officers of the striking Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway, and Motor Coach Operators. He added that he had agreed to a request by W. D. Mahon, 80 year old international president of the AFL union, not to reveal the terms before 10 a. m. tomorrow, when they will be submitted to the local membership for ratification.

CIO Fears Secret Deal.

Abram Flaxer, international president of the State, County, and Municipal Workers of America [CIO], said shortly after the mayor's announcement that he had not been informed of the peace terms.

"I am suspicious of the secret negotiations held," he said, "and suspicious of this secret agreement in which the CIO had no part. Therefore I have no comment."

The terms are believed to be substantially these:

The AFL has retreated from its determination not to submit to an immediate employé election, and such an election will be held as quickly as possible to determine whether the AFL or CIO group will be given exclusive bargaining rights.

In return for the AFL concession, the mayor is said to have yielded on his insistence that an immediate court test be made of the legality of an exclusive bargaining agreement. He has said many times that he does not think the city has a right to grant such exclusive rights.

Fear "Packed" Electorate.

Sources close to the CIO leadership indicated that they feared chicanery on the part of the AFL. One spokesman said that if the election were confined to street railway employés eligible for membership in the Amalgamated union—the only one on strike—there would be no objection to the proposal.

But the same person said he feared an AFL arrangement with the management whereby the election will be system wide, thus allowing the pro-AFL white collar workers to vote.

Arthur Stringari, business agent for local No. 77 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employés [AFL] has been active in the negotiations, altho his local is not on strike.

NAVY ORDERED TO RUN PLANT SHUT BY STRIKE

16,000 Workers May Return Tomorrow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 23.—President Roosevelt tonight signed an executive order directing the secretary of the navy to take possession and operate the plant of the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company in Kearny, N. J.

Adm. H. G. Bowen. Map locates Kearney, N. J., site of seized shipyard.

The plant has been closed since Aug. 7 by a CIO strike which made more than 16,000 workers idle. Under the President's order the government will have the yard open for operation Monday morning.

Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island, the army post which is nearest to Kearny, immediately was placed on an alert, with troops standing by to march to the plant should their presence be required. Capt. Frank Haronian, public relations officer at the fort, said the soldiers would not take part in actual seizure of the plant but would stand guard over property if called upon to do so.

Take Charge Tomorrow.

"Operation of the plant will be resumed as promptly as possible," said a statement issued by the navy department. It added:

"Admiral Harold G. Bowen will take formal possession of the plant Monday. Resumption of full production at the earliest possible moment is imperative to the national defense and it is expected that every one connected with the plant will coöperate to that end. They will be notified when to return to work thru the local press and radio."

A statement issued from the temporary White House here said the work stoppage at the shipyard "jeopardizes construction of vessels essential to the defense of the United States." Orders for 493 million dollars in naval and merchant vessels were tied up by the strike.

"The methods and policies relating to the ultimate title and other matters between the government and the company will be worked out after further studies and negotiations," the statement added.

Period Is Indefinite.

Mr. Roosevelt's order said government possession and operation of the plant will be terminated as soon as he determines the plant can be operated by its owners "in a manner consistent with defense needs."

The order, which Mr. Roosevelt issued under the unlimited national emergency he proclaimed May 27, instructed the secretary of the navy to take over immediately and, so long as might be necessary or desirable, produce the "vessels, facilities, materials, and equipment called for by the company's contracts with the United States."

Join Union or Lose Jobs.

The strike which closed the plant was called by the CIO Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers. The controversy was over the union's demand that all employés of the company be required to be paid up members of the union or lose their jobs.

Rather than accede to this demand which the company said would "abolish the freedom of the American worker to choose whether he will belong to a union," L. H. Korndorff, president of the firm, offered to turn the plant over to the navy.

Gov. Charles Edison of New Jersey, in opposing transfer of the company's operation to the navy, wired Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox:

"When labor and capital complacently encourage the government to take over industrial plants, they are contributing to the creation of a system which will destroy the very freedom that we are arming to preserve."

Today's order was the second of its kind which Mr. Roosevelt has issued. On June 9 the government took over the plant of the North American Aviation Co. of Inglewood, Cal., where a wildcat strike was in progress. Operation of the plant was returned to the company on July 2.

COL. M'CORMICK GIVES REVIEW OF EUROPEAN WAR

Sees Other Nazi Drives as Prelude to Red Attack.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, last night raised the question of whether the previous German campaigns might not have been conducted as a prelude to the invasion of Russia.

Col. McCormick, who spoke over W-G-N and the Mutual network during the Chicagoland hour, declared the seizure of Denmark, the successful attack in the west, the failure of the Germans to hurl their entire air strength against England, and the occupation of Greece and Crete all might be interpreted as preliminary steps to the campaign on the eastern front. The German invasion of Africa, he asserted, was only a diversion.

Tells of Military Objectives.

Col. McCormick said Germany's military objectives against Russia are apparent—"to cut Russia off from the Arctic ocean and from the Baltic sea"—the seizure of Greece and Crete already having provided an effective barrier to the shipment of supplies to Russia thru the Dardanelles.

With these outlets closed, Col. McCormick said, Russia's only access to military supplies will be across the Pacific ocean and then across the additional thousands of miles of the Trans-Siberian railroad.

"Only one thing can we be sure of—the consent of the governed will not be considered."

TEXT OF ADDRESS

The text of Col. McCormick's address follows:

"With the German success in the battle of Russia seemingly assured, it may be interesting to trace the successful steps in its conquest of continental Europe, and to speculate upon the probable causes for each one.

"The imperial idea in Europe was born with Rome. After Rome fell, it was revived by Charlemagne, and after Charlemagne it persisted in descending scale in the Holy Roman empire, which threatened to be European-wide under Charles V. of Spain and world-wide under his successor. Spain, Portugal, France, and Great Britain have all conquered world-wide empires.

"England tried to conquer France for 100 years and retained a continental foothold until Charles II. sold Dunkirk to Louis XIV. After France had shaken off the British menace, she three times embarked on the conquest of Europe—under Henri I., under Louis XIV., and under Napoleon.

"The idea of a German empire under the leadership of Prussia arose about 100 years ago, and was achieved by Bismarck in a very moderate form in 1870. Long before, the Muscovite empire had arisen and extended to the Pacific ocean. With the partitions of Poland, it came into contact with Germany.

"The World war broke out in 1914 over rivalry as to who should dominate the Balkan countries.

"The desire for a Lebensraum, or a living space, is not new. We heard of it 40 years ago as the 'Drang Nach Osten,' or the 'drive toward the east' and the desire of Germany for 'a place in the sun.' It apparently rose spontaneously when the German empire felt strong enough for further expansion.

Desire for German Unification.

"We may take it as axiomatic that after the partition by the Versailles treaty, all of the Germans wanted to be reunited, and when that had been achieved, that there was a strong element desiring to move into, organize, and profit from the less progressive, if not less aggressive, peoples to the east.

"The German desire to move east and the Russian desire to move west found common ground once more in the repartition of Poland and the Russian reconquest of the Baltic states, which brought Germany and Russia in contact once more, and which brought the British and French declarations of war against Germany but not against Russia.

"The Polish resistance to the German demands was based upon the Polish and British belief that the French army would embark upon a wholehearted attack on the West Wall as soon as Germany attacked Poland. This is what Gen. Smigly-Rydz told Congressman Dewey in Warsaw just before the outbreak of the war, and this is what Winston Churchill told Editor Joseph Medill Patterson in London at about the same time.

France Fails to Attack.

"Smigly-Rydz said that France and Poland would crush Germany between them as in a vise, but when Germany invaded Poland, France did not attack Germany. I do not know whether it was Gen. Gamelin or the French people and the French soldiers who would not back up the agreements of the diplomats. I do not even know whether the diplomats had committed France to the attack, but, in any event, France did not attack the West Wall . . . and Poland fell.

"Then Germany rested and reorganized for six months, while France and Great Britain rested and did not organize, did not arm, and did not train their mobilized troops. They thought they were safe behind the Maginot line and the channel. During this period communist Russia occupied and crushed Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania, and attacked but failed to crush Finland.

"The history of the Maginot line is not without interest. Just as Germany obtained her ideas about tanks from the allies, so the allies obtained theirs about fortifications from the Germans.

Germans Go On the Defensive.

"After the battle of Verdun in 1916, the Germans went on the defensive in the west in order to concentrate against Russia in the east.

"The allies' offensives in the fall of 1916 and in 1917 unexpectedly ran up against concrete fortifications which they called 'pillboxes.' These proved so effective that, after the war, the French General Maginot persuaded his government that a sufficiently comprehensive system of frontier fortifications would be impenetrable. The same school of thought prevailed in Belgium, and the Dutch thought that their old system of defense by flooding the lowlands, which stopped the Spaniards in the middle ages, would still prove impassable.

"After the conquest of Poland and during the lull, military men speculated as to whether the Germans would attack France thru Metz as in 1870, or thru Belgium as in 1914. Both passes were used frequently in the Napoleonic wars and in all the wars of Europe for centuries.

Surprised by Attack on Norway.

"They were completely surprised by the attack on Norway, which they and the Norwegians had thought would be impossible in the face of the British fleet.

"I still do not see any adequate military benefit from so great an extension of the lines. The iron mines at Narvik do not seem to be a sufficient reason; nor do the Norwegian ports, since the Germans intended to possess the ports in Holland, Belgium, and France, so much more useful for submarine and airplane attack on England.

"The invasion of Denmark is more explicable. An unoccupied Denmark was a possible landing spot for an invasion of Germany. In the Napoleonic wars, the French and British twice fought undeclared wars on neutral Denmark.

"Fortifications on the Skagerrak would guarantee the Baltic from the incursion of such a British fleet as denied it to Napoleon's supply ships in 1812. We may perhaps see here an indication of the projected attack on Russia.

Source of Supplies.

"There was another reason for the invasion of Denmark—supplies. As soon as it had taken place, a high ranking general in our army prophesied the invasion of Holland and Belgium to me, saying that the Germans had found sufficient supplies of beef and gasoline there for a major battle, and he had in mind not the kind of battle that was afterward fought, but a long battle lasting months.

"The invasion of Belgium and Holland came as a surprise to the allied command, and for a very brief moment, a pleasant surprise. They had not thought that the Germans would choose to add a million and a half soldiers to the armies of their opponents, and they thought for about a day that the four allied armies could win.

"The allies expected that the attack would come thru Holland, both because it was the Schlieffen plan, and because of what the French called 'the British sensibility to their communications with their bases.'

Use of Channel Ports.

"Embarkations like that of Dunkirk have been frequent in British military history. Nobody had imagined the maneuver thru Sedan which threatened the British communications from the other flank.

"I do not think it was considered a military necessity to go thru Belgium in 1940 as it had appeared to be in 1914. I do not think that General von Brauchitsch, or whoever directs the German army, thought it was necessary. I think the attack on those countries was made to get their channel ports to use against England or to guard against invasion, if the war with Russia was already projected.

"It is to be noted that the battle of Flanders was really three battles fought at the same time—one against Holland, with the objective of destroying the Dutch army, one against Belgium to destroy the Belgian army, and one at Sedan to destroy the left wing of the French army and the British army. As all these three battles succeeded at the same time, it is obvious that a single battle thru Metz must have succeeded.

French Army Destroyed.

"After these victories, the principal enemy in the field was still the French army, which was disposed of by the battle of France.

"There then ensued the so-called battles of England and of the Atlantic.

"Propaganda has greatly exaggerated these actions. The military contempt for bombardment that is not followed up by attack is well based, and history teaches that neither in the many wars with France, nor in our Civil war, did commerce raiders have any appreciable effect upon the result, altho they cost merchants and shipowners considerable losses in property.

Open to Self-Deception.

"Propaganda is one of the recognized methods of waging war. It was the decisive one in 1918. It has this drawback. The propaganda section of the general staff is also the information section. In its enthusiasm to create an illusion for public consumption, it lays itself open to self-deception.

"In April, 1918, so great an effort was made by the information section of the French general staff to create a more favorable impression of the conditions in Picardy than really existed, that the operations section believed it and issued orders to the relieving troops that misstated the location of the battle line and the status of the fight they were about to enter. Propaganda nearly caused an allied catastrophe.

"When the time comes for me to write my memoirs I will have some bizarre tales to tell of this operation.

British Commit Same Error.

"Now the British information section fell into the same error. In concealing it from the world, they concealed from themselves that the Germans did not use an appreciable part of their air power against England, and that therefore it was logical to assume that they were holding it for some other objective.

"The obvious deduction is that these bombardments and raids were either retaliation for the blockade; or were reconnaissances to test the practicability of the invasion of England, which was found impractical, whereupon the Germans reverted to their old plan of occupying the Ukraine.

"In concentrating attention on Great Britain and the Atlantic, they missed the significance of the movements to the east. The feeble Italian effort against Egypt was erroneously considered a principal movement. The futile Italian attack upon Greece was thought to be Italian ambition for territorial expansion.

Hungary and Rumania Entered.

"The German entrance into Hungary and Rumania was looked upon as entirely economic. The fact that Rumania accepted the occupation as by an ally was not appreciated.

"Bulgaria, when occupied, furnished a flank on Jugo-Slavia and also on Greece, and landing fields from which to bomb the Bosporus.

"It should have been plain that Jugo-Slavia was of no value to Germany except as the road to Greece, but insofar as this was understood, it was mistakenly looked upon as a steppingstone on the road to Egypt. The German invasion of Africa moreover was only a diversion.

"Why was it so important to take Greece? That did not become plain until the outbreak of the war with Russia. Greece and Crete were necessary to the Germans to enable them to blockade the Dardanelles and prevent supplies from reaching Russia.

"Turkey closed the Dardanelles in 1914 but could not be counted on to do it in 1940.

Raises a Question.

"Of course, it is easy to be wise after the fact and to appreciate today that Greece and Crete were occupied, not as an approach to Suez, but to close the doors of the Dardanelles to supplies to Russia, which seriously raises the question—was not the invasion of Russia planned from the beginning and were not all the other campaigns and battles fought as incidents to the main purpose?

"As in Flanders, the Germans are carrying on three major offensives at the same time.

"What, now, are their objectives? The military ones are easily stated—to cut Russia off from the Arctic ocean and from the Baltic sea. The railroad to Murmansk, the only ice-free port in the Russian arctic, already has been cut.

Peril to Russian Fleet.

"The occupation of Leningrad will cut Russia off from the Baltic and will render the Russian Baltic fleet homeless. There is a railroad running north from Moscow to Archangel, which port freezes up in the winter and therefore cannot be of great use in supplying the Russian armies.

"It can be cut by taking Moscow—which, as a railroad center of Russia, is a military objective—by driving east along the railroad from Leningrad to Vologda. It can be seriously harrassed by parachute and air infantry raids.

"With the Dardanelles blockaded and the railroads to the Arctic cut, Russia will only be able to get such supplies from the outside world as can be carried across the Pacific ocean, 5,000 miles wide, and the Trans-Siberian railroad, more than 5,000 miles long.

Crimea a Military Objective.

"When we can turn to consider the probable political objectives, we must realize that liberty and independence are purely American doctrines that have never found roots in Europe and Asia. The histories of those continents have been the histories of conquest and revolt—never government by the consent of the governed. No country or king has ever voluntarily given up a foot of soil or freed any oppressed people.

"Different peoples have at one time or another ruled in practically every part of Europe; therefore, they claim historic rights to govern these territories.

Finland Once Part of Sweden.

"Rumania claims Bessarabia, as it once possessed it, altho at that time Rumania was in serfdom to Turkey. Sweden once owned the territory where Leningrad stands, but at that time Sweden also owned Finland.

"It would be quite European for Finland to claim her independence of Sweden and at the same time her right to Leningrad!

"The Ukraine was free before Russia conquered it, and belonged to Poland before that; and the Crimea was Turkish before it was conquered by Russia.

"To speculate on how these territories will be reorganized would require a mind of European cast. Only one thing can we be sure of—the consent of the governed will not be considered."

ILLINOIS LEGION DELEGATES HAIL ANTI-WAR PLEA

Foreign Policy Issue Due for Floor Airing.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 23.—United States Senator C. Wayland Brooks, seven times wounded ex-marine, in an address before the state convention of the American Legion here this afternoon, inveighed against America entering another "war to end all wars."

He was applauded by the rank and file Legionnaires, altho some leaders of this veterans' organization have indorsed President Roosevelt's meddling in European affairs.

Nine resolutions, condemning various aspects of the President's war activities, were being toned down in a resolutions committee headed by George Sugarman, Chicago lawyer. The meetings were secret, but it was learned that the committee will rewrite the nine into one which also will incorporate a plea for unity in support of the Washington administration.

Demand Virile Declaration.

A defense committee headed by Omar McMackin, mayor of Salem, Ill., is expected to bring the anti-war issue from behind the closed doors onto the floor of the convention by demanding that the resolutions be referred to his committee for a more virile declaration.

Roland V. Libonati, Democratic legislator from Chicago, is chairman of a committee that assigned America First resolutions to the resolutions committee rather than to the defense committee.

Raymond Kelly, 1940 national commander, addressing the delegates, urged them to organize their Illinois communities for defense against air raids, an activity that has been denounced by isolationists as war propaganda and not national preparedness. Kelly, a Detroit attorney, is now a salaried regional director of the office of civilian defense headed by Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York.

Urges Raid Preparedness.

"Most of your communities are unorganized," he said, "because your leaders believe there will never be an air raid in the midwest. Maybe they are right. We hope so. But we have seen many things happen in the last year that we thought improbable. It will certainly do no harm to prepare the civilians to defend themselves in any eventuality. I ask each of you delegates to become salesmen for this preparedness."

Kelly was introduced to the convention by the retiring commander, William F. Waugh of Chicago, author of a "unity" editorial in the Illini Legionnaire, distributed to all delegates this morning. It argues for support of the President's war policies and his government officials because they "are in possession of facts which are not available to the public," and because "we may safely assume that they are better qualified to pass judgment upon the feasibility of the plan than we are."

Four Delegates Chosen.

Waugh and three others were elected delegates at large to the Legion's national convention in Milwaukee, Sept. 15 to 18. The others are N. Curtis Cation of Peoria, unopposed candidate for state commander; Francis Phelan of Winnetka, a candidate for senior vice commander, and the Rev. F. C. Voet of Warrenville.

Brooks, who enlisted in the marines from the University of Illinois, later winning four medals for bravery as well as a lieutenant's commission, aroused the veterans, assembled in the state armory here, with his portrayal of the futility of their sacrifices in the World war.

Brooks traced the development of America's democratic form of government and then recalled that in the World war "the sons of America and our resources" were sent back into the old world "to participate in their age-old battle of changing boundary lines, based upon religious, national, and economic hatreds and jealousies."

See Efforts Belittled.

Then, he said, after "America had done her full share we saw our efforts belittled by those for whom we made sacrifices to save.

"We promised ourselves privately and publicly not to enter Europe's war again. We promised to unceasingly fight communism and subversive elements that would destroy us from within.

"Europe is engaged in another bloody war. . . . After each war the conference table has been dominated by greed and the intrigue of power politics. There is little hope that we may find their attitude changed now in this regard.

Threat to U. S. Freedom.

"Entering war in Europe and Asia would mean bankruptcy, centralization of power, and the loss of the freedom at home while we tried to establish them thruout the universe. And I will continue to use my every effort to prevent our becoming a shooting participant in Europe's war outside of the western hemisphere."

The delegates, who had interrupted the speech several times with applause, rose to their feet, yelling and clapping.

"There's been a plea for unity behind our leaders," Brooks continued. "These leaders include your congressmen as well as your President. Let no one man put us in war by edict. To support this move is to surrender your constitutional rights.

"If and when congress declares war, I'll do all I can to support it. I'll do what I did before and you'll do what you did before. But until there is a declaration by congress, I'll vote 'no' on sending our boys to die on foreign soil."

The convention will continue tomorrow and Monday. Main speakers tomorrow will be Gov. Dwight H. Green and National Commander Milo J. Warner, United States Senator Scott W. Lucas will speak Monday.

PLAN CHAPTERS OF YOUTHS FOR AMERICA FIRST

Plans to organize youths of high school and college age into chapters to be called Young Americans for America First will be made Tuesday at a meeting of the Winnetka chapter of the America First committee at 545 Lincoln avenue in the suburb.

W. R. Page Hufty, director of organization for the national committee, will preside at the meeting, scheduled for 10 a. m. Others expected to attend include Mrs. Edward W. Kimbark, chairman of the Evanston chapter of the America First committee; Mrs. Phillip Johnson, chairman of the Highland Park chapter; Mrs. H. H. Belding, chairman of the Glencoe chapter; Mrs. Ellsworth Cregler, chairman of the Wilmette chapter; Mrs. James R. Addington, chairman of the Lake Forest chapter, and Mrs. J. P. Hooker, chairman of the Winnetka chapter.

After the meeting the chairmen will appoint youth leaders to organize Young Americans units. The plan to organize young people was suggested by the junior Park Ridge chapter of the America First committee, which has enrolled more than 200 youths in the community.

TROOPS' CHEERS AND BOOS GREET CANADA PREMIER

10,000 in England Cry for More Action.

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Aug. 23 (AP).—Mixed cheers, boos and handclapping greeted Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada today as he arrived at a sports stadium where 10,000 Canadian troops were assembled for a field day and inspection. It was his first visit to the Canadian overseas army, which numbers more than 100,000.

W. L. Mackenzie King.

The first demonstration quieted when King walked out to inspect a guard of honor from the British Black Watch, but another broke out immediately and lasted several seconds. Developments indicated it was an expression against relative inaction in England.

Cheers Drowned Out.

Booing from the rear of the grandstand drowned out hand clapping and cheers from the front as the prime minister was introduced by Lieut. Gen. Andrew McNaughton, commander of the Canadian forces. The visitor gripped his umbrella more tightly and smiled.

"Never in her history," he said, "has Canada been prouder than today of men who have crossed the seas to play their part alongside the mother country. We shall never forget you, and when I return I shall be able to give a message to the people about the strength and appearance and spirit of the men who are exhibiting their spirit in such a noble fashion."

He was interrupted by loud and derisive booing. The prime minister hesitated momentarily, the booing subsided, and he resumed his talk.

"I gather from the applause that many of you are impatient and would rather be engaged in more active operations than you are today."

This was greeted by loud cheers, whistling and applause.

The prime minister shouted into the microphone, "That's the spirit to which I was referring."

He expressed regret that all the people of Canada had not seen the troops and relayed the warmest wishes of the members of his cabinet and the people of the dominion.

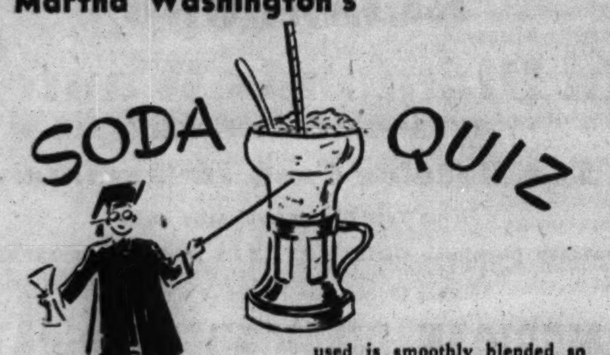
1,073 COMPLETE NAVAL STATION TRAINING COURSE

One of the largest classes in the history of the Great Lakes Naval Training station—1,073 youths from 13 states—completed its preparatory course yesterday. The men started on a nine day leave before they are assigned to fleet duty or navy vocational schools.

The six weeks' course included training in seamanship, signaling, rifle practice, infantry drill, swimming, athletics, and lectures on naval life.

Martha Washington's

SODA QUIZ



1. Is the ice cream in a Martha Washington soda just a small, elusive, floating ball?

No—the whole bottom of the glass, more than half way up, is solidly packed with ice cream. It's like a sundae as well as a soda.

2. Are there any ice splinters and crystals in Martha Washington's ice cream sodas?

3. Is a Martha Washington soda full of empty, fizzy bubbles?

I should say not! The very little carbonated water that's used is smoothly blended so that it's creamy yet tangy.

4. Do the flavors have any artificial taste?

Not a bit of it! All the fruit flavors are from honest-to-goodness fruits. And the famous "Glorified Chocolate Soda" is made with wonderfully rich bittersweet chocolate.

5. Are you limited in your choice of ice creams when you order a Martha Washington soda?

No, indeed! You may have any of a wide variety of tempting ice creams at no extra charge. Think up your own combination—peppermint stick-candy or pistachio ice cream with chocolate syrup, for instance!

You'll Say They're the Best Sodas in Town

Any Martha Washington ice cream soda is the real old-fashioned kind at its most delicious! And you'll enjoy the exclusive, cozy atmosphere of the charming Martha Washington shops.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

HINT AT BRITISH ACTION AGAINST IRAN IN 4 DAYS

Observers See Land 'Safe' Under London Rule.

LONDON, Aug. 23 (AP).—Some well informed neutral observers said tonight that there might be British military action within the next four days against oil-rich, strategically located Iran [Persia].

Britain and Russia have asked Iran to expel some 3,000 German "tourists and technicians" who have filtered into the country; Iran has replied. These neutral observers said that if the British had made up their minds that no halfway measures would satisfy them and that Iran would be "safe" only if occupied by British troops, it was likely that action soon would be taken.

May Expel Germans.

The Iranian reply had not been made public tonight, and it was said there was scant likelihood that authoritative information would be forthcoming over the week-end.

Unofficial quarters held that Britain and Russia are in no mood to accept compromise measures from Iran which might weaken their prestige in the middle east. The country has become the keystone of British-Russian defense in the middle east.

One report was received stating that Iran had agreed to expel small numbers of the Germans each month. This was said to be not enough.

A quiet regarded as preceding a storm hushed the British foreign office, but it was not matched in Iran itself, where the shahs rallied his army of desert and mountain fighters with a vow to resist any aggression.

[Reports from Iran said Shah Riza Khan Pahlevi had canceled leaves for 1,072 new army officers and ordered them to the frontier for active duty with the 120,000 troops on guard there. Expansion of the army to 200,000 was possible, it was indicated.]

German forces advancing in the Ukraine threaten to push on to the Caucasus and its oil. This would put them on Iran's northern frontier and should this happen Britain wants British troops and planes on hand to greet the Germans—not Iran forces.

Berlin Backs Iran Envoy.

BERLIN, Aug. 23 (AP).—Authorized sources said today the Iranian minister to Washington, D. C., made a "purposeful and obviously necessary" declaration by stating Iran would resist aggression from any source.

[Mohammed Schayester, Iran's minister to the United States, said after a conference with State Secretary Hull that Iran would fight against Germany, Soviet Russia, Great Britain or any other force—even tho odds were 10 to 1—to prevent an invasion of the country.]

MOTHER RAPED; HUNT HOODLUMS.

Police are searching for two hoodlums, one of whom raped a young mother Friday night. The victim, 25 years old and mother of two small children, was forced into the hoodlums' car in Exchange avenue near 80th street, and taken to a south side hotel where one of the men attacked her.

PUTS NAZI ARMY USE OF FUEL AT 50,000 TONS A DAY

ROME, Aug. 23.—A story in the International Relations today declared Germany must be using 50,000 to 70,000 tons of fuel daily in the Russian campaign.

It estimated the German army using 500,000 vehicles, thus explaining the enormous consumption of 1,500,000 to 2,100,000 tons of fuel monthly.

Germany and all her occupied territories produce about 1,500,000 tons annually, the writer stated. In addition, the Nazis obtain 6,000,000 tons from Rumania, 500,000 from other Balkan countries, and make a few million tons of synthetic gasoline, he wrote. "Some millions" of tons were said to have been in stocks the Germans had accumulated. Relatively little was obtained from Russia even before the Germans attacked the Reds, the writer added.

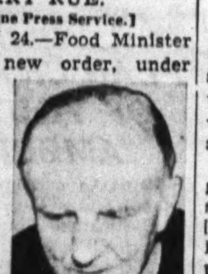
NEW LAW CALLED DOOM OF BRITISH FOOD RACKETEER

Expect Licensing to End 'Black Markets.'

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Food Minister Lord Woolton's new order, under which wholesalers and retailers of all main foodstuffs must be licensed, sounded the death knell of the black [illegal] markets, food ministry officials said today.



Lord Woolton.

Food racketeers, the Evening Standard states, were "seized with panic" when the details of the order were published. Licenses will be granted only to genuine traders and it will be an offense punishable up to two years in jail and a fine of 500 pounds [about $2,000] to sell without a license.

Covers All Scarce Foods.

The list of licensed commodities includes canned goods, lemons, bacon, dried fruits, onions, and all other scarce articles which speculators have purchased in enormous quantities to sell in the black market.

Under the new order, speculators will not be able to obtain licenses and cannot sell their stocks without risking heavy penalties.

The courts have been kept busy imposing penalties on profiteers, black market operators, and unlicensed dealers. At a Woburn, Bedfordshire, court, Reginald Evans, a butcher, was fined 123 pounds [about $492] for slaughtering four calves without a license and without using a humane killer. He refused according to the police, to disclose where he had bought the calves.

Fine Unlicensed Dealers.

Morris Isaacs was fined 25 pounds [about $100] in a Brighton court for selling onions without a license. In the same court Charles Edward Gunn was fined 3 pounds [about $12] for a similar offense.

John Collins, who is operating a green grocery business for his soldier son, was fined 4 pounds 13 shillings [about $12.60] for overcharging on loganberries. A Dartford court imposed a total of 24 pounds [about $96] in fines on a salesman and his employer for overcharging on sausages.

The board of trade, according to the Evening Standard, soon will issue a list of maximum prices for "services," including boot and shoe repairs, and laundry work.

U. S. Agents Study British Food Needs in Farm Tour

LONDON, Aug. 23 (AP).—Paul Appleby, United States undersecretary of agriculture, and Rudolph Evans of the AAA started on a tour of British farms and ports today to see what food Britain needs most and how it can best be shipped. Appleby, after conferring with Lord Woolton, food minister, said: "The United States is rapidly reorganizing its agriculture to produce the food Britain needs."

FRENCH CABINET STRIVES TO STEM TERRORISM WAVE

Decrees Death, with No Appeal, for Reds.

VICHY, France, Aug. 23 (AP).—Chief of State Marshal Philippe Petain and his cabinet held two long meetings today to study means of stemming the tide of terrorism, sabotage, and subversive activities in France.

A decree published in the official journal turned over to military courts cases involving communists and leftists, with the death penalty provided and no appeal possible.

Even as the cabinet gathered for its morning session, however, word reached Vichy of a new train wreck in the unoccupied zone at the entrance to the Valdonne tunnel east of Marseilles yesterday. Thirty miners were injured.

The Petain death-for-communist activities decree published today was drafted Aug. 14, the same day the German military command made a similar ruling because of the demonstrations and shootings in Paris Aug. 12.

Acts to Remedy Labor Ills.

The cabinet also took steps to remedy "social and labor consequences" of the industrial crisis, which is considered an important factor in the swelling unrest of the working classes.

Reorganization of the food supply, another source of discontent, was also discussed.

Paris newspapers, under orders, published on their front pages the German military decree holding French prisoners as hostages under pain of death for future offenses in the occupied zone.

Concerted editorial comment described this order, resulting from the assassination of a German colonel in Paris Thursday, as a "final warning to saboteurs."

British Influence Blamed.

Editorials blamed the present ferment on British influence as well as on communists, Jews, Free Masons, and capitalism.

L'Oeuvre said communism "is a mortal peril, directly menacing order on the streets and the lives of our people. France is becoming one of the battlefields where the forces of the new order confront those of destruction."

These latter forces, it said, were backed by President Roosevelt and American Ambassador William Leahy.

The Paris police raids in which 6,000 were arrested the first day, were reported to have swung from the working-class districts to the fashionable Champs Elysees section.

ICELAND TO GET EXPORT LICENSE FOR U. S. GOODS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23 [Special].—The United States government today extended extraordinary trade facilities to Iceland, site of the newest base to be established for American naval and military forces.

The state department authorized the issuance of general export licenses for all types of merchandise and materials to Iceland, except arms, munitions and the limited list of materials where shortages may threaten the national defense program.

Before the war Iceland traded principally with Denmark and Great Britain, but now it must deal almost exclusively with the United States.

Canadian War Spending Runs 3 to 4 Million a Day

New York, Aug. 23 [Special].—Continued increase in business expansion in Canada reflects the fact that war expenditures in the dominion are running at the rate of 3 to 4 million dollars a day, the Bank of Montreal reports in its current survey of business conditions.

NEW LEND-LEASE PROGRAM PLACED AT 5,000 MILLIONS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23 (AP).—Administration lieutenants disclosed today that the new lease-lend appropriation to be asked of congress will approximate 5,000 million dollars and will provide no funds for soviet Russia.

Congressional leaders discussed additional lease-lend appropriations with the President earlier this week. A well informed official, unwilling to be quoted, said today that the chief executive agreed at that time that none of the new money will go to Russia.

The congressional leaders were said to have advised Mr. Roosevelt that a new appropriation for aid to Britain and China probably could be whipped thru congress without difficulty, if it were made clear that none of the money would go to Russia.

Congress already has appropriated 7,000 million dollars for the aid to Britain program. While virtually the entire fund has been obligated, only a minor portion actually has been spent.

SNATCH MRS. W. M. COLLINS' PURSE.

GUERRILLA ARMY OF BRITISH FIGHTS NAZIS IN CRETE

They Are the Men Who Were Left Behind.

LONDON, Aug. 23 (AP).—Three months after the Germans seized Crete, stealthy warfare still is being waged on that rugged Mediterranean island by a lost legion of Australians, New Zealander, and Britons—men who didn't catch the boats when the British withdrew.

The story of their exploits is vouched for by Maj. Gen. Sir Iven Mackay, who recently left the middle east to command the Australian home army.

Some military men advocate that the royal air force send an expedition to drop ammunition and supplies to the men who refuse to call it quits.

In withdrawing from Crete, the British left behind 12,970 men, many of them dead or captured. An undetermined number, however, eluded the Nazis.

These ragged, defiant bands, as described by officers returning from Egypt, steal out at night to kill German sentries and sabotage anything of value to the Germans. The officers say also:

They set mysterious fires around German airports and barracks. They live by looting German commissaries and by the help of villagers. At the risk of execution if caught, Cretan women tend the wounded.

Lure Sentries Away to Death.

Leaders among these guerrillas are a handful of Maoris, bronze Polynesian natives of New Zealand, who have in a sense "gone native" after the manner of their warrior ancestors.

They are described as adept at setting deadfalls, at luring sentries away from posts to be strangled or stabbed, and at constant spying which makes the Germans increasingly restless.

HAND TO HAND WAR WAGED FOR ODESSA—NAZIS

Cherkasi Capture in Kiev Area Reported.

BERLIN, Aug. 23 (AP).—Bloody hand to hand engagements outside the Black sea port of Odessa between German-Rumanian troops and fanatical bands of defenders, with neither side asking quarter, were described tonight in dispatches from the eastern front.

Equally desperate struggles between the Nazi forces and the vast Russian population, soldier and civilian, were reported in the Leningrad area to the north. Waves of German bombers were said to be smashing Russian airdromes on the outskirts of Leningrad as ground troops pressed their offensive.

[A New York listening post picked up a Berlin radio report which said the Germans had broken thru all Russian field fortifications near Lake Ilmen, south of Leningrad, and had taken several bunkers by storm.]

Capture City of Cherkasi.

DNB, official news agency, spoke of violent battles along the Dnieper river and the capture of the river city of Cherkasi, 90 miles southeast of Kiev, capital of Ukraine, where the Germans were trying to force a crossing.

The news agency reported also that the courier plane of Marshal Klementi Voroshilov, commander of the soviet northern forces, had been shot down when its pilot mistook Idritsa, held by the Germans, for Velikie Luki, 65 miles away near the battle lines, and that important secret documents of the soviet high command had been seized.

In the middle sector between Kiev and Smolensk German dispatches indicated a new threat to Moscow was developing. The Nazis said they had smashed 60 miles beyond Gomel, in Russia proper, towards Bryansk, an important rail junction some 300 miles south of the soviet capital. This force annihilated the bulk of two soviet armies in its advance, the dispatches said.

Odessa Massing Civilian Defense.

The dispatches from the Odessa sector said the mechanized forces of the invaders, German and Rumania, were encountering strong opposition, but that the defenders' position seemed hopeless. Marines and sailors have been called from ships in the harbor to prepare for a fight in the streets alongside factory workers, communist party members, chauffeurs, and others.

Altho the defenders had the benefit of elaborate fortifications, Germans were smashing into concrete trenches and casemates which Russians built 10 years ago.

[A radio listening post in New York picked up a British broadcast which said that Bucharest had reported the Germans and Rumanians were within nine miles of Odessa.]

Finns Encircling Viipuri.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Aug. 23.—The Finns reported today that the port of Viipuri was near encirclement by victorious Finnish trops smashing southward across the Karelain isthmus and that an "avalanche offensive" now was being directed against its Red army defenses. On Friday the Finns had reached Kiviniemi, less than 50 miles north of Leningrad.

Viipuri, which as a city of 75,000, was Finland's second largest before being given to Russia after the Russian-Finnish war of 1939-'40, lies approximately 15 miles inside the new Russian-Finnish frontier. It is 75 miles northwest of Leningrad.

MUNITION WORKS ADDS BOMB LOAD LINE ON AUG. 30

Officials of the new federal munition works at Elwood, in Will county, announced that they expected to put a second load line in operation Aug. 30. The first line, which has a mile long conveyor as its outstanding feature, began loading shells in June. The new one, it was indicated, will load bombs. The TNT plant near Kankakee is almost ready for operations, the officials said. Figures on production so far have been kept secret.

The War in Russia

Yesterday's developments in the war in Russia.

MANNHEIM FIRES SET BY BRITISH IN BOMBING ATTACK

LONDON, Aug. 23 (AP).—British bombers last night loosed explosives on the industrial city of Mannheim in western Germany, hitting industrial buildings and setting many large fires, the air ministry news service said today. They also attacked harbor facilities at Le Harve and Dunkirk, France, and docks at Ostend, Belgium.

The ministries of air and home security said a few German planes dropped bombs that did slight damage in England and that one of the craft was shot down.

[DNB, German official news agency, said British planes caused few casualties and unimportant damage in their attacks in Germany. The British lost one plane. German bombers were credited with having sunk a 1,000 ton vessel off the English port of Great Yarmouth and to have struck at British airports.]

A royal air force plane crashed into two houses in the Edgeware district of London today, killing a mother, two children, and the pilot.

JOHNSON GIVES CONFIDENCE TO ANTI-WAR FIGHT

Encouragement for the anti-war forces came from United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California yesterday when he passed thru Chicago on his way to San Francisco, where his namesake grandson is seriously ill.

Senator Johnson, who is 76 years old, said he is too old to carry on the fight. "But there are forces in congress to lead the fight against war," he added. The situation today is not like it was during the World war because America's formerly inarticulate population has learned now to express itself.

"The first evidence of this is to be found in recent votes in the house. Ultimately the effect will echo in the senate."

FATE OF EUROPE NOT U. S. WORRY, SAYS PUBLISHER

It is not the business of the United States to underwrite the fate of Europe, J. J. Holtzermann, Minneapolis, publisher of the anti-war weekly, the Minnesota Beacon, said last night.

Holtzermann spoke at an informal radio conference with Prof. Maynard C. Krueger, University of Chicago economist; Jay Franklin, newspaper columnist, and Morton Bodfish, chairman of the city planning advisory board. They discussed the Roosevelt-Churchill eight point program reached last week at sea.

While all four agreed that in spirit at least, the eight points were good, Prof. Krueger and Holtzermann insisted that they lacked substance and clarity. Whether or not they are another step toward war, it is not America's business to enter the war, Holtzermann insisted.

Haiti Cancels Privileges for All German Consuls

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Aug. 23 (AP).—The Haitian government tonight announced withdrawal of all privileges of German consuls "for internal and international reasons."

TITANIC BATTLES RAGING ON THREE FRONTS, SAY REDS

Leningrad Citizens Asked to Fight to Death.

MOSCOW, Aug. 24 [Sunday].—Red army defenders are battling fiercely against steadily mounting pressure on Odessa and Leningrad, the Russians announced today, while in the old czarist capital Red Marshal Klementi Voroshilov organized a triple defense for a fight to the death against the Germans.

Klementi Voroshilov.

Leningrad, proclaimed officially to be "in terrible danger," was the object of particularly heavy German assaults from the Kingisepp and Novgorod sectors on the southwest and south, today's communique said.

Battles Rage on Three Fronts.

There and on the Odessa front as well as in the Smolensk area facing Moscow the Russians said their forces were locked in titantic battles with the Nazi invaders. North on the Karelian isthmus the Russian lines against the Finns seemed firmly held.

Altho the Russians were silent on the progress of the operations about Leningrad and at Smolensk, they declared great losses were being inflicted on Rumanian forces stabbing at Odessa.

The Russians said Rumanian divisions on the southern front had been cut to 20 or 25 per cent of their man power with corresponding losses inflicted on their equipment.

Asks War to "Last Man."

Voroshilov prepared for literally a "last man" defense of the city. As explained by the official communist organ Pravda in an editorial on Russia's man power, the city is to be defended by three lines: [1] the Red army, [2] the People's army, and [3] a fighting reserve of both men and women civilians now training after working hours.

Pravda told how this policy already had worked at one city, where a siege was lifted after German tanks had reached the outskirts, cutting highways and railways and encircling it. Factories, offices, and shops organized a people's detachment which went to the front line with orders not to retreat. A typical section of the front line was described as having a Red army man, a bookkeeper, a mechanic, a militiaman, and a sailor standing side by side, with a girl near by holding a rifle at a parapet ready to resist attack.

"Dig yourselves in," said Marshal Voroshilov's new proclamation. "Leningrad was, is, and shall forever remain the city of the great October revolution."

Meanwhile, the broad squares of Leningrad rang with the marching of the people's army. The embankments of the Neva river were sandbagged, while factories and workshops operated at top speed. Curiously, shops did a flourishing business and motion picture and legitimate theaters played to packed houses.

Reds Report Counterattack.

The Russians held the initiative with counterattacks in the central sector, where Moscow is the ultimate Nazi objective, according to dispatches from the front. The official government newspaper Izvestia reported that five German divisions were routed by such counterthrusts near city "K."

The German 71st, 95th, 44th, and 299th divisions attacked, with the 99th in reserve, while the Russians retired to prepared positions, the dispatches said; then in the night a Russian bayonet attack was said to have routed the Germans. As an example of the German losses, the dispatch said the 95th division lost 75 per cent of its personnel.

BRITISH PLANES DROP 25 TONS OF BOMBS ON AXIS PORT IN LIBYA

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 23 (AP).—British bombers dropped more than 25 tons of bombs on the Spanish mole in Tripoli, the Axis' chief Libyan supply port, and caused large fires and explosions Thursday night, the RAF middle east communique said today.

The communique said bombs straddled a mole where four ships were moored, touched off explosions inside water front warehouses and were believed to have destroyed one vessel. Shipping and port facilities were considerably damaged.

Nazis Bag 12 RAF Planes.

ROME, Aug. 23 (AP).—The Italian high command reported today that German fighter planes had shot down 10 British planes in air fighting on the North African front. Two more British planes, it said, were bagged by Italian anti-aircraft batteries at Bardia, Libya. British reports in Cairo acknowledged the loss of four planes and claimed to have downed four fighters.

SEIZE MORE IN 54 DAYS THAN REDS DID IN 134—FINNS

Claim Land, Booty Exceed Last War's Losses.

Pictures from the Finnish-Russian war front will be found in today's picture section.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Aug. 23.—In 54 days of fighting the Finnish army has achieved far greater results in the capture of both territory and war booty than the Red army achieved in its 134 day winter war against Finland, army officials said today.

Some of the villages on this isthmus [Karelian] have been saved by the rapid advance of the Finns, while others have been completely destroyed. Kakisalmi, formerly a town of 3,500 persons where the great Walthof cellulose plant was located, was found burned to the ground when it was captured Thursday. Much of the machinery of the factory had been dismantled and taken to Leningrad, but the buildings were undamaged.

Wreck Enso Electric Plant.

The great Ruhiala electric plant near Enso was found wrecked. Turbines had been removed and other machinery destroyed. Only the buildings and the dam remain. It was the second largest hydroelectric plant in Finland.

The destruction of the property on the isthmus has angered the Finns. Plants valued at many millions of dollars and the results of generations of labor have been demolished and despoiled during the 15 months of Russian occupation.

Every cemetery in the recovered territory had been desecrated, all gravestones being overturned, according to army officers. Many contained monuments to local men who had fallen in Finland's war of independence against the Red army in 1918 and these had been dynamited or defaced. National monuments have disappeared. Churches have been converted into movies, Lenin clubs, mess halls, and storehouses.

Army doctors said all Russian families on collectivized farms were suffering from malnutrition, tuberculosis and other diseases. Infant mortality was high. Cultivated areas on collectivized farms averaged only three acres per person, barely enough to keep them alive.

Think Russia Is Collapsing.

Commenting upon the beginning of the third month of the war against bolshevism, military experts of all Finnish newspapers expressed belief that Russian resistance is collapsing and that there is no possibility of the war being continued thru the winter. It will be impossible for the Reds, they say, to replace even a small part of the wrecked and captured war machines.

Using the wave lengths of the Finnish station, Leningrad has been spoiling musical programs by short propaganda speeches in Finnish assuring the Finns that soviet Russia is their friend and urging them to turn their armies against the Germans. Finland is replying with broadcasts in the Russian language urging Red soldiers and officers to massacre political commissars and communists and to destroy bolshevism before bolshevism destroys them by continuing a hopeless war against a superior armed and led army.

Finnish planes have distributed 150,000,000 leaflets over Leningrad since the outbreak of the war. They call upon the population to stage a new revolution against the Russian minority rule which has kept the Russian nation in bondage for 24 years.

ENGLAND ASKS BURMA TO LIFT TAX ON U. S. AID

LONDON, Aug. 23 (AP).—The British government has made "urgent" official representations to the Burma government seeking removal of the 1 per cent transit duty levied against United States lend-lease supplies en route to China over the Burma road, an informed source said today.

This source explained that "Burma is strictly self-governing in internal affairs and therefore Britain can only make known its views on such a matter."

[Removal of the tax was demanded in Chungking yesterday by Daniel Arnstein, New York traffic and trucking expert who conducted a survey of causes of delays in Burma road traffic. "The tax has got to go, and believe you me, it's going," Arnstein declared after he had discussed the matter with British officials in Burma.]

BIGGEST CONVOY FROM U. S. SEEN BY CHURCHILL

LONDON, Aug. 23 (AP).—The ministry of information disclosed today that the convoy which Prime Minister Winston Churchill reviewed en route home from his sea meeting with President Roosevelt was making "one of the biggest deliveries of American arms and food ever sent to Britain." Several Americans, including six en route to join the Eagle squadron of the royal air force, were aboard. Women aboard included Nancy Cunard, member of the English shipping family who was denied admission to the United States because she had no vica, and Mrs. Geoffrey De Fretas, the former Helen Bell of Winnetka, Ill.

REVIEW 10 YEAR SPIT CASE TERM GIVEN DRAFTEE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23 (AP).—The war department was described officially today as amazed at the 10 year court martial sentence given Private John Habinyak, 26-year-old draftee, for refusing to obey orders of his officers. An official source added that the case would be promptly reviewed and that a final decision could be expected Tuesday.

[A. P. Wirephoto.]
Col. C. B. Elliott.

Habinyak, quoted as having said he received $10 a day in civilian life as a coal miner, and would not work for $21 a month, meanwhile was in the guardhouse at Fort Bragg, N. C., where the record of his court martial was signed by Col. C. B. Elliott, post commander.

His troubles began 10 days after he was inducted into the army, June 23, from Central City, Pa. Lieut. Leo J. Kraus ordered him to clean his mess kit. He refused. He declined, too, to clean up the floor around his bed. He also spat on the floor of the mess hall and refused to clean up the saliva.

Fort Bragg officers today said the sentence was being changed from Atlanta to the military disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

MANY TIMES

In a speech at Cleveland last Nov. 2, three days before his reelection, President Roosevelt said:

"There is nothing secret about our foreign policy. . . . I have stated it many times before, not only in words, but in action. I now restate it.

"The first purpose of our foreign policy is to keep our country out of war. At the same time we seek to keep foreign conceptions of government out of the United States.

"The second purpose of this policy is to keep war as far away as possible from the shores of the entire western hemisphere."

Canadian Flyer Recruits to Train at Jersey Base

Carlstadt, N. J., Aug. 23 (AP).—Two hundred royal Canadian air force recruits will begin training Sept. 15 at the Sky Harbor seaplane base here, Lieut. Harold Lentz, base director, announced today. At the same time 20 college students will start training as part of the Civil Aeronautics authority program to develop civilian flyers, Lieut. Lentz said.

BRITISH TITHES MAKE ISSUE OF FREE RELIGION

Subject Omitted from War Aim Pact.

Failure of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill to include freedom of religion in their eight point agreement has aroused considerable speculation as to the reason for the omission.

President Roosevelt's subsequent mention in his report to congress of both freedom of information, as he termed it, and freedom of religion has given rise to the belief that the troublesome question of tithes which for centuries helped support the Church of England, may have entered into the discussion of the President and the prime minister.

Dr. Paul Hutchinson, managing editor of the Christian Century, said last night that matters relating to religious freedom in England vary considerably from those in the United States. He explained that the Church of England is an established or state church, and that, altho during recent years the English church is tolerant toward free or non-conformist churches, taxation for the established church's support is levied on persons irrespective of creed.

Church Tax Unpopular.

"Such taxation is a limitation of religious freedom and that situation may, in part, account for Mr. Churchill's success on the Atlantic in securing President Roosevelt's consent to the omission of the religious freedom question," Dr. Hutchinson explained. "Altho the tithe question was supposed to have been settled in 1936, the substitute for the tithe, an annual tax assessment of something like 11 million dollars for the Church of England, never has been popular."

In the Old Testament tithes originally referred to "first fruits" of crops, which came to mean one tenth of a farm's yield. Tithes at first were voluntary, but over the years in England they came to be fixed taxes on land payable to the large universities and the Church of England. The rate was fixed in deeds conveying land from one owner to another.

Church Rights Sold.

Under the tithe settlement of 1936 the Church of England sold its tithe right on lands for approximately 260 million dollars. The rights of tithe owners were thus acquired by the state which compensated the tithe owners with government stock bearing 3 per cent interest. Farmers who owned land have been dissatisfied with the new scheme because it brought no improvement. Rather, it forced the farmers to pay taxes to redeem the bonds over a period of 30 years. Another objection was that redemption of the tithe rent became a personal debt rather than a capital charge on the land. Prison sentences resulted in several cases where farmers refused to pay the church tax.

Annual revenues of the Church of England have been nearly 75 million dollars.

"Church Shears Us."

Dr. Hutchinson recalled the farmers' revolt against the tithes in 1934, and dissatisfaction with the subsequent settlement. At that time processions wound thru London bearing banners against "Queen Anne's bounty," the royalties from which were diverted from the crown to the Church of England in 1704.

"We shear sheep, the church shears us," some banners said. "Churchmen—Be Sportsmen," said others.

[In England the word churchman refers only to members of the Church of England. Methodists, for example, formed "societies" and worshipped in "chapels," not churches. "Conventicle" and "non-conformist" were words applied to Christian groups who were not in the church.]

JAPANESE ENVOY SEES HULL, SEEKS WAY TO END RIFT

Washington, Aug. 23 (AP).—Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, the Japanese ambassador, said after a conference with Secretary of State Hull today that the gap between conflicting American and Japanese policies in the far east "must be bridged" and that he had "a very strong conviction that it will be, altho I don't know just how."

The ambassador told reporters that the conference embodied a frank and general discussion of problems in the Pacific, but that no agreements were reached.

The ambassador, who called on Secretary Hull on his own initiative, said that they had talked "not as diplomats but as human beings" in an effort to find mutually satisfactory solutions to major differences.

Asked whether he felt that "the gap between American and Japanese policies," could be bridged, Admiral Nomura declared it "would be folly of the worst kind" to fail to achieve a solution.

success, he and his family may owe their throne to this republic.

One hundred and sixty-five years after the spirit of '76 Mr. Roosevelt holds no revulsion for monarchy. He has been assiduously courted by royalty and has received royalty with wide open hospitality at the White House as President, and in his home here as a private citizen.

Among royal visitors Mr. Roosevelt has entertained, in addition to King George and the queen, are:

Crown Prince Frederik and Crown Princess Ingrid of Denmark.

Crown Princess Martha of Norway.

Crown Princess Louise and her son, Prince Bertil, of Sweden.

Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxemburg and her consort, Prince Felix.

The maharajah of Kapurthala.

The duke will accompany Mr. Roosevelt when the latter boards his special for Washington tomorrow night and will be a White House dinner guest Monday night. He will return to Canada Tuesday.

WITH NEW HUDSON

DRIVE-MASTER*

EASIEST OF ALL WAYS TO DRIVE

No Clutch-Pushing . . . No Gear-Shifting . . . Nothing New To Learn

You just start the motor, step on the accelerator and GO. From then on, there's no need to touch either gear lever or clutch to meet any ordinary driving situation. No other way of driving is so easy, so smooth, or does so much to make motoring safer. Nothing new to learn.

The new Hudson Drive-Master is one of the foremost advancements in a 32-year record of engineering leadership! No other car can offer it. By all means, try it soon!

Available at low extra cost on all 1942 Hudsons (and worth many times what it costs)*

BUILT TO SERVE BETTER . . . LAST LONGER . . . COST LESS TO RUN

YES, the new 1942 Hudsons are in town right now . . . and now's the time for you to see them, to get behind the wheel and take one out for a trial trip.

Here are cars that, because they are outstanding examples of the latest and best in the art of automobile design, will meet the needs of the many 1942 buyers who expect to drive their new cars for several years instead of one or two. Cars that will stand up. Cars that will cost less to run (as any Hudson owner will tell you, and as shown by the results of the latest Gilmore Grand Canyon Economy Run).

So come in . . . see all that's fine and all that's new in Hudson for '42. New features, headlined by the easiest of all ways to drive—Hudson's Drive-Master. New, longer, lower body lines. Beautiful interiors which introduce completely new, long-wearing upholstery fabrics . . . typical of the quality which, so long as obtainable, you can find in every 1942 Hudson.

Get reacquainted, too, with the many great features that have given Hudsons their record-holding performance . . . and have made them America's Safest Cars. Be sure to ask about Patented Double-Safe Brakes and Auto-Poise Control—two of the greatest safety features ever put on any car.

As usual, Hudson prices are surprisingly low, starting among 1942's lowest. Visit your Hudson dealer today . . . for a look and a ride!

New for '42 . . . Safety Running Boards! Wide, full-length running boards are standard on all 1942 Hudsons, concealed and protected against snow, ice and slippery mud. Extra safety the year 'round!

Hudson has been entrusted in the present national emergency with a large and steadily increasing amount of defense work, calling for the highest degree of manufacturing skill and accuracy. We are glad to announce that, along with the performance of this national service, we are able to present to the American public new 1942 models. These, while necessarily restricted as to the number we may be able to build, strictly maintain the high standards established during 32 years of engineering leadership.

CENSORS KEEP THEM IN DARK, JAPS COMPLAIN

Told Dearth of News Due to Emergency.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Aug. 23.—Press censorship here has become so strict in the last few weeks that it is virtually impossible to obtain accurate, if any, information on many national as well as international events from newspapers, the radio, or other news channels.

Complaints are heard everywhere that the public, which is being admonished day in and day out to follow the course that the government has set, is being kept in the dark and often has no idea what course has been plotted.

Calls Inconveniences Necessary.

Answering such complaints, a government spokesman said tonight that the public must put up with inconveniences during emergencies, asserting that the censorship primarily was to keep hostile countries from obtainings would be made public when the to the detriment of Japan.

The spokesman admitted the public had not been told the results of the last conference of the supreme leaders, held in the presence of Emperor Hirohito, to decide Japan's course following the outbreak of the Russo-German war, but said such proceedings would be made public when the "proper time" comes..

Attack U. S. Oil Plan.

The newspaper Yomiuri asked to Russia, close on the heels of the freezing of Japanese funds and the placing of a virtual embargo on oil and other exports here, was attacked on all sides today as the most warlike and challenging step the United States has yet taken.

The newspaper Yomiuri asked these questions: What would public opinion in the United States demand if Japan sent arms and war materials to a country in Latin America hostile to America and had ships bearing such cargoes sail close to the California coast? Will Washington observe the principle of freedom of the seas and look the other way?

There is no doubt that public feeling is rapidly being stirred up against the United States and Russia. Authoritative sources said that Moscow should be well aware that receiving American aid will severely irritate Japan because nobody can be so naive as to think that such aid will be used only to fight Germany.

"The American attitude against Japan has become more daring and has gone beyond the bounds of a mere gesture to restrain this country," the newspaper Chugai Shogyo said.

Japs Bomb Chungking Again.

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 23 (AP).—The university district in the western outskirts of Chungking, home of about 7,000 Chinese students, again was the principal target today as Japanese planes smashed at the capital for the second successive day.

Fifty-four planes crossed the city in two equal waves during a five hour alarm. Pillars of smoke and flame visible for miles around indicated the scope of the new damages.

Sees End of War Next Year.

SINGAPORE, Aug. 23 (AP).—In a message arriving today from Chungking, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek predicted the conflict with Japan would end next year and thanked Malaya's 2,500,000 Chinese "for help which enabled me to carry on the war for so long."

SHANGHAI HEARS JAPS HOLD UP 700 BAGS OF U. S. MAIL

SHANGHAI, China, Aug. 23 (AP).—Unconfirmed reports tonight said Japanese authorities, who control the local postoffice, were withholding 700 bags of American mail which had arrived here in the last month. This was described as further reprisal for the American freezing of Japanese assets. There was no official comment, but residents said they had received little or no mail from the last several American ships, altho they had expected considerable quantities.

MEXICO REBUILDS RAIL LINE ACROSS ISTHMUS TO AID PANAMA CANAL

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 23 (AP).—Mexico has ordered work on the 12,000,000 peso [$2,500,000] job of rebuilding the antiquated 190 mile Tehauntepec isthmus railroad begun as soon as feasible so it may be used as a possible substitute for the Panama canal if war comes to this hemisphere.

Arrow locates Tehauntepec railway.

The communications ministry said in an order to the state operated Mexican National railways yesterday that it anticipated heavy traffic on the isthmus railway owing to war restrictions on merchant shipping using the canal.

President Manuel Avila Camacho said recently that the railway, running over rugged mountains, would be rebuilt as a precaution against "the eventuality of United States involvement in the war."

Ecuador Congress Backs Roosevelt-Churchill 8 Points

QUITO, Ecuador, Aug. 23 (AP).—The Ecuadorian senate and chamber of deputies today approved a resolution endorsing the principles of the eight point Roosevelt-Churchill declaration. The senate passed the resolution unanimously.

U. S. TROOPS FIND ICELAND NO LAND FOR A TOURIST

One Movie, No Resorts; Fishing at $10 a Day.

[Tom Horgan, Associated Press staff writer, has been on a voyage with vessels of the United States neutrality patrol and has visited Iceland. Here is a story of what he found there, certain details being omitted at the request of the United States navy.]

BY TOM HORGAN.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 13 [Delayed] (AP).—Recreational facilities for American forces stationed in Iceland present a problem. Of all countries, this probably is the least prepared to offer comfort and entertainment to visitors, even if they had come as small groups of tourists instead of by thousands.

A motion picture theater now represents virtually the only established diversion. Reykjavik boasts a big national theater, but for seven years it has been little used. Now it serves as a storehouse.

The one liquor license is held by a hotel, to which enlisted men are not admitted. There are no cafés such as are known in the United States, and no recreational resorts.

Fishing at $10 a Day.

Many of the world's finest salmon streams are located in Iceland, but the fishing rights are privately owned and the usual price for the privilege of fishing one is $10 a day.

One detachment of United States marines is encamped on the bank of such a stream, but the leathernecks may only watch the leaping fish. British sportsmen for years have held the rights to many of the rivers, and an English admiral is reputed to have paid $1,000 for a year's fishing of one stream, with not more than three rods at a time.

The United States' consul, Bertel K. Kuniholm of Gardner, Mass., solved his recreational problem with a shotgun. With Reykjavik's police chief, he shoots snipe, plover, curlew, ducks, and geese.

Iceland's feathered migratory visitors winter in Africa and India and are not to be confused with the migratory birds of North America. Ptarmigan, resembling an American ruffed grouse, except that its plumage turns white in the winter, are plentiful, and they and the silver or blue fox are the only important year around wild life in Iceland. Falcons feed on the ptarmigan.

Shooting Is Frowned On.

Shooting, however, is not generally approved of by the Icelanders as a sport and Kuniholm obtains permission from owners before hunting on their property.

The government is attempting to popularize out-of-door activities, including skiing, during the summer months. There is always plenty of snow for that sport in the interior, and hot springs could make swimming a year around activity.

The descendants of the Vikings do little sailing, and even the local fishing fleet is motorized.

They Want No Boom.

The Icelanders fish for cod and herring and the people are not enthusiastic over a semi-boom based on the presence of American and British troops.

Wages have increased—pay for domestic help has doubled in a year—the hotels are jammed, shopkeepers are hard pressed to meet demands of the military visitors, and no one is on relief, but that has brought little general rejoicing. Already the Icelanders ask what is to come after the foreigners depart.

They hope the foreigners will leave after the emergency.

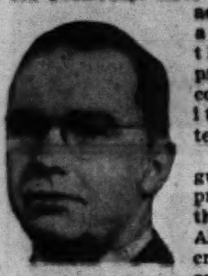
NATION'S PARTY LEADERS WATCH REMAPPING SUIT

Attack Unlike Any Ruled On in Former Years.

BY PARKE BROWN.

National political leaders, it was said yesterday, have begun to show acute interest in a case filed in the Illinois Supreme court for consideration at its September term.



Anthony W. Daly.

The action, begun by State Representative Anthony W. Daly of Alton, a Democrat, asks the court to prohibit the election of congressmen from this state from the 25 congressional districts as they are now constituted.

If the court sustains Daly, attorneys hold, either the general assembly must be called into special session to redistrict the state or next year all of the congressmen from Illinois—26 under the new federal apportionment—will be elected at large.

Politicians say that in either event there would be an increase in the number of Republican congressmen from Illinois. Redistricting on the principle of equality in population would eliminate the pocket boroughs which now elect Democrats. If all congressmen are elected at large and the Republicans carry the state as they did with their state ticket last year all of the 26 winners probably would be Republicans.

Representative Daly's line of attack before the state's highest tribunal is one never passed upon by that tribunal, altho it has acted adversely on repeated efforts to compel the legislature to obey the state constitution and equalize both congressional and legislative districts.

Makes Independent Fight.

In the assembly, where he is serving his first term, Daly is regarded as an independent Democrat. He is young—35 years old—but now is a Circuit court master in chancery, and has served as city attorney of Alton and as probate judge of Madison county.

His own district, the 22d, is overpopulated, and he says he is making his fight in behalf of the district and in behalf of the entire state. His effort is not sponsored by any organization and he has paid the costs of his case out of his own pocket.

The present lines were set up in 1901. The constitution orders the general assembly to remap the state every 10 years—after each decennial census. Obedience to this basic law would have produced redistricting in 1911, 1921, 1931, and again this year. Despite great public demand the assembly has not remapped the legislative districts in valid fashion for 40 years. In 1931 a congressional redistricting bill was passed, but the act was invalidated by the state Supreme court because of inequalities in population.

Partial Disfranchisement.

Daly, and two other taxpayers of Madison county who have joined with him in the appeal from the Circuit court of that county, base their plea primarily on that specific point—that the present districts are so unequal in population that partial disfranchisement results.

And right here they urge a point that, lawyers say, has not been considered by the Illinois high court in this connection. It is stated in this way in the argument:

"The prior validity or invalidity of the Illinois congressional apportionment act of 1901 is not in issue here. A statute valid when enacted may become invalid by change in the conditions to which it is applied. A statute valid as to one set of facts may be invalid as to another.

"The validity of the 1901 act has never been examined by this court. But even if it were valid when enacted there has been a radical change in the conditions of population distribution to which it is applicable.

"The set of population facts as to which it may have been valid has been supplanted by a set of population facts as to which it is manifestly invalid."

The exact language, "a statute valid as to one set of facts may be invalid as to another" and "a statute valid when enacted may become invalid by change in the conditions to which it applies," then is cited by the appellants from decisions by the United States Supreme court.

Altho these contentions are stressed, Representative Daly and his associates are making their fight primarily on section 18 of article 2 of the bill of rights of the Illinois constitution, which requires that "all elections be free and equal." In analyzing the inequalities resulting from permitting the act of 1901 to stand for 40 years, hey list the 1940 populations of the present districts.

Tabulation of Population.

That tabulation follows:

District.	Population.	District.	Population.
1st	140,597	14th	214,560
2d	612,641	15th	217,324
3d	575,799	16th	236,685
4th	223,304	17th	176,337
5th	112,116	18th	235,134
6th	641,719	19th	254,001
7th	914,053	20th	162,523
8th	122,743	21st	227,276
9th	215,175	22d	359,343
10th	625,350	23d	243,120
11th	385,207	24th	174,206
12th	398,072	25th	262,420
13th	186,433

Of the results of this inequality, the appellants used the words "unreasonable, unfair and unjust" and in their discussion dwelt particularly on the 5th district, a Chicago Democratic bailiwick long represented by Congressman A. J. Sabath. The census showed its population as 112,116, contrasted with the 7th district, with 914,053.

The appellants assert in their analysis:

"There are 23 districts which have 25 per cent more inhabitants than the 5th district. There are 21 districts which have 50 per cent more population than the 5th, 18 that have more than 90 per cent more than the 5th, 14 that have more than double the number of inhabitants of the 5th, there are seven that are more than triple, five that have more than five times, and one district, the 7th, which has more than eight times the population of the 5th.

"In the 7th district there are 914,053 inhabitants. In that district it is necessary for 8.153 voters to go to the polls and vote to equal the vote of one voter in the 5th district."

Each Should Have 303,740.

The Supreme court is told that the "ratio"—or one twenty-sixth of the state's population—which should be the standard for each of the districts is 303,740.

It also is told that the Sabath district has been losing population steadily ever since the 1901 lines were drawn. For this comparison official census figures are used. In 1901 the population of the 5th was 212,978, in 1910 it was 192,411, in 1920 it was 158,092, in 1930 it was 140,481, and by last year it had dropped to 112,116—a little more than half its original size altho the population of Illinois has mounted steadily during the four decades.

Daly and his associates argue that because of the excessive population in seven districts with a combined population of 4,114,121 out of a total state population of 7,897,241 "the right of more than 50 per cent of the inhabitants over 21 years of age in those districts" is abridged in violation of the federal and state constitutions.

PROJECTS BLACK AND WHITE FILM AS COLOR MOVIE

French Scientist Does It with Lenses Only.

The films are plain black and white. They are taken with an ordinary camera, developed by ordinary processes, and projected on the screen by an ordinary machine.

The difference comes from two lenses, one fitted on the camera that takes the photos, the other fitted on the projector.

The colors are supplied in this projection lens, actually being mixed in the beam of light that casts the pictures on the screen.

It is done so simply that a noted German professor of optics, when he saw the pictures, sighed, "It's another case of Columbus and the egg. Why didn't we think of it ourselves?"

Camera Lens Is 4 Filters.

The lens that takes the pictures is divided into four equal sections. It takes four pictures, superimposing them on the protographic film, with a slight offset of each image.

Each section of the camera lens is in a different color—red, green, blue, and yellow forming the quartet. The result is that each of the four pictures is taken thru a different color filter.

Altho all the pictures are black and white, the effect of the color filters is to give each a different depth of blacks and whites. All four are visible, being slightly offset.

For projection, a similar four section, four colored lens is fitted over the projector. It casts four images on the movie screen, but the four are exactly superimposed, so that they make a single perfect image.

The colors are strikingly natural. A spectator saw, for example, a boxing match in a Paris arena. The sluggers' bodies, as in nature, were much whiter than their sunburned faces. One wore dark brown trunks with white stripes, the other plain black trunks. Beads of perspiration on the boxers stood out clearly.

All Colors of Rainbow.

Women nattily dressed for day, evening and bathing wear appeared in every color of the rainbow. Children, blond and brunette, were shown on the screen. Differences in complexions were clearly visible.

Roux keeps the nature of his lenses a secret, except to say that he is using the principles of parallax. This is a common astronomical word, describing the displacement of an object when seen from two different angles.

Apparently this kind of displacement explains Prof. Roux's ability to handle four images thru a single four-part lens. He has only two lenses at present, both handmade.

Prof. Roux uses four colors instead of the three primary colors because he says he gets better results with the four.

He is 47 years old, a member of the Institut d'Optique of Paris, and came to Berlin at the request of scientists.

Three Advantages Claimed.

He said his invention has three outstanding advantages.

"With my invention," he said, "you can throw a picture, true to nature as regards color, on the screen as quickly after the event as it now takes black and white film to appear. This means the weekly newsreels can be so projected. My invention is so cheap that even the smallest movie house can afford my special lens, and in less than a week operators can get the hang of foscussing. My films are much cheaper than color films treated by special chemical means."

FALL FATAL TO CONVICT.

LeRoy Williams, 43 years old, Negro slayer, died yesterday in Joliet prison hospital of injuries received Friday when he was pushed off the third floor cell tier to the concrete areaway during a fight with his cellmate, Clifton Jones, Negro.

Refugee Arrives

Michael Lund-Yates, age 7, with Bishop Sheil at Chicago airport after boy's arrival on American Airlines Flagship.

Michael Lund-Yates, 7 year old British refugee, arrived in Chicago aboard an American Airlines flagship yesterday to spend a 4 week vacation at the Catholic Youth organization boys' home in Lockport, Ill. He will live at the home of the superintendent, John Wilson. Michael, whose home is in Harwell, England, was welcomed at the Municipal airport by Bishop Bernard J. Sheil. Late in September the boy will enter a parochial school in Connecticut.

SHOES ARE CLEW IN ROGERS PARK STRANGLE CASE

The mysterious case of the strangled woman acquired a strange Cinderella twist yesterday when police pinned their hopes of identifying her on a pair of shoes found 64 miles from where the body was tossed into a street.

The shoes were dropped from a cream colored sedan at a roadside hamburger stand on Route No. 20 six miles east of Belvidere. This is about 64 miles from the gravel roadway near the North Western railway tracks in Rogers Park.

Miss Grace Holly, owner of the stand, said two men riding away from Chicago stopped at her place and got out to study maps for a few minutes at dawn Thursday. She found the shoes when they drove away.

A shoe expert said the white oxfords fit the slain woman perfectly. They are size 6-B and have slits in the vamps. Altho they do not show the manufacturer's name, police believe they can be traced to the maker and thence the seller.

Reddish strains on the inside of the left shoe and the sole of the right are to be analyzed in the crime detection laboratory. Police said they may be blood stains.

More than 250 persons have viewed the body, which was transferred yesterday to the county morgue. On Friday the "positive identification of the body by six persons was upset by the discovery that the supposed victim is a clerk in Camp Forrest, Tenn.

YOUNG DEMOCRAT PARLEY INDORSES F. D. R. WAR STAND

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 23 [Special].—The Young Democrats of America tonight concluded a tumultuous three day convention featured by the horseplay of presidential nominees, numerous war encouraging resolutions, and charges that the powerful Tennessee delegation was controled by machine politics.

The delegates noisily adopted resolutions urging the use of every facility in furnishing aid to nations fighting Hitler, production curtailment of all commodities not essential to the rearmament program, and authorization to use American armed forces to occupy and defend "such strategic areas and bases as our leaders deem essential to the security of our country."

Tennesseeans succeeded in obtaining the election of their secretary of state, Joe Carr, outspoken interventionist, as president of the organization.

See Hand of Boss Crump.

The convention was thrown into an uproar when William Huddleston of Oklahoma City charged that the Carr faction was backed by Ed Crump, political boss of Memphis, Tenn. Above the angry shouts of the Tennessee delegation Huddleston charged that the group was controled by machine politics and that its members were "sucking at the public trough."

Matt Scully of Hartford, Conn., also was nominated for the presidency, but he appeared before the convention in abbreviated trousers, no shirt, barefooted, and wearing a floppy hat to announce that he "was going fishing and didn't have time to serve as president."

The name of Joe Clements of Detroit, Mich., was put in nomination for the top office, but he appeared on the platform clad only in a bedsheet, harangued the crowd for a time, and then withdrew.

Women Battle for Office.

A contest between two women for the vice presidency kept the convention in turmoil thruout the three days. The group supporting Miss Patricia Firestone of Harrisburg, Pa., who finally was elected, walked out of the meeting and started a fight to have the convention recognize proxies they held for her.

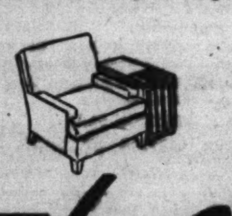
Magnavox Chairside
AUTOMATIC RADIO-PHONOGRAPH

The best in the medium-price field is Magnavox . . . we know that hundreds of enthusiastic Magnavox owners will agree with us on that. And one of the most popular of the Magnavox automatic radio-phonographs is the Chairside. Perhaps its style makes it popular—the way it saves space in small rooms by snuggling up conveniently to your easy chair. Perhaps it's the glorious tone in both the radio and the phonograph. Perhaps it's the perfection action of the automatic record changer that plays 10" and 12" records and starts and stops at the touch of a switch. Or perhaps it's the combination of all of these features that makes the Chairside an outstanding radio-phonograph value! In Dark Mahogany, Natural Walnut or Bleached Mahogany.



Chairside, shown above, $175. With AC-DC, slightly extra. Just a small down payment for immediate delivery, the balance in convenient terms. Liberal allowance on your old radio in trade, if you wish.

GOOD OLD DAYS! BIKE RIDERS TO LIVE THEM AGAIN

Veteran Racer Forms Club; Reunion Planned.

A square shouldered, slightly paunchy man yesterday talked—a little bitterly—of a sporting world of half a century ago, a world of racing bikes, whining spokes, and mighty legs.

A. D. Kennedy.

He is A. D. Kennedy, 1922 Winona avenue, now a staid automobile dealer, but once a topnotcher in a sport that during the gay '90s held a most prominent place in the nation's sports life.

Kennedy is chairman and guiding light of a recently formed organization, "Bicycle Racing Stars of the 19th Century." On Sept. 5 they will hold their first reunion.

Many Qualified to Join.

While the name of the club specifies "stars," any one who rode in bicycle races before 1900 is eligible for membership, Kennedy explained. He estimated 2,500 men, many of them public figures, are qualified to join.

"We're getting a modest start," Kennedy said, "and I reckon only about 100 of the old racers will make the first reunion. But you want to know what it's all about? O. K., listen:"

"You've got to realize that in the '90s nearly every one rode bikes. All the athletic clubs, colleges, and bicycle clubs had racing teams.

"For a while we [those on the teams] were all amateurs and we raced for prizes—horses, buggies, diamonds, and medals. Then in '96 or '97, the bike companies subsidized some of the teams and we became professionals.

The "Forgotten Headliners."

"You might call us the Forgotten Headliners. Say, the sporting pages were full of us in those days. We traveled the National Circuit from May thru September all over the country.

"A good rider drew from $50 to $75 a week, and his expenses at the best hotels. We had entré into the best homes, and some of the towns even presented us with the key to the city!

"They were a grand bunch—those circuit chasers. Among them were Arthur A. Zimmerman, Harry C. Tyler and Willie Windle, three of the fastest bike riders in the world."

"Six day races?" Kennedy paused at the question. "No! We were sprinters—quarter, half, mile, and two mile. There were handicap and 'scratch' races—but the man that could ride the fastest won.

Sets a World Record.

"Eddie [Cannon] Bald, now of Pittsburgh, Charles [Mile-a-minute] Murphy, Fred Menjes, of South Africa, James B. Bowler [now an alderman and chairman of the council finance committee], and a host of others—they were names to conjure with.

"Me? Oh, I won the world's record for the two miles paced, standing start, in four minutes, 15 seconds, at Denver, Colo., in 1894. What a thrill that was.

"I started riding in 1893, the year they built a good track at 35th street and Wentworth avenue for a week of racing at the Columbian exposition.

"All of those old records have fallen—most of 'em have been gone for years. But we'll have just as much fun at the reunion as if all the old records were still good."

The reunion will be held at the Sportsman's Golf club, on Dundee road. The club is planning to donate a large trophy to stimulate bicycle racing competition.

Carter H. Harrison and Others on a Bicycle Built for 10

Memories nearly a half century old will be evoked by this picture of some well known Chicagoans when they were young. Left to right: Carter H. Harrison, now collector of internal revenue; Si Mayer, vice president of the American Motorists' association; William C. Malley, since dead, a member of the Chicago board of election commissioners; William H. Arthur, since dead, who served as assistant corporation counsel at the turn of the century; Robert C. Fisher, otherwise unidentified; Granville W. Browning, since dead, who was an assistant corporation counsel and a master in chancery for many years; George K. Barrett, dead for many years; Ed McNeal, still a broker on the Chicago Board of Trade; Charles P. Root, since dead, one of the organizers of the Chicago Motor club, and James B. Bowler, alderman and chairman of the city council finance committee.

A. D. Kennedy Jr. was a headliner on the National Circuit of cyclists from 1893 to 1897. He held the world's record for the paced two miles from a standing start.

Peter Berlo of Boston, Mass., was one of real old timers of 19th century cycling. This picture of him was taken in 1885. He was credited with the invention of the wood rim.

Jimmy Bowler, now Alderman James B. Bowler, was among the top ranking racing cyclists in the old National Circuit. He also was a noted six day rider and expert steersman on the multicycle pacing machines, quads, quints, and sextuplets.

Oak Park Naval Aviator and Cadet Killed in Crash

Corpus Christi, Tex., Aug. 23.—Ensign Bernard W. Murphy of Oak Park, Ill., instructor at the United States naval air station, and Aviation Cadet Leonard Melville Proctor, 21 years old, Los Angeles, Cal., were killed yesterday in the crash of their training plane. Cause of the crash, which occurred while the two were on a routine training flight, had not been determined.

FOUND HANGED IN GARAGE.

Louis Krabs, 65 years old, 1520 East 84th place, was found hanged in his garage in the rear of his home yesterday by his wife.

2D ARMY FIGHTS MOCCASINS AND RATTLESNAKES

Kill Off Reptiles Before Each Bivouac.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Second Army Headquarters, Prescott, Ark., Aug. 23.—This rolling, pine covered area of southwestern Arkansas—where 75,000 men of the 2d army are engaged in war maneuvers—is known to natives as a paradise of reptilian life. Rattlesnakes abound in the timberlands, deadly water moccasins are plentiful around the many creeks and rivers, and nonvenomous snakes are countless.

Early this week soldiers of the 108th combat engineers, one of the regiments of the 33d division from Illinois, discovered and killed 37 moccasins and 8 rattlers on a piece of forest land assigned to them as a bivouac area. Yesterday Private Warren M. Dunbar of Maywood, Ill., killed a big moccasin as it was about to strike another soldier.

Four Soldiers Bitten.

The surgeons' office of the 2d army revealed today that, since the start of the mock warfare a week ago, four soldiers have been bitten as they crept thru heavy underbrush during "battles" or slept exhausted on the ground. Fortunately none of the bites was inflicted by a poisonous snake, the report stated, and victims were able to return to the field after receiving first aid.

Indications that the army does not expect this good luck to last, however, were seen in a statement made today by Col. Gustave P. Grabfield, assistant medical chief of the 2d army.

"The medical officer of every battalion in the field is equipped and trained to give the treatment necessary in cases of poisonous snake bite," Col. Grabfield said. "Each battalion medical station has tourniquets to stop the flow of blood, scalpels to slash open the bite to allow the blood to wash the poison from the wound, and suction pumps to suck out the venom."

Final Treatment Outlined.

After this preliminary treatment the victim would be rushed to a division clearing station, Col. Grabfield continued.

"Here, if he had been bitten by a rattler, we would inject anti-venin to counteract the poison," the statement added.

"With prompt care, death is unusual from rattlesnake bite, unless the snake happens to be particularly large. However, the victim usually becomes awfully sick."

Col. Grabfield revealed that the anti-venin is useful only in counteracting the venom of rattlesnakes. No serum has been perfected that is effective against the bite of the deadlier water moccasin, he said. All that can be done for the victim of such a snake is to apply the tourniquet, slash open the wound, and employ the suction pump.

Others More Deadly.

Col. Grabfield said that where only 1 out of 100 persons bitten by a rattler may die, as many as 10 or 20 out of 100 moccasin victims may be lost.

However, when he 2d army moves down into Louisiana early next month to engage the 3d army in the final phase of the maneuvers, its soldiers will face an even deadlier menace—the small, gaily striped coral snake, most poisonous reptile on the North American continent.

4,400 SOLDIERS LEAVE SHERIDAN TODAY FOR SOUTH

Two long convoys composed of 790 trucks carrying 4,400 soldiers of the 40th coast artillery [anti-aircraft] brigade were scheduled to leave Fort Sheridan early today for the army maneuvers in Louisiana.

The convoys will travel in 18 sections, 1½ miles apart, to avoid traffic tieups. The first group of 515 trucks and 2,750 soldiers was to start at 4 a. m., and pass thru Elmhurst, Lemont, Joliet, Pontiac, and Bloomington to route 51.

Seventeen hundred men in 280 trucks were to leave at 6 a. m., proceeding west to route 45, then south thru Des Plaines, La Grange, Kankakee, Champaign, and Mattoon.

2 Dogs Die of Snake Bite After Rescuing Boy Master

Waynesboro, Miss., Aug. 23 (AP).—Two pet dogs attacked a rattlesnake coiled to strike the son of Edwin Smith. They saved the child's life but died themselves from the reptile's venom.

DOWN ON FARM WAR IS LEAST OF THEIR WORRIES

pocket, a coin purse in his hands. His kindly face is covered with gray stubble. Says he lost his wife in November and both his boys went in the draft in April.

"If they come over here, my boys are no better than anybody else's," he says, "but I don't want mine going over there. We don't fancy war much," he adds, "not down my way. It looks like Roosevelt will get us in before he gets out."

A well set farmer from Christian county, soy bean center of the world, wanders thru the machinery tents with his wife. He farms 160 acres of corn, wheat, soy beans, and oats, and sells about 100 pounds of milk a week from his five Jersey cows. He thinks it will be a pretty fair year.

His wife is jubilant about her garden. They have been married 25 years, and she canned more this summer than ever before.

Asked about war, her reply is thoughtful. "I believe everyone believes we should stay out, everyone around us."

See War as a Certainty.

A young armer of 29, a University of Illinois graduate, sits down to discuss crops. He farms 360 acres in Sangamon county near Chatham. Got a good price for his wheat, he says, but had to bin 340 bushels under government orders, as he harvested too much. He wonders why the government doesn't remove its wheat restrictions.

War? "I'd say all the farmers are pretty much against it. Some of them talk about it. Some don't. Some are scared all the time. But I think eventually we'll get in. I think most people do. They're against it, but at the same time, they don't see how we can get away from it."

A father and son from Macoupin county silently admire a new tractor. The son teaches school; the father farms 182 acres. Corn is pretty good, but the dry weather is cutting its yield. Both say it isn't such a good year. They say the new state sales tax on feed hurts. "Hurts us worst of all," Pa says.

A question about war is a definite and unwanted interruption of Pa's train of thought. "'Tain't hardly mentioned around here," he says abruptly, striding back to the tractor.

New Paralysis Case Brings County Suburban Total to 27

Dr. Edward Piszczek, director of the Cook county public health service, said yesterday a new case of infantile paralysis in Summit brought the total number of cases in the county area outside of Chicago to 27.

FIND BODY OF FUGITIVE SOLDIER, SHOT DOWN BY POLICE OFFICER

Fort Dix, N. J., Aug. 23 (AP).—Private Theodore A. Mazur of Passaic, N. J., who escaped from the Fort Dix guardhouse with seven other soldiers, was found shot to death today near the post rifle range.

The fort's public relations office said John McHugh, a Lansdowne, Pa., police officer on vacation, approached Mazur and two other escaped privates at 6 p. m. yesterday and called on them to stop. When Mazur ran, McHugh fired three shots in the air as a warning, and then aimed one shot at him, the Fort Dix statement said. The bullet entered Mazur's back.

In the darkness it was first believed Mazur escaped unharmed, but a searching party this morning found his body. Authorities said Mazur was inducted Sept. 16 with the National Guard, and was serving six months in the guardhouse for a previous break. Four of the seven fugitives were recaptured by state police. Two remained at large.

MONKEY'S NIGHT OUT BRINGS ON STOMACH ACHE

As treasurer and fiscal agent for the Nick Barato Hurdy-Gurdy Enterprises, Joe the monkey wore tailor-made suits. But his pay was peanuts. And so he balanced the books after the Friday night concert, turned the last penny over to Nick, and climbed a tree at 8010 Crandon avenue.

The squirrels didn't want Joe as a neighbor and spent the night telling him about it. Joe descended yesterday morning. Mrs. Lea Milner, owner of the tree, dropped a basket over him and sent for the police. They took him to the South Chicago station, where they fed him bananas, so many that he got the stomach ache.

He was grumbling about it and rubbing his stomach when Nick came to take him back to the general offices at 468 West 27th street. Nick said nothing, but Joe knew what he was thinking—a stomach ache was good enough for him. That's big business for you.

STRONG DEFENSE BEST GUARANTY OF PEACE: CLINNIN

Preparedness is the surest way to keep the United States out of the war and make us the most powerful influence for a lasting peace, Maj. Gen. John V. Clinnin, commander of the Illinois Reserve militia said yesterday before the 33d Division Mothers in Riverview park.

"We are not prepared for war," he said. "Our people are opposed to force at arms and rightly so. We who have served in wars know how futile it is to sacrifice millions of lives in a brutal, bloody war, but we will not hesitate to make these sacrifices if our freedom is endangered.

"It is despicable for men to make capital out of national honor at a cost to the welfare of our people. We cannot silence these individuals, but we can by the power of our ballot remove them from public office."

MR. ROOSEVELT'S BEHAVIOR

Mr. Roosevelt has as his guest at Hyde Park the duke of Kent, the younger brother of King George VI. Mr. Roosevelt left Washington Thursday afternoon for his estate to be ready to receive his royal visitor Saturday. He had been in the White House five days following his return from meeting Mr. Churchill, the British prime minister, at a rendezvous of British and American warships, with flocks of admirals and generals.

Mr. Roosevelt's five days of separation from the hypnotic British influence, five days sandwiched in between the prime minister and the duke, were devoted to lecturing the American people on their unwillingness to engage in a hard, tough fighting war in which somebody would get hurt and in correcting some omissions in his pronunciamento for the government of the world. With that attended to he was off to meet the duke.

Evidently there was some fluttering around in the White House when attention was called to the fact that in so portentous a declaration as that signed by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill, declaring what freedoms shall be established everywhere in the world, nothing had been said of freedom of religion or, as Mr. Roosevelt phrased it in his corrections, freedom of information. It didn't seem probable that two rulers meeting so spectacularly would not have given deep thought and careful consideration to the document which they produced as the only thing they had done in their extraordinary conference, but so it was.

It was noted as significant that freedom of religion and freedom of information, and opinion and speech as well, are not contained in Joe Stalin's governing code. Communist party discipline makes freedom of speech and opinion impossible and Marxian doctrine denounces religion as the opium of the people. Inasmuch as Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt were making an alliance with Joe, were sending missions to him and writing him a letter of goodwill and encouragement, they may not have wanted to present him with doctrines he would regard as abhorrent.

If these scruples governed Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill, they were unnecessary. Joe will sign anything. He'll sign without reading. His word is as good as his bond and that's the worst that could be said for either of them.

However, Mr. Roosevelt, at home, concluded that the program for freedom everywhere in the world needed correction in the respects noted and so he prepared a message for congress, submitting the pronunciamento he and Churchill had signed, putting it in the official record, as he said, of the country, making it a state document altho without the advice and consent of the senate, and correcting the little mistakes which left out the two freedoms. It is not announced that Mr. Churchill has signed the codicil.

Mr. Roosevelt's conduct in the last two weeks cannot be considered the natural behavior of the head of a great republic, and his pronouncements with their blunders are not evidence of clear thinking. In any person so much exhibitionism would be regarded as requiring notice. It might suggest hallucinations. There would be an intimation of delusions of grandeur. Caesar might be over feeding on events. Mr. Roosevelt is not just any person. He is the President of the United States.

His liking for the unprecedented is well understood. His desire for rôles new to the office of the chief executive is known. Persons to whom his temperament is familiar are not astonished by his tactics, by his fondness for the theatrical and spectacular. Some of them turn this temperament to their own uses.

A knowledge of what is to be expected of him cannot, however, allay fears of the consequences. Mr. Roosevelt is at times flippant, at times prodigious, at times oracular, and at no time, it would appear, greatly concerned by the plight of his country. While he is expanding as a ruler of continents in the company of kings the country is suffering from a confusion such as it never before knew.

This nation is confronted with the prospects of unbearable taxes and unpayable debts, with no production of war material, with the disruption of the lives of millions of citizens and no training of soldiers, and with the breakdown of its productive system.

STALIN AND THE RUSSIAN CHILDREN.

In the Graphic section of today's SUNDAY TRIBUNE is an extract from one of the Russian confessionals. It is from W. G. Krivitsky's book, "In Stalin's Secret Service." Krivitsky, a division chief in the Stalinite secret police for many years, became suspect and escaped with his life by flight. His misgivings regarding the Red terror did not become convincing until some of his own important friends began to disappear. Thereupon he read signs and fled to asylum in this country. It was an uncertain asylum. He was found dead.

In the extract from his book which THE TRIBUNE publishes with the consent of Harper & Brothers, he tells of the homeless and depraved children of the Red revolution. Bolshevism in its principles is a doctrine inconsiderate of any intervening human values. It exterminates whole classes. In the course of such liquidations the families of proscribed Russians disappeared. The agent with a pistol took care of the parents. The children went into the underground recesses of the cities and became the wild little animals described by Krivitsky. He tells of what Stalin did when this spectacle of Russian childhood began to shock the foreign visitors and fellow travelers who were trying to admire communism as a hopeful and noble experiment.

Marx was brutal minded with the esoteric determination of a man with boils theorizing on life's incongruities; Lenin was callous. He destroyed without remorse to impose the dictatorship—a revolution must break eggs. Stalin is an assassin with a liking for mass murder and an Asiatic satisfaction in it.

NORTHERN CAMPS FOR NORTHERN BOYS.

It is to be hoped that the morale of the army will be improved by the promise not to keep the men in camp for as long as the 2½ years which the recently amended law allows. The war department says that some men will be released after 14 months' service and the average term will be 18 months.

Much will depend, of course, upon how the new regulation is carried out. The administration, by insisting on the 2½ year provision, has made trouble for itself. If the inefficient are discharged first, the more competent and trustworthy who remain behind will have reason to feel they have been punished for their virtues. That won't improve their state of mind. If the competent are rewarded by being discharged first, the quality of the army will deteriorate. This dilemma would never have arisen if the sound proposal of Senator Taft to extend the term to 18 months for all had been adopted in law as it is being adopted now in administrative regulation.

How the problem will be solved remains to be seen. Meanwhile another war department blunder is crying for correction. The northern soldiers have been concentrated for the most part in southern camps to satisfy the greed of pork-barrel congressmen. They wanted the soldiers' pay spent in their districts. The result has been that hundreds of thousands of northern boys have been obliged to spend a summer in the hottest part of the United States. The lucky ones drew sand and dust. The unlucky drew swampland. What made matters worse was the remoteness of many of these camps from civilization. When a man did get an evening or a week-end to himself, there was no place within easy reach where he could find a good show, or a decent meal.

All this was and is unnecessary. As soon as possible, the northern troops should be transferred to camps in the areas from which the young men were recruited. Much of the prevailing discontent would disappear if the men could take advantage of their free time to see their families and their friends.

It has been apparent for some time that everything is not as it should be in the army. Congress and the people generally suspected that something was wrong when the yoo-hoo incident occurred, indicating as it did that the training being given in the camps had not made disciplined soldiers. That affair was laughed off but nobody is laughing at the more recent incidents which have been occurring in Arkansas. Men have been killed. A white officer commanding Negro soldiers was beaten by local police and his soldiers in the uniform of the United States were ordered off the highway by an armed posse. More than fifty of the Negroes have fled northward.

There is little evidence to suggest that the troops in question were unruly but if they were, they and their officers should have been punished by a military court. If the troops were conducting themselves properly, it is remarkable that their officers did not resist the high-handed conduct of the constabulary.

So far as Negro troops are concerned, it is obvious they never should have been sent south to make their acquaintance with Jim Crow while they were wearing the uniform of the United States. That was a blunder which would have been avoided if the northern troops, white and Negro, had been trained in the north. It is not too late to correct the mistake.

THE WASTE OF AMERICAN AIR LEADERSHIP.

In Col. Lindbergh and Maj. Al Williams America has two flyers whose ability as pilots and whose technical knowledge are not questioned. They are excluded from the defense program. The war mongers have blackballed Col. Lindbergh and the burocrats have blackballed Maj. Williams.

Col. Lindbergh's political views need not have been a barrier to the administration's use of his great knowledge of aviation. His investigations in Europe, made at the request of and for the benefit of his own government, fitted him better than any other man in the country to direct the building of a modern air force for America. But to an administration whose sole test for office is a willingness to scream for war, he is anathema. Instead of using his talents, the administration devotes its effort to traduce and slander him.

The Nazis have indicated recently that when they started building their air force as a new weapon in warfare they followed closely the theories of Gen. William Mitchell, who was martyred by the burocrats of the United States army. Maj. Alexander P. de Seversky, brilliant designer of fighting aircraft, charged recently that the Mitchell martyrdom still blights the development of the American air force. The example is not forgotten and it has resulted in the stifling of independent thought in air services and the rise to air command of officers who are content to let the air force be an auxiliary to the older armed services rather than a powerful weapon capable of independent action.

The successful air defense of America is too vital an objective to be left in the hands of burocrats and military Neanderthalers. It is too important to allow it to be sabotaged by the little clique of war mongers who would deny the nation the counsel of its most noted and capable aviators because those aviators refuse to help push the country toward the folly and disaster of war.

WRESTLING BARES JAP SPIRIT

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO [By Mail].—Dr. Nobufumi Ito, director of the board of information, recently invited the American, British, and German ambassadors to Japan's wrestling tournament. All three accepted and sat almost side by side.

Perhaps one reason why the Japanese invited these diplomats was to show them something of the Japanese spirit. In sumo, as Japanese wrestling is called, many aspects of Japanese psychology are illustrated.

The summer tournament is staged for 15 days in the gigantic Kokugikan amphitheater in Tokio, which houses almost 40,000 persons. The Kokugikan is packed each day of the tournament. Thousands spend much of the night before opening day waiting in line to buy tickets. The first bouts were started at 2 a. m.

Japanese wrestling is perhaps the world's fastest sport, the average bout lasting less than a minute. Ice hockey is slow in comparison to sumo. In this form of wrestling, which is practiced by all classes thruout the country, strength is matched against strength and the contestants do not depend on the principle of jujitsu, which utilizes one's adversary's strength to one's advantage.

What makes sumo so fast is that it is based on the principle of not sparring for time. Two beefy grapplers rush, grab each other, and exert all their strength and employ every bit of skill they possess in a moment of thrilling action.

In spite of the flashing speed of the bouts foreigners find the matches tedious. This is because of the slowness with which the wrestlers prepare; loving care, prayers, and purification are necessary.

* * *

A wrestling ring in Japan is considered sacred ground. It is canopied by an ornate roofing modeled after a Shinto shrine. The roof symbolizes the sincerity with which the sport is dedicated to the deities.

Before a tournament a religious ceremony of purification is invariably held. This is a manifestation "of the harmony of the valiant spirit and physical strength with the pure, righteous, just, and God fearing state of the heart." Prayers are offered to the deities of heaven and earth and the four seasons for divine blessings.

Thus a bout performed on such ground is considered not a mere pastime, and the wrestlers do not trot into the ring waving their hands at the spectators or laughing. They are in deadly earnest, and when their turn comes to enter the ring they do so as if going to battle. There is a world of difference between Japanese and western sports in this respect, whether it be in sumo, jujitsu, or archery. Japanese sportsmen never crack jokes as they engage in their native sports.

* * *

Japanese newlyweds were gladdened by a welfare ministry announcement that it has tentatively decided to grant marriage loans, which will be written off with babies. The government will lend up to about $230 and will write off about $57.50 for each baby born to a couple. Twins and triplets, rare in Japan, will be credited accordingly. Couples who do not become parents will have to repay the loan within 10 years.

The government thus hopes to increase Japan's population to the 100 million mark as quickly as possible. According to the census of 1940, Japan proper has a population of 73,114,308. [The population of the Japanese empire, which includes Korea, Formosa, the southern half of Sakhalin Island, and the mandated islands in the South Seas, is 105,226,101.]

Until a few years ago Japan's rapidly increasing birth rate was one of the government's biggest headaches. It was one of Japan's excuses for its military exploits on the Asiatic continent. Now the government is alarmed because Japanese parents don't produce enough children.

The following factors were given as causes for the about face:

1. Japanese domination of Manchukuo and North China, where there is room for millions of immigrants and from which raw materials are expected to flow into Japan.

2. The shortage of manpower as a result of the war in China. Even if peace is restored it is expected Japan will not recall its army from China for some time.

3. Conviction that Germany's military success against France and England was due in great measure to the fact that there are more Germans than Frenchmen or Englishmen.

The rate of Japan's population increase, which in 1870-'80 was 5 per cent, rose to 15 per cent in 1920-'30, which was the period of Japan's most rapid development and industrialization. This dropped to 6.4 per cent from 1930-'35, and experts predicted the rate would continue to drop and come to a standstill when the nation's population reached about a hundred million.

The welfare ministry's loans will be extended without interest to bridegrooms more than 30 years old and brides more than 25. They will be redeemed thru monthly instalments over 10 years, but when a baby is born the government will immediately write off $57.50.

Loans will be extended only to couples in good physical and mental condition, it is said.

As another measure to encourage births, the welfare ministry will give priority, in allotting 30,000 houses to be constructed this year thruout the country, to newlyweds and families with babies.

* * *

The government also is concerned over the trend of Japan's population from the agricultural and fishing centers to the cities, particularly to war boom cities.

Compared with the census of 1935, 14 prefectures registered decreases in 1940. These were mostly in the agricultural districts west of Tokio. Declines in population anywhere in Japan had been extremely rare.

Amagasaki, a newly created industrial boom town, showed a 154 per cent increase in population since 1935. Kawasaki and Kawaguchi, near Tokio, registered increases of 94 per cent and 80 per cent, respectively.

INFINITESIMAL FINLAND.

[Saturday Evening Post.]

News of the soviet naval and military bombings within Finnish territory has come as a profound shock to the government and people of the United States.—Formal statement by President Roosevelt, Dec. 1, 1939.

That American sympathy is 98 per cent with Finns in their effort to stave off invasion of their own soil is by now axiomatic. That America wants to help them by lending or giving money to them to save their own lives also is axiomatic by now. . . . The soviet union, as a matter of practical fact, known to you and to all the world, is a dictatorship as absolute as any other dictatorship in the world. It has allied itself with another dictatorship and has invaded a neighbor so infinitesimally small that it could do no injury to the soviet union.—President Roosevelt to the National Citizenship Institute of the American Youth Congress, Feb. 10, 1940.

MOSCOW, July 11, 1941 [By Associated Press].—President Roosevelt, replying to an Independence day greeting from Mikhail Kalinin, president of the supreme soviet, said: "The American people abhor armed aggression. They are bound with strong ties of historic friendship to the Russian people. It is therefore only natural that they are observing with sympathy and admiration the valiant struggle which the Russian people are waging at the present time in self-defense. On behalf of the government and people of the United States, as well as on my own behalf, I thank you for your friendly greetings. I extend best wishes for yourself and for the welfare and success of the Russian people."

This discussion in the textile trade of "cloth ceilings" may lead many a landlord to wonder if something is being done about the noisy tenants upstairs.—New York Sun.

CAN WE PREVENT POLIO WITH VITAMIN B?

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

WHILE polio still remains a puzzle, nevertheless we regard it as a contagious malady—one that is likely to strike with little or no warning. But why does it disturb so small a portion of the population? In a city of 100,000 with a fair sized epidemic in progress scarcely more than 1 in 1,000 will become a victim. In this respect, at least, it is quite different from scarlet fever or measles. The chances are that most of us possess so much resistance that the causative agent will not take hold.

The question has been raised—can it be that those who contract the malady have less reserve? Are they deficient in some vitamin—particularly B? We know that the integrity of the nervous system depends largely upon the presence within the body of an adequate quantity of this food accessory. With too little of one of the fractions we may develop beriberi [neuritis followed by paralysis]. Is it possible that polio and beriberi are similar diseases?

As most of us have observed, infantile paralysis begins to appear in August continuing thru September. The time for beriberi to break out in Japan is July and August. Are our summer diets deficient in B1 so that by the end of the season we are rendered more susceptible to a disturbance of the nervous system?

What are our sources of thiamin [B1]? The germ and the bran of food grains furnish 30 to 50 parts per million as contrasted with most vegetables which supply but one-half part per million. Perhaps we do not eat enough whole wheat bread during the warmer season. We all have a tendency to use more fruits and vegetables, neglecting bran containing edibles.

While polio was known in Egypt in biblical times, it has not been a well recognized ailment until recent years. It was unknown among the poor of Great Britain in the 18th century. In this connection it is interesting to note that the diet which they received [according to the Poor Law] contained over 1,000 international units of B per day. They were fed coarse dark bread. While these persons probably developed other deficiencies—chiefly C—they were well supplied with B. It is also worthy of note that the well fed members of the population today receive only about 500 B units, approximately half of the London diet of a century ago.

If we can assume that those who become victims of beriberi or polio present the same dietary lack we can perhaps render our children immune by increasing the B ration. It has been shown repeatedly that those who contract polio have usually indulged in hard and exhausting play within the last day or two. This we know depletes our stores of B. Futhermore, it has been remarked by competent observers that girls and boys who have exercised strenuously exhibit more paralysis.

Whether it is safe to infer that a lack of B is a predisposing cause or not, the least we can do, in the face of the evidence, is to make certain that well balanced menus are provided all of the time. We can revert to the custom of manufacturing flour which was in vogue prior to 1870 and thus make certain that our youngsters receive whole grains.

Apparently the vitamin in question is not a remedy. But we can, in the presence of an epidemic, feed additional quantities and caution youngsters not to overindulge in physical exercise. If a temperature appears or a slight sign of illness with nausea and vomiting the child should be put to bed promptly. The chances are that there are many mild forms of the ailment which go unrecognized because no loss of power of the legs ensues.

COLD MILK.

M. I. R. writes: Is it harmful to feed an 8 month old baby chilled milk—straight from the refrigerator?

REPLY.

About as barbarous a practice as I know of. Every swallow produces a severe shock to the delicate lining of the infant's stomach. Furthermore, digestion will be delayed because of the ensuing congestion. Milk fed to babies should be warmed.

BOILS.

M. M. L. writes: What is the best way to prevent boils under the arms?

REPLY.

Keep the parts clean. Scrub with soap and water three times daily. Use a mild antiseptic, such as bichloride of mercury soap. The sterilizing process will be aided by shaving periodically.

Test Your Horse Sense

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts 5 points. Then look for the correct answers on page 8, part 2.

1. An Indian turnip is the root of which of these flowers?
   Dutchman's breeches Goldenrod May apple Jack-in-the-pulpit.
2. Swatches are employed in advertisments for Shoe stores Drug stores Clothing stores Grocery stores.
3. The usual number of burners on a kitchen gas stove is

SEED OF SURVIVAL.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Anent M. O. R.'s, "Good-by Mr. Schuetz," in last SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE, many of us are one in decrying this man's continued misrepresentation of his constituents' expressed demands, and will vote him out at election time.

Nevertheless there is one healthy aspect to this sordid picture: the awakening in Americans of the need to fight to retain our liberty, representative government, and the constitution—by knowing and intelligently choosing our representatives.

What better sign for the vigor of our system could be evident than that the little people, the voters all over the country, assisted by a public spirited press, join together in political meetings and over candidates' qualifications and records, for the purpose of choosing the right men.

Persons like Schuetz will then be disqualified in advance, and thereby our country will be saved the costs of their maladministration.

In this lies perhaps the seed of our survival and greatness as a nation.

JOSEPH C. MAMMOSER.

SWISS NEUTRALITY.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Allow me to express to you my admiration of the stand you are taking in endeavoring to keep our country out of war.

"Some time ago an English radio station started a special service for Switzerland which from the beginning was not favorably received in that country. Its purpose was to broadcast to Switzerland an interpretation of world events adapted to the mental requirements of the Swiss people. Since the Swiss are well able to form their own opinion in such matters thru the aid of facts and official announcements as well as thru their own press, such comments from an English source did not fill any real need.

"Accordingly steps were taken and London became aware of the fact that this service was not wanted here in view of the strict neutrality of the country. It is now announced officially that this special radio service has been discontinued."

DOWN IN DIXIELAND.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Why is it that the government allows colored units of the United States army to be intimidated by prejudiced and shortsighted white citizens of the south? Such incidents as that which happened to the Negro unit of 1,100 men in Prescott, Ark., is a disgrace.

Such gross mistreatment will not raise the morale of the black troops. Speaking as a black man, I do not want to give my life in defense of such treatment as these colored boys and the white officer received in Arkansas. GEORGE GORDON.

FORCES SILK PLANT TO CLOSE.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—To permit the adjusters of the world's troubles who inhabit Washington the privilege of thumbing their noses at Japan it is necessary for the Oscar Heineman corporation, silk throwster of Chicago, to suspend operations.

Not possessing the genius exhibited by them, I ask where to now? Who pays our next week wages? AN EMPLOYEE.

FOOD SITUATION IN SWEDEN.

"There is no cause for despair, but prudence bids us be as economical as possible and do everything in our power to increase our reserves. . . . The potato crop this year will be satisfactory and the same is true of sugar beets. The shortage of pork is expected to continue. . . . No coffee will be available after New Year's. The final ration of about one pound for each adult for four months will be distributed on Sept. 7. Tea is more plentiful and the supply of cocoa will last a year. There is no shortage of salt or of drugs."

From other sources I have heard that coal and soap are almost unobtainable—especially soap.

The American Swedish News Exchange, New York, now reports that arrangements have been made for the shipment to Sweden of a limited number of gift packages containing coffee, tea, cocoa, dried fruit, and soap. Order blanks and further details may be had by applying to the Swedish government cargo clearance committee, 630 5th avenue, New York.

Not munitions or destroyers. Just coffee, tea, and soap!

THE FLAGMAN'S COMPLAINT.

Downers Grove, Ill., Aug. 17. — The Burlington railroad didn't spare a bouquet on the salaries it listed. But it failed to mention the working conditions of at least the other 90 per cent of the workers.

I am a flagman; work eight hours a day, 365 days a year, earn 36 cents an hour [earned 30 cents an hour until last May 1].

Yes—we have union dues of $3.50 a quarter. Our wage and hour law does not apply to railways. R. R. EMPLOYE.

FINDS FREE PRESS USEFUL.

Chicago, Aug. 18. — Thanks to THE TRIBUNE and its policy of a free press which was evidenced by printing the letter of Thomas Gilroy and the Youth and America clubs. If THE TRIBUNE did not believe in a free press and was controled by politics such a letter would never have been printed and we, the youth of the city, would probably never know of this organization; which I am anxious to join.

KENNETH MURRAY.

AN ABOUT-FACE TO DRAFTEES.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—A New Deal organ says the release of 200,000 selectees on Dec. 10 is one reason to disavow any publicized rumor of an AEF.

Surely, even babes-in-the-woods can hardly be so naive as to make such a statement. This announcement from Washington, coming as it did in the very midst of aroused public enmity against its tactics, could mean only one thing.

GERALD ASHE.

ASKS TOTAL WAR ON RATS.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—There was an article a few years ago, saying that rats have caused more deaths than all the wars since Christ.

Back in 1935 the WPA was given a fund for rat abatement. One section selected was the alley between Madison street and Warren boulevard, the former a business street, abounding in rats, and the latter a residential street where they found it convenient to nest. The people in this district were practically ratless until the appropriation was gone. But the cost proved one important thing. If every one would declare war upon rats at one and the same time, methodically, their menace would be no more.

Those who are financially unable to afford exterminating essentials should be aided by means of a tag day. These are the people that run the greatest risks and they surely would do their part, given the tools.

So before cold weather drives them indoors again, let's all get together and declare total war on rats.

TO LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Beware, America! Roosevelt is only Stalin' in his climb up the British Church-hill.

Look out, Little Red Riding Hood. It may not be dear grandma reclining so peacefully there. It not only may be, but quite likely, will prove to be arms holding you, not in protecting embrace, but, instead, strong totalitarian tentacles closing tightly about your sacred body, until the last spark of a free soul shall have passed into the realm of silence.

WALTER B. FREEMAN.

FINDS FOOD HIGHER HERE.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—A director of the Bank of England arriving in America was "amazed" at the rise in food prices here. In Britain, he said, prices had risen only 20 per cent with a war going on. Here prices are 50 per cent higher than in England. Maybe it's because they're only having a war there instead of a "New Deal." E. C.

THEIR AIMS, SIDE BY SIDE.

Ottawa, Ill., Aug. 18.—Inasmuch as Mr. Roosevelt, in the name of the people of the U. S. A., has taken sides in the European conflict, will THE TRIBUNE kindly publish, in adjoining columns, the aims and policies of [1] the National Socialist party of Germany, and [2] the communist party of Russia? Then we can see which we prefer. READER.

THE MUSIC FESTIVAL.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—I cannot refrain from writing to you to comment on the festival held last night. The entire affair was beautiful and we enjoyed it very much. The evening could not have been more perfect if you had planned it yourself.

Again, more success to Chicago's great newspaper. J. E. HORNER.

"HEAD OF FAMILY."

Chicago, Aug. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have an income tax problem that I cannot understand, so after hearing and reading about the good advice your department has been giving, I come to you for advice. I have been claiming exemption as head of a family of three people for the last four years, the reasons being: [1] My mother, who is 60 years of age; [2] my sister, who is still under 18 years; [3] my father, who is 62 and has not been employed since he lost his business in 1930 and is now in bad health.

The internal revenue department allowed me this exemption for the years 1937, 1938, and 1939, but for 1940 they say I cannot claim the exemption as a new clause has been added to the records stating that my father must be claimed as the head even tho I am paying all the bills for all of us. They did give me an exemption of $400 for my sister, $800 for myself and want me to pay tax on $800, as my income for that year was $2,032.62, but they won't allow me any credit for the expenses of my mother and father, which I don't think is justifiable, as I would have to support them and myself on my own exemption of $800.

W. J. B.

The board of tax appeals decided on Dec. 18, 1940 [contrary to previous holdings], that a son living with his father does not become "head of a family" such as to enjoy the $2,500 exemption merely because he supports his father. The board said: "There can be no question that in the instant case the father was head of the family to the date of his retirement. . . . We do not think that he was ousted from that position by reason of such retirement. The only ground for the petitioner's claiming to be the head of a family is that he contributed the major portion of the cost of maintaining the family. This is not enough to make him the head of a family while his father lives." Gebelein vs. Commissioner, C. C. H. Dec. 11, 605-D.

Apparently you must acquiesce unless you are prepared to take the question to a high court and obtain a reversal.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ASSUMED NAME.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have just bought out the business of "Betty B" including the right to continue under her name. Is it lawful for me to do business under her name?

L. B.

An Illinois statute adopted July 17, 1941, requires that a person conducting a business under an assumed name shall file a certificate in the office of the clerk of the County court. You can get the forms there.

The answer that we have heretofore made in hundreds of cases that no court proceedings are necessary to change one's name still stands. Even the certificate is not required unless one engages in business under the assumed name.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

U. S. INCOME TAX BUREAU TO CLAIM CALDWELL HOARD

Clerks' Union Rebels Also Assert Ownership.

"Musclers in Minneapolis," another article in the series of "The Men Who Prey on Labor," appears in the Graphic section.

The concerted drive of federal and state law officers against Max Caldwell, ex-bootlegger and ousted labor czar, moved rapidly yesterday after the state's attorney's discovery of $62,000 of the racketeer's hidden wealth.

It was disclosed that internal revenue bureau agents are preparing to file a lien on the property for income tax deficiencies during the years 1938, 1939, and 1940. The property was found Friday night in a safe deposit box in the Stevens hotel.

Called Assets of Union.

Meanwhile, Assistant State's Attorney William B. Crawford, who led the search for the hidden assets, was pressing his drive to prove that the property is part of the $910,000 assets of the clerks' union that disappeared during Caldwell's four year régime.

Judge Julius H. Miner in the Criminal court continued to Aug. 29 a hearing on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed for Caldwell by his attorney, Harold Marovitz. Caldwell was released under $1,000 bond.

Prosecutor Crawford asked for the continuance in order to evaluate the contents of the safe deposit vault, which Caldwell rented under the false name of Roy Stewart, and to search for more records of the union.

Tax Deficiency Unestimated.

Crawford said internal revenue officials are preparing to file a lien against the property, but that so far they have not had an estimate of Caldwell's income tax deficiency.

Caldwell admitted the property in the box was his, according to the assistant prosecutor, but steadfastly refused to answer any questions as to how he gathered it on his $125 a week salary from the union, which he has testified was his only income.

In a separate action, Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan continued to Aug. 28 a petition by Attorney Francis Heisler, on behalf of the rank and file members of the union, to impound the contents of the box.

Attorney Heisler's petition charged that the assets in the box were all acquired by Caldwell at the expense of local 1248—paid for by the $2 monthly dues of $20 a week clerks.

Attack Four Sworn Assertions.

The petition also cited four apparent lies told by Caldwell during the hearings last week before Master in Chancery Daniel Covelli, who is hearing the union's suit for an accounting. The untruths, Heisler said, were:

1. That he never used any name other than Max Caldwell or Pollack [his real name], whereas he registered at the Stevens hotel Tuesday night as Roy Stewart.
2. That he had no other income than his salary of $125 a week.
3. That he had no property, stocks or bonds.
4. That his home at 8158 South Winchester avenue was owned by his brother, Michael Pollack, another official of the union, whereas a deed showing the property to be owned by Caldwell's wife, Lorraine, was found in the deposit box.

Second Safety Box Found.

Police have discovered another safety deposit box taken out by Caldwell in the Mutual National Bank of Chicago, 7844 South Halsted street, according to Crawford.

It was learned that Caldwell visited this vault Tuesday, the assistant prosecutor said, and it is presumed he cleaned out the vault and transferred the contents to the Stevens hotel box.

Crawford said that the discovery of the hidden assets has lent new impetus to the search for Michael Savachka, mysteriously missing financial secretary of the union, who is believed to know the whereabouts of vanished union records.

"If we had these records, we could prove where Caldwell—who was broke four years ago—got his sudden wealth," Crawford said. "And I think we can prove it anyhow, if necessary."

Caldwell, after a night in jail, had lost the natty appearance he has affected at other hearings. His green gabardine suit was wrinkled, he needed a shave, and he was not wearing a tie.

Going Into Movies

ANN CORIO.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 23 (AP).—Strip Teaser Ann Corio disclosed today that she is going into the movies. The burlesque queen, who in recent weeks has appeared on the legitimate stage in "White Cargo," said she would leave for Hollywood Sept. 15 to appear in the first of three motion pictures. "It will be called 'Swamp Lady,' she said, a half caste sarong clad character."

WILL RUN JOB LIKE LAIRD DID, SAYS NEW CHIEF

Ex-Boss an Intimate of Gambling Fixer.

Sergt. John J. Healy, who became acting chief of the county highway police Friday in the wake of the Laird-Skidmore dinner the night before, yesterday gave his credo for performance of his duties.

"I'm going to carry out the policies of this office as Lester Laird did in the past," he said. "We'll continue to keep after gamblers. I don't know if we'll touch city gambling."

Laird, chief of the county police, who had been giving daily stories to the newspapers on the progress of his raids on gambling, was found Thursday night having dinner with William R. Skidmore, reported front man for Cook county and Chicago gamblers. Pictures of the two at a table were reproduced in THE TRIBUNE Friday and yesterday morning.

Sheriff Hears Some News.

This was embarrassing to Laird's superior officer, Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien. Laird then resigned in an attempt to ease O'Brien's burden, but the sheriff had another uphappy day yesterday. He was asked for comment concerning an apparent acquaintance between Skidmore and Healy.

"It's news to me," the sheriff said. It was then recalled to him that Healy testified last March on Skidmore's behalf in the federal district court.

Healy, on direct examination, told of having arrested an Evanston bookie who had been a grand jury witness against Skidmore. On cross examination by the government, Healy admitted having driven Laird to Skidmore's junk yard as often as six times a month.

There was no evidence in court as to what occurred on these visits. However, the government charged Skidmore had evaded payment of $350,000 in taxes on graft received for protecting gamblers. Skidmore was convicted and sentenced to two and a half years in prison.

Healy's Job Temporary.

"I suppose Healy was subpenaed and had to testify," O'Brien said. "His appointment as police chief is only temporary. I'll make a permanent appointment in a few weeks."

"I'd be driving along with Laird," Healy said yesterday, "and he would say: 'I've got to stop in and see Skidmore.' That's all I know about it."

Bertram J. Cahn, head of the Chicago Crime commission, yesterday urged O'Brien to name a successor to Laird who would clean up the county police department.

"The police must be taken out of politics to divorce them from gambling," Cash said. "The sheriff has a chance to get rid of all the rackets."

Can't Stop State Raids.

Two other subjects also plagued the sheriff. One concerned the raid by state police and liquor commissioners Friday night on the Club Elgin, a taxi dance joint at Archer avenue and Robert road, 150 feet away from the Willow Springs county highway police station. O'Brien said he supposed there were a lot of taxi dance halls in the county and he couldn't prevent state agencies from making arrests in his territory.

O'Brien's other tribulation involved Edward Parchem, a part time deputy, who is accused of shaking down six Chanute field soldiers for their last few coins under threat of arresting them for running a stop light. The sheriff waived that aside by saying Parchem was no longer on his force.

Parchem surrendered last night on a bribery warrant issued by Police Magistrate Herbert Bergeren of Havey. He will be arraigned Sept. 2 before this magistrate, with counsel from the Chicago Motor club present to assist in the prosecution.

O'Brien Out Next Year.

O'Brien, a Democrat, was elected sheriff in 1938. His term expires next year, and under the law he cannot succeed himself. He is reported to have a covetous eye on the post of county treasurer, altho canny politicians believe he would settle for reëlection to congress from the 6th district.

Section 449 of the Illinois criminal code provides that any public officer —state, county or municipal—"who shall be guilty of any palpable omission of duty . . . or who shall be guilty of willful and corrupt oppression, malfeasance or partiality shall be fined not exceeding $10,000 and may be removed from his office, trust or employment."

Such action would have to be taken thru an indictment obtained by the state's attorney.

NEWLYWED PAIR SLAIN BY BRIDE'S FORMER HUSBAND

Oakland, Cal., Aug. 23 (AP).—A bride and groom of four days were shot to death in their honeymoon cottage today by the woman's former husband, who then fired a bullet into his own chest. Lawrence Dayton, deputy district attorney, said James H. McDonald, 47, an army sergeant and ROTC instructor, killed Robert A. Newcomb, 42 years old, plumbing shop owner, and Dorothy Newcomb, 35, before gravely wounding himself.

The Newcombs were married Wednesday at Ensenada, Mexico, presumably after the woman obtained a divorce there from McDonald, whom she had wed last June 14 at Carson City, Nev. Newcomb was the fourth husband of the striking brunette.

Dayton said McDonald wrote a note addressed "To my friends," which said "This act which I am about to commit is a terrible thing in itself, but for all concerned it is the best. My wife married me with a selfish motive—that is, getting a marriage certificate. I loved her so much and have forgiven her going out with other men. But this is the end. I cannot live without her."

Seven Injured When Two Cars Upset

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Two overturned and wrecked cars at 53d and Spaulding streets yesterday after collision in which seven persons were injured, three critically.

CAR LEAPS CURB, KILLS GIRL IN STORE ENTRANCE

Seven Hurt in Upset of Speeding Cars.

An automobile driven by Mrs. Anna Anderson, 65 years old, climbed a curb and crashed into the entrance of a food shop at 5733 Division street yesterday, injured a girl of 4 fatally, sent the girl's mother to a hospital with a fractured leg, and scattered customers.

The girl was Barbara Ann Nadarske of 1113 Massasoit avenue. She died in St. Anne's hospital, where her mother, Mrs. Rosemary Nadarske, 30, was taken.

Mrs. Anderson, of 1410 Massasoit avenue, who was riding with her husband, Alfred, 79, a retired mechanic, told police she became confused in traffic and stepped on the gasoline pedal instead of the brake.

Cars Overturn; Seven Hurt.

Two speeding automobiles collided so forcefully at 53d street and Spaulding avenue, an unguarded intersection, yesterday afternoon that both overturned. Seven passengers in the cars were injured, three perhaps fatally.

Anthony Trenzie, 21, of 7010 South Winchester avenue, drove one car. He was accompanied by John Vanko, 19, of 5020 South Rockwell street. The second driver was Raymond Hill, 19, of 6808 Yale avenue. Riding with him were Robert Seaton, 18, of 7349 Lowe avenue; William Bickel, 16, of 7051 Parnell avenue; Robert Moore, 19, of 6616 Stewart avenue, and James Scott, 21, of 6722 Wentworth avenue.

Russell Berggren, 31, of Serena, LaSalle county, accused of the hit-and-run collision that killed Nicholas Von Der Leith, 14, of 1449 Gregory street, and injured Robert Flagg, 15, of 1417 Berwyn avenue, when they were cycling near Yorkville, Kendall county, Friday night, was in custody last night.

Actions Arouse Suspicion.

Sheriff Robert Woodward of Kendall county said Berggren, an employé of the Wilmington munitions plant, confessed. A man who thought Berggren acted suspiciously reported him to the sheriff after hearing that the boys had been struck.

Mrs. Mabel P. Simpson, 50 years old, of 7602 Essex avenue, executive secretary of the Citizens' School committee, died Friday night of injuries received when hit by an automobile. Mrs. Simpson was riding a bicycle near her home at the time. Wilfred Harter, 29, of 10706 Avenue C was driving the car.

Leo A. Lerner, president of the committee, disclosed after her death that she had recently been married to Dr. John A. Lapp, chairman of the Chicago Civil Liberties committee.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday, 592 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 415 were killed in Chicago, where 15,848 were injured in the same period.

STOP IMMORALITY OR BE CLOSED, TAVERNS WARNED

Honky tonks, taxi dance saloons and similar infamous pleasure establishments are in for some pretty hard times unless they clean up their "entertainment" and business techniques, William M. Devine, secretary of the Illinois Liquor Control commission, warned yesterday. His remarks followed a five hour foray against 24 of the more notorious spots in Cook county which began Friday night and ended a few hours before dawn yesterday.

"We don't have the power to put the owners or managers of these places in jail," Devine said, "but we can refuse to issue or renew their liquor licenses. And that's what we'll do unless they or the others show cause why their licenses shouldn't be revoked."

The raiders served on managers and employés of the 24 spots subpenas to appear at hearings Sept. 5 to show cause why their liquor licenses should not be revoked.

Devine and Charles J. Fleck, a member of the liquor commission, led four automobile loads of state policemen and agents from the commission offices at 180 West Washington street.

Two Marines Die in Crash with Al Schacht's Auto

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 23 (AP).—Two United States marines on a motorcycle were injured fatally last night in a collision with an automobile driven by Al Schacht, widely known baseball clown. Corporal Elmer C. Bade, 22, of Lake Mills, Wis., driver of the motorcycle, died last night. Corporal Stonewall Sellers, 24, of Altha, Fla., died today.

FIRE DAMAGES HOTEL.

Fire which started in a brick storehouse on the roof of the 12 story apartment hotel at 5240 Sheridan road early yesterday caused $8,000 damage.

WAR AND WASTE CHIEF ISSUES IN WISCONSIN POLL

Smith Goes to Defense of Dairymen.

BY THORNTON SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 23.—Lawrence H. Smith, Republican candidate for congress in the 1st Wisconsin district special election next Friday, is not only opposed to entrance into the European war, but also is pledged to fight New Deal extravagance. Further he is opposed to what is described as administration discrimination against Wisconsin dairy farmers as evidenced by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard's appeal to the people to eat less cheese and Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt's approval of new oleomargarine standards which it is said will reduce demand for butter.

Smith, the anti-war candidate and Thomas R. Amlie, Democratic candidate, pledged to following President Roosevelt along the path to war, will enter the last week of their campaign tomorrow with full programs of speeches.

Election Next Friday.

With the issue clearly drawn over entrance into the European war, results of the Aug. 29 election will give the first cross section of the feeling of a typical midwestern section on the question since the Presidtian election the question since the Presidential election in November, 1940.

The election of Amlie, Wisconsin students of politics say, definitely would commit the first district of Wisconsin to approval of war, while a victory for Smith would register the sentiment of the district as opposed to entrance into war for any reason except defensive purposes on American soil.

Altho this question is paramount, a number of collateral issues have developed. Amlie is a former Progressive who has defied the La Follette leadership opposing the war, to follow the President's policy. An Amlie victory, which can be made possible only by the support of a large number of Progressive voters, may say, probably would mean the death knell of the Progressive movement started by the first Robert La Follette. ernment.

May Affect Party's Future.

The younger La Follettes have followed the path of their father in bitterly opposing war. If the Progressives of the 1st district vote in any numbers for Amlie, it will be interpreted as a repudiation of the La Follettes and a sign of disintegration of the party.

Smith, a veteran of front line fighting in France during the World war, is a former commander of the Wisconsin American Legion. His son is now in the army. Smith's opposition to war, he has been assuring voters, is based on a complete understanding of the futility of a war on another continent.

A lifelong Republican, Smith has been assailing the administration for "its incompetence and extravagance," in his campaign speeches.

"The administration has been in power nearly 10 years," Smith declared in a speech this week. "Its path has been strewn with broken platform pledges and broken promises to the people.

Cites Lost Privileges.

"The path also has been marked," Smith observed, "with lost rights and privileges taken from the nation, some openly, more stealthily. I hope to do my share when elected to restore meaning to the axiom of democratic government, 'the will of the people is the law of the land.' We must get back to representative government.

HIS NIMBLE MIND AND TONGUE TELL OF OLD CHICAGO

John Porter Recalls Some Notables.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

John Hale Porter, 4801 South Indiana avenue, is Chicago's historian extraordinary. He is a slight, crinkly-eyed, old colored man whose white hair stands like a stubby brush above his high forehead and whose gracious, old-fashioned manner is enhanced by a flowing, flowered bow tie.

He is not an orthodox historian but a nimble-tongued teller of tales. The tales, which begin in the '80's and tarry in the '90's, are glowing accounts of colorful personages with whom he had been associated as a bath-house worker, butler, business man, and politician. In addition, he has for reference 10 scrapbooks of news items concerning the political and criminal history of the city, highlighted by a special collection of John T. McCutcheon's cartoons.

Meets Bathhouse John.

"I came to Chicago from Louisville, Ky., as a lad of 18 in 1884 to look for work," Porter said. "I was always crazy about the Turkish bath business, so I got a job at John [Bathhouse] Coughlin's place at 106 South Wabash avenue.

"John was a big, good-hearted, noisy fellow who was always telling us what a great man he was going to be. We never paid any attention to him because he was the type who would tell you he could stage Barnum and Bailey's circus in his basement. Well, when he told us he was going to run for alderman, we just laughed in his face and told him he ought to have more sense. As it turned out, it looks as if he were right and we were wrong."

With barely stopping for breath, Porter jumped to a new topic.

"The last time I was up on the north side it certainly was a changed place," he said. "In the old days it was heaven. The rich and the poor divided themselves, east and west of Clark street. Chicago avenue was the dividing line for the Irish and the Swedes and all the Murphys and O'Malleys lived south of the avenue and the Olsens and Nelsons lived north.

He Gets "Borrowed."

"I was working as a butler for Thomas Martin, a Board of Trade man, and I used to get borrowed all over the place. Whenever Robert Lincoln—you know, the son of the Great Emancipator—who lived on the northwest corner of Walton place and State street, gave one of his fine dinner parties, he always borrowed me from the Martins to serve. He had an all colored staff, and Ike Allen, his cook, was a friend of mine. He used to say of Ike that when he cooked an egg, you could eat the bone. Those were fine parties Bob gave. He was in his own home, you know, and he wasn't above breaking open a bottle."

"Mr. Medill, too," he said, "always borrowed me from the Martins to deliver private messages. He knew that when I went out the door with the message it was already delivered.

"I'll never forget the advice he gave me. He said to me, 'John, if ever any one does something mean to you, don't get angry. Maybe you deserved it. But look around and see what he's done to John Smith or Tom Brown and if he's proved to be mean with them, too, attack him for what he's done to them. That way you'll help yourself."

Recalls Murder Case.

In reminiscing about the old north side, Porter told about visiting Dr. Patrick Henry Cronin 15 minutes before he was "taken for a ride" by Cooney the Fox in the famous white horse case.

"Dr. Cronin sure was a nice man, but he was in some fight between two factions of the Irish," Porter said. "Cooney the Fox hired a carriage with a white horse from Pat Dinan's stable where the Martins kept their livery and pretended that he was taking the Doc to a sick person. The next morning Doc woke up dead in a sewer."

Describing his checkered career the old narrator explained how he went to work for a baking powder factory.

"Old Man Price, the boss, wanted to send me thru Boston Tech to be a chemist but I refused," Porter said. "I said to him, 'Mr. Price, I know mathematics so that I'm even with anybody, but I don't know how to spell. I don't want to make a mistake in some formula and cause anybody's death.

"That's where I made my first mistake: refusing his offer. I made my second when I dabbled in politics. Chicago is a wonderful place. I've seen the good and bad here, and the poor things that have happened to me were my fault. A person can go along in Chicago if he does the right thing. Sure, I'd leave here if somebody gave me a place in California, but it would only be a visit. I don't want to be buried any place outside of Cook county."

Begin Work on $325,000 South Side Factory

MEAT CONTAINER FIRM TO DOUBLE PLANT CAPACITY

Will Increase Pay Roll 50 Per Cent.

Work has been started on what is said will be one of the world's largest plants for the manufacture of cellulose sausage casings and meat food containers, by the Transparent Package company. Adjoining the present factory at 1019 West 35th street, the new unit is being built on the west side of South Morgan street at a reported cost of over $325,000 for land, building, and equipment.

Its 85,000 square feet of floor space will give the company a total area of 127,000 square feet. The present plant, containing 42,000 square feet, will be continued.

Workers to Be Increased.

The new plant, designed by A. Epstein, Central Manufacturing district engineer, is expected to be completed about the middle of November. It will require about 300 workers. There are now 200 on the pay roll.

Indirectly the doubling of the plant's floor area was necessitated by increased orders for products by packing concerns having army orders for sausage and other meats, which use the Transparent Package company's products.

Organized in 1934.

Organized in 1934, the package concern leased space at 1019 West 35th street, in the Central Manufacturing district. Its business has expanded steadily, Ralph L. Atkinson, president, said, and has now outgrown its present quarters.

Other officers of the company are: Henry D. Oppenheimer, secretary and treasurer; Seymour Oppenheimer; vice president; Edward O. Johnson, vice president in charge of sales, and Calvin F. Reed, assistant secretary.

MEAT MARKET FIRM INVESTS IN APARTMENTS

Milton and Maurice Brunhild, operators of a chain of meat markets owned by Brunhild Meats, Inc., are gradually liquidating their business and investing in improved real estate, according to Joseph Korman, broker in the purchase of the 17 story Murray Hill apartment hotel, at the northwest corner of Marine drive and Junior terrace. They have reduced their chain from 50 to 15 units, he said.

Sale of the Murray Hill apartments first was reported at $845,000. Final closing of the transaction yesterday was at a price of $889,000, Korman said. The building, containing 90 apartments, is to be modernized, the new owners reported. The property was purchased from the Murray Hill Apartment Building corporation and title was taken by Brunhild Towers, Inc., owned by Brunhild brothers.

Realty Miscellany

With a demand for new housing exceeding all records—following armament demands, rise of national income to a new peak, and a 20 per cent increase in marriages in the last year—mortgage money supply for new home building and real estate investment continues extremely favorable, according to the 37th semiannual survey of the real estate market made by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

In 80 per cent of the cities of the country capital for real estate investment is available in excess of loans. In only 5 per cent of the cities are loans seeking capital. Interest rates are steady in 83 per cent of cities reporting.

Dovenmuehle, Inc., reported yesterday that business during the first half of 1941 was the highest for any similar period in the company's history. It was 20.1 per cent higher than during the first six months of 1940, and 94.3 per cent better than the first half of 1929.

The average size loan has been diminishing, Theodore A. Buenger, president of Dovenmuehle, said. During the first half of 1939 it was $7,293; for the same period of 1940 it was $6,745, and this year is $6,018.

The Institute of Real Estate Management, professional branch of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, yesterday announced names of men upon whom the title "Certified Property Manager" has been conferred during the last six months. Local recipients of the honorary C. P. M. title are Arthur L. Anderson, William O. Campbell, John F. Cary, and A. W. Hagstrom.

Baird & Warner, Inc., reports sales of $5,343,700 for the first half of 1941, compared with $3,586,390 for the same period last year.

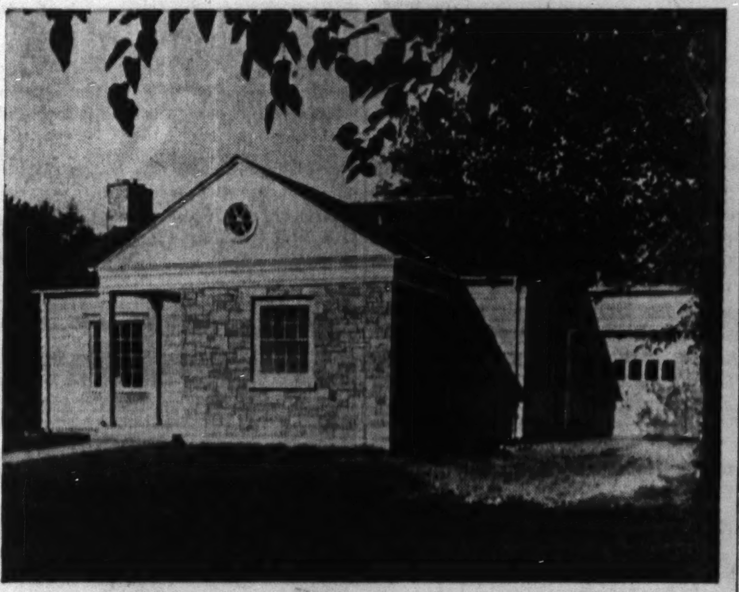
Model Home Open in St. Charles



The model home committee of St. Charles, composed of members of the St. Charles Chamber of Commerce and the American Legion post, built the above $10,000 five room residence at 308 South 7th street, St. Charles. Wolf, Anderson, Harper & Trueax were architects. It will be open to the public during the annual St. Charles festival, which begins next Friday, Aug. 29, and ends on Labor day. Senator Burton K. Wheeler will be a speaker at the festival on Labor day under the auspices of the St. Charles America First committee.

TAM O' SHANTER CLUB WILL ADD NEW FACILITIES

A $100,000 improvement program for the Tam o' Shanter Country club was announced yesterday by George S. May, president. Construction includes a new caddie house, an outdoor dance pavilion, a refreshment pavilion adjoining the swimming pool, new tennis, badminton, and shuffleboard courts, paving of parking space and roadway into the grounds, and a new locker room in the clubhouse. It is planned to have the program completed in time for the club's golf tournament early in September. The improvements represent the last steps in a half million dollar five year development program which the club started in 1936 when a new clubhouse was built.

Attorney Buys 331 Acre Farm Northwest of Geneva

John H. Gately, attorney, 134 South La Salle street, yesterday bought the 331 acre Fred E. Lemon farm, 6 miles northwest of St. Charles, and 2⅓ miles south of Plato Center, thru William H. Abelmann, of Elgin. Title was conveyed by Sidney Lemon. The farm has been in the Lemon family since it was bought from the government. Thirty acres are heavily wooded. Gately has sold his Beverly Hills residence and is living in Elgin until he completes a 10 room colonial house on his farm. Elmer Gylleck is architect.

Buys Kenmore Avenue Flat Building for $225,000

The Brinwood apartments, at 5439-41 Kenmore avenue, containing 87 furnished suites, was sold by the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, to Louis J. Gross for $225,000, thru the Terry Realty company, which will manage the property.

The annual Evanston-North Shore Real Estate board golf tournament will be held at Rolling Green Country club on Monday, Aug. 25.

LEASES WAREHOUSE.

Herrmann Warehouse Co., Inc., leased the three story building at the southeast corner of 36th street and Racine avenue, in the central manufacturing district, thru Robert White & Co. It contains 90,000 square feet.

BUILD LARGE SUPPLY DEPOT FOR U. S. WAR VETERANS' HOSPITALS

One of the largest warehouses in the country, containing more than 10 acres of floor space, is under construction on the grounds of the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital, Broadview, for use as a Veterans' administration supply depot. The building, 601x675 feet, is to be one story, with a small two story section for offices. It will cost about $950,000. Completion is set for next Feb. 1.

The Veterans' administration Chicago supply depot, of which E. A. McGinn is manager, furnishes food, clothing, furniture, medical supplies, and all other necessities to 57 war veterans' hospitals between Chicago and the Pacific coast. There are said to be about 70,000 patients.

The Chicago supply depot, for many years a tenant of the United States army quartermaster depot at 1819 West Pershing road, where it had 350,000 square feet of floor space, is temporarily housed at 1135 North Cicero avenue, where it has 210,000 square feet. It will have 435,000 square feet in the new depot, which is being built under supervision of C. D. Franks of the Veterans' administration, Washington.

Will Remodel 24 Big Flats Into 150 Smaller Units

David D. Duhl leased the building at the northeast corner of Prairie avenue and 46th street for 10 years, and will remodel the 24 large apartments into 150 furnished kitchenette units.

New Books

The 65th annual edition of Sullivan's Law Directory of Chicago and Cook County for 1941-'42 has just been published by Robert B. and Frank H. Sullivan. It contains 11,375 names, of which 522 have been added since last year's edition. During the year 101 attorneys have died, 109 have left the city, 182 retired, and 59 were called into military service. The new edition has information about the courts, officials, and rules of practice in the federal and state courts. It also has a list of corresponding attorneys in the United States and Canada, with biographical data.

Pershing Road Langley Corner to Be Rebuilt

A $100,000 remodeling and building project for the northeast corner of Pershing road and Langley avenue, across from the Ida B. Wells federal housing project, was announced yesterday. A total of 375 feet of modern stores will be provided. It was developed and conceived by Landau & Perlman, agent for the property.

The six story Hampden apartments on the corner has been remodeled at a cost of $20,000, with new stores installed on the first floor. Adjoining it on the east is an old one story garage and store building which is to be rebuilt at a reported cost of $80,000 from plans by David Saul Klafter. Space already has been leased to Kroger, A. & P., and Scott stores. Completion is set for Thanksgiving. The building is owned by Pershing Road Building corporation, headed by F. Loewenthal. William F. Curran is owner of the Hampden flats.

North Shore Home Show of 1939 Leads to Erection of 120 Residences in Two Years

TWO FIRMS PLAN ACTIVE PROGRAM FOR SKOKIE AREA

Tackett Starts on 50 New Scarsdale Homes.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Results were announced yesterday of an unusual approach to the home selling problem, a north shore home show of 10 residences, participated in by three competitive residential developers two years ago this month in Skokie. A total of 120 homes, costing approximately 2 million dollars, have been built, sold, or placed under construction during the last 24 months.

Tackett Builds 74 Homes.

Three residential building companies in the Chicago suburban area joined forces in a demonstration of architecture, construction, materials, and furnishings used in 10 homes which they built and opened to the public on both sides of Ridgeway avenue, between Simpson and Foster. The firms were: W. C. Tackett, Inc., C. A. Hemphill and Associates, and William G. Ruggles Associates, Inc. Tackett and Hemphill each built three homes; Ruggles built four.

With the death of Ruggles his firm was discontinued, but Tackett and Hemphill have carried on. With the impetus given by the home show, Tackett completed 68 homes and has six under construction, with a total reported cost of $1,060,000. All but one of his 74 home sites has been improved.

Hemphill Plans Nine Homes.

Hemphill in the same period has completed and sold 36 residences costing from $13,900 to $19,500, and has 10 more under construction. A further group of 10 has been planned and will be built shortly. These are all west of and adjacent to the original 10 show homes.

The Hemphill firm nas 100 additional building sites still farther west, extending to Crawford avenue, in Skokie. It has just purchased 10 more acres, south of the 100 homesites.

Hemphill has had two exhibition homes open to the public, and more than 40,000 persons visited each. A third, at 9502 North Avers avenue, will be opened today. It is an English style brick and stone, 7 room house, equipped with a summer air cooling system.

Starts on 50 Homes in Scarsdale.

Tackett yesterday announced the beginning of a three quarters of a million dollar residential building program in his Scarsdale development in Arlington Heights. Plans have been completed and work started on 50 new homes. Thirty will range in price from $12,500 to $13,900 while 20 will be in the $17,500 to $20,000 bracket.

Scarsdale comprises 147 acres, with paved winding roads and underground improvements costing one million dollars. Starting 4 years ago with 60 homesites, 157 homes have been built and sold. The price range is from $12,500 to $30,000.

Studio Lease Gives Shaw Building 100% Occupancy

The Whitaker-Christenson Studio of 18 East Erie street has signed a lease for five years on 10,500 square feet of space in the Shaw building, 660 North Wabash avenue. According to Richard B. Hart and Roger D. Shaw, managers, the property is now 100 per cent rented.

Pays $30,000 Cash for 12 Flats and Then Resells

John Palter paid $30,000 cash for the 12 flat building at the northwest corner of Campbell and Thorndale. John J. Kern, Inc., was broker, and the 5900 North Campbell Building corporation was seller. Palter then resold the property to Wilmer Martin for an undisclosed price.

New Lincolnwood Residence

Designed and built by the Taheny Construction company, this limestone Georgian house is nearing completion at 6645 North Le Mai avenue, Lincolnwood, for Dr. Joseph C. Ulis. It contains living room, library, dining room, kitchen, and powder room on the first floor, with 3 bedrooms and 2 baths on the second floor. There is a paneled recreation room in the basement and a two car attached garage, with sun deck roof. The house is heated with a gas fired warm air furnace. Construction cost $15,000 and the 75 foot site, $3,500. The total cost of $18,500 was privately financed with a $7,500 insurance company loan, at 4 per cent, without FHA insurance, thru Dovenmuehle, Inc.

REPORTS SALE OF FIVE FARMS WITH 882 ACRES

The sale of five farms, totaling 882 acres, was reported yesterday by C. H. Beals, manager of farm sales for Grover Elmore & Co. All were closed during the last 90 days. Ninety-two acres at the southwest corner of Western avenue and Exchange street, near the Will county line, were bought by James Quigley. A. J. Hedlund bought 250 acres three miles northeast of Wayne on Route 59, for a country estate. Gilbert Hansen bought 400 acres on Roosevelt road and Highland avenue, south of Lombard. Grover Elmore bought 40 acres at the southeast corner of Wolf road and Granville avenue, for future sale in acre tracts. He also bought 100 acres for subdivision on the Governor's highway and Vollmer road.

The seven story building at 5125 Kenwood avenue, 54 by 175, containing 84 furnished apartments, was sold yesterday by the Chicago Arms Apartment company to a syndicate headed by H. Dubnow for a reported $155,000 cash. Title was taken by the Liberty National Bank of Chicago, trustee, represented by Meyer W. Rosin, attorney. The buyer will spend $20,000 in modernizing the property, Rosin said.

Fred R. Older, with McMenemy for several years, has opened his own offices at 120 South La Salle street under the name of Older & Co. and will operate some of the former McMenemy properties.

TELLS HOW FUEL BILLS COULD BE CUT 60 PER CENT

Approximately 60 per cent fuel savings could be effected by application of certain well known principles of heat saving to the 37 million existing dwelling units in the United States, according to a pamphlet published by the Delco appliance division of General Motors corporation.

This enormous saving in fuel, which would help relieve any possible shortage of oil, gas, or coal for industrial armament uses, could be accomplished thru the installation of insulation, weather stripping, storm sashes, and caulking of houses not now so protected, the pamphlet states.

Wolens Trouser company, manufacturer, of 529 South Franklin street, leased the entire fifth floor at 301 West Monroe street, containing 9,000 square feet, for a term of years beginning Aug. 1. Harry J. Beeman, of Henry G. Zander & Co., represented the lessee, and Vary & Co. the owner.

WOODED TRACT NEAR WHEATON IS SUBDIVIDED

120 Acres Are Platted Into Large Sites.

One of Du Page county's heaviest wooded areas, a 120 acre tract one mile northwest of Geneva road station of the Chicago, Aurora & Elgin railroad, has been platted into 20 home sites ranging in size from 3½ to 12 acres, and will be marketed by A. L. Allen of St. Charles. The land, covered with oak, hickory and other trees, is owned by William S. Monroe, former president of Sargent & Lundy, engineering firm, and also a former president of the Western Society of Engineers, who lives on a 300 acre farm at Wayne.

Roads are being built and electricity will be installed, Allen said. Property owners will have their own wells.

The development will be highly restricted with a minimum residential cost of $7,500 and architectural supervision of all house plans.

The property, to be known as Winfield Woods, is south of and adjoining land owned by Mark Morton. It is about 4½ miles northwest of Wheaton.

Trades Wisconsin Dairy Farm for Chicago Flats

The six story 64 flat building at 6320 Kenmore avenue was sold yesterday by B. F. Roman to Edward D. Feinberg for a reported $140,000. A 200 acre dairy farm at Powers Lake, Wis., was given in part payment, and a purchase money mortgage for $65,000. John C. Wilkinson, of First National Finance corporation, was broker.

FAMED ARTISTS TO SING TODAY IN NEGRO FESTIVAL

Roland Hayes Heads Cast in Soldiers' Field.

Renowned musical artists will take part in the second annual American Negro Spiritual Song Festival in Soldiers' field this afternoon.

Roland Hayes, acclaimed as one of the great tenors of the day, will head the list of singers. Prof. J. Wesley Jones, who has directed choruses in many Chicagoland Music Festivals, will lead a choir of a thousand voices.

Radio Performers to Appear.

Among the radio performers who will appear are the "Wings Over Jordan" chorus and the Southernaires quartet.

Two of the Chicago singers will be La Julia Rhea, soprano, and William Franklin, baritone. Chicago audiences will remember them particularly for their appearance in "Aida" at the Civic Opera house a few years ago and for their more recent appearances in jazzed light opera. Miss Rhea was in "Tropical Pinafore," and Mr. Franklin in "The Swing Mikado" and "The Chimes of Normandy."

Other Favorites to Be Heard.

Other favorites who will be heard in the festival include Natalie Leota Henderson, 12 year old Cleveland pianist; Eddie South, violinist; Ethyl B. Wise, coloratura soprano; the Sharps and Flats choral group, directed by Maurice E. McGehee; Canada Lee, star of the play, "Native Son"; Bobby Brooks of the films, and Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, reader.

The proceeds of the festival will be donated to the United Service Organizations. The program will begin at 3 o'clock.

HINTZE, GERMAN WHO GOT DEWEY CHALLENGE, DIES

BERLIN, Aug. 23.—Rear Admiral Paul von Hintze, once aide-de-camp to Kaiser Wilhelm II., secretary for foreign affairs late in the World war, and bearer of a famous message from United States Admiral George Dewey to a German naval squadron at Manila bay, died here today. He was 77 years old.

Von Hintze was adjutant to Admiral von Diedrichs when Manila fell to the Americans in 1898. He acted as messenger to Dewey in negotiations over Dewey's demand that the German squadron be removed to an anchorage out of the Americans' line of fire. Dewey told him at the close of a parley:

"By the way, you can tell your admiral, too, that if he really wants a fight he can have it now."

Von Hintze was minister to Mexico when the World war broke out. He disguised himself as an ordinary seaman and made his way to Germany. Then he worked his way thru the British blockade and became minister to China.

384 Marriage Licenses Set Saturday Mark Again

Another new Saturday record was set yesterday when 384 marriage licenses were issued in the county marriage license bureau, Chief Clerk Sidney Summerfield reported. Eight extra clerks were on duty to assist the regular staff of seven during the half day the office was open. County Clerk Michael Flynn said he attributed the Saturday rush to the fact that most workers have a holiday on that day.

If Back Aches or Ankles Swell, Flush Your Kidneys

If you're feeling out o' sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles.

Worry, Colds, working too hard, or overeating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Money Back Guarantee

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. A printed guarantee with each package of Cystex insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose, under this positive money back guarantee. Don't take chances on any Kidney medicine that isn't guaranteed. Get Cystex from your druggist today for only 35c. The guarantee protects you.

TEACHER PARLEY BARS DELEGATES OF 3 UNIONS

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 23 (AP).—The American Federation of Teachers [AFL] today refused to admit delegates from three New York and Philadelphia locals, ousted last June, to the floor of its 25th annual convention.

While 131 delegates from the teachers' union of New York City, the New York College Teachers' union, and the Philadelphia Teachers' union, expelled in a referendum on charges of communist sympathies, demanded admittance, the convention approved its executive board report denying reinstatement. A motion to seat the banned groups as visitors was rejected.

Spokesmen for the three unions said they would ask permission to send a speaker to defend their case before the convention and announced plans for a massmeeting to protest their exclusion.

Engravers' Union Assails Threats to Press Freedom

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 23 (AP).—The International Photo Engravers' union in convention here today went on record as viewing with "grave apprehension" government attacks on advertising and a free press, and directed its officers to protest any such attacks to appropriate officials and their congressmen. A statement by the executive council named Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold and Price Control Administrator Leon Henderson as among those who have attacked various forms of advertising.

4 Children Burn to Death in Fire at Farm Home

Austin, Minn., Aug. 23 (AP).—Four children burned to death today when fire destroyed their farm home near Elkton, 18 miles east of here. The dead, all children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brandt, are Arlene, 12 years old; Frances, 9; Donna, 7, and Ronald, 5. Mr. and Mrs. Brandt suffered burns in an effort to rescue the children.

Unearth Old Wheels

Parts of an old time cable car which traveled Chicago streets from 1882 to 1906 were unearthed by subway workmen yesterday as they excavated for a subway station on State street between Madison and Monroe.

Surface line officials said the old parts were tossed in with other débris to fill a cable vault when the cable cars were discarded in 1906. The cable vault, a control station for pulling the cars around the State-Madison-Wabash-Lake loop, was 20 feet long, 16 feet wide, and 7 feet high. Workmen uncovered cable cars wheels, understructure, pulleys, and lengths of old cable.

FRANK JOHNSON, 81, BEAUTIFIER OF GLEN ELLYN, DIES

Services for Dr. Frank Johnson, who was responsible for much of the development of lilac gardens and shade trees in Glen Ellyn, will be conducted at 3 p. m. today in the chapel at 493 Main street, Glen Ellyn. He died Friday night in Elmhurst hospital after a short illness. He was 81 years old.

Dr. Johnson settled in Glen Ellyn 50 years ago and started developing lilacs. He also took a deep interest in civic affairs and was appointed village forester, a post he held for 40 years. He waged a successful fight against destruction of the town's shade trees when streets were widened and in 1927 gave his lilac garden containing more than 300 varieties to the town.

Dr. Johnson was a member of the Glen Ellyn Masonic and Odd Fellows lodges. He is survived by his widow.

Miss Margaretta Stuart, Former Postal Worker, Dies

Urbana, Ill., Aug. 23 [Special].—Miss Margaretta E. Stuart, 83 years old, an assistant postmistress in Kempton, Ill., for 12 years, died last night in the home of her brother, James R. Stuart. She was lifelong resident of Illinois. Services will be conducted Monday in Kempton.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Monique Ayers Ewer.

Services for Mrs. Monique Ayers Ewer, descendant of a pioneer Chicago family, will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the Graceland cemetery chapel. Mrs. Ewer died Friday in Highland Park hospital after a short illness. She was the daughter of Joseph Ayers, who migrated to Chicago from Massachusetts shortly after 1800. She and her husband, Charles Deming Ewer, lived in Wilmette until two years ago, when they moved to Florida. They were visiting her son, Warren B., president of the Warren B. Ewer company, general contractors, when Mrs. Ewer became ill. Her son lives at 23 North Linden avenue, Highland Park.

Miss Frances Walsingham.

New York, Aug. 23 [Special].—Miss Frances Walsingham, a mezzo-soprano who had performed in productions of the Chicago Civic Opera company and with the Metropolitan Opera company for the last 12 years, died today, one day after her 50th birthday. Miss Walsingham was born in Boston and began her operatic career there with the Boston Opera company about 1912. Before she joined the Metropolitan Opera company she performed with the Fortune Gallo Opera company under the name of Frances Morosini. Miss Walsingham never married, and had no known living relatives.

Mrs. Jennie L. Sherwood.

Funeral services for Mrs. Jennie L. Sherwood, a former resident of Chicago who died suddenly on Friday at Barstow, Cal., will be held at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday in the chapel at 929 Belmont avenue. Mrs. Sherwood was the widow of Maj. Frank Wyman Sherwood of the army signal corps. Surviving are a son, Harold Brooks Sherwood of Oradell, N. J., national advertising manager of the New York News, and a daughter, Marion Reynolds of Chicago.

John Morse.

Funeral services for John Morse, who was killed Friday in an automobile collision at San Rafael, Cal., will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the Oak Woods cemetery chapel. Mr. Morse was the son of Col. and Mrs. Robert Hosmer Morse. He was 25 years old and assistant manager of the San Francisco office of Fairbanks, Morse & Co., of which his father is president.

Lady Maxim.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Lady Maxim, widow of Sir Hiram Maxim, inventor of the machine gun, died today at her home in Norwood. She was the daughter of Charles Haynes of Boston. Her son, Hiram Percy Maxim, invented the Maxim silencer.

Samuel B. Butler.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 23 (AP).—Samuel B. Butler, 79, vice president and secretary of the May Stores company, department store chain, died today of infirmities of age at his home here. He was a native of New York.

Dr. Fred N. Bonine.

Niles, Mich., Aug. 23 [Special].—Dr. Fred N. Bonine, 77 years old, widely known eye specialist, sportsman and one time track star, died at his home here early today. In 1886 Dr. Bonine set a world record of 10 4-5 seconds for the 110 yard dash which stood for 26 years. He was mayor of Niles for several terms and served on Michigan's state boxing commission. An ardent sportsman and boxing fan, Dr. Bonine was a friend of Jack Dempsey, who was once his patient. It was said that articles were signed in his office for a Dempsey-Harry Wills fight, which never materialized.

Hugh A. O'Donnell.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Hugh A. O'Donnell, 67 years old, for 16 years assistant business manager of the New York Times, and a founder and former president of the Catholic Writers Guild of America, died today of effects of a stroke last Monday. He retired five years ago. A native of Bloomington, Ill., he was graduated from the University of Notre Dame and before entering the newspaper field appeared on the New York stage and on tour.

William L. Wright.

Services for William L. Wright, a past commander of the Dundee Carpentersville post of the American Legion, and active many years in the promotion of semipro baseball in the Fox valley, will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the chapel at 266 East Chicago street, Elgin. Wright died Saturday in Hines Memorial hospital. He was born in Kane county 51 years ago, and served overseas with the 33d division. His widow, Muriel, and three sisters survive.

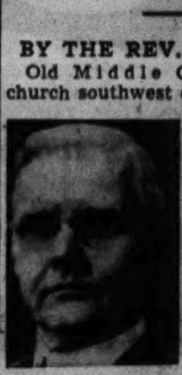
MIDDLE CREEK CHURCH MARKS HISTORIC WEEK

2d Pastor in 83 Years to Retire Soon.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Old Middle Creek Presbyterian church southwest of Rockford gleams this morning in a new coat of white paint against its grove of oak, maple, and elm trees. The final coat was applied yesterday, according to historic custom, in a single day by the men of the congregation.



Rev. H. P. Armstrong.

But yesterday's task had special meaning because the Rev. Dr. Harry P. Armstrong will round out 33 years as pastor at Middle Creek next month, and will retire. Retirement of pastors is an uncommon event at Middle Creek because it has happened only once before in the 83 years of the church's history. In 1908, Dr. Armstrong succeeded the Rev. Dr. Joseph Stevenson Braddock, who was pastor for 42 years.

Wedding Scheduled Friday.

Then, too, a daughter of the Middle Creek church and Sunday school is going to be married in the old church Friday. She is Ruth E. McCormick, daughter of the late Senator Medill McCormick and Mrs. Ruth Hanna Simms. Baizy, as Dr. Armstrong affectionately calls Miss McCormick, is to be married to Maxwell P. Miller of Rockford.

Wedding guests will overflow the little church, with its seating capacity of 300, into the church yard where many pioneers of Winnebago and Ogle county lie buried. Nearby in its grove of massive trees is the grotto-like weathered granite tomb of the late Illinois senator.

Will Join His Son.

Dr. and Mrs. Armstrong are going away from the Middle Creek community for a while after the last Sunday in September. But they are coming back next year after their son, Willard, has won his Ph. D. degree in chemical engineering at the University of Minnesota. They are going to live at the university with their son during his graduate year.

Mrs. Armstrong, the former Helen Osborn, daughter of a pioneer Middle Creek family, explained that Middle Creek was home to her because her grandfather settled there in 1845. She is a graduate of the Chicago Art institute and former art director in Portland, Ore., schools. Dr. Armstrong's eldest son, whose mother died in 1912, is Lieutenant Commander Robert G. Armstrong, United States navy. He commands the bomber squadron on the aircraft carrier Yorktown. A daughter of the late Mrs. Armstrong is Mrs. Herbert Anthony of Rockford.

Called for Two Sundays.

"I came here 33 years ago to supply for two Sundays," said Dr. Armstrong. "I was called and decided to carry on Dr. Braddock's work. He came out here to supply for only one Sunday and he remained for 42 years. During that time Dr. Braddock established the religious character of the community. Despite fast automobiles, good highways and the radio, that religious character cannot be transferred to a town or city. The country church always will have a real place in the religious life of the nation."

Dr. Armstrong was a missionary in Siam, now Thailand, after he was graduated from Omaha [Neb.] Presbyterian Theological seminary. Later he was a pastor in Nebraska and a representative of Hastings college before coming to Middle Creek.

Remove Pin from Lung of Indianapolis Girl, 9

Staff specialists at St. Luke's hospital yesterday removed a straight pin that had lodged in the left lung of Jean Knoy, 9 years old. The child had been brought here Tuesday from her home in Indianapolis, Ind., so that surgeons could use the $40,000 biplane fluoroscope to find the pin.

BOYS IN BACK ROOM ARE ONLY RADIO ADDICTS

Several squads of police from the Des Plaines street station hurried late yesterday to 740 Madison street, where it was reported there had been a shooting and didn't find a thing. They didn't even discover, officially, that more than 50 men were in a back room, the walls of which were filled with wall sheets, such as handbook resorts customarily use.

"The squads reported that there wasn't any shooting," said Acting Lieutenant John Gilfeather at the station. "It was a false alarm."

An observer who accompanied the police on the raid said that 10 minutes after their arrival the crowd disappeared, the wall sheets were gone and a porter was mopping the floor. One of the squad members said the 50 men were just listening to the radio.

STEAL CATHEDRAL CHEST.

Thieves early yesterday broke the lock on the vestibule door of the Holy Name cathedral, 730 North Wabash avenue, and took a 200 pound donation chest containing $50.

Wed in Dundee

BY JUDITH CASS.

In a pretty ceremony yesterday in St. James' Episcopal church, Dundee, Miss Katherine Lawrence, daughter of Mrs. Samuel D. Rowe of Barrington, and of John Harold Lawrence of Winnetka, became the bride of Nathaniel H. Blatchford III. The bride wore a white net gown with a long shirred bodice and horizontal bands of shirring thru the skirt.

The bride's two sisters, Evelyn and Muriel, who served as maid of honor and flower girl, wore point d'esprit gowns of sky blue and carried pale pink begonias and ivy leaves.

The six bridesmaids wore identical gowns in pink. A reception followed in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rowe.

Miss Eunice McIntosh and Simon Newcomb Whitney were married at noon yesterday in the Church of the Holy Comforter, Kenilworth. Later the bride's mother, Mrs. Walter Gilbert McIntosh, gave a wedding breakfast in her home in Wilmette.

After an eastern wedding trip Mr. Whitney and his bride will be at home in Washington, D. C.

IRATE DAIRYMEN BATTLE TO SAVE BUTTER MARKET

Protest New Regulations on Oleomargarine.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 23 [Special].—Wisconsin farmers are mobilizing to oppose a New Deal edict permitting the coloring and flavoring of oleomargarine which they contend will push butter off the dinner plate of the American people and force the use of a substitute product.

Wherever butter producers gather are heard the rumblings of protests that will be aired when dairymen of Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, and Minnesota—four of the nation's leading butter producing states—meet here on Aug. 31 to formulate a program which they hope will save their industry.

Thousands of farmers from the four states are expected to attend the meeting and frame a potent protest to government authorities against an action which they believe will destroy a large part of their market.

Effective on Sept. 6.

The cause of their agitation is Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt's recent approval of new oleomargarine standards which allow the injection of coloring, flavoring and synthetic vitamins in manufactured oleomargarine. These standards become effective Sept. 6 under regulations originally adopted by the federal food and drug act administration.

The farmers' indignation has risen to a high pitch against the department of agriculture as a result of its consumers' counsel division giving free advertising over the radio to propaganda favoring oleomargarine.

Farm leaders are asking why the New Deal is favoring the oleomargarine industry, which has an annual production valued at 32 million dollars compared with the nation's butter production in the neighborhood of 115 million dollars.

They are also wrought up over the fact that officials of the Federal Security administration having turned a deaf ear to requests that hearings on oleomargarine standards be reopened to permit the introduction of the dairymen's predicament. Administrator McNutt has bluntly told dairy representatives of the middle west that the case is closed as far as he is concerned.

Ammon Voices Protest.

"The dairy industry," declared Ralph E. Ammon, director of the Wisconsin department of agriculture, "is rightfully indignant over the new oleo standards which permit the oleo trusts to do everything within their imagination to imitate butter and pawn off on the public an inferior product as a butter substitute.

"Those in the industry will be further hurt and indignant to learn that a division of the United States department of agriculture has shown the poor judgment of broadcasting propaganda for oleo and against butter. It would appear that when the department uses public funds, the dairy farmer's money included, to advertise the product of an unscrupulous competitor that it has gone entirely too far.

"The dairy industry has launched a campaign against the unfair and discriminatory regulation. Those in the industry are confronted with the necessity of battling for their rights and a fair deal or suffer great losses."

Want Ruling Rescinded.

At a protest meeting of 1,200 dirt farmers at Sparta last Sunday, it was voted to request Administrator McNutt to rescind his oleomargarine ruling and to advise him to seek the guidance of competent dairy industry leaders before making any further rulings affecting this basic industry.

In the event that he fails to honor this request, the farmers resolved that congress be instructed to pass legislation removing from McNutt all powers affecting the dairy industry.

Another resolution demanded that the department of agriculture be requested to cease "the untruthful and free advertising of oleomargarine, and, failing to do so, that congress be requested to change the name of that department from the department of agriculture to the department of oleomargarine."

PRINTER UNION BALKS AT AFFILIATION WITH EITHER THE CIO OR AFL

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 23 (AP).—A proposal for a referendum on affiliation with either the CIO or the AFL was rejected last night by the International Typographical union. The organization ended its convention by voting a $2 weekly increase in its pensions.

The $2 increase, a substitute for a previous proposal for a $4 increase, must be indorsed thru a referendum of he entire I. T. U. membership. The pension now is $8 a week.

The I. T. U. broke from the AFL five years ago and since has been an independent organization.

FM STATION W51C ADDS POWER AND RANGE ON SEPT. 1

Plans for a vast increase in the territory served by Radio Station W51C with frequency modulation broadcasting were announced yesterday by Commander E. F. McDonald Jr., president of the Zenith Radio corporation. The Zenith corporation, which operates the station, will raise the power of the transmitter from 5,000 to 50,000 watts about Sept. 1, McDonald said. This will permit transmission of the frequency modulation programs as far north as Racine, Wis., west to Rockford, south to Peoria, and east to South Bend, Ind. Frequency modulation eliminates interference, but its range is limited.

One- two- and few-of-a-kind coats, all unusually beautiful, all far below regular price for these particularly high qualities

You can tell the way they're made, the way they fit, the way the pelts are matched that these are rare values

$119

Not a single big purchase, but many small purchases from many of America's outstanding fur houses. Our buyers hand-picked a few coats here, a few coats there—day after day in the markets—until this collection was complete. The result—greater variety, greater stress on the quality in each individual coat. Many are kinds of furs practically unknown today at this price level—others equally important because they represent particularly choice grades. Fashion-wise, you'll see all the new advanced style details—higher yokes, smooth shoulder line, softer sleeve treatments, tiny collars which are so flattering. Indeed, an extraordinary special—when you consider it includes the following:

1 Gray Persian Lamb Coat $119

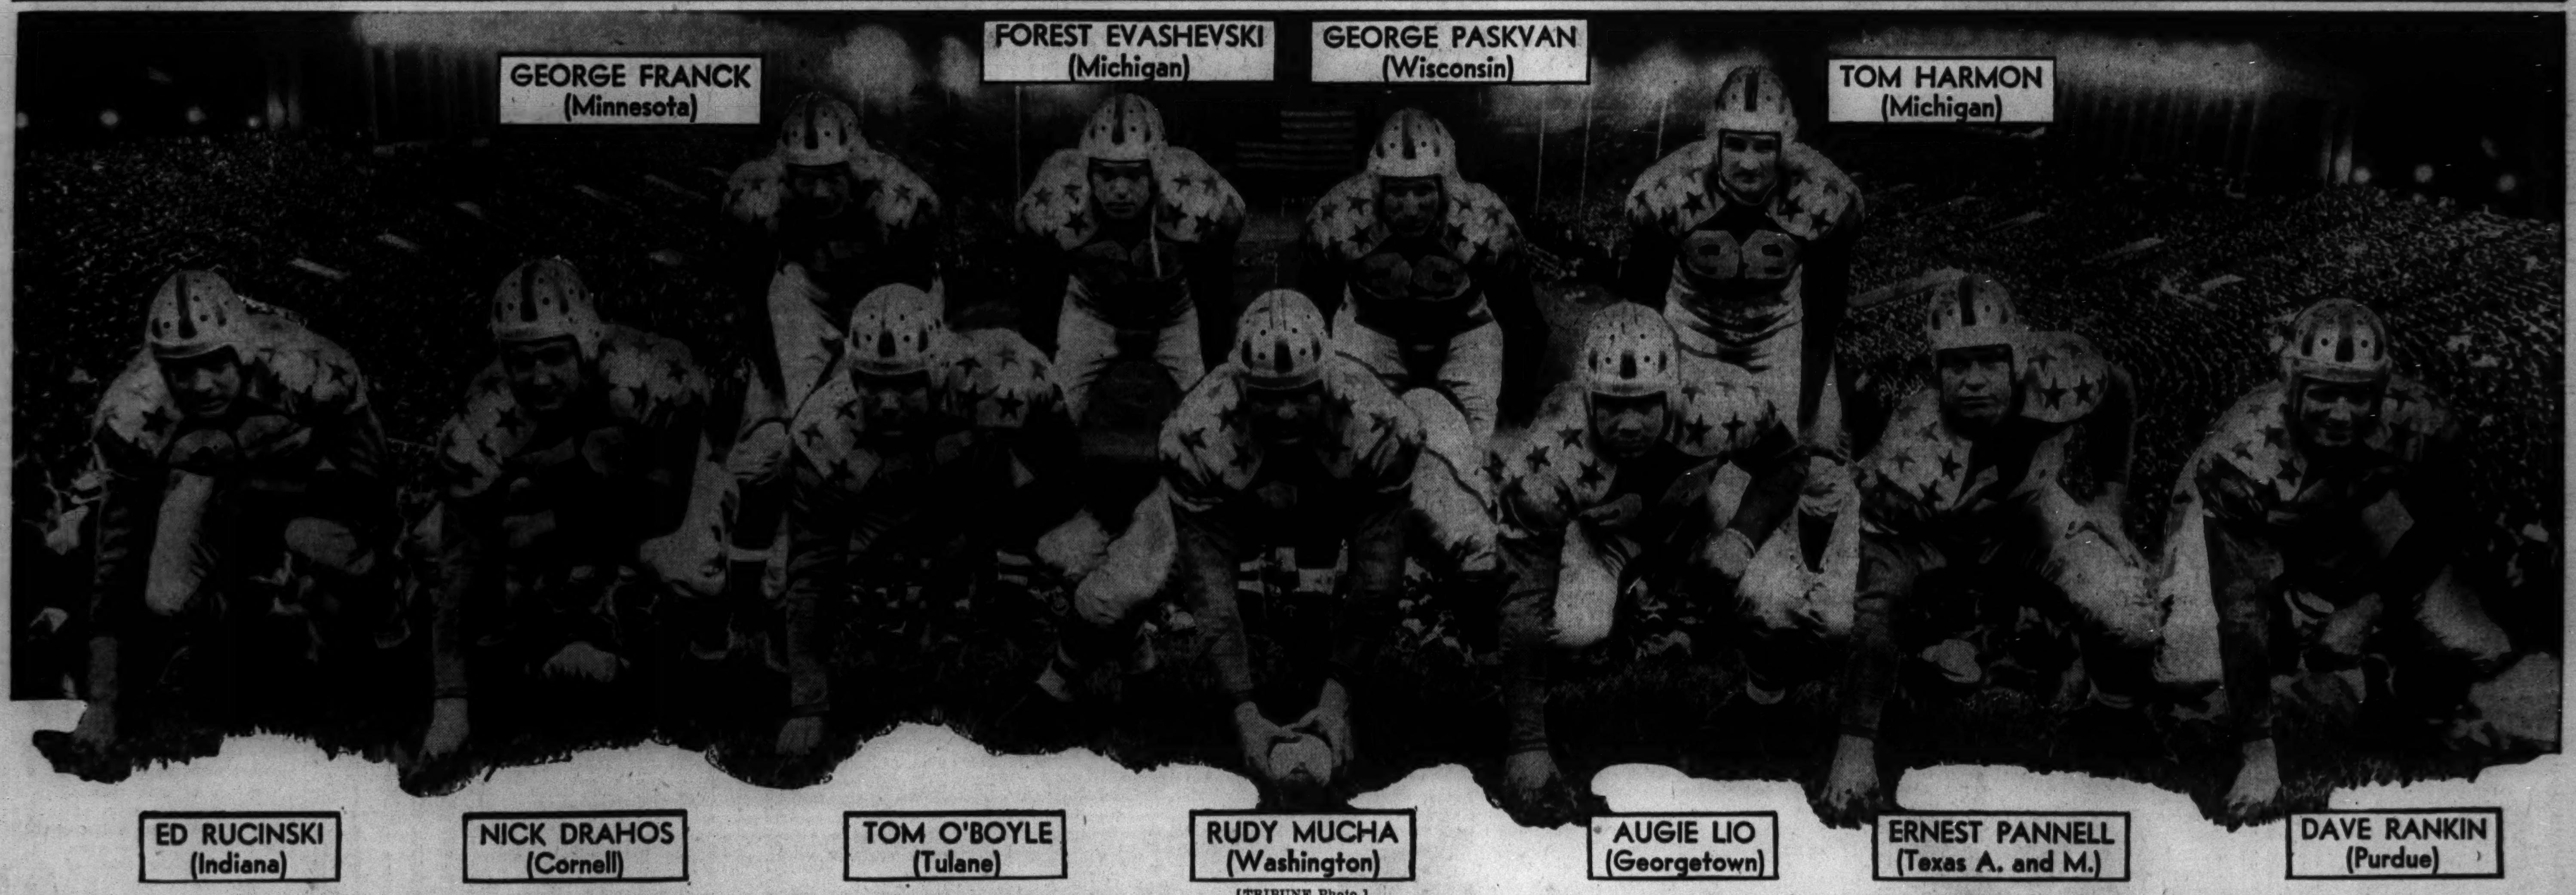
WHIRLAWAY TIES AMERICAN DERBY RECORD

WHITE SOX SHUT OUT BOSTON, 3-0; CUBS DEFEAT DODGERS, 7-1

NATION'S ALL-AMERICANS ARE READY FOR A BIG FOOTBALL DATE—SO ARE 93,000 SPECTATORS



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

This is the College All-American team, in battle garb, which will start—barring injuries meantime—against the Chicago Bears, National Football league champions, in the 8th annual All-Star game presented by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in Soldiers' field Thursday night. These 11 players were the winners in a nation-wide poll, conducted by The Tribune and 264 associated newspapers and radio stations, to determine the starting lineup and makeup of the All-Star squad. The demand for tickets to the game has been the greatest in history, assuring a record attendance of 93,000 spectators. The All-Stars are directed by a coaching staff composed of Carl Snavely, Cornell; H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, Michigan; Homer Norton, Texas A. & M.; Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern, and Orin (Babe) Hollingbery, Washington State.

ALL-STAR COACHES ARE WORRIED; RESERVES BEAT VARSITY, 7 TO 6

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The yellow-shirted half of the All-Star squad ran over the blue-clad first team yesterday morning in Dyche stadium in the grand review of the collegiate talent which will oppose the Chicago Bears, National Football league champions, Thursday night in Soldiers' field. While the score was only 7 to 6, the Blues' touchdown came from a fumble. The 11 boys whom the fans of the nation named the All-American varsity never threatened seriously afterward.

The score, which might have been a tie if Augie Lio had not failed to kick the point after the Blues' touchdown, because of a bad pass from center, gives no conception of the course of the game. The Yellows outcharged their opponents, gained thru the line and around the flanks. In all this Jack Banta of Southern California had a large part, as did Ray Mallouf of Southern Methodist, but thruout the parade of strength the Blues always managed to stave off a second score.

The Yellows won the game, as it turned out, the first time they had possession of the ball. An indifferent kickoff gave the Blues the ball in midfield and on the first play of the game Tom Harmon of Michigan passed to Ed Rucinski of Indiana for nine yards. A first down followed but the Yellows held on their own 35 and a fourth down pass by Harmon was incomplete.

47 Yard Gain Paves Way.

On the first play after the ball had changed hands, Arthur Jones of Richmond passed to Banta, who went to the Blues' 18 yard line, a gain of 47 yards. A line play was stopped and then Jones fired again to Banta in the end zone for the touchdown. Tony Ruffa, Duke tackle, kicked the point.

Shortly after the subsequent kickoff the Yellows seemed on the way to further humiliate the varsity. Jap Davis, Duke full back, ripped thru the middle of the Blue line for 19 yards and a first down on the Yellows' 31. On the next play Banta plunged for four yards, but when Rudy Mucha, Washington center, hit him high the ball shot out of Banta's arms and on a line to George Franck of Minnesota, defensive half back.

Almost as quickly as you can read this line Franck was started down the side line. No defender touched him on his 65 yard sprint. Thereafter the play was spasmodic but the Yellows dominated the game.

A Lack of Coördination.

What many regard as the next to last contact review of the All-Stars was held on the Dyche Stadium gridiron. The coaches declined to comment after the 90 minute scrimmage, under game conditions, but critical comment was not needed. The All-Stars not only lacked coördination except for infrequent passing attempts, but this will be only half of their problem when they face the Bears. A defense for the professionals' offense is more than equally important.

To that end, the players had a brief period of instruction before yesterday's scrimmage and they will resume today when one practice will be held this morning. With their own offense far from being completely effective and with a question mark placed on their own defense, the All-Stars only can hope to cope with the Bears by sheer spirit.

It has been the history of the preceding seven All-Star games that

Bear Practice Makes Trench Warfare Mild

BY EDWARD PRELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Delafield, Wis., Aug. 23.—The Chicago Bears, crashing into each other in the most furious physical display of their two weeks' preparation for the College All-Stars, today held a final scrimmage for Thursday night's battle in Soldiers' field, Chicago. Runners gave every ounce of energy and speed, and blockers and tacklers drove in with all their might.

Tackle Lee Artoe came out of the battle with a skinned cheekbone, and Al Baisi and Danny Fortmann, guards, suffered cuts on their noses. With their bare legs and lightweight pants caked with mud, the players appeared as if they had been thru trench warfare.

Bear Varsity Embarrassed.

The clash between the national football champions ended in a victory for the defense, as only one touchdown was scored. It also caused more than little embarrassment to the Bears' varsity, 10 of the 11 men who probably will start against the collegians.

This combination, taking the offensive from the 20 yard line, made only two first downs and six times were held for downs by the Blues. The biggest gain in almost a half hour of effort was Bill Osmanski's 13 yard plunge.

After being thusly frustrated, the varsity went on defense and only encountered more woe. The Whites, with a hard charging line, made a touchdown without once losing possession of the ball. Gary Famiglietti drove thru his own left side for eleven yards and the parade was on. After Harry Clark picked up nine yards in two plays, Young Bussey sent a pass down the middle to Bob Nowaskey, who turned right toward the sideline. He lateraled to Famiglietti as he was about to be cornered. Gary ran 10 yards, then lateraled to Clark, who went over standing up. The scoring play covered 60 yards.

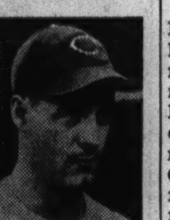
HUMPHRIES WINS NO. 3 FOR SOX; PASSEAU'S ARM CHECKS BROOKLYN

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Johnny Humphries stole the show in Comiskey Park yesterday as the White Sox got back on the victory path by whipping the Red Sox, 3 to 0. Johnny in registering his third straight shutout and his third victory as a member of the White Sox, ran his string of scoreless innings to 33, including six as a reliever before he became a starting pitcher. In successive previous turns John set down the Tigers, 3 to 0, on Aug. 14, and the A's, 1 to 0, on Aug. 19.



John Humphries.

Humphries' heroics weren't confined to the defense. He doubled with the bases loaded with two out in the fourth, the highly adequate pair of runs thus scored standing up as the Chicago total until the lads made an unearned run after two were out in the eighth.

Victory Was Welcome.

Tho yesterday's triumph was only the sixth in 19 meetings with the Red Sox, the success lifted the White Sox two and a half games ahead of the third placers from Boston. The latter move on to Cleveland today for a four game series with the fourth place Indians, now three games back of the White Sox.

The Red Sox made six of their seven hits in the four innings before Humphries produced a lead for himself. The first batsman in each of these first four innings got on base and eight runners were left on during the span.

With no runs in his behalf, Johnny might have been apprehensive in remembering that there were no Sox hits in the production of the run which gave him his 1 to 0 triumph over the A's Tuesday. He might also have recalled that the only Chicago run Friday was batted home by Pitcher Buck Ross. He scarcely could have had his own batting accomplishment in mind, for previous to yesterday's decider he had made only one hit as a member of the Sox.

Then John Goes to Town.

After he had knocked home those two runs in the fourth, you should have seen the fellow go. Jimmy Foxx

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Claude Passeau's right arm, aided by more hits than were necessary, today momentarily turned off the flame beneath the Dodgers' boiling pennant kettle. Claude put on the chill so effectively that the pacemakers saw next to nothing of the base lines, the Cubs in the meantime exploding a five run third inning on which they rode to a 7 to 1 decision for their second victory in the three game series. However, the Dodgers maintained their edge over the Cardinals, who succumbed at the hands of the Phillies.

Passeau, who had a five hitter and a shutout until the ninth, experienced his season's 12th victory mainly because of the bats of Babe Dahlgren and Clyde McCullough. The former hit a two run double against Rookie Tom Drake in the decisive third and a bit later in the inning with two more on the bases, McCullough landed the knockout punch for the Dodger starter, by looping his No. 9 homer out of the park.

Barney Olsen Takes a Hand.

Barney Olsen, recently recalled from the minors, was introduced as one of the Cub outfielders and he, too, cut in on a little of the fun that caused distress among 13,578 admirers of the team they lovingly refer to as "Our Bums." Barney singled in the third, thus getting on board in time to enjoy a sprint on McCullough's homer. He singled again in the sixth, thus launching the only two runs counted off Johnny Allen and he doubled off the ex-American leaguer with none out in the eighth. His mates, however, deserted him on this occasion.

Third Starts Meekly.

Passeau had the leaders in such a state for five innings that they could pick up only a single and a pass. In the sixth Dixie Walker singled for the second time and Billy Herman also hit safely, putting a Dodger on second for the first time. The next hit was a single by Peewee Reese after two were gone in the seventh. Then Dolph Camilli singled to start the ninth and went to third when Jim Wasdell's grounder took an unexpected hop over Lou Stringer's head. The next three fellows did nothing, but on one of the outs Camilli scored.

The third inning started as if noth-

Mrs. Mann Wins Western Title, 4 and 3

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Mrs. Russell Mann of Omaha, Neb., a grand golfer and a grand person, yesterday won the forty-first amateur championship of the Women's Western Golf association by defeating one of her best pals, Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., 4 and 3, in the 36 hole final at the Exmoor Country club. The victory marked the genial Mrs. Mann's second Western triumph [she won the same title in 1933 as Lucille Robinson] and her second major decision of the year, for in the spring she captured the trans-Mississippi from the same Miss Wall.

Mrs. Mann's performance, climaxed by a match winning eagle on an 80 foot chip shot from the front of the 410 yard thirty-third green, finished a week of golf the like of which Chicago amateur followers never have seen. Mrs. Mann will go to the Women's National at Brookline, Mass., next month as an outstanding favorite.

A Brilliant Young Player.

To the credit of Miss Wall, who yesterday finished second in her third big show this year [she was runner-up in the Trans-Mississippi and the Western Derby], it may be pointed out that in this tournament at Exmoor she stamped herself the brightest young player to come up in the last few years. In Friday's semi-final she stood 5 down at the turn to Georgia Tainter, yet came back to win, 1 up, on the 19th green.

Yesterday, for most of the route, Miss Wall really outplayed Mrs. Mann from tee to green, but her older opponent's recovery talents and putting ability under pressure were too much for her. The door was open several times during the afternoon round, but Mary Agnes couldn't take advantage, except at the 28th and 32d, where she won back two of the holes with which Lucille had constructed a 5 up advantage on the 27th, after having been fought to a 1 up standstill thru the morning eighteen.

Mrs. Mann One Over Par.

For the 33 holes played Mrs. Mann was only one over par of 76, the figure which she matched on Monday in sharing the qualifying medal with Eleanor Dudley of Ridge. She was around the morning round in 77, against Mary Agnes' 79, and had an afternoon out nine of 38, one over par. She yielded a shot to the card on the 28th and 32d, but retrieved two of those with that climactic eagle on the decisive hole.

BUSHWHACKER 2D, DELRAY 3D IN $60,900 STAKE AT HOMEWOOD

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Whirlaway's rivals waited for him yesterday, but when it was time to go, Whirlaway didn't wait for them. The five horse American Derby field ran under strangleholds to the last bend, each rider hoping that his mount would have something left for the stretch. But it didn't make a bit of difference. When Al Robertson was ready to move with Whirlaway he moved—and Warren Wright's magnificent colt came home at an easy gallop to win this $60,900 stake at Washington Park.

R. W. McIlvain's Bushwhacker was second, a little less than three lengths behind the leader. Then came Clarence Davison's Delray, three and a half lengths farther back. Daily Trouble and To a Tee completed the field in that order.

Climbs Toward Money Record.

This victory gave Whirlaway the undisputed championship of the 3 year old division, following his previous successes in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness, Belmont, Dwyer, Saranac, and Travers. It climaxed a campaign unparalleled by any other 3 year old in the history of the American turf.

The $44,975 net purse to the winner raised Whirlaway's total earnings to $320,611, which placed him sixth among the leading money winners of all time. Seabiscuit, Sun Beau, Equipoise, Gallant Fox, and Challedon top him. Inasmuch as Whirlaway's big money winning career may go on for at least two more seasons, he is well within reach of Seabiscuit's record of $437,730.

They All Hold Back.

The crowd of 35,000 established Whirlaway as the 1 to 5 favorite in the betting, his return being $2.40. No place or show tickets were sold. Whirlaway's time of 2:04 equaled the unusually slow American Derby record held by Cavalcade.

The handlers of Daily Trouble, To a Tee, and Delray had a difficult choice to make. They had to decide whether to steal a lead and attempt to stay or to hold back and go into the stretch with fairly fresh horses. All elected to hold back.

It was rather amazing optimism to hope that they could go into the last half mile on even terms with Whirlaway and outrun him the rest of the way home. But apparently there were at least two factors involved in this decision. Some of the owners probably had decided to forget about Whirlaway and to concentrate on beating Bushwhacker out of the $7,500 second prize.

Whirlaway Stays in Line.

Furthermore, the handlers of Daily Trouble, To a Tee, and Delray had a hunch that Whirlaway might run wide into the stretch. With fresh horses under them, the riders of the three outsiders might have been able to take advantage of such a maneuver by the champion.

However, no such eventuality developed. After running second in the earlier stages and taking the lead from Daily Trouble in effortless fashion halfway around the last bend, Whirlaway completed the turn with precision and came right on home, holding Bushwhacker at a safe distance without urging.

The race was run under perfect weather and track conditions. Earlier in the afternoon two different sets of sprinters had burned thru six furlongs in 1:10 4-5, which was only three-fifths slower than the record. The strategy followed by the American Derby riders, however, prevented any threat to the track record of 2:02 for the mile and a quarter.

Daily Trouble Takes Lead.

When Starter Roy Dickerson sprang the gate, the riders on To a Tee, Delray, Bushwhacker and Whirlaway tried to outdo one another in taking their mounts under restraint. Meanwhile Daily Trouble was going out in easy stride to take the lead along the rail in the first rush past the stands.

By the time they went into the clubhouse turn they were all bunched,

Derby Crowd Bets $824,934 — Only $54,531 on Stake

The American Derby crowd bet $824,934 thru the Washington Park mutuels yesterday. There were nine races instead of the customary eight, but the handle on the Derby itself was only $54,531 due to the small field and the overwhelming odds on Whirlaway. The total for the day was the third largest of the season. It was surpassed by the 4th of July and Classic day figures at Arlington Park. The daily average handle at Washington Park is running approximately 15 per cent over that of last season.

Chart of American Derby

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-fourth miles. American Derby. Three year olds. Purse $40,000. Added Net value to winner, $44,975; second, $7,500; third, $5,000; fourth, $2,500. To groom of winning horse, $10.

WHIRLAWAY saved ground while under strong restraint the first three-eighths, was taken to the outside of DAILY TROUBLE in the backstretch, took command under light urging when approaching the final quarter, swerved out slightly before reaching the final eighth and won with something left. BUSHWHACKER, under strong restraint for almost a mile and saving ground to the stretch turn, came out for the drive and closed with determination but was held safe by the winner. DELRAY, in hand for seven-eighths, weakened after a mile but outstayed DAILY TROUBLE.

Leaders Break Losing Streak at 3 Games.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 23 (AP).—The New York Yankees changed everything but the color of their uniforms today and ended their three game losing streak by beating the Indians, 7 to 2. Lefty Gomez yielded the Indians six hits, altho Johnny Murphy had to help in the ninth inning to save his 12th win of the year.

The victory left the Yanks 15 games in front of the second place Chicago White Sox in the American league standings. The Yanks had scored only four runs in their last 27 innings before today. Manager Joe McCarthy had Jerry Priddy on first, Frank Crosetti on third, Frenchy Bordagaray in right field, and Ken Silvestri catching.

LUKE DOES IT, BUT BILL IS OUT!

Luke Appling, White Sox shortstop, arrives safely at third base on Julius Solters' single in fourth inning of yesterday's game with the Red Sox in Comiskey park. Manager Joe Cronin waits for the throw-in. Mule Haas (No. 22) White Sox coach, watches the play. The Sox won, 3 to 0.

Bill Knickerbocker, Sox second baseman, is out at the plate in attempting to score from first on Myril Hoag's double in the third inning. Johnny Peacock is the catcher. Umpire Steve Basil calls Knickerbocker out.

doubled with two out in the fifth for the only Boston hit. The only other Boston batter to reach base was Dom DiMaggio, who walked at the start of the sixth.

Humphries was obtained from the Cleveland Indians this spring in a swap for the veteran Clint Brown. All last season and up to his debut as a starter against the Tigers he had pitched only 34 innings. In two years with the Indians he was the pitcher of record in only six games, two of which he won and four he lost. Last season he won none and lost two. He is 26 years old, a native of Clifton Forge, Va., and a resident of New Orleans.

Here's How They Won.

Luke Appling walked with one down in the fourth. Julius Solters, who tripled Friday to be driven home by Ross for that only Chicago run, singled sharply to right, Appling reaching third. Solters stole second, but Bob Kennedy accomplished the second out by gazing at a third strike. Mike Tresh was given an intentional pass, after which Humphries knocked the ball over Pete Fox's head, Appling and Solters scoring. Coach Mule Haas, who has been having a tough time making the right guesses in his job in the third base coaching box, this time elected to hold Tresh at third, tho, as things turned out, Mike could have crawled home. Bill Knickerbocker popped to Cronin.

After Wright and Appling had been retired in the eighth, Solters' grounder went for a single when it took a crazy bounce and Julius went to third when Kennedy's grounder got away from Bobby Doerr. Tresh then singled to center, scoring Solters.

White Sox and Leading Yanks Play 2 Today

The Yankees are in town for a three game series with the White Sox, which will include a double header this afternoon. Spud Chandler and Charley Ruffing will pitch for the New Yorkers and it will be Ted Lyons and Thornton Lee for Chicago. Chandler has won 6; Ruffing, 13; Lyons, 12, and Lee, 16.

All box seats for this afternoon's double header have been sold. The gates will be open at 11 o'clock and 30,000 grandstand tickets will be placed on sale at that time.

The White Sox are not likely to drop to fourth place during the Yankee series. The main challengers for the Sox berth, the Red Sox and the Indians, will be slashing at each other in Cleveland.

ing were to result. Phil Cavarretta singled after the first two men had been retired by Drake. Bill Nicholson walked and Dahlgren then broke the scoreless spell with his double off the right field scoreboard, Cavarretta and Nicholson galloping home. B. Olsen contributed a single captured by Reese in deep short. On the next pitch McCullough hit his three run homer into the left field pavilion and Drake went away.

Allen, who finished the third for Drake, didn't feel the sting of an enemy hit until the sixth, when B. Olsen singled again. McCullough fouled out and Bob Sturgeon singled to left, continuing to second on Walker's futile throw to catch Olsen going to third. Passeau put on a squeeze bunt and Camilli made it successful by fumbling the ball, Olsen scoring and Sturgeon taking third. Sturgeon skipped home with the last Cub run on Stanley Hack's fly to Pete Reiser.

PHILLIES DEFEAT CARDINALS, 4-2, TO WIN SERIES

Dodgers Retain 1½ Game Edge Over St. Louis.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 23 (AP).—The Phillies, even without the services of National league batting leader Nick Etten, beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 4 to 2, today. Seven hit hurling by Lee Grissom and good relief work by Si Johnson in the ninth stopped the Cards, while the Phillies knocked Bill Crouch out of the box in the sixth.

GIANTS, PIRATES DIVIDE.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—After breaking their three game losing streak by taking the opener of a double header from the Pittsburgh Pirates, the Giants lost the second game when the Pirates rallied in the ninth. New York won a battle of homers, 5 to 3, in the opener, and the Pirates took the second, 4 to 3.

Hal Schumacher pitched a seven hitter to win the first game, altho he was touched for homers by Vince DiMaggio and Maurice Van Robays.

Southtown Firemen's Nine to Meet Barbers Today

The Southtown Firemen baseball team will play the Barber Gang at 12:30 p. m. today in Foster park, 85th street and Loomis boulevard. Lieut. William Hughes of squad 8 will pitch for the firemen, and his brother, Lieut. Harry Hughes of truck 1, will catch. John Rowley will pitch for the Barbers, with Dan Wilkinson catching

Cubs Play Phils Twice Today to Open Busy Week

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 23.—The Cubs face a tough program for the next several days, but fortunately it will be with the weakest opposition in the league. They play a double header tomorrow in Philadelphia, an exhibition Monday night in Reading, another twin bill with the Phillies on Tuesday, and two with the Boston Braves on Wednesday. With only five pitchers able to work, Manager Jim Wilson has his troubles.

Tot Pressnell, who was lucky to escape a bone fracture yesterday when a liner off Dixie Walker's bat crashed against his left forearm, was back in uniform today. The arm still pains him and he'll have to move leisurely for a few days.

Clyde McCullough's third inning homer today was his ninth of the year, and he has spread them over a maximum of territory. It was his first in the local park, the only one of the eight in which he hadn't previously enjoyed a round trip.

Charley Gilbert, the Cubs' kid outfielder, took a plane for Nashville, Tenn., this noon. He went home because of the critical condition of his brother,

LOUIS CAN'T GET READY; NOVA BOUT PUT OFF 10 DAYS

Joe Tells Jacobs to Set Fight Back—or Else.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—After seven years of knocking over heavyweights, Joe Louis decided today the golf and marital mixup which took up most of his summer make it necessary for him to have more time to get ready for Lou Nova.

So he received a ten day postponement of the fight, setting it back to Sept. 29 in the Polo Grounds. In fact, he was so hot in his demands for the postponement that he told Promoter Mike Jacobs the bout would either be set back—or there would be no fight.

Immediately, Nova's manager shouted that Louis' anxiety over his condition was proof he was afraid of his warrior. This theory wasn't shared at Jacobs' establishment, however. It is figured there that the postponement only gives the big Californian a ten day stay of execution.

He Does Need More Time.

Nevertheless, the fact that for the first time in his career the Bomber had to plead for more time to prepare for a rival made it obvious that he doesn't round into condition so quickly as he once did and he has a healthy respect for Nova's designs on his world heavyweight championship.

He notified Jacobs last Wednesday he wanted the fight set back. He said he would not go thru with it at all unless he had more time. This caused Mike to take the next plane to Detroit to talk it over. There Louis' board of strategy pointed out that he had been playing between 18 and 36 holes of golf daily for a three week period under a hot sun, and needed some rest before starting serious conditioning work.

Remember that 1936 Fight?

"And," recalled Co-Manager John Roxborough, "we began to think back to 1936, when Joe played a lot of golf down at his training camp in Lakewood, N. J. Then he met a fellow named Max Schmeling. Remember what happened?

"On top of that, this mixup with his wife took up a lot of time and didn't make him feel any better. That's all settled now, tho."

As a result, Joe went up to Stevensville, Mich., today with Trainer Jack Blackburn and his personal chef, Bill Bottoms. He'll stay there until Sept. 4, doing only light roadwork. Then he will come east to his training camp at Greenwood Lake, N. Y., for serious conditioning work.

Baer-Simon Bout Put Off.

Promoter Jacobs also announced today the heavyweight bout between Buddy Baer and Abe Simon has been postponed indefinitely because of a growth on Baer's right arm requiring an operation. The fight was scheduled for Sept. 5 in Madison Square Garden.

Baer has been training at Long Branch, N. J., for nearly a month. Promoter Jacobs said the growth appeared several days ago and that after trying other treatment than surgery, Dr. W. G. Herman decided today an operation was necessary.

Fever Assails Dodger Fans; Cards Arrive

New York, Aug. 23 [Special].—World series atmosphere is going to prevail at Ebbets field while the Dodgers are battling the Cardinals for first place in the National league tomorrow and Monday and Tuesday.

Ford Frick, president of the National league, said that he probably would press Bill Klem into service as a fourth umpire to help out George Magerkurth, Bill Stewart, and Tom Dunn.

An extra press section is to be built to take care of the increased number of reporters who are expected to cover the series. And meantime, baseball hysteria, temperatures, and speculators' ticket prices were soaring as the Cardinals prepared to move into the Dodgers park.

In Brooklyn there was little mention made of today's doings with the Cubs. The thing they talked about was the serious series that starts tomorrow.

Only bad weather or the double demolishment of the Dodgers in the Sunday double header was expected to keep between 100,000 to 125,000 customers away from the four game series.

RED SOX RECALL 8 PITCHERS AND 3 FIRST BASEMEN

Boston, Mass., Aug. 23 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox tonight recalled 11 players—eight pitchers and three first basemen—from farm teams and clubs with which it has player agreements.

Pitchers Emerson Dickman, Bill Fleming, Bill Butland, and Oscar Judd, all of Louisville; Frank Dasse of Hollywood, Norman Brown of Greensboro, Yank Terry and Woody Rich of San Diego, and First Basemen Al Flair of Baltimore, Paul Campbell of Montreal, and Ulysses Lupien of Louisville were those summoned.

Since every member of that group, with the exception of Brown and Flair, is on teams fighting for play-off positions in their respective leagues, only those two will be required to report this year.

HALTAL SCORES BIG UPSET TO WIN DIXIE HANDICAP

Big Pebble and Fenelon Are Nosed Out.

Scoring one of the biggest upsets of the New York racing season by winning the 39th running of the $7,500 Saratoga handicap, the 4 year old son of The Porter-False Modesty led both Big Pebble, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Moore's Hollywood Gold Cup winner, and William Woodward's Fenelon to the wire.

Wins by a Nose.

A crowd of 19,968 watched Haltal score by a nose over Big Pebble, with Mrs. Payne Whitney's Corydon three lengths farther back in third place. Previously Mrs. Whitney's Shut Out won the $12,000 Grand Union Hotel stakes from six of the best 2 year olds in training.

The handicap winner, a rank outsider in a four horse field, was rated along most of the mile and a quarter route in third place, three lengths off Corydon and Fenelon, the pace setters. At the head of the stretch he moved into the lead between the latter two and just lasted to win under a furious stretch drive by Conn McCreary.

Pays $16.30 in Mutuels.

Haltal, which repaid his backers at $16.30 for $2, covered the distance in 2:05 4-5. Big Pebble, far back thru most of the race, also closed fast, and Fenelon, the early leader, swerved badly when his jockey, Jimmy Stout, went to the bat thru the stretch run.

Shut Out, third thru most of the six furlongs of the Grand Union, moved up fast in the stretch to outgame J. F. Whitaker's Requested by four lengths. Mrs. Whitney's Devil Diver finished another length away in third position. Shut Out ran the race in 1:12 1-5. His victory was worth $10,125. He and Devil Diver were held as $3.30 to $2 favorites.

Altho the crowd was 4,000 fewer than last Saturday, the total handle set a new record for Saratoga when $837,616 went thru the machines. Last Saturday's handle was $822,113.

Whirlaway 1st, Bushwhacker 2d in Derby

with Whirlaway on the rail close behind Daily Trouble. To a Tee was running beside the Calumet star. Then came Delray and Bushwhacker. During the gallop down the back stretch, Whirlaway moved up on the outside of Daily Trouble, level with his saddle girths. The others crowded in close behind.

They went into the far turn and were halfway around the bend when Robertson decided that it was time to break it up. He eased his restraint on Whirlaway and in a few strides the champion moved past Daily Trouble.

It Was So Simple.

The crowd and the riders of the other horses had their eyes pinned on Whirlaway as the Calumet color bearer started his swing into the stretch. The outsiders were going to get their last chance now—if he went wide. But Robertson brought him around and straightened him out flawlessly. Running about five yards out from the rail, Whirlaway took dead aim at the finish line—and there was nothing to it after that. In the last furlong, he drifted out a little but it wasn't enough to bother about.

"I never had any doubt about the result at any time," Robertson said. "Whirlaway was full of run and I had to restrain him to keep him from going to the top too early. He responded when I called on him and was running easily at the finish. Whirlaway was in grand shape and if there was more speed in the race he would have run it a couple of seconds faster. He's a great race horse."

Whirlaway has only one major engagement left on the 3 year old calendar. That is the Lawrence Realization at Belmont Park next month.

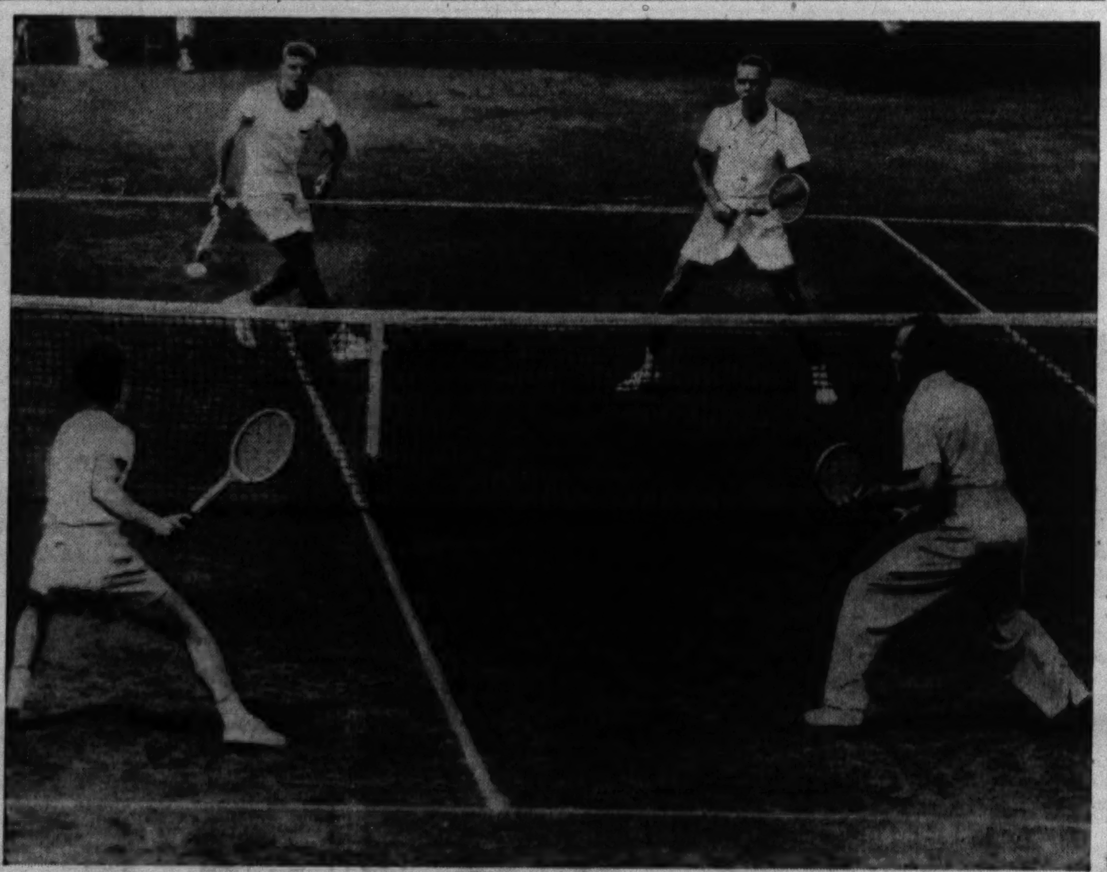
NATIONAL CHAMPIONS MARCH ON



Bobby Riggs (lower left) makes a fast return in the semi-finals of the National Tennis Doubles tournament at Brookline, Mass., yesterday, but he delayed the decision only momentarily. Ted Schroeder (upper left) and his partner, Jack Kramer (upper right), defending champions, breezed to a straight set victory to enter the finals. Riggs' partner was Gene Mako (lower right).

Winner trained by Monte Weil. Went to post at 2:05½. At post ½ minute. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

SYL'S BETTY, never far back and on the inside early, was taken out after reaching the turn, swung very wide when entering the stretch and, closing well when straight, got up in the last stride. GINOCCHIO had speed from the start, saved ground to the stretch, then drifted out gradually while holding on gamely. DEEP SUMMER, rushed to contention with a big loss of ground approaching the turn, made a bid when entering the stretch but weakened in the last sixteenth.

Went to post at 2:35. At post 1 minute. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

TRANSFORMER away fast but taken in hand when unable to go with the early leaders responded to urging after reaching the stretch and weakened after getting up, but lasted. ALSBYRD away very fast and having speed, drifted out slightly on the turn, held on gamely in the drive, and was as strong as the winner at the end. KIRWIN, forced to race wide thruout, weakened after five-eighths.

DOUBLRAB, under light restraint for the first half mile, moved to the pacemaker readily then, assuming command when reaching the final straightaway, drew clear while swerving to the inside. EQUISTAR sprinted into a clear lead on the turn, saved ground, but could not cope with the winner when caught. LEADING ARTICLE, unable to keep up with the pacemaker, was rated close up, then weakened when reaching the homestretch.

Winner trained by C. Porter. Went to post at 3:41. Off at once. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

FIRST OF ALL, away fast and sent along briskly to the turn, was forced to a hard drive to dispose of PUTITHERE'S challenge, drew clear gradually in the last eighth, but ridden out had little left. AT LIBERTY, away slowly and not hurried in the early stages, came with determination in the stretch and outstayed BOLUS. Latter raced wide thruout and never far back, hung on courageously.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Claiming. Three year olds and up. Purse $1,200. Net value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. To groom of winning horse, $10.

Winner trained by P. Reuter. Went to post at 4:14. At post 1 minute. Start good from gate. Won ridden out, place driving.

DECATUR, taken to the inside early and kept in hand for seven-eighths, was forced wide by MINT SAND when entering the stretch, disposed of the latter under pressure and was ridden out. MINT SAND, taken over from the outside at the first turn and nicely rated in the pacemaking, swerved out entering the stretch, returned to the inside in the drive and failed to hold the winner, yet held on gamely. OUR WILLIE, taken back repeatedly for almost seven-eighths, was under a hard drive thereafter and closed well yet did not menace the leaders.

Winner trained by K. Ramsey. Went to post at 4:45½. At post ½ minute. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

SMACKED, quick to get into stride, displayed much speed to draw into a clear lead, responded to a drive when reaching the final straightaway, then swerving under punishment thru the last eighth, held on gamely to stall off BE BLUE. Latter, a keen factor from the start, went to the winner strongly at the stretch turn, made determined bids thru the last quarter of a mile, and fought it out willingly while being forced out thru the last eighth. MARRIAGE hurried to hold a contending position when forced to race on the inside, fell back swinging into the homestretch but continued stoutly and was gaining ground at the finish.

COPPER TUBE recovered quickly after stumbling in front of the stand, found racing room on the inside to gain a contending position, rallied strongly to drive into the lead nearing the stretch turn then, holding on stoutly under intermittent punishment, held PENNSBURG safe. Latter, taken into a forward position and rated nicely, was carried wide by DES GRIEUX in the last five-sixteenths and failed to reach the winner. BIRLEA, shuffled after holding a contending position, came willingly when obtaining clear racing room.

BOYSY, rated closely to the early pace under strong restraint, took command easily when approaching the stretch and, continuing strongly, continued to draw out thereafter. OFF SHORE, steadied when outrun, responded when called upon and held WAUGH POP safe. Latter, far back for three-quarters, moved with a rush in the stretch but weakened near the end.

Reach Finals of Shawnee Country Club Tennis

Final matches in the singles and doubles of the 1941 Shawnee Country club women's tennis tournament will be played today. In semi-final doubles matches yesterday the Matthews sisters, Mary Ann and Lorraine, defeated Mary Malloy and Mrs. C. A. Lechner, 6-4, 6-2; and Mary Porter and Mrs. Eleanor Nate beat Mrs. Charlotte Delfosse and Mrs. G. H. Doscher, 6-4, 6-3. In the singles division Mrs. Nate defeated Mrs. Delfosse, 2-6, 6-4, 6-1 in a semi-finals match. Mrs. Nate will meet the winner of the other semi-final match between Mary Ann Matthews and Mary Porter.

Schroeder and Kramer Enter Tennis Finals

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 23 (AP).—California's Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder, defending their titles in the men's national doubles tennis tournament, today gained the final round by routing Bobby Riggs, former national singles champion, and Gene Mako, a two-time winner with Don Budge, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2, at Longwood.

Kramer and Schroeder consequently found themselves in the championship bracket against Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., and Wayne Sabin of Portland, Ore., who beat Frank Parker and Don McNeill, 4-6, 7-5, 6-4, 6-4.

Second-seeded Pauline Betz of Los Angeles and Dorothy Bundy of Santa Monica, Cal., gained the final round by defeating Mary Arnold of Los Angeles, and Hope Knowles of Philadelphia, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, to move into the championship round of the women's division against Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke of New York, and Margaret Osborne of San Francisco, who qualified yesterday.

The mixed doubles competition wound up with the top-seeded teams surviving, Mrs. Cooke and Kramer, and Miss Betz and Riggs.

GAY COSTUMES PREDOMINATE AT AMERICAN DERBY

Bright Sunshine Brings Out Colorful Crowd.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

Even without the sensational Whirlaway's victory yesterday in the 31st American Derby, a visit to Washington Park would have repaid the 35,000 racing fans who flocked to the historic course.

A more attractive spectacle scarcely could be imagined. Bright sunshine and just right temperature made it logical for the women to wear their gayest costumes. The setting was worthy of them. The green grandstands are brightened this season with boxes of petunias, and on the meadow beyond the course, ponds and streams dotted with snow white ducks, and crossed here and there by rustic bridges compete for attention with brilliant flower beds.

O'Brien and Bernie There.

Pat O'Brien and Ben Bernie were among the celebrities there in time for the big race. The actor was one of the Warren Wrights' party, and Mr. and Mrs. Bernie were guests of Hamilton M. Loeb.

"Of course, we won't be surprised, whatever happens," was Mrs. Wright's philosophical comment before Whirlaway added another success to his spectacular record.

Mrs. Wright again wore the jade necklace and earrings which she often wears when the Wrights' horses race, perhaps because jade is considered lucky, perhaps because green is attractive with her auburn hair. Ostrich feathers of the same green adorned her small black hat, and her black dress was printed with an occasional small silver mask.

The Wrights flew in from Saratoga just in time for the race. Mrs. Edward J. Kelly, wife of Chicago's mayor; Mrs. Bryan Foy, wife of the Hollywood producer; Mrs. Sam H. Krom, Mrs. Wright's sister; Richard Andrade III., and Warren Wright Jr., also were in the party.

Features Patriotic Motif.

Brown-haired Mrs. Kelly was charming in a small deep brown straw hat trimmed with beige and brown feathers and a veil. Her simple tailored frock was of beige, and she wore gold earrings and gold bracelets. Mrs. Foy's costume had a patriotic motif. Stars of gold braid ornamented the narrow collar of her navy blue redingote, worn over a white crêpe frock, and a red band and more stars adorned her small navy tricorne.

Col. Matt J. Winn of Kentucky, long one of racing's notable personalities, brought the two youngest of his seven daughters, Miss Clara and Miss Helen Winn, and Mr. and Mrs. William J. Flaherty. Miss Helen wore a perky golden tan scull cap behind her golden pompadour, and her white polka dotted dress and jacket were of the same golden color. Her sister's print dress and jacket were of much the same color, with a white flower trimmed tricorne hat for contrast. Particularly becoming with Mrs. Flaherty's silver hair and blue eyes were her dark blue hat and pink and white print dress and pink coat with a lining of the same print.

Chooses All Black Costume.

In a nearby box Judge Joseph Sabath of the Superior court and his pretty granddaughter, Miss Diane Sabath, were with Henry G. Taussig and his son, Frank Taussig. Curly-haired, blue eyed Miss Sabath was among those women who chose an all black costume.

All thru the afternoon friends were dropping in on the Benjamin Lindheimers in their office strategically placed on the high bridge between the jockey club and the grandstand. Mr. Lindheimer is chairman of the board of the track.

Walter L. Gregory, president of the track, and Mrs. Gregory had Mr. and Mrs. Lee Griffin and the Paul Smiths as their guests.

The Harry H. Lobdells were hosts to the Charles Krauses of Milwaukee. By chance, Mrs. Lobdell and Mrs. Krause had chosen to wear a similar shade of bright pink that was both gay and becoming. Each wore a small dark blue hat trimmed with pink flowers, Mrs. Krause, with a pink and white printed dress and jacket, and Mrs. Lobdell, with a pink and blue suit.

Another All Black Costume.

Slim, petite Mrs. Wesley Sears' black and white check dress and large black hat were particularly effective with her long white bobbed hair. Also striking was Miss Alice Berdelle's all black costume. Her hat was a crown of mesh that fitted her head like a scull cap.

Things have changed a lot..

— and so have WHITE OWLS

JUST LOOK AROUND YOU on the beach today—then hark back to the same scene of a decade ago. Improvements—you bet!

And White Owl, too, has kept pace with progress. While some cigars admit to being the same as ever—we are proud to point out White Owl's recent improvements. Lower tariffs on Havana tobacco and improved manufacturing methods have enabled us to bring you a cigar with a mild, mellow domestic filler—generously blended with rich Havana.

THE REAL TEST OF A CIGAR is how good it tastes today—not how much it used to cost. Now, we don't claim that White Owl is a "10¢ cigar for 5¢." True, White Owl, like many other cigars, once cost more . . . but the important thing is that it has been recently improved. Try a 1941 Blended-with-Havana White Owl—we think you'll agree that improvements really count—that it's tops in taste for 5¢.

WARD SCORES 73 IN PRACTICE FOR NATIONAL GOLF

Narrow Fairways Cause Chapman Trouble.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 23 (AP).—Marvin [Bud] Ward of Spokane, Wash., the 1939 champion, today shot his first practice round over the Field club course, site of the 41st National Amateur golf tournament, starting here Monday. He scored a 73, one over par for the 6,745 yard route, and expressed delight over the narrow fairways.

Dick Chapman of Greenwich, Conn., on leave as an army athletic instructor in Montgomery, Ala., already was on hand to defend the title won last year on his home course of Winged Foot, N. Y., but he has been none too impressive in practice. Failure to connect with accurate drives caused him to take approximately 80 strokes yesterday. He shot a 78 today, despite an 8 on the par 5 third hole and a 6 on the par 3 twelfth.

The original field of 150 qualifiers stood at 146 tonight. Latest withdrawals were Joseph C. Dey Jr., secretary of the United States Golf association, who dropped out today, and Willie Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., 1938 champion, who announced several days ago that business will keep him away from the tournament for the first time in nine years.

Five Champions Entered.

This reduced the list of former champions in the field to five—Chapman, Ward, Johnny Goodman of Omaha, the 1937 winner and a hot favorite on his home course; Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, 1936 champion; and Chick Evans of Chicago, whose victories date back to 1916 and 1920.

All of Chapman's semi-final rivals of the 1940 tournament will be on hand to challenge Dick. Among these are Duff McCullough of Philadelphia, the surprise of the tournament with victories over Johnny Fischer, Gus Moreland, and Ray Billows before he eventually yielded to Chapman in the championship match. The other members of the final foursome are Billows, who has reached the final twice in four years, and Wilford Wehrle of Chicago, who had Chapman 5 down at the end of the first nine last year, only to come out of the first 18 holes 1 down to the ultimate winner.

Wehrle had the best complete round today, a 72, going out in 35, one under par.

Billows warmed up for the tournament by winning the Great Lakes amateur in Chicago this week, beating Ward in the process, and finishing with a 6 and 5 triumph over Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O. Stranahan, the Trans-Mississippi champion, is among the national contenders.

Probably the only outstanding player in last year's field who will be absent tomorrow is George Dawson, Chicago veteran who was prevented by business from seeking a place in the qualifying rounds. A newcomer to the Amateur will be 18 year old Mario Gonzales of South America. Gonzales, son of a Rio de Janeiro pro, led all qualifiers in the sectional tests at the Field club. He also was the leading amateur in the Chicago Open, firing one 67 that included a nine of 31.

McCormick Breaks Par.

Harry Todd of Dallas, Tex., low amateur in the National Open, was another of today's arrivals. Practice performances have boosted Bruce McCormick of Los Angeles right into the foreground. He matched or bettered par in each of his first three practice rounds, only man in the field to do so. Bruce was one over par for 13 holes played today, bringing his practice record to two under par for 67 holes.

Art Doering and John C. Wagner of Chicago, and Grover Poole of Raleigh, N. C., scored 73 each this afternoon.

WAILING WALL SEASON WILL OPEN THURSDAY

The 1941 program of the College Alumni Wailing Wall will be launched Thursday, the day of the College All-Stars-Chicago Bears game, with a luncheon in the Sherman hotel. The meeting, which it is anticipated will be attended by most of the college coaches who are in the city for the All-Star game, will be addressed by Bernie Bierman, head coach at Minnesota, and Paul Brown, Ohio State's new coach.

The regular series of weekly luncheons will open Monday, Sept. 29, also at the Sherman hotel, with Frank Leahy, new head coach at Notre Dame, as the speaker. Others who are to speak during the series are Tom Stidham, new coach at Marquette; Harry Stuhldreher, Wisconsin; Wallie Weber, Michigan; Doug Mills, Illinois' new athletic director; Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern; Bo McMillin, Indiana, and Mal Elward, Purdue. At each session pictures of a game played on the preceding Saturday will be shown and comments made by a coach of one of the participating teams.

Reservations for Thursday's luncheon may be made by calling Franklin 3100, room 391.

50 COMPETE IN 100 LAP MIDGET RACE TONIGHT

Leading drivers from eight states are listed to compete in the 100 lap midget auto race for the midwest championship tonight in Riverview speedway, on Addison street near Western avenue. More than 50 are expected to face the starter in the time trials at 7 p. m.

Included among the entrants are Tony Willman, Pewee Distarce, Duke Nalon, Emil Andres, Myron Fohr, Frank Buraney, Johnny Kieweg, Gus Klingbiel, Dutch Schneeberg, Pete Nielsen, Harry Hart, Dave Randolph, Howard Dauphin, Art Hartsfeld, Eddie Kracek, Rex Easton, Mike O'Halloran, Ted Duncan, Ray Richards, and Bob Muhlke.

THE HUTCHISONS and the Turnesas are making a family affair of the $11,000 Tam o' Shanter Open tournament on Sept. 4, 5, 6, and 7. . . . Entries from the Hutchisons include Jock Sr., Jock Jr., and Edgar. . . . The Turnesas will be represented by Mike, Phil, Willie, and Jim, the last named having obtained a leave from the army in order to compete. . . . Youngest pro to enter the tourney, richest in the world this year, is Don Street of Springfield's Illini Country club. . . . Don is 18. . . . The most aptly named entry is Emil Mashie, greenskeeper at Onwentsia. . . . George S. May, president of Tam o' Shanter, is an engineer by profession and likes to count his chickens before they're hatched. . . . He already has had printed 10,000 tickets for a play-off on Sept. 8. . . . And with the field that is definitely entered, a play-off is quite possible. Net proceeds of the tournament will go to the USO and British war relief funds.

A Warlike Farmer Worries a Couple of Northbrook Boys.

Frank McCormack and Bud Graham, two of the regulars at Northbrook Country club, are looking forward to the day when the farmer who parades along the fence of the third hole with a gun on his shoulder will be called for military duty. . . . Russ Harrington, Nino Pontarelli, Bernard Perri, and Albin Pompei recently all played around the Dempster front nine in 56 strokes each. . . . Cyril Wagner, Mohawk pro, will be at home when he steps to the tee in the $11,000 Tam o' Shanter Open. Cyril was pro at Tam for 10 years.

Dan Hilgartner III. and Bob Oakley will play 36 holes today for the junior championship of the South Shore Country club. . . . The annual Wrong Font tournament to be staged by the Clarke McElroy Publishing company on Tuesday at Gleneagles, promises something new in golf. . . . George Albee, chairman of the prize committee, says that every entrant whose score puts him in line for a prize will be subjected to a lie detector test. . . . Charley Thorstenson collected from Charlie Smiley and Dr. W. R. Bowerson with a birdie three on Nordic Hills' 374 yard first hole. . . . Sam Snead and Jimmy Demaret will fly by Clipper to South America for a special tour, during which they will play in the Argentine Open at Buenos Aires as well as in a number of exhibition matches. . . . Snead and Demaret were invited by H. C. Buchanan, director of the Argentine Golf association. . . . They will leave early in October and are expected to return in time to compete in the Miami Open in December.

Meet Sam Hillman—Who Drives 'Em Almost 400 Yards.

Playing in a foursome with George Peurye, Freddie Gilford, and Morrie Wolf at Twin Orchard recently, Slashing Sam Hillman showed the boys how to hit a drive. . . . He placed his tee shot to the 450 third about 60 yards short of the green. . . . The other three admit that it's probably the longest tee shot ever witnessed on the hole. . . . Judge G. C. Niemeyer joined the hole-in-one elect at Edgewater with an ace on the 119 yard tenth. . . . C. Murray says an error was made in reporting a best ball of 59 at Pipe o' Peace last week. . . . It bracketed Art Andersen at 79—85 for 36 holes. . . . Murray says Art was even par for eighteen and only four over for the thirty-six, and adds that Art in a minimum of 35 rounds has not been over 80. . . . Harry Baldwin of Oak Park won the four-man playoff for the Notre Dame Club of Chicago golf title at Elmhurst. . . . Not only did Harry, a southpaw, retire the trophy with his third successive victory, but also captured a season playing ticket, offered to the winner by Fred B. Snite Sr.

E. C. Seepe recently shot the best nine of his life, a grand 32 on the back nine of the McHenry Country club. . . . He fired five birdies and four pars against the total par of 37.

The Inquiring Golfer

THE QUESTION.

Who is your choice to win the Women's National golf tournament at Brookline, Mass., starting Sept. 8?

THE ANSWERS.

Mary Agnes Wall, Menominee, Mich.—Mrs. Russell Mann is at the top of her game and I believe she should have as good a chance as any to win the National. This will be only my second trip to the big show and altho I don't expect to win it, naturally I want to do my best. Betty Jameson, Marion Miley, and Elizabeth Newell look good to me, along with Mrs. Mann, but beware of Louise Suggs. She is a comer.

Mrs. Frank Newell, Long Beach, Cal.—I don't believe you can name a favorite in the National tourney. Betty Jameson, Dorothy Kirby, Estelle Page, Marion Miley, and Clara Calendar all have a chance. And, of course, I hope to be a contender, too. Miss Jameson has a National complex and she's the one to beat, but I don't believe she'll win this time. She's no better than a half dozen or so other contenders.

Mrs. Russell Mann, Omaha, Neb.—Estelle Page has a good chance to come off with the National title. But don't forget I'm going to do my best to do it myself. I finally have confidence in my game. As for Betty Jameson, I do not pick her to win. I saw her play in the Trans-Mississippi and believe she should have tuned up here in the Western. By declining to do so, she'll be handicapped at Brookline.

Rena Nelson, Exmoor—I'm on my vacation for my only tournament appearance of the year, so naturally am not qualified to express an opinion on the basis of others' 1941 play. I haven't played in the National for two years. From what little I've seen, however, Betty Jameson looks good to me. She's a stylist; I like her swing. I wouldn't be surprised if she achieves her goal of three National championships.

Georgia Tainter, Fargo, N. D.—Betty Jameson, Mrs. Mann, Mary Agnes Wall, Eleanor Dudley, and Mrs. Newell look like the best to me. Mrs. Mann has been playing exceptionally well. But I believe Jameson will win it again, altho anything can happen. Who, me? Not yet. I haven't been playing tournament golf long enough to be a serious threat. Just two years ago I was playing in the Western Junior.

EAGLES to the officials of the Chicago District Golf association and the Women's Western Golf association for their conduct of last week's splendid Great Lakes Amateur and the Women's Western Amateur. . . . Maynard [Scotty] Fessenden, CDGA president, and his tournament chairmen, Ted Quinn and Larry Rutherford, feel that the inaugural Great Lakes, which brought the best simon pure field of the year to Chicago, was such a success that it will be an annual fixture. . . . Much of the inaugural's smooth operation was due to the fact that the event was held at Knollwood and special thanks are due to Dave Molloy, Don Hoffman, Bob Kenyon, and Ed Newhart. . . . CDGA officers no sooner had completed this year's tournament than they began to make plans for next year's. . . . One of these calls for the tournament to open on Thursday and finish on Sunday rather than the present Monday-Thursday arrangement. . . . A 36 hole qualifying round instead of 18 is another anticipated change, and a special division for senior players over 50 years of age also has been suggested.

Young Stranahan Shoots Par at Great Lakes Barbecue.

Frank Stranahan, the Toledo youngster who was runner-up for the Great Lakes Amateur last Thursday, may have lost his match, but in the barbecue that followed in the evening, he was an easy winner, consuming three steaks. . . . No wonder the young man has such a muscular development. . . . Jules Gustafson, 6731 Stony Island avenue, asks why the caddie carts popular at some courses appear only in the single version. . . . He suggests that one with places for two bags would be just as easy, and the losing side could be made to do the work. . . . The 26th annual Cook County Amateur will open at Columbus park tomorrow and continue thru Saturday. Moe Springer will defend his title against a field of about 200, Manager and Pro Hank Foley reports.

Speaking of Unusual Golf Cards, How's This?

Russell Ruh, professional at Dempster Golf club, submits an unusual card, made while giving a playing lesson on the club's new second nine. . . . It adds up to 33, without a single par having been scored. . . . Russ had six birdies and three bogies. . . . Mrs. Thomas Langford, 621 North Central avenue, and her son, William B. Langford, while playing in a mixed two-ball foursome at the Mid-City course, shot a 78. . . . This occurred on Mrs. Langford's 78th birthday. . . . Bill Langford played on the Yale golf team in 1910 and has been identified with the game as a player and architect ever since. . . . One of the better tournaments of the Chicago district season will be held tomorrow at the Midlothian Country club, where members of the Illinois Seniors' association and the Illinois PGA will join up for their annual tourney. . . . It seldom happens, but it did this time—to pay off on a hole-in-one. . . . John [Sonny] Rouse, one of the ablest pro swingers in this district, was playing with Owner Elmer Wickersham and Pro Ben Riley at Old Orchard recently. . . . Rouse kept kidding Wickersham about how much he would pay off for an ace. . . . The latter started out with $2, but Rouse eventually talked him up to $5. . . . Rouse then hit a spoon on the 225 yard eighth. . . . After landing about 190 yards off the tee, it rolled 35 yards more into the cup. . . . And it wasn't Sonny's first ace. . . . He scored one in 1935 on the ninth hole of Medinah's No. 1 course.

Jones, Sarazen Beaten as Golf Series Starts

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 23 (AP).—The American Ryder cup team handed Bobby Jones a personal defeat and took a 3 to 2 lead over his challengers in two ball foursomes today at the Detroit Golf club before 12,000 spectators. Ten individual matches tomorrow will complete the series.

Jones, competing with the nation's foremost professionals in match play for the first time, paired with Gene Sarazen, but the veterans were no match for Byron Nelson and Harold [Jug] McSpaden, who won, 8 to 6. Bobby and his partner were 5 down at the 18 hole mark and never had a chance against their opponents who produced five birdies.

10 Over Par for 30 Holes.

Jones, coming out of retirement for the charity match expected to raise $25,000 for the United Service organizations, appeared far off his game and he and Sarazen went 10 over par for 30 holes. Bobby's best shots were out of two traps and the pair managed to bag only one birdie.

Craig Wood, National Open champion, and Lawson Little gave Jones' challengers a flying start by defeating Ralph Guldahl and Sam Snead, 7 and 6.

Hogan and Demaret Win.

The challengers moved ahead, 2 to 1, as Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret defeated Vic Ghezzi, National PGA champion, and Jimmy Hines, 1 up, clinching the match on the 36th green.

Then the Ryder cup representatives won the other two matches. Paul Runyan and Horton Smith beat Denny Shute and Ed Dudley, 6 and 5. Henry Picard and Dick Metz defeated Johnny Bulla and Clayton Haefner, 3 and 2.

Wood, Little 6 Under Par.

Nelson and McSpaden were one under par, but the hottest of the winning pairs were Wood and Little, who finished six under regulation figures for 30 holes. They contributed six of the day's 50 birdies and got the Lone Eagle, on No. 14.

Pairings for tomorrow's individual matches, in which Jones was seeded No. 6, follow:

Wood vs. Ghezzi, Jones vs. Picard, Nelson vs. Hogan, Snead vs. Little, Runyan vs. Demaret, Guldahl vs. Sarazen, Smith vs. Heafner, Metz vs. Dudley, Hines vs. Bulla, and McSpaden vs. Shute.

YANKS' TRAINER SPEAKS.

Dr. Erle V. Painter, professor of health education at Florida Southern college and health adviser and trainer for the New York Yankees, will speak in the Chicago Temple, First Methodist church, at 7 o'clock tonight.

Blind Golfers Meet for Title; May Break 90

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 23 (AP).—How to hit a golf ball without seeing it will be demonstrated here tomorrow. Two men, Clint Russell, Duluth Dairy Products company owner, and Marvin Shannon, Fort Worth, Tex., lawyer tee off here over the 6,718 yard Northland course in a match billed for the world's blind golf championship. Proceeds go to a blind fund.

It may be something of a shock to the average player who has a hard time keeping his game in the 90's and has had it dinned into his head to keep his eye on the ball that these two blind men probably will go around in the 90s, may even beat that, for each has.

Title Holder is Russell, who, until Shannon came along, was unchallenged after defeating Dr. W. H. K. Oxenham of England three years ago. Shannon has been playing three years. Russell, blind since 1926, has been at the game considerably longer.

Each player's professional will act as his eyes. The professional tells the player the lie of the ball, the distance and height of the shot. The player chooses his club and the professional places the clubhead in the right direction. Then it's up to the golfer.

In two ways, the blind golfer has it on the average player. He doesn't have to keep his eye on the ball and he can't see a hazard, so he hits the ball without fear in his heart.

Stella Walsh Ties Mark in 220 Yard Dash

Stella Walsh of Cleveland equaled her own world record of 23.4 seconds in scoring an easy triumph yesterday in the senior women's 220 yard dash at the fifth annual Polish Roman Catholic Union track meet in Ogden park.

The record tying event climaxed a performance in which Miss Walsh, captain of the Polish Women's Olympic club of Cleveland, O., captured individual honors and the high point trophy as a result of earlier victories in the senior women's 50 and 100 yard events.

Except for the Olympic star's accomplishments, however, the spotlight would have shown on Sally Kuhn of Riis park, a young sprinter who won the junior women's 50 yard dash in 6.8 seconds.

Riis park won the team championship with 101 points, and of this total, 67 points were scored by the park's boys' team. Team totals:

Riis park, 101; Polish Women's Olympic club of Cleveland, 49; St. Louis Polish Roman Catholic union, 23; Kozlowski A. C., 16; Avondale A. C., 14; Polish National Alliance, 10; Northwestern university, 10; Douglas park, 10; St. John Bosco, 8; Sacred Heart, 8; Hurricanes, 5; Hamlin park, 1; Foster park, 1.

KRIETENSTEIN, BURGESS REACH CITY NET FINAL

Johnny Krietenstein and Norbert Burgess will meet for the men's singles title of the annual Chicago City tennis tournament today at 2:30 o'clock at the Hinsdale Golf club.

Krietenstein, seeded No. 1, yesterday defeated Bob Smidl, 6-4, 6-3, 2-6, 6-1, while Burgess beat Gene Vash, 7-5, 6-2, 6-3. Smidl was seeded third. Seymour Greenberg, who won the title last year, was not entered.

The doubles final pairs Burgess and John Foreman against Krietenstein and Chester Murphy. The former defeated Smidl and John Jorgenson yesterday, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1. Krietenstein and Murphy advanced by default over Frank Buckler and Mal Timmons.

MRS. MANN WINS 4 AND 3 TO TAKE WESTERN CROWN

Miss Wall Falters After Opening Round.

505 yard problem with a birdie, but her opponent responded to that with a handsome eagle 3 on the 440 yard 2d, where she had only a 5 foot putt for a 3 and got it down, Mrs. Mann finding a trap and winding up with a 4.

Both Get Birdies.

A bunker cost Mary Agnes the 3d, but she rifled home another birdie on the 470 yard 4th with a 12 foot putt. They halved the 5th, which, incidentally, was the only hole on the front nine that they did share. The trees set Mrs. Mann back on the next, but Miss Wall committed the same error on the short 7th. Mrs. Mann was short on the 8th, and while Miss Wall made another journey to the forestry, she won the hole with a bogey 5. She missed the green on the 142d yard 9th, and the match was even again.

Both scored birdies on the 428 yard 10th, Mrs. Mann by reaching the green in two and Miss Wall by dint of a one-putt green. A trap cost the Michigan golfer the 11th, and after they had halved the 12th in pars the Nebraskan took the 147 yard 13th with a 3, Mary Agnes catching another bunker.

A rake saved Mrs. Mann from going into a trap on the 14th, but she lost the hole, anyway, by not matching Miss Wall's par 4. The latter next three-putted the 15th, redeeming that with a 4 foot birdie putt on the next. They halved the last two holes.

Takes Three Straight.

They halved the 19th, first of the afternoon round, and then the new champion picked up another with a typical approach that left her only a yard away for a birdie. The water cost Mary Agnes the 21st on her second shot, and she eventually conceded Lucille a birdie. The Michigan girl missed her third shot to go four down on the 22d. It appeared that she might get one back on the 23d, where Mrs. Mann's second richocheted off of a tree and back into the gallery of 1,000. Lucille's third fell to the right of the green, but, she came thru again with an over-the-sand recovery that left her a short putt for a half, after Mary Agnes had taken three to get on.

They halved the 24th in bogey fives, both finding the same bunker to the lower right of the green. Lucille's recovery from there was a mite timid, but she got down in two to match her opponent's five. A tree above and to the right of the green caught Miss Wall's tee shot at the 170 yard 25th. The ball dropped to the green and kept rolling toward a trap, but stopped a yard short of it. She took three from there and was five down.

Misses Nine Footer.

She took three from the edge on the 26th, while Mrs. Mann was earning a half by hitting a fine second from the slope off a tree and putting her next on and holing a good putt. Mrs. Mann was on the back edge of the 27th, while Mary Agnes smacked a grand tee shot to within nine feet of the cup, only to miss it and get nothing more than a half, as Lucille had dropped a four and a half footer after returning to the green.

Mrs. Mann finally surrendered a hole at the 28th, overshooting the green with her third and coming back too stoutly with her recovery. Miss Wall's first putt on the 29th left the champion a stymie, but she lagged up short of it and got down for a half. The Michigan golfer had a ten footer which should have been good for a win at the 30th, where Mrs. Mann was far to the right and then short with her second, but Mary Agnes missed and Lucille holed a good five footer for a half.

Plays 32d Well.

Mrs. Mann missed the green to the left of the 147 yard 31st, but chipped up for her three and a half after Miss Wall's first putt off a slope in the green broke sharply to the right, leaving her a four and a half footer that she did well to get down. Mary Agnes then hit a grand second to the 365 yard 32nd, probably the most difficult green at Exmoor, and won the hole by getting down in two while Mrs. Mann, short in two, went away with a five. Then came the 33d, where both boldly played their seconds over the trees. Miss Wall's shot appeared to be the better one, but after striking the green, it trickled into the trap. Mrs. Mann, just short of the putting surface, then came thru with her match winning chip shot.

Virginia Ingram Beaten.

DE LION BIDS FOR 15 IN ROW; COALS OPPOSE STARS

Pitcher Slim De Lion will be after his fifteenth consecutive victory this afternoon when the Spencer Coals, winners in 22 of their last 24 games, take on the Chicago Palmer House Stars, state tournament victors in 1939 and 1940, in a double header in Spencer field, 4200 North Central avenue.

The Palmer House team, which includes Alec Radcliffe, Johnny Bissant, Jack Marshall, and other former Negro American league stars, will use Ed Thompson and Larry Mitchell, who won 12 of 14 and 12 of 15 starts, respectively, on a recent western tour. Bill Williams will pitch one of the games for the Coals.

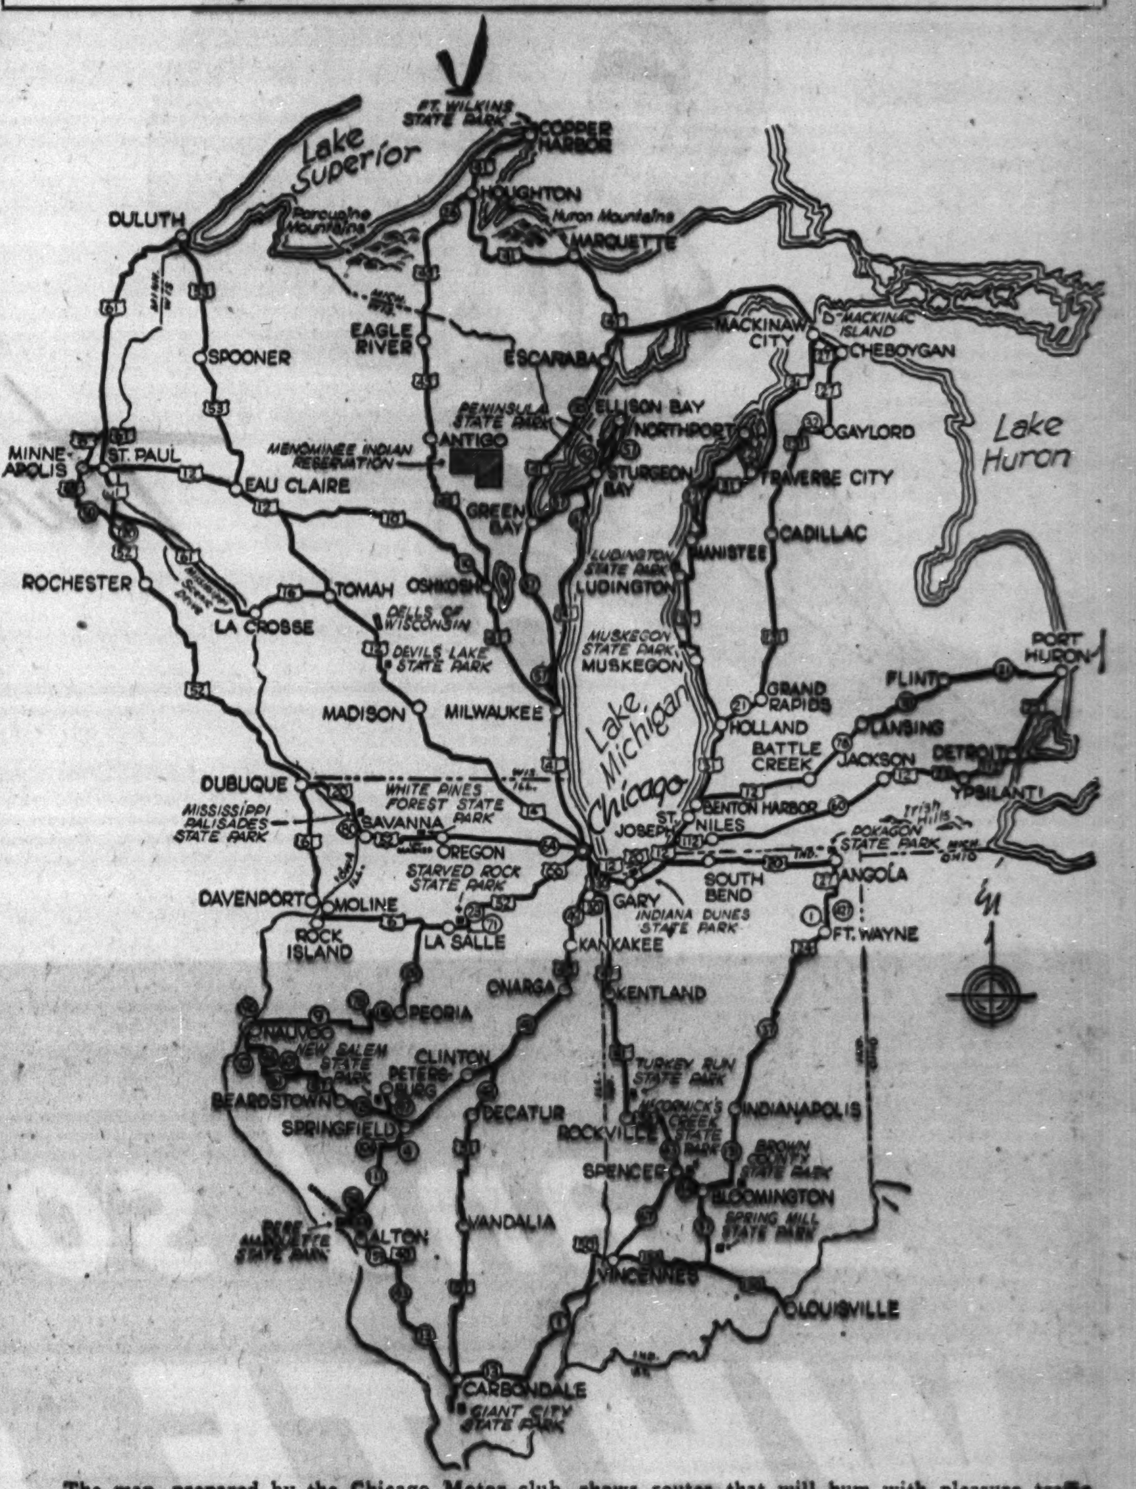
Popular Tours for Labor Day Week-End



The map, prepared by the Chicago Motor club, shows routes that will hum with pleasure traffic next week-end, in a grand climax ending a record summer travel season.

News and Views

The third annual alumni reunion for Great Lakes region graduates of the Post-Graduate School of Modern Merchandising and Management, a school conducted by Chevrolet for sons of its dealers, will be held at a luncheon meeting at the Palmer House on Friday. Thirty-nine members of the alumni in the region are expected to attend. T. O. McLaughlin, director of the school, will be master of ceremonies. The school now has a total alumni roll of 358 sons of dealers, of whom 92 are dealers in their own right or acting as managers of their fathers' business places and 208 are serving as department heads or in executive positions in dealerships.

Nearly 500,000 persons saw the Chrysler Thunderbolt in dealer showrooms during July, bringing to 3,741,734 the total of persons inspecting this "car of tomorrow" since it was placed in caravan service last October. More than 2½ million more have seen the car in parades, athletic events, and in other public assemblies.

The hydra-matic drive, a device which eliminates the clutch pedal and all manual gear shifting, will be offered again when the 1942 Oldsmobiles are placed on the market, comments D. E. Ralston, general sales manager. Ralston says that of 270,038 Oldsmobiles built during the 1941 model season, more than 114,000 were equipped with the drive.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company is opening a campaign designed to interest the public in helping to conserve rubber for the national defense, M. R. Spransy, Chicago manager for the company, announces. The company will distribute a booklet in which advice is given on how to make automobile tires last longer.

H. T. Hollingshead, head of Nash Sales, Inc., Nash distributors for the Chicago region, said on his return from a distributor convention at Hot Springs, Va., that he had never seen a better looking Nash than the 1942 models.

VOICE OF TRAFFIC

CHIEF ENGINEER LIEBERMAN.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Lieberman has been chief engineer of the Illinois highway department long enough that he cannot evade responsibility for whatever condition they are in; they were either left as they are or put that way under his direction. I don't believe that he can seriously doubt his own incompetence, and just as long as our governor permits Lieberman to continue in office he is in the uncomfortable position of vouching for him.

No doubt the chief engineer's office is a juicy political plum under our system of state government, but it can also be a sour liability, and it will be so far as Mr. Green is concerned if he doesn't do something about it pretty soon. Mr. Green ought to know that it was the votes of dissatisfied Democrats that elected him—Democrats with the best interest of the state at heart, who wanted a change more than they actually wanted Mr. Green. Lieberman was and is one of the incompetents they wanted removed, and they had every reason to believe that he would be one of the first festers of political corruption to be tackled.

Like N. N. Marywell, in "Voice of the Traffic," [April 27], I can still feel the effects of a ride on U. S. 66. Heavy trucks have broken up this pavement badly, but graft and incompetency in connection with the original paving job are more to blame than the trucks. If the trucks were to blame all the pavement would be broken up, because they roll just as heavily at one point as they do at another. Defective pavement won't stand up. Graft won't build good pavements. Lieberman has demonstrated his incompetency. By permitting Lieberman to stay Green is demonstrating his incompetence.

Banner Summer Travel Season Reaches Peak Next Week-End

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 23.—Next week-end, Labor day week-end, will close America's greatest summer touring season. Reports from various parts of the country assembled by the Chicago Motor club indicate a substantial increase over the best previous year, 1940, in the amount of gasoline burned for recreation.

The summer travel season will end with peak volumes of traffic on the highways. In Chicagoland, automobiles will begin to pour from the city on Friday night, continuing the exit on Saturday morning and afternoon. Congestion is threatened during the homecoming of the city dwellers on Monday afternoon and night.

The lakes and woods of Michigan, Wisconsin, northern Indiana, and northern Illinois will be the main points of destination for the week-end excursionists from Chicago. However, Indiana and Illinois state parks also will be popular where hot nights of midsummer were discouraging.

Telegraphic National Poll.

For the national picture of the 1941 summer travel season, the Motor club took a telegraphic poll. Fifteen national parks reported an average increase of 21 per cent in attendance so far this year as compared with 1940. Thirteen of the national parks estimated that 1941 attendance will reach a record total of 5,000,000.

State parks of Indiana and Illinois reported an average increase of 26 per cent in attendance so far this year. They estimated that visitors during 1941 will total nearly 2,000,000.

From Mexico, the Asociacion Mexicana de Turismo reported that 100,000 visitors crossed the border from the north during the first six months of this year, an increase of 8 per cent over 1940. The Canadian Travel Bureau reported a heavy influx of visitors from the United States in June, July, and August, following a slack spring.

Comments on the Boom.

Comments on this boom in America's $5,000,000,000 a year auto travel business, as received by the Motor club, included the following:

George E. Bishop, Upper Peninsula Development bureau, Marquette, Mich.—"Increases in tourist business are from 20 to 40 per cent at various locations."

H. J. Gray, West Michigan Tourist and Resort association—"Ferries between Mackinaw City and St. Ignace have carried 28.5 per cent more automobiles across the straits so far this year as compared with 1940. We will show an increase of from 15 to 20 per cent for all types of tourist business."

J. H. Alexander, Wisconsin Conservation department—"Wisconsin state parks report a 10 per cent increase. Fishing licenses for non-residents are also ahead of record-breaking 1940."

Maine Development commission—"May, June, and July resort business ahead of 1940 and August bookings are heavy."

Tennessee Travel Is Heavy.

Tennessee Conservation department—"Travel thruout state is up 50 per cent over 1940."

Kentucky commonwealth—"Tourist movement vastly in excess of 1940."

State of North Carolina—"Gasoline tax receipts are much greater than in 1940. Traffic counts also up."

Black Hills and Badlands association, Rapid City, S. D.—"Travel volume is 20 per cent greater than in 1940."

California a Popular Spot.

All-year Club of Southern California—"Motor traffic in state 28.9 per cent over last year, due in part to definite increase in number of tourists."

State of Wyoming—"Traffic counts show increase of 15 per cent."

State of Colorado—"Gasoline tax collections have increased 13.6 per cent. Estimate increase in tourist business from 10 to 25 per cent."

For the Illinois and Indiana state parks, the percentage increases in attendance this year with estimates for some of them of the admissions for 1941 are as follows:

ILLINOIS.

Lincoln Log Cabin—10 per cent; 65,000.
Fox Ridge—10 per cent; 16,500.
Pere Marquette—40 per cent; 200,000.
Gebhard Woods—48 per cent; 150,000.
Cahokia Mounds—32 per cent; 100,000.
Cave-In-Rock—10 per cent; 80,000.
Fort Massac—34 per cent; 191,848.
Mississippi Palisades—54 per cent.
New Salem—20 per cent.
Fort Chartres—56 per cent, 37,250.
Blackhawk—4.5 per cent.

INDIANA.

Brown county—45 per cent; 150,500.
Spring Mill—16 per cent; 200,000.
Pokagon—40 per cent; 95,000.
Clifty Falls—40 per cent; 150,000.
Indiana Dunes—17 per cent; 300,000.
Turkey Run—2 per cent; 220,000.
Shakamak—28 per cent.

National Parks Summary.

Individual national parks reported the following percentage increases during the year to date and the following estimates of total attendance for 1941:

Yellowstone [Wyoming]—12 per cent; 550,000.
Badlands Monument [South Dakota]—30 per cent.
Glacier [Montana]—8.6 per cent; 185,000.
Crater Lake [Oregon]—11.9 per cent; 285,000.
Carlsbad Caverns [New Mexico]—26 per cent; 280,000.
Zion [Utah]—12.9 per cent; 185,000.
Bryce Canyon [Utah]—21 per cent; 121,000.
Mammoth Cave [Kentucky]—105 per cent; 175,000.
Sequoia [California]—3.9 per cent; 290,000.
Mount Rainier [Washington]—10 per cent; 500,000.
Mesa Verde [Colorado]—9.5 per cent; 40,000.
Rocky Mountain [Colorado]—5 per cent.
Great Smoky Mountains [Tennessee]—35 per cent; 1,200,000.
Yosemite [California]—11.5 per cent; 560,000.
Grand Canyon [Arizona]—17 per cent; 425,000.

BIG INCREASE IN GAME BIRDS NOT ALL EMBRACING

Canvasbacks, Jacksnipes, Woodcocks Infrequent.

BY BOB BECKER.

With an increase in the duck population and a heavier flight [especially of puddler ducks] coming south this fall, a big crop of pheasants in South Dakota, a record hatch of partridges and prairie chicken in the Canadian provinces, and the outlook bright for good hunting in Illinois, one would think that a sportsman had nothing to do these days except anticipate good hunting this fall.

But there always seems to be something to take the joy out of life for the marsh or upland game hunter. Now it's the status of some of the open water ducks, the alarmingly small number of jacksnipe and woodcock, and the unsatisfactory state of the mourning dove population.

Ducks Are Over Hump.

The woodcock and the jacksnipe, two birds that [in our estimation] rank among the sportiest on this continent, have been causing the same kind of concern that our waterfowl did a few years ago. Thanks to the splendid work of Ducks Unlimited, which has been backed by the contributions of American sportsmen plus the right kind of weather, the ducks are over the hump and making fine increases each year. But the snipe and woodcock haven't recovered from those killing storms in January and April of 1940.

The woodcock and the jacksnipe do not have the recuperating possibilities of ducks and other game birds. They usually lay only four eggs to the nest and they raise just one brood a year. During the spring and summer investigators have been checking the nesting grounds of both the snipe and the woodcock by visiting Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Maine, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and other spots. Their reports may be summarized in just about two words. The number of birds is "startlingly small."

Jacksnipe on Closed List.

In view of the fact that the jacksnipe are far from being plentiful the government has put them on the closed list this fall. Under the new 1941 hunting regulations there will be no open season on jacks anywhere in the United States.

This ruling will come as a shock to many hunters. At least, it's quite a shock to us, because the jack has been one of our favorite game birds for many years and we would gladly pass up the opportunity to hunt two or three other species of upland game birds if we could just have jacksnipe shooting. But apparently the condition of the jacks is more serious than any of us realized.

The effects of that January, 1940, storm which swept thru the south may be forgotten by most outdoor fans, but it hasn't been forgotten by ornithologists because of the number of mourning doves it killed. And this bird hasn't recovered yet from that killing storm. Its numbers still are below par.

Last year doves were so scarce in some areas that hunters voluntarily refrained from shooting them.

Oak Brook and Texans Clash in Polo Final

Winners of the National Intercircuit title a week ago, the Huisaches of Houston, Tex., will oppose Oak Brook this afternoon at 4 o'clock on the Oak Brook field, 22d street and York road, in the final of the National 12 goal tourney. It has been 15 years since any team landed both championships.

The Huisaches proved their goal making ability by rolling up 15 points against Detroit in last Sunday's intercircuit final, and Oak Brook bettered that record by driving in 16 goals Tuesday against the Oak Brook Greens in the 12 goal semi-final.

Captained by Paul Butler, the Oak Brook lineup will include Harry Owen Jr., Dan Peacock, and Chuck Aaberg. Bob Farish, leader of the Huisaches, has named Bill Dritt, Bobby Nichoalds, and Rudy Humberson as his teammates. The lineup:

OAK BROOK.		HUISACHES.
Owen	No. 1	Farish [C]
Butler [C]	No. 2	Dritt
Peacock	No. 3	Nichoalds
Aaberg	Back	Humberson

Umpires—W. J. Calhoun and Lieut. Col. W. N. Leonard. Referee—C. S. Winston.

W-G-N, MUTUAL TO BROADCAST ALL-STAR GAME

The eighth annual All-Star football game between the college All-Americans and the Chicago Bears, champions of the National Football league, will be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network Thursday, starting at 8:30 p. m. [CDST] when Bob Elson and Guy Savage bring both the play by play description and the traditional color to the radio audience.

Before the kickoff Savage will present the ceremony of the cup award to Ambrise Schindler of Southern California as the outstanding player of the 1940 game. The presentation will be made by Margaret Haun, Northwestern university co-ed who will be queen of the game.

A between the halves program will include the induction of Dave Rankin of Purdue, All-American end, into the navy.

Winnetka and Lake Shore Cricket Teams Play Today

Unbeaten Winnetka will seek its 12th straight victory in the Illinois Cricket league today, opposing Lake Shore on Skokie field, Winnetka. Other league games:

Chicago vs. Milwaukee, at Wilson avenue and the Outer drive; Washington Park club vs. South Park club, in Washington park; Oak Park vs. Hyde Park, in Washington park [all games at 1:30 p. m.].

BECKWITH SEEKS 17TH STRAIGHT IN BOUT WEDNESDAY

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Whether Booker Beckwith, flashy Negro light heavyweight from Gary, Ind., is the great fighter he is supposed to be will be determined in a 10 round bout in Chicago Stadium outdoor arena Wednesday against Clarence [Red] Burman, Baltimore heavyweight.

Red Burman.

Beckwith, 1938 International Golden Gloves middleweight winner, will be after his 17th straight victory since turning professional. That was on Oct. 13, 1939, when he knocked out Johnny Trotter in Marigold Gardens, Chicago. His victims include Solly Krieger, once world middleweight champion; Erv Sarlin, Altus Allen, and Selman Martin. Altho Krieger is the only one in this group with a national reputation, Booker's conquest of Allen is worth stressing.

Starts Rise To Fame.

It was his triumph over Allen, 1939 international Golden Gloves heavyweight title holder, that first brought Beckwith to the attention of boxing leaders, including Mike Jacobs, New York fight czar. This success, a two round technical knockout in the Stadium building on April 4, earned for the Indiana fighter his opportunity against Krieger and now Burman.

Allen, who scored a knockout over Bill Petersen of Indiana Harbor following his defeat by Beckwith, will appear in a 10 round supporting contest on Wednesday's card against Johnny Kapovich, 175 pound stablemate of Burman.

Burman is a Veteran.

Burman, who fooled critics by lasting five rounds in a title fight against Champion Joe Louis a few months ago, has compiled a good record in competition with some of the best light heavyweights and heavyweights in the game. He holds a victory over Tommy Farr, former heavyweight champion of the British empire, one of the few challengers to go 15 rounds with Louis.

PLAY SEMI-FINALS TODAY IN BBYO SOFTBALL MEET

Semi-finals in the B'nai B'rith lodge league and quarter and semi-finals in the junior and intermediate divisions of the sixth annual B'nai B'rith Youth organization softball tournament will be played today. The schedule:

Dubs and Davis Box Tomorrow at Marigold

Bill Davis, Minersville, Pa., junior welterweight, who scored an upset by beating George Nyberg in eight rounds in his Chicago debut Aug. 11, will oppose Harvey Dubs of Windsor, Ont., in a 10 round bout in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. Tito Taylor, south side welterweight, who has sparred with both men, believes Dubs will win.

Taylor, who went three rounds with Davis and two with Dubs on Friday, admits Bill is a roughhouse fighter, but he insists Harvey is too fast, aggressive, and clever for him.

Dubs has won four of his last five starts. After winning impressively from Tony Petroskey, Jess Ackerman, Jimmy Tygh, and Sam Scully, Harvey suffered a defeat by Willie Joyce July 14. Supporting matches tomorrow:

George Feltes, Milwaukee, vs. George Nyberg, Port Arthur, Ont., [8], 150.
Johnny Nojunas, Philadelphia, vs. Johnny Trotter, Chicago [8], 165.
Vince Calzaretta vs. Johnny Crane [4], 170.
Paul Williams vs. Howard [Stormy] Williams [4], heavyweights.

Jim Londos, former heavyweight wrestling champion, will appear in windup bouts in White City tomorrow and Marigold Gardens Wednesday. His opponent tomorrow will be Nango Singh. No foe, as yet, has been named to oppose him on Wednesday's card. Supporting matches tomorrow will bring together Hippo Wiggins, 440 pound wrestler from Lubbock, Tex., and Dick Hewitt; Ignacio Martinez and Rudy Kay, Jack Clayborne and Seeli Samara, and Tiny Berk and Nick Elitch.

SOFTBALL SERIES FINALS CARDED FOR TONIGHT

Final games in the Amateur Softball association tournament will be played tonight on Shewbridge field. The Park Ridge Merchants, defending champions in the major mens' division, will meet the Gilbert Die Casters and the Match Corporation of America in a double header.

Between the two men's games the Garden City Girls will play either the Rivals or the Parichy Bloomer Girls for the girls' division championship.

Two games are necessary in the men's division because of the double elimination rule in the tournament to decide Chicago's representative in the national tournament, Sept. 10-14, in Detroit, Mich. The first game will start at 8 p. m.

SOUTH SHORE AND LAKESIDE CLASH IN LAWN BOWLING

The South Shore Country club will oppose the Lakeside club in a challenge match today on the South Shore rinks in the feature of the Chicago lawn bowling schedule. More than 100 players will compete, starting at 10 o'clock.

The Vice President's cup doubles competition of the Columbus Park club and an interclub match between Gary and the Chicago club, in Gary, also are on today's program. Upwards of 200 already have entered the Mid-Western association tournament to be held on the Lakeside club rinks in Jackson park over Labor day weekend, starting Saturday.

TRENCH WARFARE MILD COMPARED TO BEAR DRILL

Chicagoan and rabid Bear fan, was bowled over when Osmanski, on an end run, crashed over the sidelines as he was tackled. He was momentarily stunned by a blow on the head. While far from satisfied with the failure of the varsity, the coaches were enthusiastic over the players' spirit. It answered one question which had been troubling them: The Bears are coming up mentally for the battle. Now the worry is whether the attack and defense can be straightened out to function.

John L. Federovitch, six foot five inch rookie tackle from Davis and Elkins, had much to do with the success of the Blues. He made several tackles and was right in the middle of most pileups. Once he broke thru and spilled Snyder for eight yards before he could get away a pass.

Third and Final Scrimmage.

It was their third scrimmage in the 15 days they have been here and the coaches decreed it would be the last one, fearing the possibility of injuries. In the remaining four days they will go over, time and again, their well laid offensive, to which has been added many new running and passing bafflers.

Defense strategy also will come in for consideration, even tho the matter of scoring points comes first with the Bears.

AUTO STARS RACE AT MILWAUKEE IN 100 MILE FEATURE

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 23. [Special]. —Fourteen of the nation's greatest automobile drivers will compete tomorrow at the Wisconsin state fair, in the 100 mile AAA national championship race, for the highest purses ever offered for a dirt track event.

The state fair has posted $7,500 in prize money. In addition, two automobile tire manufacturers have posted purses of $3,000 and $2,000. The winner probably will collect $3,500.

Two Indianapolis winners are in the field. They are: Mauri Rose, who came from far behind in a borrowed car last Memorial day to take first place, and Kelly Petillo, who won in 1935. Rex Mays, who finished second to Rose at Indianapolis this year, also is on hand for tomorrow's feature.

HARMON TO TALK JOB AS PRO WITH BEARS' HALAS

Tom Harmon, Michigan's great half back, who now is preparing with the All-Stars for the game with the Chicago Bears Thursday night, apparently has decided on a career as a radio announcer, but he said yesterday that George Halas of the Bears had made an appointment with him for Wednesday. Halas has negotiating rights for Harmon.

"I will be glad to talk professional football with Halas," Harmon said. "I have a contract to broadcast Michigan's football game this fall. I don't know whether the Detroit station is trying to sell my services on other programs or not."

Harmon admitted that his broadcast on Saturdays would not necessarily prevent him from playing professional football.

"Halas asked me to come and see him. I'll be glad to hear what he has to say," Harmon concluded.

McAdams, Ah! He'll Lend an All-Star Hand

The rangy towhead put the full force of his 195 pounds behind the kick and sent the ball soaring 70 yards down the field as the onlookers gazed in admiration.

"There, you see," cried Coach Babe Hollingbery of Washington State, "just as I've been telling you. That boy can kick like a mule; he was the best all-around back we had on the coast last year, and he'll go good in any company."

Dean McAdams.

Babe had reference to Dean McAdams, the tall, handsome half back from the University of Washington, whose triple threat qualities place him among the foremost left half candidates on the All-Star squad which opposes the Chicago Bears in Soldiers' field on Thursday night.

He'll Stand Comparison.

After watching Dean in practice you soon realize that Hollingbery's enthusiasm isn't entirely based, if at all, on his natural inclination to praise anything and everything that hails from the Pacific slope. The young man has few equals on the squad as a kicker and passer and his ball carrying will stand comparison with one and all.

McAdams, whose high school career was split up among three states, Washington, California, and Idaho, didn't blossom into stardom the minute he hit the Washington campus. He struggled thru his sophomore season with a minimum of success, in fact a few dropped punts cost the Huskies several games.

But Coach Jimmy Phelan of the Huskies never lost faith in the earnest, hard working youngster and the following year he was shifted to right half where his weight could be used to advantage as a blocker and he would lose none of his effectiveness as a kicker and passer.

Proves His Versatility.

Phelan's judgment was verified. McAdams finished the season as the nation's foremost passer. He didn't have a pass intercepted in eight consecutive games and he averaged 55 yards with his punting. He was something of the iron man member of the squad, averaging 58 minutes in every game.

He was a unanimous selection for All-Coast half back honors while the Seattle Quarterback club voted him the player of the year. He continued right on in his senior year last fall by turning in dazzling passing feats in game after game. Against U. C. L. A. he pitched two touchdown passes and averaged eight yards per carry as a runner.

McAdams' greatest ambition at the moment is to lend his talents toward upsetting the Bears Thursday night. Having played against Stanford and the T formation man in motion offense, he isn't under any illusions as to the size of the job facing the All-Stars.

"But you take a bunch of boys like we have here, with everyone trying his best, and we got a good chance to turn the trick," he observed yesterday. "Our own offense is beginning to take shape and I am confident the Bears will not overpower us."

Waukegan Johns-Manville Golfers Beat Chicagoans

The Waukegan factory of the Johns-Manville corporation defeated the Johns-Manville Chicago district representatives in a team of four golf match yesterday at the Glen Flora Country club, 13 to 5. The leading gross scores were 73 by Russell Bauman and 74 by John David, both of Chicago, and 75 by Frank Perpich of Waukegan.

RESERVES BEAT VARSITY, 7-6, IN ALL-STAR DRILL

Jones Passes to Banta for Early Touchdown.

this factor has frequently gained the decision. The Bears were a prohibitive favorite in the initial game in 1934 but to a scoreless tie that year was added a 7 to 7 tie with the Detroit Lions in 1936. The professionals, however, will be defending an advantage of 3 victories to 2 before a capacity crowd of 93,000 Thursday night.

That surprising initial game, when the Bears were favored to win by four or five touchdowns, at least, is sentimental reason for the hope of many that once again the college men will upset predictions. Few actually believe, however, that they can whip the Bears, who won their title by defeating the Washington Redskins by an astounding score of 73 to 0 last December.

Two other factors, other than the personnel of either squad, thus have helped sell out Soldiers' field. The Bears, of course, are a home town team. Secondly, the Bears' much discussed T formation, man in motion offense, and the score at Washington have aroused the nation's football fans.

Expect Wide Open Battle.

Perhaps too much has been claimed for the man in motion gridiron attack, or possibly fans expect more than has been claimed. Nevertheless the Bears won their championship with it and Clark Shaughnessy of Stanford taught it to the boys who in 1940 went undefeated to a Pacific Coast conference title and victory in the Rose bowl game. Fundamentally, the attack produces a lot of wide open football, sweeping runs, lateral and forward passes and there's no doubt but that this is attractive to the fans.

The nature of Thursday night's game cannot be predicted. The Bears never have scored a touchdown in this series. It has been well established that the collegians' best chance to win rests on a wide open game. Their victories in 1937 and 1938 were won by passing.

O'Rourke's Thumb Sprained.

This All-Star squad has brilliant passers and several excellent receivers. From this may be manufactured an upset, but after two weeks' drill there apparently is no reason to believe the All-Stars can overpower the Bears to score by rushing. Dean McAdams, Harmon, Mallouf, Charley O'Rourke, or some other passer may pass for touchdowns. O'Rourke was out of yesterday's scrimmage because of a thumb sprained Friday afternoon. X-ray pictures proved it was not fractured.

Jack Robinson of U. C. L. A. also was on the side line with a bruised ankle but he will be in uniform today. Ben Sohn, Southern California guard, was hurt in yesterday's game but the ankle injury was not serious.

Mr. Luckman Limps, but He Wants to Play

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Delafield, Wis., Aug. 23.— Sid Luckman, on whom the Chicago Bears depend more than perhaps any of their other important cogs, suggested that he be allowed to take part in today's scrimmage. "I admire your courage but not your judgment, Sid," said Coach George Halas to his quarter back, who suffered a knee injury Tuesday night in Kenosha.

Halas compromised tho, and allowed Luckman to follow the scrimmage with the coaches. Sid is still limping, but will come to the practice field sound on Monday, at least that is the promise. All agree the loss of Luckman for Thursday's All-Star game in Soldiers' field would be a terrific blow, as the former Columbia star is a money player.

"We will be no more than 25 to 30 per cent efficient for the All-Stars," was Halas' pessimistic statement tonight.

"How efficient do you think the All-Stars will be?" he was asked.

"They should be 85 to 90 per cent," he replied with a completely straight face, "because they have eight or nine coaches and can give the men more individual instruction. And they have fewer plays than we do."

The bears expect to be confronted by various defensive systems and if the All-Stars don't know it, the National Football league champions are prepared to meet their varied attack with more defenses than have been tried against the Nazis.

"I don't see why Tom Harmon should be playing against us," said Bob Snyder today, and then qualified as the prize punster among the Bears by adding: "Hasn't he done enough harm on the gridiron already?"

The Bears will try on their new uniforms Tuesday. The britches will be white.

Joe Lokanc Signs Year's Contract with Cardinals

Joe Lokanc yesterday signed a one year contract to play with the Chicago Cardinals. Lokanc, a rugged guard, will join the Red Birds' training squad at the Morgan Park Military academy on Friday. The former Northwestern star at present is practicing with the College All-Stars, who play the Bears Thursday night.

SKIING EXHIBITION TODAY.

Utilizing a chemically treated canvas slide, members of Norge Ski club will present an exhibition of ski jumping this afternoon at the club's slide near Cary. The occasion will be the club's summer picnic.

Boatsmen Race Today in 15th News Regatta

A fleet of 200 to 300 sail, power, and rowing craft—the number depending on the weather—will take part in the annual Daily News regatta today off Navy pier. Commodore Byron H. Willis, a Chicago Yacht club official, is chairman of the regatta committee.

Events for motor yachts, for rowing cutters, and for every type of sail craft raced on Lake Michigan—from dinghies, sailing canoes and sailing kayaks, to schooners and yawls upward of 60 feet in length, are scheduled. The regatta is the 15th to be sanctioned by the Lake Michigan Yachting association.

L. T. Rountree, fleet captain of the Jackson Park Yacht club, will lead a parade of power cruisers with his 92 foot yacht Marlyn shortly before 2 p. m., when the first large sail yachts begin racing.

A Debut for Onaway.

Among the entries are Apache, Thomas K. Fisher's 45 foot cutter from the Detroit Yacht club; S. C. Pirie Jr.'s new 44 foot yawl Onaway from the Sheridan Shore Yacht club, sailing its first race; Bruno V. E. Nordberg's 82 foot sloop Istalena, the largest sloop ever to sail on Lake Michigan; Harry Ziemann's Carolyn, and Hobart Olson's Duchess, all three from the Milwaukee Yacht club. The Apache, which was dismasted the day before the Mackinac race last month, will compete today with its new spar for the first time.

450 Sea Scouts Race.

Four hundred and fifty Sea Scouts of the Chicago council will race in 26 and 28 foot rowing cutters. Lifeguards of the Chicago park district's north and south side divisions will row in cutters in their third annual meet. A team of water ski experts from Black Lake, Mich., headed by Chuck Sligh, 1941 national men's champion, and Lyda Maye Helder, women's title holder, will perform at the end of the pier between races.

Starting time for each class follow:

11 a. m.—Columbia B class dinghies.
11:05—Class D dinghies.
11:10—Rainbow class dinghies.
11:15—Open B class dinghies.
11:20—Jackson park class dinghies.
1 p. m.—Q, 8 and 10 meter classes—cruiser parade.

1:06—B class cruising division.
1:09—Universal yawls and schooners.
1:12—R class.
1:15—S class and 22 square meter sloops.
1:18—C class cruising division.
1:21—D class cruising division.
1:24—E class cruising division.
1:27—Star class.
1:30—110 class.
1:33—Tumlaren class.
1:36—Arrow class.
1:39—Lightning class.
2:00—Snipe class.
2:05—National one-design class.
2:10—Sea gull class.
2:20—Sailing canoes.
2:25—Sailing kayaks.
2:30—Open free-for-all, unclassified.

CYO Fighters Prepare for Hawaiian Bout

The field of more than 100 candidates for the 1941 CYO boxing team that will meet the champions of Hawaii Sept. 17 in Soldiers' field, is rapidly narrowing down to the select group of sixty who will go to the Palos Park training camp on Sept. 6 for a 10 day period. Despite difficulties in seeding the candidates Tom O'Connell, CYO boxing director, states that coach Paddy Kane and his assistant, Dick Fitzpatrick, have arrived at definite opinions of the aptitudes of the candidates. At camp, the field of 60 will have to be pared down to the 10 who will meet the Hawaiians.

Missing from the Chicago lineup will be two CYO veterans, Savior Canadeo and Cornelius Young, both former Golden Gloves champions. Canadeo, 147 pound title holder, has turned professional. Young, heavyweight champion, has retired from boxing.

Several veterans, however, are available. They are Harold Dade, 112 pound 1940 Golden Gloves champion; Al Noto, 112; Ray Brown, former Golden Gloves 118 pound champion; Tony Bausone, 118; Frank Bausone, 126; Jack Ballengee, 126; Isaiah Wells, 160, and Hubert Hood, 175 pound champion.

Heading the list of newcomers who are expected to be among the 10 to represent Chicago is Joe Dugo, 147 pound, 1940 Novice champion, and Dennis O'Keefe, 135 pound 1940 Novice champion.

AMATEURS END CITY BASEBALL SERIES TODAY

Deciding games in the Chicago playoffs of the Metropolitan Amateur Baseball league will be played today. Ten of the 16 teams divided the first two games. The Pandas, Mates and Golden Stars were eliminated after two defeats each. Today's schedule:

Seniors—Tim Ryans vs. Orioles, in McKinley park, 3:30; Stars and Stripes vs. Clarions, in Portage park, 3 p. m.

Senior consolation—O'Donnell Boosters vs. Red Wing, at Armour Square, 3:30; Rob-Wins vs. Chi-Reds, in Humboldt park, 3 p. m.; Reckers vs. Hartman Boosters, in Kilbourne park, 3 p. m.

Junior consolation—Chi-Braves vs. Wolcott Braves, in McKinley park, 1 p. m.

Jim Evert Wins in Maine Tennis; Larned Eliminated

York, Me., Aug. 23 (AP).—Jimmy Evert of Chicago defeated Eddie Amark of Oakland, Cal., 6-3, 6-4, in a quarter-final men's singles match which stole the show in the Maine tennis tournament today. Other men's singles quarter-final results:

William Talbert of Cincinnati beat Gardner Larned of Chicago, 5-7, 6-1, 6-0; Edward Alloo, Berkeley, Cal., beat Jerry Crowthers of Hermosa Beach, Cal., 4-6, 6-2, 6-2; Seymour Greenberg of Chicago beat Will Crosby of Oakland, Cal., 8-6, 6-3.

BERWYN GAME POSTPONED.

LAKE ONTARIO YACHTSMEN WIN BARTHEL TROPHY

Lake Erie Crew Second; Lake Michigan Third.

Lake Ontario yachtsmen won the Commodore Otto F. Barthel trophy yesterday for the Lake Yacht Racing association, as the last two of the six races for the trophy were sailed off Grant Park harbor by three crews. The defending crew, representing the Lake Michigan Yachting association, lost the trophy for the first time since it was placed in competition in 1937. The trophy is emblematic of the Great Lakes Q and eight meter championship.

The winning crew included Elmer J. Doyle, Buffalo, N. Y., skipper; Harvey Dawrs, Lewiston, N. Y., and Jack Hallock, Buffalo, light canvas men; Jack Elfrod, Buffalo, and Kenneth Thayer, Niagara Falls, backstay and jib sheet men.

Win Three of Six Races.

The crew won the Barthel trophy with a total score of 14¾ points, after winning three out of six races. The Lake Erie crew headed by Skipper Thomas K. Fisher of the Detroit Yacht club, took second for the Inter-Lake Yachting association with 12½ points. The Lake Michigan crew was third with 10¼ points.

The fifth race yesterday morning was captured by the Lake Michigan crew headed by Skipper Edmund Jedrzykowski of the Jackson Park Yacht club, sailing Lively Lady. Skipper Fisher, at the helm of Scimitar, started far behind the other two Q boat crews but outmaneuvered the Lake Ontario crew when tacking to windward, and finished second.

The Detroit crew moved up a place by winning the final race in the afternoon. The races were sailed in a light east wind.

Lively Lady Wins Twice.

Lively Lady, winner of the 1940 and 1941 Mackinac races, was sailed by two crews to win both races yesterday. It is owned by Otto Dreher of the South Shore [Milwaukee] Yacht club, who loaned it to the crews for the series. Scimitar, Fred Spencer, William Faurot, and C. D. Wiman's new Q boat, was sailed to second place in both events yesterday, and Dr. Hollis Potter's Hornet was third in each race. The series, which began Thursday, was sailed under the auspices of the Chicago Yacht club. Commodore Barthel and Commodore John T. Snite of the Lake Michigan Yachting association judged the series, and Robert A. Haynie, secretary of the association, was race committee chairman.

Summaries of the fifth and sixth races yesterday:

	Elapsed time.
FIFTH RACE.
Lively Lady, Lake Michigan	1:57:20
Scimitar, Lake Erie	1:58:20
Hornet, Lake Ontario	2:01:50
SIXTH RACE.
Lively Lady, Lake Erie	1:10:00
Scimitar, Lake Ontario	1:11:07
Hornet, Lake Michigan	1:14:10

Pirie's Twin Star Wins.

Lockwood Pirie won the Sheridan Shore Yacht club's race for Star class sloops off Wilmette harbor yesterday in his yacht Twin Star. Glider, the Bingham-Clay-Floyd craft, was runner-up. William Bradbury's Silver King was third, and Harold Elliott in Carol was fourth.

Mercury, owned and sailed by John Mohr Jr. and his crew, Arvid Gunderson, won both Snipe class races sailed by the Chicago Corinthian Yacht club's fleet off Montrose harbor yesterday.

YALE REMEMBERS 1940; TO START PRACTICE EARLY

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 23 (AP).—With the disastrous 1940 season apparently still fresh in mind, Yale decided today to permit its football players to begin practice this fall earlier than the traditional Sept. 15 date adopted 18 years ago in a Big Three step toward gridiron deëmphasis. The action came in a routine announcement, contrasting with the fanfare in 1923 when the presidents of Yale, Harvard, and Princeton signed a triple agreement governing their athletics.

The 1941 Eli squad of 65 candidates, headed by Capt. Alan Bartholemy of Portland, Ore., will start training for an eight game slate on Sept. 12 under Head Coach Emerson [Spike] Nelson, who represents another recent departure from Yale tradition. He became the first nongraduate football coach in Eli history after the team lost seven of its eight games last fall, the worst record ever made by a Blue eleven.

With the permission of the Big Three presidents, Harvard and Princeton scrapped their taboo on earlier fall practice in 1938, but Yale adhered to the old Sept. 15 date.

STOCKS AVERAGE SLIGHTLY HIGHER; VOLUME LARGER

Steels, Rails, Utilities Register Gains.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—The stock market averaged slightly higher today. Except for scattered favorites, gains in the brief session were in minor fractions and recessions were just about as negligible. Steels, rails, and utilities managed to edge forward, but other groups displayed irregularity.

The day's news from war and business fronts was not particularly inspiring, altho enough inflation sentiment remained in boardrooms, brokers said, to attract wary support for individual issues.

The generally lackadaisical performance of pivotal issues was exemplified by the fact Chrysler was more than one hour late in appearing on the ticker tape. It held an advance of ½ point, while General Motors eased ⅛.

Credit Curb Ignored.

The market apparently was undisturbed by the federal reserve board's instalment credit curbs. It was suggested this step to stem inflation and conserve armament materials may have been fairly well discounted.

Peoples Gas was an isolated strong spot, rising 2 points to 50, a new 1941 top. Richfield Oil was the liveliest mover, up ½ at 11, also a new peak.

Stiffening of prices Monday was attributed mainly to technical factors leading to the belief the list may have been oversold. The war news was more pessimistic than otherwise and little was accomplished Tuesday. A burst of buying in commodities spurred a light rally in securities Wednesday. There was a slight setback Thursday as war doubts, taxes, and government controls dimmed the speculative urge. The federal decree putting a sharp crimp in 1942 model output stalled the motors Friday and, except for a few specialties, quotations were in a trendless area.

CHICAGO LIST UNEVEN.

Peoples Gas Light and Coke company common, following announcement of a $1 quarterly dividend, rose 2 points to 50, a new 1941 high, on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. A new high also was established by Serrick B stock, up ⅛ to 4⅜.

Transactions totaled 8,000 shares in an uneven market. Volume leaders were Chicago corporation common, 1,400 shares, up ⅛; Utility and Industrial common, 1,000 shares, unchanged; Commonwealth Edison, 400, off ⅛.

Transactions for the week totaled 97,000 shares, compared with 103,000 shares in the preceding week and 63,000 shares in the corresponding week of 1940.

DIVIDEND VOTED BY ALUMINUM CASTINGS FIRM

Advance Aluminum Casting corporation, Chicago, yesterday declared a dividend of 12½ cents on its common stock. The company, manufacturer of kitchen utensils and large aluminum castings, declared a similar payment in December, 1940. The Glen Alden Coal company announced a dividend of 40 cents compared with 25 cents paid in June.

CHICAGO EXPORT GROUPS EXPECT SHIPPING RELIEF

Seek to Prevent Harm to Foreign Trade.

Chicago export shippers and managers, who have protested that government withdrawal of ships from important trade routes for British and army use is harming development of American foreign commerce, are beginning to hope that their action will bring results, it was learned yesterday.

The Export Managers' club of Chicago recently took two steps in an attempt to obtain at least partial relief from the current acute shortage of cargo space. One was a letter to Secretary of State Cordell Hull. The other was a resolution for the establishment of export priorities.

The letter to Hull stated that with the closing of European markets by the war, many new connections, particularly in Latin America, were opened to American exporters. This offers an opportunity to cement these connections and develop the nation's export business, the letter said.

Asks for Priority System.

The communication called the secretary's attention to the effect on export operations of the government's shipping requisitioning policy. A partial list of 41 steamers taken from the service of 13 American lines was submitted. Excluding the important Latin-American markets, examples of cargo tieups in China, India the Philippines, Malaya, and South Africa because of virtually unobtainable shipping space were cited.

In effect, the resolution asked for a priority system that would permit export service to establish Latin-American customers after rearmament requirements were taken care of.

Chicago shippers said yesterday they believed they had won at least this point. President Roosevelt recently announced granting of export priorities to Latin America.

Gist of Announcement.

The Presidential announcement said that the economic well being of Latin America depends upon making available to them the consumer and industrial goods of the United States.

An officer of the Export Managers' club said the protest to Secretary Hull was made to call attention to the serious condition in which shippers now find themselves and to ask that the situation be given consideration in the formulation of future policies. Exporters realize that the vast expansion of government shipping under the rearmament program has made necessary ship requisitioning, he said, but at the same time there are unnecessary and premature seizures which the government could avoid.

The army has taken ships from commercial service for transport of huge tonnage of materials to various ports and to leased island bases, as well as for troop movements. Numerous examples were cited by steamship companies of vessels requisitioned by the army almost overnight then allowed to remain empty for as long as a month before being put into actual service.

Commodities

Cotton futures prices declined 10 to 45 cents a bale yesterday in a quiet session. Ginning reports from the government and from Texas sources indicated a sharp decrease in operations as compared with a year ago. Federal figures showed 74,101 running bales ginned from the new crop thru Aug. 15. Last year the total was above 166,000 bales.

JOBS LOST, FOOD COST UP; NATION GETS HEADACHE

Plants Lack Goods; Industry Sags.

The nation's economic advisers last week continued their search for solutions to several emergency produced problems of growing seriousness. One was the plight of many employés losing jobs because of the transfer of production from peacetime needs to armaments. Another was the misfortunes of small businesses whose existence is threatened by the all-out arms program. And another was the steady increase in the prices of foods and other consumer items.

The threatened displacement of millions of workers resulted in a drastic move by the Office of Production Management when it ordered sweeping revision of army and navy purchasing policies designed to spread armament orders into companies where shortages of materials threaten shutdowns. Among the measures taken were provisions requiring the letting of subcontracts and distributing orders geographically.

Steel Priorities a Factor.

Both labor and many managements found themselves the victims of the same disturbances created by enforcement of materials priorities. One of the most confusing has been

The steady rise in food prices, including such items as bread, butter, and eggs, is complicating living problems for many in the lower wage brackets.

Meantime, various business indices showed a moderate check in the rate of industrial activity. This has been especially noticeable in the steel and automobile industries and in the cotton mills. The steel mills, which for months have been running at virtual capacity, have encountered a shortage of scrap and in addition some mills have had to slow down for repairs.

The automobile industry has slowed because of the change over from 1941 to 1942 model production. The cotton mills are reported to have suffered from a curtailment in demand.

East Worries About Oil.

The petroleum situation in the east, where a reported shortage in gasoline is disturbing the public, is creating a headache for the petroleum industry. Threats have been made of a 40 per cent reduction in gasoline supplies to the east. A 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. curfew is already in effect. This is the result of the transfer of oil tankers to the British from the Gulf of Mexico service, thereby creating a transportation problem because pipe line and railroad tank car facilities are inadequate.

Retail business provided one activity that satisfied almost all. Dollar sales were estimated last week to be running from 22 to 30 per cent over last year. Wearing apparel, household goods, and other items were reported selling well.

Meantime retailers were wondering how they will be affected by the instalment sales restrictions imposed by the Federal Reserve board. The automobile dealers were one group that was satisfied and automobile sales represent the largest single item in instalment purchases.

Must Pay Third Down.

The board decided that automobile buyers must pay one-third down—which may be represented in the car given in trade—and have 18 months to pay the balance.

Labor troubles continued to plague government officials, notably the shipyard strike at Kearny, N. J., where the issue is one of a modified form of closed shop. The National Mediation board continued its efforts in Chicago to settle the wage and rules controversies between the railroads and their approximately 1,150,000 workers.

The small slackening in industrial activity was reflected as follows in the Associated Press index:

AFL, CIO TO VOTE FOR RULE OF LAKE SHIPYARD LABOR

Cleveland, O., Aug. 23 (AP).—Representatives of the AFL and CIO agree tonight to a consent election Friday at the American Shipbuilding company's seven yards to determine which group, if either, shall bargain collectively for the company's employés.

Hugh E. Sperry, regional director of the National Labor Relations board, said no hour had been set for the voting, but that all of the company's 2,400 workers would vote for the AFL or the CIO or neither.

Eleven AFL unions are involved with the CIO's Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers in jurisdictional disputes at two yards in Buffalo and one each in Cleveland, Toledo, Lorain, South Chicago, and Superior, Wis.

East to Get Holiday Gasoline, but Stocks Fall, Prices Rise

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23 (AP).—The east was assured today of ample gasoline for Labor day week-end as the oil industry set up a daily quota system for supplying 100,000 filling stations from Maine to Florida during the remainder of August.

Ralph K. Davies, acting defense petroleum coördinator, said the station quota plan was adopted because of concern that some localities might exhaust their supplies for August and have no gasoline on the Labor day week-end. The system will work in this manner:

1. The suppliers will calculate the amount of gasoline due each of their retail outlets for the remainder of August.

2. Effective Monday morning, they will divide the number of gallons due each outlet into five equal daily quotas.

Then It's Up to Stations.

3. These daily quotas then will be delivered to the filling stations each day, and the station operator will fix the number of gallons he can sell each customer by calculating the number of vehicles he ordinarily serves and dividing his daily quota accordingly.

4. On Saturday and Sunday the tanks of all filling stations will be filled to take care of the Labor day week-end. These deliveries will be charged against September quotas.

Davies said the dealers would have to observe a monthly quota in September and space sales to make their supply last thru the month.

PRICES ARE ADVANCED

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Gasoline supplies dwindled and prices advanced in much of the eastern seaboard yesterday to give motorists a jolting preview of what may be in store.

From numerous sections of the gas rationed east stretching from Maine to Florida came reports of a gasless Sunday today in a dealers' effort to spread limited supplies thru the remainder of the month.

A federal order cutting by 10 per cent this month the volume handled by operators in July was the direct consequence of the government's effort to aid Great Britain by transferring American tankers to the British, and there were unverified reports that 100 additional deep sea tankers would be turned over shortly.

Scattered reports of contemplated partial or complete shutdowns of stations today came from Connecticut, Maine, New York, New Jersey, northern Virginia, Georgia, and Florida, where pumps were running dry. Price increases of a half to two cents a gallon were put into effect in parts of Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, and New Jersey.

The eastern situation as described by the Office of Petroleum Coördination and the American Petroleum institute was confused. The government agency asserted only a 10 day supply remained, while the institute declared there were 20,793,000 barrels in the east at the beginning of the week and only 893,000 barrels were used last week.

Set Oil Price Ceiling

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23 (AP).—Leon Henderson, price administrator, imposed a schedule of ceiling prices today on Pennsylvania grade crude oils at levels about 23 to 25 cents a barrel below prevailing quotations.

Henderson said the price ceilings were at the levels prevailing before increases went into effect on Aug. 14.

The schedule sets a ceiling price of $2.75 a barrel for Bradford oil, $2.40 a barrel for southwest Pennsylvania, $2.34 a barrel for Eureka, $2.30 a barrel for southeastern Ohio, and $2.63 to $2.69 for various qualities between Oil City and Titusville, Pa.

The term, "Pennsylvania grades," has reference to the special qualities of the oil rather than its origin.

New Hudsons Here; Driving Made Simpler

Featuring a new automatic mechanism, which eliminates most clutch operation, Hudson Motor Car company yesterday disclosed details of its 1942 line of automobiles. The 1942 Hudsons are among the first of the new season's automobiles to appear in dealer showrooms thruout the Chicago district.

The company describes the new device, called the drivemaster, "as a wholly new development in driving simplicity." Clutch operation is eliminated, except when in use as a safety precaution when the motor is started. Gears shift automatically and rapid acceleration for use in traffic is provided by a new second, or pickup gear.

Driver Has Choice.

A feature of the device is an arrangement whereby the driver may have the gears shifted automatically, semiautomatically or he may shift them himself. A three button switch enables the driver to choose his method of gear shifting.

The 1942 Hudson presents several changes in appearance from the predecessor models. The cars are lower, longer, and more streamlined. A new flare of the body contour is used to conceal wide, full length running boards. The car retains a substantial amount of bright metal used as ornamentation, both for radiator grille and in strips along the sides of the cars.

The body is lower as a result of redesign of the rear frame which permits rear springs to be lowered.

Interiors More Luxurious.

Interiors are more luxurious and color schemes of gray, tan, and green are offered. Color harmonies extend to steering wheels, instrument panels, carpets, floor mats, and trim. The 1942 models include the dual braking system introduced some years ago as a safety measure.

The new cars come in three series. The lowest priced series is mounted on a 116 inch wheel base and has a 92 horsepower six cylinder engine. The second, also a six, is on a 121 inch wheel base, with a 102 horsepower engine. The third has a 128 horsepower eight cylinder engine and a 121 inch wheel base. Two custom models are offered on a 128 inch wheel base.

Chicago Steel Mills Raise Their Production Schedule

The ingot production rate of steel mills in the Chicago district is scheduled to move up tomorrow to 100.7 per cent of theoretical capacity, compared with 100.5 per cent at the beginning of last week. Pittsburgh district production is slated at 100.5 per cent, compared with 100 per cent last week.

'42 TANK PRODUCTION SCHEDULE BOOSTED TO 1,000 MILLION DOLLARS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23 [Special].—The Office of Production Management today announced plans to step up tank production. Based on terms of dollars instead of actual tanks, the production estimate for 1942 was placed at 1,000 million dollars. How many tanks this figure contemplated was not made clear.

John D. Biggers, OPM production director, said his organization's tank unit, headed by W. W. Knight Jr. of Wyandotte, Mich., was being loaned to the war department's ordnance department. He declared that this arrangement will "result in unified control of tank production in this country for both the United States army and the British."

The program, it was announced, was agreed upon by OPM, the ordnance department, and British authorities as the best means of expediting tank output. It was said that the OPM unit will be concerned especially with arranging for additional facilities to handle the increased tank program. It was understood that special efforts will be made to increase subcontracting.

NATIONAL POWER DISSOLUTION IS ORDERED BY SEC

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange commission today ordered the "prompt dissolution" of National Power and Light company, huge subholding company in the Electric Bond and Share system.

National Power heads a $473,000,000 system which controls nine public utility operating subsidiaries in Alabama, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Texas, Tennessee, Virginia, and Florida.

The commission said that its action was necessary to insure that the structure of the parent holding company system "shall not be unduly or unnecessarily complicated and that voting power shall not be unfairly or inequitably distributed among security holders of the system."

Sugar Futures Trading to Be Resumed Tomorrow

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Trading in domestic contract sugar futures will be resumed Monday morning, ending a two week suspension which followed issuance of a price ceiling order. The New York Coffee and Sugar exchange told traders the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply had warned that dealings at prices in excess of the ceiling of 3.50 cents a pound would not be permitted.

Hudson Opens 1942 Model Season

With this 8 cylinder sedan in its Commodore series, the Hudson Motor Car company opens the 1942 model season. All the 1942 Hudson models are longer, lower, and have more flowing body lines.

NAZIS DRAINING DANISH MEAT ANIMAL SUPPLY

Germany's Sources Hit by Demand.

The United States is building up the greatest potential meat supply in history thru increased breeding of animals on farms, while the outlook for future supplies in countries from which the axis nations obtain meat, according to available information, is dark. The contrast has resulted largely from wholesale butchering of breeding stock to keep German armies in the field and inability of conquered nations to raise sufficient feed for normal production of meat animals.

The only official data on live stock production in the axis meat supplying nations comes from Denmark, formerly one of the major live stock countries of Europe.

Denmark Loses Hogs.

According to the department of agriculture, Denmark has experienced a severe decline in live stock numbers, particularly in hogs, since the occupation by the Nazis. The number of hogs has been cut 41 per cent since the occupation.

On April 19, 1941, Denmark had 1,825,000 hogs, against 3,133,000 in April, 1939. The cattle total was off 6 per cent. Poultry flocks were cut 68 per cent, from 26,126,000 birds in 1939 to 8,352,000 in 1941. A breakdown of the Denmark report disclosed that there is practically no possibility of rebuilding breeding herds and flocks, or increasing slaughter supplies this year. Bred sows showed a decrease of 40 per cent and suckling pigs were 43 per cent fewer than in 1939. Laying hens numbered 35 per cent fewer than two years earlier.

Imports of Feed Cut.

Denmark had for many years produced much more meat than it had feed for, and obtained feed supplies from other nations. Inability to import sufficient feed, as well as the "sales" of animals to Germany, has been responsible for the decline in live stock and poultry numbers, according to Foreign Crops and Markets, government publication.

Altho no official figures are available for such countries as Holland, Norway, Belgium, France, and others over-run by Germany, the fate of live stock herds is believed to have been the same as in Denmark.

Meantime the meat packing industry in the United States is geared at near record volume, and department of agriculture inventories show that even greater meat supplies are in the making on farms for next winter and for 1942. A study on beef on the hoof as of Aug. 1 disclosed an increase of 17 per cent over the number on feed last year.

An estimate on the fall pig crop, based on the number of sows bred for fall farrowing, is the largest on record for a fall season, at 33,000,000 head. Hog raisers also report they intend to hold more sows back for 1942 spring pig raising than they kept for 1942. A study of beef on the the government that prices will be held at a profitable level by federal pork buying. The lamb crop this year is the largest on record.

Meat Output a Record.

Meat production in plants under federal inspection during the first half of 1941, the latest period for which official figures are available, set a new record of 7,441,663,000 pounds of beef, veal, pork, lard, lamb, and mutton, representing an increase of 19 per cent over the average of the last five years, and a gain of 50 per cent compared with the low year of 1935.

The following table shows production in plants under federal inspection for the first six months of various years' figures in millions of pounds:

	Beef.	Veal.	Pork and Lard.	Lamb.	†Total.
1941	2,605	276	4,186	374	7,442
1940	2,398	263	4,365	344	7,369
1939	2,267	268	3,484	342	6,361
1938	2,336	280	3,036	361	6,012
1937	2,294	326	2,707	340	5,668
1936	2,416	294	2,836	324	5,870
1935	2,033	282	2,281	336	4,933

†Totals based on unrounded numbers.

England is tapping the American "larder" for huge quantities of meat thru the arrangements provided in the lend-lease act.

At the close of the week the various classes of cattle were mostly at the levels of a week earlier. Calves advanced 50 cents. The various hog classes finished mostly 25 to 40 cents higher than a week earlier, while lambs showed advances of 50 to 75 cents.

A few hogs sold steady yesterday, quality considered, at $11.90 and below.

FROZEN RAW SILK TO BE BOUGHT UP BY GOVERNMENT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23 [Special].—Plans for government purchase of approximately 100,000 bales of "frozen" raw silk supplies now in this country or which arrive in the future were announced today by Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator. The transactions will be handled by the Defense Supplies corporation, which will pay prices fixed by the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply.

Beginning Monday purchase of the raw silk will be made thru the New York office of Defense Supplies corporation, and will be limited to raw silk of specific grades in original bales.

AFL Protests Sales Tax as Hearing Ends

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23 (AP).—A protest by the American Federation of Labor against any form of general sales tax was made to the senate finance committee today as it concluded hearings on the 3,236 million dollar new tax bill.

W. C. Hushing, AFL legislative representative, also objected to lowering of income tax exemptions and told the committee:

"That is the kind of levy which might change the political complexion of congress."

"That might be a very good thing," rejoined Senator Arthur Vandenberg [R., Mich.], an advocate of a general manufacturers' sales tax.

Sales Tax One Issue.

Chairman Walter F. George [D., Ga.] said the committee, which has been listening to complaints of some 150 witnesses for 16 days, would begin executive sessions on the record-breaking revenue measure Monday. He added that the committee hoped to complete its revision of the house-approved bill by next week-end and send it on for consideration of the entire senate. One of the main issues before the committee, he said, would be the question of a sales tax.

The committee received a variety of new tax suggestions at its final hearing, including one from Dr. Francis M. Townsend, the old age pension advocate, for a 5 per cent gross tax on all income of individuals and institutions, payable once a month. Dr. Townsend said this could be substituted for all existing taxes, federal, state, and local, and would produce more revenue.

Tax Authority Testifies.

Lovell H. Parker, former congressional tax expert who testified as a corporation representative, protested provisions in the house bill for computing excess profits taxes.

Vandenberg asked Parker to suggest methods for increasing government income.

The treasury could get more funds, the witness replied, by lowering tax bases, increasing normal tax rates, or levying a general sales tax, such as the English purchase tax.

Senator Prentiss Brown [D., Mich.] later told reporters that this was identical to his proposal for a "selective sales tax" but informed senators said there was slight chance that the committee would approve any form of general sales tax.

SEARS, ROEBUCK PENSION FUND FILES WITH SEC

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23 [Special].—The savings and profit sharing pension fund of Sears, Roebuck & Co. employés, and the company today filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange commission covering 17,500 memberships in the fund. It provides that a maximum of 17,500 employés pay for the memberships by contributing each year 5 per cent of their salary or service allowance for such year.

The maximum that any one member may contribute for any year is set at $250. The aggregate contributions for such period by all members of the fund is estimated not to exceed $3,750,000.

A maximum of 160,000 outstanding shares of Sears, Roebuck no par value capital stock, to be purchased at not more than the market price by the fund for its members during the 12 months' period following the effective date of the registration statement, also was covered by the statement.

CHILE STUDIES PLAN FOR A NEW TRADING PACT WITH RUSSIA

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 23.—Chile is considering the establishment of commercial relations with Russia, it was announced today in official circles.

The soviet government has made a suggestions for setting up the Amtorg Trading corporation here as the first move toward a two way trade movement. Representatives of Russian firms for some time have been examining the possibility of buying important quantities of Chilean minerals.

Nothing has been said whether resumption of diplomatic relations would follow establishment of trade contacts.

NEW INCOME TAXES HIGHER THAN THOSE IN 1918 WAR TAX ACT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23 (AP).—Lovell H. Parker, former congressional tax expert and now a Washington tax consultant, told the senate finance committee today that income tax rates under the house approved 3,236 million dollar revenue measure would bear more heavily on individuals than the wartime tax act of 1918. He submitted the following table comparing the rates provided under the two measures for a married man with no children:

Price Ceiling Slashes Rayon Goods 10 Pct.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23 [Special].—A 10 per cent reduction in the price of major types of rayon gray goods to become effective Monday was ordered today by Leon Henderson, administrator of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, in a price ceiling schedule. The order is expected to affect the costs of women's dresses, men's shirts, underwear, coat and suit linings, and many other items purchased by millions of Americans.

Henderson, acting under authority of a Presidential executive order, said that prices in the 300 million dollar rayon goods industry had risen sharply in recent months and that a voluntary agreement obtained by OPACS with leading weavers in mid-July to maintain their price levels had been nullified in part by "secondhand sales at exorbitant prices."

CLOTH CONTROL IS BROAD.

The Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply recently extended ceiling prices on cotton goods. This, along with the rayon goods order, will impose price control on nearly all of the materials used in most articles made of cotton and rayon, officials said.

Declares Prompt Action Needed.

He said that the mounting demands for rayon, due to the unavailability of additional silk supplies for civilian consumption, had increased the pressure on the price structure and made apparent the need for prompt action to stabilize the market.

OPACS officials said that in establishing a ceiling for gray goods [a trade term applied to cloth woven of rayon yarn and sold in an unfinished state to converters], the main cause for higher finished goods prices had been removed. They added that Henderson "will observe closely the price action of the finished goods markets" and, if they are not brought into line with the lower levels established for gray goods, "appropriate action will be taken to bring about an equitable adjustment."

Other Rules Issued.

When the price ceilings become effective Monday, Henderson stipulated that contracts calling for delivery of goods at higher than ceiling prices may not be completed. He emphasized that the prices apply to all sales or resales, whether by weaver, converter, or any other person.

Manufacturers are required to report monthly to OPACS, beginning Oct. 10, on the manufacture of all constructions not covered by the schedule, where such goods were made in quantites in excess of 25,000 yards per month, and the highest prices at which constructions were sold during the month.

Order Pig Iron Plants; Cost Is 58 Million

The Defense Plant corporation, subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, has contracted with Republic Steel corporation for $58,312,000 of plant expansions which will add 1,572,000 tons a year to pig iron production capacity, Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, announced yesterday in Washington, D. C.

The new facilities, to be operated by Republic under a five year lease, will include four new blast furnaces in plants to be built at Cleveland, Youngstown, and Warren, O., and at Birmingham, Ala. In addition, mining operations will be expanded at Port Henry, N. Y., and Birmingham.

One Project to Take 6 Months.

The company estimated pig iron will be in production at the Birmingham plant within six months and at the other plants in 10 to 15 months. This contract and one recently announced for Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation at Braddock, Pa., will provide 2⅓ of the 6½ million tons of new pig iron capacity recommended by the Office of Production Management.

The Chicago Association of Commerce reported that $44,596,000 in rearmament contracts were awarded last week to 79 Chicago area companies, 21 of which received contracts for the first time.

Aluminum Goods Manufacturing company, Manitowoc, Wis., received a war department order of approximately $500,000 for 1 million cases for 37 millimeter shells. The company had faced shutdown because of aluminum priorities.

Dump Trucks Ordered.

Among rearmament contracts announced yesterday by the war department were: International Harvester company, for Fort Wayne, Ind., plant, $1,051,490, dump trucks; United States Rubber company, Mishawaka, Ind., $2,671,120, for 692,000 raincoats; Studebaker corporation, South Bend, Ind., $942,181, spare automotive parts, and Crawford-Austin Manufacturing company, Waco, Tex., $1,028,800, for 260,000 canvas cots.

The department also ordered $82,000 of lathes from C. & E. Marshall company, Chicago.

Aurora Firm to Get Loan.

The RFC authorized a $350,000 loan to Stoner Manufacturing company of Aurora for equipment and working capital to be used in production of cartridge cases.

Railway Age reported Whitcomb Locomotive works, subsidiary of Baldwin Locomotive works, has received orders for 19 locomotives, including 5 ordered by Bethlehem Steel company and 11 ordered by the war department.

Chicago Bank Clearings Dip, but Top Year Ago

The volume of checks cleared by Chicago banks last week dropped below the preceding week's total but was higher than a year ago, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The respective totals were $380,200,000, $402,000,000, and $282,300,000. The association's report follows:

BRITAIN SPENDS 40% OF BUDGET IN 3½ MONTHS

Lend-Lease Helps 2 Week Showing.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Treasury statistics reveal this week that, despite the reduction of more than 14 million pounds [about 56 million dollars] in Britain's war bill in the past fortnight, which was largely attributed to operations of the lend-lease act, the national expenditure in the first 3½ months of the financial year already has absorbed 40 per cent of the budget estimate. Ordinary income reached 30½ per cent of the total figure calculated by Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Kingsley Wood.

In the first 3½ months, the official figures disclose a cumulative deficit of more than 1,122 million pounds [about 4,488 million dollars] has been piled up.

The total of ordinary revenue to date is given as 546 million pounds [about 2,184 million dollars] and the figures on expenditure reach 4,207 million pounds [about 16,828 million dollars], excluding lend-lease supplies from America.

Week's Total Reduced.

Britain's war costs for the week ended Aug. 16 amounted to 80½ million pounds [about 322 million dollars], compared with 90,309,000 pounds [about $361,236,000] the week before and 94,539,000 pounds [about $378,156,000] in the previous seven days.

The total expenditure, including civil spending, amounted to 86,014,473 pounds [about $344,057,892], compared to 91,861,202 pounds [about $367,444,808] the preceding week and the record figure of 102,007,185 pounds [about $408,028,740] a fortnight ago.

The eight point peace aim program of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill continues to absorb the attention of economists and financiers here. Attempting to analyze how the fifth point, dealing with international economic collaboration and social security, could be operated, the authoritative Financial News concludes that the program completely rules out any return to prewar orthodoxy in monetary policy.

"During the war," the Financial News says, "monetary orthodoxy is not being allowed to hamper production. There is no reason why it should do so after the war merely because useful capital and consumption goods are being produced instead of war materials.

Stresses Materials Supply.

"The first principle in applying the fifth point is that the volume of goods should depend not on artificially limited financial resources but on the amount of materials, the capacity, and the labor available."

There can be no question, the publication declares, of putting up money rates and restricting credit to "make the pound look the dollar in the face" and those who expect to put the clock of monetary policy back to 1925 must "realize that modern statesmen regard high labor standards, economic advancement, and social security as more important than monetary fetishes."

Observing that Roosevelt "has proved himself far from orthodox in monetary matters," the Financial News concludes: "The agreement on the fundamental principles of monetary policy which proved impossible in the world economic conference of 1933 might thus be feasible after this war."

Money Circulation Dips.

For the first time in 12 weeks, Bank of England currency circulation returns this week showed a contradiction by £2,801,739 [about $11,206,956] to £665,375,048 [about 2,661 million dollars].

The reduction was attributed to the belated reflux of extra bills taken out by the public recently for holiday purposes. The Bank of England's currency bill reserve has increased to £14,866,00 [about $59,464,000], and if the present trend continues, market circles state, the bank may be able to avoid resorting to its new powers for expanding the paper and currency issue until the approach of the Christmas season.

SOY BEANS SET NEW HIGH; CORN AND WHEAT DIP

Soy beans sold at new seasonal highs with gains of ¼ to ⅝ cent in the Chicago market yesterday but prices of other grains sagged in a quiet trading session. Soy beans for delivery in September rose to $1.50½ a bushel, against $1.50 on Friday and 67⅞ cents a year ago.

Oat prices in the cash market moved up sufficiently so that it was possible to pay nearby country elevator operators close to 40 cents a bushel for the grain. Grain dealers said it has been several years since it has been possible to pay this much for oats in the country.

At the close wheat was down ⅛ to ⅜ cent a bushel at $1.11⅞ for the September delivery; corn was down ⅛ to ¼ cent; oats, ⅜ to ½ cent, and rye, ¼ to ¾ cent. Lard prices slipped about 5 cents a hundred pounds.

CASH IS NOT A HEDGE.

The market collapse of 1929 started a flight from securities into cash. People who previously had rushed headlong to put their surplus cash into stocks and real estate bonds reversed themselves and converted their securities into cash.

There seemed to be something safe and reassuring about cash. The dollar would always be worth 100 cents. Seeking refuge in cash, people salted their money away in safety vaults, strong boxes, and other places of safekeeping.

After normal banking was restored and public confidence was regained, money came out of hiding and flowed back into the banks. However, many persons continued to hold currency in private safekeeping.

The continuing demand for currency of large denominations indicates that there is still a lot of money being held in private safes or safety deposit boxes. The federal reserve board has estimated that about 1,200 million dollars in large bills have been put into private safekeeping since 1933. This condition may be largely the result of the very low rate of interest which banks can earn on savings nowadays.

Many people have large cash reserves in the banks which they would like to invest, but they cannot find enough attractive mediums.

There are also many who are convinced, because of their 1929 experience, of the inviolate character of cash. They hesitate to buy securities for fear of losing the security they find in cash.

There is sound reason for maintaining large cash reserves in periods of declining prices. The dollar's purchasing power grows as prices drop.

It should be emphasized, however, that the purchasing power may also shrink. You may be able to get 100 cents for the dollar at any time, but it will buy less when prices rise.

The dollar now buys less than it did several months ago. Living costs are higher and you have to pay more dollars for the same amount of living needs.

If prices go up 50 per cent, for example, the real or effective value of the dollar, in terms of goods it can buy, drops 33⅓ per cent. You then really have a 66⅔ cents dollar. Cash, therefore, does not afford protection against rising prices.

This is not an argument for abandoning a cash position. Cash is necessary as a reserve. Despite rising prices, it may still be prudent to maintain a large cash reserve, even tho its purchasing power falls.

However, it should be realized that there is no advantage in maintaining an unnecessary surplus of cash which may be invested to mitigate the effect of rising prices.

DEAR MR. & MRS.:
Now that your vacation is over and you are back in town again for another year, you are interested in a nice place to live at the right rental—and in a desirable accommodation.
Perhaps you paid a little too much and perhaps your summer home was not just what you wanted—that was your vacation and it occurs only once a year. Now you have the time to give the matter your careful consideration.
There are many splendid hotels in Chicago offering excellent apartments correctly priced—but why not look here? We think you will be mighty well pleased that you came in. We'll be glad to see you and show you all we have to offer.
Very cordially yours,
HARRY A. PARRISH, Manager.

Will Give Possession Oct. 1

It's on a large beautifully landscaped lot in Lincolnwood. It has three very large bedrooms and tile bathroom on the second floor, a beautiful entrance hall, a big living room, dining room, completely equipped kitchen and powder room on the main floor. The recreation center in the basement consists of three rooms with a large fireplace in the larger room, flanked on each side by full length mirrors. It's done in tile floor with plywood walls in a French gray. The ceiling in the recreation room is 8 feet high and the rooms are beautifully lighted and ventilated. While the home has hot water heat, it also has summer air conditioning controlled by a large fan in the attic which exhausts the air in the house many times each hour.

It would be the ideal home for a doctor as it is surrounded by many new and beautiful homes. The recreation center with a separate entrance could be used for offices. It can be bought for $3,000 down and $85 per month.

GENEVA—The gem of the jewels in the Fox River Valley offers to the lovers of all that is beautiful in country homes the best in Chicagoland. I have to offer to the discriminating buyers of better homes the following:
A seven room home on the river on a well landscaped lot about 100x165 ft. with garage attached, close to transportation. The house is sound with large living and master bedrooms with fireplaces in each. At the price of 10,000 dollars, more than half of which is ground value, this is an excellent buy.
An eight room house of stone and stucco on a lot 100x100; two car garage; close to schools and transportation. This is a home that will appeal to those who like better type of older homes that have been modernized. Can deliver this for $15,000.
An eight room modern home with two car garage on the most beautiful 250 foot of frontage in Geneva; expensively decorated in very good taste, has a bin feed stoker and a large basement room ready to be made into a recreation room. This is a home that easily rates in the best of the $20,000 class and can be bought for $18,500.
For these and other homes in Geneva from $5,000 to $45,000. See Claude R. Sansone any time including Sundays at 214 West State-street, Geneva. Phones 867 and 2624.

ATTRACTIVE residence in Geneva, Ill., at half cost. Thoroly modern in arrangement, decoration, and conveniences. Large living and dining rooms, both with fireplaces, study, model kitchen, butler's pantry, four master bedrooms and three baths, two maids' rooms and bath. Hot water oil heat, laundry and workshop. Located on two acres in choice residential section. Large elms, meadow with fruit trees. Two car garage, playhouse, swings, etc., for children. Fifty minutes to downtown Chicago. $27,500. Will Give Possession Oct. 1

It's on a large beautifully landscaped lot in Lincolnwood. It has three very large bedrooms and tile bathroom on the second floor, a beautiful entrance hall, a big living room, dining room, completely equipped kitchen and powder room on the main floor. The recreation center in the basement consists of three rooms with a large fireplace in the larger room, flanked on each side by full length mirrors. It's done in tile floor with plywood walls in a French gray. The ceiling in the recreation room is 8 feet high and the rooms are beautifully lighted and ventilated. While the home has hot water heat, it also has summer air conditioning controlled by a large fan in the attic which exhausts the air in the house many times each hour.

It would be the ideal home for a doctor as it is surrounded by many new and beautiful homes. The recreation center with a separate entrance could be used for offices. It can be bought for $3,000 down and $85 per month.

Geneva—45 minutes to loop.

GENEVA—The gem of the jewels in the Fox River Valley offers to the lovers of all that is beautiful in country homes the best in Chicagoland. I have to offer to the discriminating buyers of better homes the following:

A seven room home on the river on a well landscaped lot about 100x165 ft. with garage attached, close to transportation. The house is sound with large living and master bedrooms with fireplaces in each. At the price of 10,000 dollars, more than half of which is ground value, this is an excellent buy.

An eight room house of stone and stucco on a lot 100x100; two car garage; close to schools and transportation. This is a home that will appeal to those who like better type of older homes that have been modernized. Can deliver this for $15,000.

An eight room modern home with two car garage on the most beautiful 250 foot of frontage in Geneva; expensively decorated in very good taste, has a bin feed stoker and a large basement room ready to be made into a recreation room. This is a home that easily rates in the best of the $20,000 class and can be bought for $18,500.

For these and other homes in Geneva from $5,000 to $45,000. See Claude R. Sansone any time including Sundays at 214 West State-street, Geneva. Phones 867 and 2624.

ATTRACTIVE residence in Geneva, Ill., at half cost. Thoroly modern in arrangement, decoration, and conveniences. Large living and dining rooms, both with fireplaces, study, model kitchen, butler's pantry, four master bedrooms and three baths, two maids' rooms and bath. Hot water oil heat, laundry and workshop. Located on two acres in choice residential section. Large elms, meadow with fruit trees. Two car garage, playhouse, swings, etc., for children. Fifty minutes to downtown Chicago. $27,500. Inspection by appointment. COLEMAN LAND CO., ST. CHARLES. 202 W Main-st. Phone 73. Open Sunday.

DAY by DAY on the FARM
by BOB BECKER

Barnyard "Magic."

Aug. 23, 1941.

IF chickens could talk, one bantam hen on the Wheaton farm might tell how she incubated three imitation hen's eggs [made of glass] for just one night and the next morning had seven little guinea chicks. Of course there's a story behind this barnyard magic. The flockmaster told us about it when we were on the farm this week.

He had 34 guinea eggs in the electric incubator. When they were just about ready to hatch he figured that he'd better give some of them to the bantam hen, which had tried to steal some Muscovy duck eggs to hatch. The Muscovy hen didn't like that, so the bantam was driven away greatly dissatisfied.

A Trick Is Played.

On the evening that the guinea eggs started to open the flockmaster hustled the bantam into a nesting box with three glass eggs. Early the next morning he took away the glass eggs and substituted seven partly hatched guinea eggs. When the little chicks started popping out of the eggs the bantam was content. The other 27 guinea chicks are being led around the barnyard by White Rock hens, so all are being well cared for.

Several Muscovy ducks still are incubating eggs in the barnyard, but the flockmaster was saying the other day that these birds had better "step on it" or their ducklings will get caught by Jack Frost. Every week we see new evidence that summer is reaching the end of the line and before long autumn will be flinging out more of its banners.

The First Wild Asters.

During a hike thru the woods this week we saw the season's first wild asters, the dainty little flowers which herald the approach of autumn. Before long they will be abundant around all of the farm ponds. The gradual turning of the dogwood leaves from green to pale purple added another touch of autumn to this week's farm scene, and in one corner of the farm a sumac hedge is showing touches of flaming red, one of the most distinctive signs of fall.

There are other evidences of autumn around the farm. Delicious grapes ripening in the vineyard, the last of the wild chokecherries in deep purple ripeness, and thorn apples turning red.

WAR IN THE AIR AS I SAW IT!

Foreword This is an eyewitness account of the battle of Britain as it was fought over English soil when the German air force—the Luftwaffe—tried to prepare the way for an invasion of the British Isles by softening up England's defenses and disrupting her lines of supplies and communications. The author, who for many days stood on the white cliffs of Dover and watched the battle rage above his head, is now in this country and for the first time is able to tell the amazing details of that epic struggle.

By EYEWITNESS

THE BATTLE OF BRITAIN opened for me when, with an American news reel cameraman, I stood on the 300-foot-high cliffs of Dover Aug. 8, 1940. We were watching a convoy of 17 or 18 small freighters poking along under the watchful eyes of two destroyers and motor torpedo boats—MTB's. It was a beautiful day and a most peaceful scene, with the sea calm and the little boats puffing bravely along.

But the peace was shattered suddenly as one of the destroyers apparently burst into flame from stem to stern. Her anti-aircraft batteries were pouring a stream of shells into the air at targets we hadn't even noticed. When we looked upward we could discern a flash of wings and tiny shapes flying in mass. Nazis, undoubtedly. High. They must have been up 15,000 feet anyway.

While we looked they rapidly grew larger and we realized they were diving toward the convoy. At 8,000 feet they pulled out of that first dive, circled, and then peeled off one at a time into almost vertical descents. Then we could see they were Stuka dive bombers—Junkers Ju-87s, the single-motored flying artillery that had caused such destruction in Poland and France.

There were 20 of them in all, and they stayed right behind one another—sort of a daisy chain. Each pilot stayed just out of the propeller blast of the man ahead of him. Their motors were screaming, but they were coming down at a speed that we noticed was comparatively slow. We could see the details of each ship grow and suddenly stand out as they neared us. As they came on down the heavy (Continued on page six.)

Diagrammatic picture of the Royal Air force ground organization that beat off the German air raiders in the battle of Britain during the fall of 1940. The diagram shows one fighter group, of which there were many covering all England. All these groups were controled by the commander in chief of the fighter command headquarters. From there, as the diagram shows, control passed to group command, thence to headquarters for fighter squadrons dispersed over many airdromes within the area defended by that group. The entire network was operated by radio and teletypewriters. Commands given from the fighter command went directly to the pilots in fighter aircraft waiting on the ground with motors ticking over. Once fighting planes were in the air, they were directed as to course and altitude from their squadron headquarters until they intercepted German aircraft. The network functioned only because of warnings received from the radio detector, which gave the squadrons 20 to 30 minutes in which to gain altitude before the raiders appeared.

Red Joe Stalin Purger of Children!

By W. G. KRIVITSKY

OF ALL the purges initiated by Josef Stalin the most frightful, the one that, even if it were possible for history to forget all else, could never be erased from the horrified memory of mankind, is his purge of the children.

Early in 1935 the OGPU (Stalin's secret police) presented the political bureau with a report on juvenile delinquency. The shootings and deportations and famines of 1932-'33 in soviet Russia had produced a fresh wave of bezprisornii, homeless waifs roaming the countryside. The OGPU analyzed this vast children's tragedy and pointed out to Stalin the shocking conditions that prevailed. There was a tremendous crime wave among young children. Disease among them was widespread. Sexual depravity was almost universal. Even more shocking to Stalin, the report disclosed that many thousands of children, as an escape from their hard life, were entering religious sects.

• • •

Stalin decided to act. The OGPU, strangely enough, had always taken a measure of pride in reforming children and had actually succeeded in regenerating quite a handful from among the millions cast loose by the bolshevik revolution and the civil war. But with this fresh crop of waifs Stalin decided upon a new course.

On April 8, 1935, Izvestia (communist party newspaper) published an official decree of the soviet government, signed by President Kalinin and Premier Molotov, entitled "Measures to Combat Crime Among Minors." This decree extended the death penalty to children above the age of 12 for offenses ranging from petty larceny to treason. Armed with this terrible weapon, the OGPU rounded up hundreds of thousands of young children and condemned them to concentration camps, to labor gangs, and in many cases to execution.

It was just when these horrors were taking place that Stalin emerged from his semi-monastic isolation and began to pose before cameras as the godfather of Russia's little children. We began for the first time to see photographs of him mingling with them in their playgrounds. He was shown escorting a 12-year-old girl to the parade in Red square, borrowing carfare for her from War Commissar Voroshilov. Again, he was receiving gifts from a pretty child who came from distant Turkestan, the champion cotton picker of her district, to receive the order of Lenin and a gold watch and a kiss from the "Father of Nations." I am not speaking ironically, but stating dreadful facts.

This camouflage was employed deliberately during these most terrible months when the OGPU was blotting out the lives of 12, 13, and 14 year old children on official charges of being "traitors, spies, Trotskyists, Fascists, agents of Hitler and the mikado."

Not until February, 1939, did the world get an inkling of this, the most frightful purge of all. By then the time had come, as it always does, to find a few scapegoats—minor OGPU functionaries whose only crime was that they obeyed orders. The local OGPU prosecutor in Leninsk-Kuznetsk and several of his assistants were chosen for this function. From the provincial courtroom in this village in the Urals the outside world learned that 10-year-old boys had been tortured into confessing "counterrevolutionary, Fascist, terrorist" activities.

It learned that 160 school children had been crowded into cells with common criminals, where they slept without bedding and were subjected to eight months of incessant nighttime cross-examination. The torturers of these children received prison sentences of from five to ten years. But the decree of April 8, 1935, has never been repealed, and the number of its victims similarly tortured, or even more summarily disposed of, all over the country since 1935 has never been and never can be estimated.

All that is officially known from the admission of the soviet government is that in the town of Leninsk-Kuznetsk, which is but a pin point on the map of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, 160 school children were subjected by the OGPU to medieval tortures under a law formulated by Stalin, while Stalin was being photographed smiling benignly among his godchildren.

Musclers in Minneapolis

This is another in a series of articles unmasking "THE MEN WHO PREY ON LABOR"

By LLOYD WENDT

FOR A DECADE Minneapolis has been in the grip of a labor front dictatorship which has demonstrated its ability to tie up the whole transportation system of the Twin Cities area. The rulers are three brothers, Myles, Vincent, and Grant Dunne. They are not ordinary racketeers, but political operators who took over labor unions for the advancement of their revolutionary ideals. For this all three are now under federal indictment on charges of seditious conspiracy and plotting to overthrow the government.

In some respects the brothers Dunne make the Capone-Nitti racketeer crowd in Chicago look like panty-waists. When William S. Brown was removed as president of Minneapolis' General Drivers' union 544 by shooting in May, 1936, Myles Dunne, who then became czar of the union, provided money from the local's own treasury for the defense of Arnold Johnson, the killer. Johnson was acquitted. Nothing in Chicago has been quite as neat as that.

The Dunne boys focused national attention upon Minneapolis in 1935 with two truckers' strikes and supplemental disorders that resulted in four persons killed and brought martial law and a federal investigation. In connection with the government inquiry United States Attorney General Homer S. Cummings later characterized Minneapolis and St. Paul as "breeding grounds of crime."

• • •

About a year ago Daniel S. Tobin, president of the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters, known as an honest labor official and one who has demanded that the AFL drive racketeers from its ranks, took notice of the Minneapolis situation. He determined to institute his own cleanup. But he was outguessed by the Dunne boys. Just as Tobin's investigators appeared to be getting somewhere Myles Dunne called a meeting of local 544 and directed his followers to vote for affiliation with John L. Lewis' Congress of Industrial Organizations. Thus local 544 with its foul record has now become the property of the CIO.

This slick transfer not only blocked the Tobin probe but also threw out a suit for accounting of funds. In connection with the transfer of those funds from AFL 544 to CIO 544, however, Myles Dunne has been indicted by the Hennepin county grand jury on charges of larceny.

The Dunne boys grew up in Minneapolis, coming there from Little Falls, Minn. Vincent early got into labor activities. He was a member of the Western Federation of Miners in 1905, a charter member of the Industrial Workers of the World, and was active in IWW organization work in Missoula, Spokane, Seattle, and San Francisco. He served sentences in Seattle and Los Angeles in connection with his labor activities.

In the early '20s Vincent returned to Minneapolis and became a charter member of the Minneapolis office workers, treasurer of the local, and a delegate to the central labor union. He was expelled from both posts in 1924 for communist activity and four years later was expelled from the Minnesota Farmer-Labor party. That same year he became communist candidate for congress, and with Grant and Myles he helped organize the Minneapolis branch of the Communist League of America.

The three brothers then began organizing the Minneapolis coal workers and in 1932 they were taken into the AFL General Drivers' union, which had only 175 members.

The General Drivers' union promptly mushroomed in membership, and in 1935 President Brown, on the advice of the Dunne brothers, called the sanguinary truckers' strike that tied up Minneapolis and brought down martial law.

The General Drivers' union, under direction of the Dunnes, became the spearhead of violent labor activity resulting in waves of strikes and sluggings. The Dunne brothers became active in the Socialist Workers' party, and, by combining their labor and political influence, were reckoned as powers in Minneapolis. The man they backed was the late Gov. Floyd Olson.

Minneapolis at the time teemed with political corruption. A few months before the strike, Howard Guilford, editor of the Saturday Press, began a crusade for a cleanup. He was shot and killed. A short time later Walter Liggett, another crusading editor, took up the fight, demanding that the murderer of Guilford be brought to justice.

"The murderer of Editor Guilford is now driving a liquor truck for the same gang of bootleggers who tried to beat me to death (in October, 1935)" Liggett said in his paper. "He could be picked up by the police tomorrow if they wanted him, but apparently he is immune—for services rendered."

A few weeks later, in December, 1935, Liggett was shot down by assassins.

In 1937 Patrick J. Corcoran, secretary of the General Drivers' union, vice president of the Minnesota Federation of Labor, and close friend of President Brown, was shot and killed. Myles Dunne took over his job. Six months later Johnson, minor union official, killed President Brown, and Carl Skoglund, follower of the Dunnes was moved into Brown's office.

At a later trial in Minneapolis Skoglund admitted that the union then organized a corps of armed guards for service in time of labor disputes. Other members of the union testified that the guard was in fact a battalion of 300 men, who drilled regularly and had frequent test mobilizations. The battalion was organized in squads of five men each for ready transportation in automobiles.

In this connection it is necessary to examine the political tenets of the Dunne brothers. They are Trotskyite communists, advocates of world revolution and the theory that a few determined, well armed men can take over a city and even a government, particularly if labor strikes can be called in their support.

The Trotskyites quarrel continuously with the Stalinist communists, and the Stalinist Daily Worker in New York once had this to say of the Dunne brothers:

"They are Trotskyite racketeers, gangsters, gunmen, and associates of employers and the underworld."

In 1936 Tobin and his international made a first and unsuccessful attempt to clean up the Minneapolis labor situation. The Dunnes and local 544 were suspended from the international. They promptly began organizing an independent union No. 500. The AFL chartered a rival 574 union. Both sides engaged in strong-arm tactics, and the Dunnes charged that labor sluggers were brought in from Chicago to run them out of town.

Neither side was winning the bloody fight, and finally a truce was agreed upon. The Dunnes were to oust the radicals in their union, and Myles Dunne in turn, who somehow did not fall into the radical category, was to rule old local 544, which was to be reinstated. Tobin didn't trust the Dunnes, and the Chicago strong-arm boys, notably the Firotto brothers, remained in Minneapolis to keep an eye on Myles and his brothers. Instead the Dunnes took them over. Later Eddie Firotto was sentenced to six years in a federal prison on charges of counterfeiting.

Strife continued in local 544. Some members accused Myles Dunne of autocratic rule, and charged that the treasury was being looted to pay for his revolutionary activities. Frequent suits for an accounting of funds were filed.

Finally, last year, Tobin, hearing of these new charges, resolved again to break the hold of the Dunnes. He failed when on June 9 of this year, the General Drivers', with a record of 300 strike notices issued and more violence and bloodshed than any other local in the country, voted for affiliation with the CIO United Construction Workers' organization.

• • •

The Dunne brothers' hold on the Minneapolis drivers seemed unbroken, but the federal government took a hand in the situation. On July 14 the federal grand jury in St. Paul indicted 29 persons on charges of seditious conspiracy and advocating the overthrow of the government of the United States. The action was described as the greatest peacetime roundup of seditionists in our history. Almost half of those indicted were members of Dunnes' General Drivers' union. All were members of the Socialist Workers' party.

Among those indicted were the brothers, Myles, Vincent, and Grant Dunne; Skoglund, former president of the Dunnes' union, and Emil Hanson, former bodyguard for Leon Trotsky and an organizer for the union. It is expected that the entire 29 will go on trial this autumn.

Many labor luminaries who have graduated from criminal careers into jobs permitting them to push around the rank and file of organized labor have been discussed in this series. Most of them are from the ranks of the American Federation of Labor, but the CIO has several choice candidates, among them John W. Filer and U. S. Lusk of Pittsburgh, and Paul Mehringer of Cleveland.

Filer, president of the CIO State, County, and Municipal Workers in Pittsburgh, has a particularly vicious record. He was first convicted of robbery when he was 16 years old. Two years later he was sentenced to two and a half years in the penitentiary for robbery. In 1926 he deserted from the United States army and was sentenced to 18 months in Leavenworth.

Soon after his release from Leavenworth, Filer was arrested for automobile theft and put on probation. In 1931 he was arrested in a jewel robbery and sentenced to 5 to 10 years in prison. Shortly after his release on parole Filer went into labor organization work, and a few months later he was elected president of his local.

Lusk is president of local 117 of the Utility Workers' Organizing committee of the CIO. His record is one year on probation for box car burglary.

In Cleveland Mehringer is president of the Die Casters' union, CIO. In 1924 Mehringer was given four years probation for automobile theft. In 1931 he robbed the grocery store of Carl Milling and was sentenced to serve 10 to 25 years. He served seven years of his sentence, changed his name to Martin, and then became a union official. Oddly, Milling meanwhile had become a die caster and joined the union. Now Mehringer, the man convicted of robbing him, is Milling's union boss.

How it is possible for racketeer union officials to maintain their power in the local unions, silence protests, and then escape prosecution is illustrated in the case of Harry Van Arsdale, ex-business agent of local 3, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, an AFL union in New York.

On Feb. 24, 1933, during the course of a factional dispute within the union, William Sorenson and Frank Sooner, members of local 3, were shot and wounded in the union headquarters.

Sorenson told the police: "Van Arsdale pulled a gun. He fired at me and the first bullet hit me in the stomach. He fired another shot at me."

Harry Godell, a union member who had witnessed the shooting, was himself shot and killed shortly afterward. Adelbert Letscher, a member of the Sorenson faction, testified against Van Arsdale on May 27, 1933. A few hours later Letscher was attacked and acid thrown in his face.

• • •

Van Arsdale was convicted and sentenced to 6 to 12 years in Sing Sing prison, but his petition for a retrial was granted. By this time it was reported that the plaintiffs had been paid $15,000 for their injuries, and they no longer wanted to testify. So Van Arsdale did not go to prison on that charge, nor did he lose his union job.

In April of this year, after Van Arsdale and his union had been indicted on federal charges of violating the Sherman anti-trust law, Van Arsdale was found guilty of rioting in what was said to have been a shake-down strike, and was sentenced to one or two years in Sing Sing.

Obviously members of the locals take great risks if they attempt to oust local leaders who rule by the gun, especially since experience has taught them that they can expect little help from their internationals.

Where the labor racket clean-up must begin has been the source of controversy for some time. David Dubinsky of the garment workers and Daniel Tobin of the teamsters have insisted that the AFL must do the housecleaning. Tobin showed the way last April when he summarily ousted the Hoboken truck drivers' union for failing to expel Hyman Singer, its ex-convict president.

BOOST FOR BERGMAN

Ingrid Bergman in a Swedish picture.

With Leslie Howard in "Intermezzo."

Hollywood.

THE ONLY SWEDE we movie fans have known up to now is G. Garbo—a publicity-shy, publicity-wise actress of undoubted talent who has never, so far as we know, been interested in anything more human than a vitamin. Somehow we feel that the noble essence of a raw carrot has fascinated her more than a John Gilbert, a Leopold Stokowski or a Melvyn Douglas.

Let's, this morning, consider a new Swede—a normal, husky, splendidly good-looking actress of undoubted talent named Ingrid Bergman. In the next few months Miss Bergman should set a new style in Scandinavians, and it is more than likely that she will be up for an academy award. She already has one chance, for her portrayal of the sexy and terror-struck victim of Spencer Tracy in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." She may top this when, in all probability and despite all other rumors, she plays Maria in Ernest Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls."

Looking at Hollywood with JOHN CHAPMAN

Bergman's début on the American screen was in "Intermezzo," a picture involving Leslie Howard which cut no great swath but which achieved a sort of postmortem fame because a few orchestra leaders and the listening public discovered that—thanks to Tschaikowski—the theme song was a good tune.

Last February I was the first reporter to be admitted to the set of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" at Metro. The picture had been hush-hush because Spencer Tracy, as honest and unphony a man as there is in Hollywood, didn't want anybody hanging around when he was doing Mr. Hyde. When I got on the scene he was the handsome Dr. Jekyll, so naturally I began to ask him about Mr. Hyde.

"The Hyde part," he said, "isn't believable when you come right down to it. But if the audiences are convinced I think it will be because of Ingrid Bergman. There is an actress! I don't throw the word 'great' around—just use it on Helen Hayes and a couple of others—and I think Miss Bergman is great. She'll make the picture."

At the time I put this down as the talk of a firmly established but generous star concerning a newcomer—as another example of Tracy's astonishing modesty. But, now that I've seen the picture I think he was right. Tracy, looking like John L. Lewis in his Hyde makeup, is swell; but the top performance is the new Swede's. She is sexy, which few believed she could be, and as Spence said during the shooting, her own believable terror is what makes Mr. Hyde convincing.

Ingrid Bergman is tall—five feet six; she has large, strong hands, ash blonde hair and a Scandinavian skin which is perfection in texture and color. She is about 27, is married to Dr. Peter Eckstrom, a dentist, and has a 3 year old daughter, Pia. Altho she gets a very decent wage—probably around $750 a week—she is thrifty; has no elaborate wardrobe and drives a modest coupe that is in its third year. She lives in a two room furnished apartment on the wrong side of Beverly Hills; the place can't cost more than $65 a month, and she shares it with a companion, Ruth Roberts, whose card is on the apartment bell. Miss Bergman practically never goes out and never entertains here.

Dr. Eckstrom and the child are in Rochester, N. Y., where Eckstrom is serving an interneship as a dental surgeon. Miss Bergman spends as little time as possible in Hollywood; within 48 hours of completing a picture she is on her way to Sneden's landing, up the Hudson from New York, where she and her husband have a house in a theatrical colony that includes Burgess Meredith.

Ingrid, daughter of a photographer, was born in Stockholm and was educated at the Lyceum for Flickor, a highly reputed girl's school. She majored in languages. When she was 15 she wrote, directed; and acted in a school play, and this brought her to the attention of the director of the Royal Dematic theater, who enrolled her in an acting course. Before she had completed her first term a talent scout for the Svensk Filmindustri tapped her for the flickers. She started with a bit rôle; within two years she had made 11 pictures and nine of them starred her. Some of these were in Swedish, some in German, a couple in English.

About three years ago one of these films played Hollywood's Esquire theater, which is devoted to foreign movies, and David O. Selznick happened to see it. He immediately began negotiations to place Miss Bergman under contract and bring her to Hollywood. I had tea with her one day in New York, when she was on her way here, and found her to be simple, modest, shy, and more than a little afraid of working in English in Hollywood.

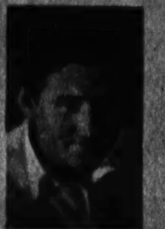
THEY SAY . . .

GARBO: "Ay tank Ay go home."

BERGMAN: "Please don't bother me, because I'm going to have a baby."



TRACY: "There is an actress! I think Miss Bergman is great."

. . . AND DO

DAMION O'FLYNN—played opposite Ingrid; now movies want to pay him more.

On occasion he will loan her out. She played opposite Bob Montgomery in "Rage in Heaven" at Metro, but did little except look attractive.

Next she appeared to better advantage in a Columbia Pictures film, "Adam Had Four Sons," with Warner Baxter as her leading man. Then she went back to Metro for "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and it was her happiest experience to date; for Tracy, kind and wise, gave her invaluable help.

For a week early in August Miss Bergman played in a stock company presentation of "Anna Christie"—opposite Damion O'Flynn, a newcomer whom Selznick and John Ford share. It's interesting to note that O'Flynn, who has been around quite a while, could have been had by almost any studio for $75 a week and nobody wanted him. Following the Santa Barbara showcase performance the bids have been rolling in, with studios wanting him at fancy figures.

What next for Bergman? Well, she has a copy of "For Whom the Bell Tolls" and in the flyleaf is Ernest Hemingway's inscription, "To Ingrid Bergman, who is the perfect Maria of this book." She hasn't been announced for the cast yet, and Paramount, which is to make the picture, has been testing other players and is looking for more. But it's a good bet that Paramount will end up by renting Miss Bergman from Mr. Selznick at whatever price he sets, for occasionally in the movies you can't get around a definite choice of one player for a certain part.

Up to now, Ingrid has shown no ham. When she was in Santa Barbara a date was made for her to pose on the beach for a magazine color picture. The date was for 10 a. m. She got up at 7:30, was all set in her beach costume at the appointed time—and the cameraman didn't show. She waited patiently for a couple of hours, then was informed that the fotog had called from Hollywood to explain that he had overslept. Most stars would have whipped into a fury and said "The hell with him." Ingrid merely commented, good naturedly:

"I can understand that. I wouldn't have minded oversleeping myself this morning."

• • •

Bergman is tractable and has quiet humor—but is in her way just as determined as Garbo. She had many offers from Hollywood before Selznick landed her, and she turned them down because she had heard of too many foreign actors whom California imported, made over, and threw away.

Her comment to one eager agent was as good as Garbo's "Ay tank ay go home."

"Please don't bother me," she said, "because I'm going to have a baby."

Selznick sent his New York representative, Katharine Brown, to Sweden to get Bergman, and it was this visit that broke Ingrid down. She decided that if movie people were as nice and sensible as K. Brown, maybe Hollywood would be all right. But she wouldn't sign for a long term contract. She'd make "Intermezzo" and then go home again.

When she got here she was determined Hollywood wasn't going to make her over into something unrecognizable—and Hollywood nearly lost her right off the bat. She reported for makeup for the picture and the makeup man had zealous ideas about changing her hair a bit and thinning out her fairly heavy eyebrows and hopping up her mouth. Ingrid was just ready to flounce out of the place and take the next boat to Sweden when Selznick happened in and, in a paraphrase of "Barbara Frietchie," told the makeup man, "touch a hair of that fair head and you die like a dog."

Garbo has long been over the "go home" complex. Bergman still is homesick for Sweden. She hoped she could get back to Stockholm by way of Petsamo after "Jekyll and Hyde" was finished, but even this route was closed. She did go home after "Intermezzo" was shot, and says she was a disappointment to her townsfolk. Swedes are great movie fans, following their own and foreign films, and they know as much about Hollywood as any American shopgirl. They asked her how were the boys and girls at Hollywood and Vine, and how about the Brown Derby and the Trocadero and such places. Miss Bergman didn't know because she had never gone any place.

"I think they suspected after a while," she says, "that I had never been to Hollywood."

How's Your Pronunciation?

● Many of us take pride in the belief that we pronounce correctly the words that we employ in everyday speech. Yet often we may be wrong without knowing it, for our friends and acquaintances are reluctant to put us right. Here are ten words (with definitions) frequently mispronounced. Try them yourself and then turn to page eight and ascertain how many of them you have spoken correctly.

2—Alcalde: noun; administrative official (usually mayor) or judge in Spain or Spanish colonies.
3—Alms: noun, singular and plural; a gift to relieve poor; charity; work of mercy.
4—Animalcule: noun; a minute animal, invisible or nearly invisible to naked eye.
5—Benares: proper noun; a city and district in British India.
6—Bivouac: verb; to encamp, as for night, without tents or housing; to encamp for short period in open air: noun; encampment for short time under improvised shelter or without shelter; night encampment wihout shelter; site of such encampment; a camping out.
7—Bon mot: noun; witty remark; piquant, adroit, or happy expression.
8—Cabal: noun; secret meeting, especially of plotters; a junto; a number of persons united in secret design; a secret; plot; conspiracy; word from first letter of surname of each of five members of committee of foreign affairs of Charles II.—Clifford, Arlington, Buckingham, Ashley, and Lauderdale: verb; to unite to form a cabal; to intrigue.

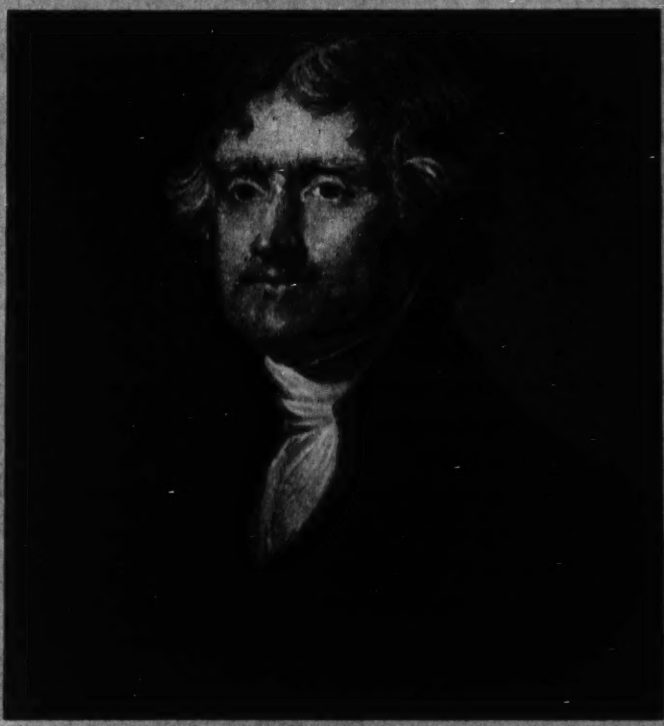
DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS

● This is another in a series of biographical sketches of America's historical celebrities appearing every week in the Graphic Section. The illustrations are taken from a famous work, "The National Portrait Gallery of Distinguished Americans," published in 1865.



THOMAS JEFFERSON, among the foremost of America's great liberal leaders, was born at Shadwell, Albemarle county, Va., April 13, 1743, and obtained his formal education at the College of William and Mary at Williamsburg, Va.

He studied law in the office of George Wythe, later chancellor of the state of Virginia, and in 1767 was admitted to the bar. Having become independent in means thru the inheritance of a 1,900-acre estate on the death of his father, he married Martha Wayles Skelton, a widow, in 1772. His wife died in about 10 years, leaving him with two small daughters, but he never remarried.

Jefferson became a member of the Virginia house of burgesses in 1769 and a member of the Continental congress in 1775. As one of the foremost leaders of the revolution he was chosen to draft the Declaration of Independence. This is the work for which he is most famous, altho much of the credit must be given to him for the revision of the laws of Virginia.

In 1779, when the revolutionary cause seemed almost hopeless, he succeeded Patrick Henry as governor of Virginia. During his second term as governor, in 1780 and 1781, his state was overrun by British troops.

After serving as governor he entered the state legislature, and then still later was returned to congress, where his activities were marked by attacks upon the institution of slavery. He hated slavery, altho at one time he owned more than 150 slaves.

The years from 1784 to 1789 were spent by Jefferson in France, first as an assistant to Benjamin Franklin in negotiating treaties and then as American minister. On his return to his native land he was named secretary of state in President Washington's cabinet. Alexander Hamilton was secretary of the treasury, and between the two there developed a violent hostility over questions of national policy. This lack of harmony caused Jefferson to retire on Dec. 31, 1793, to his home at Monticello, near Charlottesville, Va.

Here he stayed, occupied with his experiments in scientific gardening and his studies of mechanical principles, until 1796, when as the Republican candidate for the Presidency he was elected Vice President. In those days, under the constitution, the candidate running first won the Presidency and the one with the next highest vote the Vice Presidency. This was changed by a constitutional amendment in 1804.

In 1800, when the Federalist party lost at the polls, the Republican candidates, Jefferson and Aaron Burr, received an equal number of electoral votes. The issue, under the law, was thrown into the house of representatives, which in the end named Jefferson President. He entered upon his duties March 4, 1801. In 1804 he was reëlected. The most celebrated accomplishment of his first administration was the purchase of the Louisiana territory from France. His second term was marked by the unsuccessful efforts to convict Burr of treason and by the attempts to maintain, without going to war, the rights of neutrals on the high seas.

The completion of Jefferson's second term as President ended for him nearly 40 years of public service. Like Washington, he refused to become a candidate for a third term, altho he had been urged by the legislatures of five states to do so.

Jefferson's last years were devoted to the founding of the University of Virginia at Charlottesville. He planned the buildings, supervised their construction, engaged the faculty, and shaped the policy of the institution.

As he had left the Presidency with debts amounting to $20,000, his final years were clouded by financial worries. He was threatened with bankruptcy, and it was only thru the raising of a national subscription of $16,500 that he was allowed to die in peace. His death occurred on July 4, 1826, on the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

GRAPHIC LITTLE THEATER Presents Fred MacMurray and Errol Flynn in "Dive Bomber"

1 Three nonchalant young flyers, Rick, Dick, and Jack (Louis Heydt, Fred MacMurray, and Regis Toomey), the daring dive bombing team on the aircraft carrier Enterprise, have come to be known as the Top Hatters. They are inseparable until Rick crashes during a practice dive. Rushed to the Honolulu naval hospital, Rick dies despite the brilliant efforts of Renny, a young lieutenant in the medical corps.

2 It was a million to one chance at best, but Dick and Jack blame Renny (Errol Flynn) for Rick's failure to recover. A few days later they meet in the service club, and the atmosphere chills immediately. "Hya, fellas," greets Renny. "I must get my ears examined," Dick says to Jack. "I'm hearing strange, unpleasant noises."

3 Altho it was not his fault, Rick's death makes Renny realise he hasn't been giving all his best efforts to his profession. To his girl of the moment, Jean (Alexis Smith), he says: "Darling, I've got another date—with a flight surgeon. He's teaching me how to test a pilot to determine if he's fit for high-speed and high-altitude flying. If Rick had been examined maybe he wouldn't have made that fatal flight."

4 Successful in his new pursuit, Renny discovering he is suffering from fatig about this dangerous ailment, Renny le Dick, resentful last member of the Top it, mister," Dick says. "I'm going to m both our necks d machine guns on the destroyers opened up, and then the lighter guns on most of the freighters. Straight into that concentrated fire they came. Then the leader dropped his bomb—or bombs, since we found later that these planes carry one big bomb of 1,100 pounds and four smaller 110-pound bombs each—and flattened out. The bombs were dropped at 1,000 feet more or less, and the plane sank another 500 to 600 feet in the recovery.

Boom! came the explosions. Screech! went the airplane's motor, and the pilot, now level, dipped down until he was flying 10 feet above the sea, and streaked for France. Right behind him came the No. 2 man. Boom! went another bomb. And then they came so fast we couldn't count them. Huge waterspouts, higher than the freighters were long, blossomed on the sea and mingled with a gout of smoke. We saw the whole thing happening so quickly that we hardly had time to record the affair with all our senses. We didn't even notice the horrible racket, because we were watching so intently.

The gunfire from the water apparently missed all the diving planes. But before the whole squadron could get into its dive a British fighter patrol—Hurricanes—dashed into the dive bombers still at the 8,000-foot level and shot down three, one in flames. The others just came spinning down to fall into the water several miles offshore. No one bailed out of these ships, so all the crews were killed—two men to each Stuka.

• • •

While the Germans were losing planes upstairs, however, the British were taking a shellacking on the sea. Two ships came to a stop, crippled and shattered. Four others were badly wrecked a short time later when this same convoy was attacked a little farther up the coast by another group of Stukas. We didn't see this second action, but heard the story in Dover. This was the last daylight convoy to go thru the Narrows—the 20-mile-wide strait between Dover and Calais. From that time on this portion of the trip always has been made at night. The slow-moving convoys were too easily hit by daylight.

That same afternoon we saw our first clash between British and German fighters. At this time the British were maintaining a constant patrol along the coast with fighters. In mid-afternoon a squadron of German planes—12 in all, moving in basic units of two and groups of four—came weaving over from France.

The Germans fly a queer sort of "braided" formation—the groups of two constantly changing places, crossing tracks, and sliding over and under each other. British pilots later told me this was done so the pilots could watch all sectors of the sky and prevent a surprise attack.

In this instance, however, the Germans seemed to be surprised. The British patrol, also of 12 planes, got a little above and to the rear quarter of the Germans. We could hear the motors buzzing and then a higher note as the British dived in. There was a ripping of machine guns—just as if some one had torn a piece of calico cloth. That was the British eight .30-caliber guns going in each fighter. Each gun fires at the rate of 1,100 shots a minute, and individual reports simply are not heard.

Two German planes dropped out of the formation, the British came on beyond, and the two enemy formations wheeled for position again. The damaged German ships began to spin, one afire. All this, mind you, had happened in a matter of 10 or 12 seconds. The British meanwhile were climbing as hard as they could back to the German level. And the Germans turned seaward.

Then the formations mingled again. More shots, this time punctuated by the faint pop-pop-popping of the German automatic shell-firing cannon. These are 20-millimeter and deadly air weapons that fire an explosive shell accurately for a long distance. They are effective at about four times the ordinary machine gun range, which is 200 to 250 yards. Another German and two British fell this time as the rest of the fight disappeared over the sea, rapidly breaking up into individual duels.

A black shape came hurtling out of one of the British ships. A parachute bloomed. The pilot, swinging in his harness, was being blown eastward toward France. The other two planes plunged into the sea and disappeared in the twinkling of an eye. One big spout of water and then nothing. One of the MTB's from Dover went foaming off, chasing the parachute. We heard later that this pilot was brought back safely.

• • •

This was just the introduction to this new kind of war. From this time on we saw similar sights many times every day. In fact, the intensity of the fighting grew rapidly until the Germans were sending over fleets of 500, 800, and 1,000 planes at a time, two or three times a day, as they tried to drive home their attacks.

Those of us on the ground sometimes would see 8 and 10 aircraft and a dozen parachutes falling at the same time. This got to be a common sight when the two fleets would clash. Most of the early clashes took place over the coast and the open country around the coast, where the British at first attempted to halt the Luftwaffe.

Then as German tactics changed the British were forced to move their defensive airdromes inland. When that occurred German bombers and fighters flew daily patrols up and down the coast and as far as 10 miles inland, trying to entice the defending fighters out to a battle. We got so that we knew every type of plane used by either side. And we followed so many damaged planes to the spots where they fell that we got to know them intimately and soon learned to read in the wreckage the whole story of the constantly changing warfare that went on in the sky.

Dover itself lies in a little depression between the cliffs and the high downs behind it. From the cliffs on either side on those clear days we could see the clock tower and the town of Calais 20 miles away on the French occupied side. The whole dramatic picture spread out below us.

On the German side we could see their E-boats—90-footers with huge aircraft engines that drive them over the water 60 miles an hour—patroling the coast. In the air would be low-flying German seaplanes, also on patrol. Either or both craft would come out to pick up German or British airmen who fell into the channel.

On the Dover side were the British MTB's, slightly smaller but equally as fast as the German power boats. The MTB's performed the same duties as the Germans. Many, many pilots were saved by these patrols, and quite frequently there would be a clash between the surface boats as both E's and MTB's would start out to pick up some flyer who fell about midway between the shores. There would be a pounding of the 1-inch cannon both boats carried, a ripping of machine guns, and then one side would retire.

A Dornier 17 shot down on the southeast British coast as it attempted to machine gun streets of seaside town.

The German assaults from the air obviously were methodically planned. Early in July they began pounding the coastwise shipping. Then in August they switched to the shipping ports—Dover, Folkestone, Southampton, Portsmouth, Weymouth, and the ports in the Thames estuary. These bombings always were directed at some definite objective—usually the harbors. In Dover, where I lived for so many weeks until I was bombed out myself, the majority of hits were around the docks and ships. By a strange chance the docks themselves never were hit, but many ships were hit and the harbor was rendered unusable for any coastwise shipping.

Every raid suffered from interceptions by RAF fighters flying from coastal air fields. The Germans, while not suffering the losses that came later, nevertheless were being seriously hurt by the RAF—and about Aug. 15 they switched to bombardment of the south and southeast of England air fields. These fields were at Dover, Biggin Hill, Middle Wollop, Martlesham, Lympne, Kenley, and Hawkinge. According to official RAF records the German losses had mounted to 182 aircraft a day by the time this switch in targets was made.

It was my practice to go out on the downs with a little car and watch the fighting. If a British or German plane fell near by I would drive to it. Usually I would arrive an hour or more before a British authority was present, and in that way I had a close look at the flying equipment and often a chance to talk to the pilots long before military intelligence got to them.

Of course this seldom did me any good in the way of news, because all the dispatches from our London bureau were carefully censored. But it did give me and other newspaper men a personal glimpse of the war and enabled us to make our own evaluations of how the war was going.

At any rate, soon after the Germans switched to the airdrome attacks I was on the marshes in Kent—16 miles inland and south of Dover—with George Parker, the news reel man. These raids were put on in a gentlemanly fashion—never at night, never at an early hour. Every one had a chance to get a good night's sleep, rise late, have a leisurely breakfast. Then anywhere from 9:30 until 11:30 in the morning the first raiders would appear.

It was late in August, the weather remaining fine and clear. Parker and I drove out, parked on a rise where we could see well and where we would have a choice of roads to follow in tracing down damaged machines. On this day 18 Dorniers came over, flying at 12,000 feet. With them were 40 fighters—some of them Messerschmitt 109s and a large number of Me110s, a bimotored plane used both as bomber and fighter. They seemed to be heading for an airfield near Maidstone.

• • •

Droning out from inland came a squadron of 12 Hurricanes, and the two fleets met almost overhead. The Hurricanes delivered a frontal diving attack—ignoring the fighters and coming down on the bombers. Almost at the same time a dozen Spitfires came in from the left flank, taking on the fighters as the German single-seaters dived to protect the bombers.

In an instant—just a fraction of a second—the even formations were gone. Eight or nine machines were coming down—British and German—and smaller combats were swirling all over the sky. More British squadrons were coming up and joining in, and the fight moved on at 300 miles an hour and swung away as the Germans began lining out for home.

We picked up a Dornier that was coming down in huge circles. The motors seemed to be running but sick, and the pilot was looking for a place to land. He had descended to 1,000 feet, and we were putt-putting along after him trying to guess where he would alight, when we saw a Hurricane come sweeping up behind him.

The Hurricane was seesawing or zigzagging behind the Dornier, and the rear gunner in the bomber was taking pot shots at the British pilot. We could

This pointer, Rexo Valley Showman, owned by Earl Grange, Chicago, is being taught to jump hurdles as training for field work where there will be fences to cross.

PROBLEMS of general care, home treatment of minor ailments, distemper, and training often bother the dog owner, because rare is the pet that goes thru its short span of life without causing some trouble to its owner. Here are some typical questions as found in correspondence from readers:

I have an Airedale pup about 9 months old that has the run of the house and sleeps on a rug at the foot of the bed. When we want to go away for an evening I put the dog in the basement or garage. Then he cries and barks the entire time he is left alone. Could you give me any tip on how to overcome this bad habit?—HARRY M. M., Milwaukee, Wis.

Your problem is not uncommon in homes that have sort of spoiled the family pet. Your dog whines and barks because you haven't taught him to stay by himself in a small kennel outside or in his bed or box in the garage or basement. This training should have been started as soon as you got the dog. Instead you have taught the dog to expect that he can be with you or in the house all the time. Therefore it's only natural for him to protest when you force him to stay alone. The only cure is to train the pet to stay by himself and keep quiet, a routine that will take patience, firm handling, and a little time.

Could you please send me some literature on Doberman pinschers? I am the owner of a Doberman, and I would like to know the best way to feed and train him.—T. F. M., Toledo, O.

Sorry, but this department does not have free literature or booklets on the Doberman or other breeds. If you are particularly interested in just one breed of dog, as, for example, the Doberman, your best bet is to get a book like W. S. Schmidt's "The Doberman Pinscher," which gives complete information on the origin, conformation, and general care of the breed.

I have just received a 7½-week-old fox terrier, and I am very anxious to start taking proper care of her. I would like to know how to avoid distemper.—MRS. E. C. D., Chicago.

It's a good idea to talk to a veterinarian about distemper prevention. Every young puppy needs all the protection it can get against this disease. We believe in giving inoculations against distemper. It's pretty cheap insurance on your young dog. A series of distemper "shots" costs from $5 to $10—which we consider reasonable insurance against this dread disease.

I have a toy Manchester terrier 9 weeks old. I will appreciate information on the proper diet and care of this dog. Is this breed the same as the toy rat terrier?—MRS. H. T. L., Terre Haute, Ind.

Your pup will need four meals a day until it is 4 months old, and then three meals will do. Milk, kibbled biscuit, raw meat, a high-grade canned dog food, plus a small amount of cooked tomatoes, carrots, or similar vegetable and a little cod liver oil should go into the pup's diet. You'll find complete instructions on how to feed a Manchester (and 30 other breeds) in The Tribune's new book, "Feeding the Dog," which costs 30 cents by mail. The Manchester used to be known as the black-and-tan terrier. The dog usually called the rat terrier is the small smooth-haired fox terrier.

I am having trouble in getting my puppy to eat. He is 10 weeks old. When I first got him he ate fairly well. Then he began to lose his appetite. I gave him some worm capsules, and still his appetite is not good. I then gave him some conditioner pills, but that doesn't help much. Is there anything you could suggest to improve his appetite?—W. H. M., Chicago.

Yes, we can make a suggestion—stop dosing your dog with pills unless your veterinarian has suggested their use. Worm capsules are for eliminating worms. The capsules contain a pretty powerful drug which isn't supposed to stimulate the appetite of a dog. Conditioner pills may be indicated under certain conditions, but they are not cure-alls for every dog ailment. We suggest that you take your puppy to a veterinarian for a complete examination and get his recommendations on diet and treatment, if needed.

Even tho this picture is an extreme closeup of hands, it tells a story that is immediately understood. Its effect is based on the contrast between the hands of the child and the old woman. The only prop in the picture, the Bible, gives it symbolic meaning.

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph.D. Managing Editor, Popular Photography Magazine

HANDS, just human hands, are a fascinating picture subject. Hands have character and expression of their own that can be captured in pictures; and well posed closeups of hands in action can tell stories in pictures much more effectively than many elaborate shots showing full figures and backgrounds.

So far as photographic technique is concerned, all of these types of hand pictures have several things in common. They require a minimum of props and space. As a matter of fact, one of the main problems in taking them is to include as little distracting background material as possible.

The lighting of these pictures can hardly follow any set rules, even tho the character study and the symbolic picture will try to utilize more dramatic lighting effects, while pictures of hands at work will need a type of lighting that is apt to bring out all circumstantial detail.

This means that the first two groups will give preference to a single light source, preferably a spotlight, that creates bold shadow effects, while the third group will need a more even allover illumination to cover all necessary details of the scene.

However, a good rendition of skin texture is important in practically all types of pictures showing hands. As the secret of photographing texture is the use of a strong side light which casts many little shadows outlining the texture of the subject, it is important never to use flat lighting from the front when photographing hands. In such lighting they will lack modeling and will appear smooth and hideous, like blown-up rubber gloves.

Most people become embarrassed if you pay too much attention to their hands. Pose your pictures of hands as quickly as you can, give a minimum of instructions, and don't tell your subjects just when you are going to shoot. Whenever possible let them go thru certain motions repeatedly and watch for the best opportunity to trip the shutter.

In character studies the hands should be relaxed unless the subject calls for a different treatment. Let the hands rest on a table or against a wall. This latter method is often employed by commercial photographers before making shots of feminine hands, because it relieves the blood pressure in the hands and eliminates bulging blood vessels.

Add a few pictures of hands to your collection. You'll learn a lot from them.

For names of manufacturers who produce these items send stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Know Your Camera," Equipment Review Department, care Graphic Section, The Chicago Tribune. Be sure to mention serial number of item.

277 A new type of flexible metal cable release becomes a flash synchronizer when connected to any standard battery case. Having only one moving part, it can be carried in your pocket very easily and has a minimum of things that can get wrong with it. It costs only $3.85.

278 Available in concentrated form in shaker-top bottles, a new set of photographic stains can be used for the general coloring of prints, transparencies, and movie films, or can be applied locally with a fine brush. Six colors are obtainable — and the price is 45 cents a bottle.

279 Equipped with your choice of yellow, red, or green Tenite filter "cups," a handy new safelight is sold complete with a 7-watt bulb. The filters are readily interchangeable, being of the screw-on type, and all three colors can be bought with the unit if you want them.

War in the Air as I Saw It

see the white tracer, like threads of cotton, coming from the German's gun. Occasionally the Hurricane would give the bomber a short spurt of fire, keeping the gunner occupied.

While this tableau — if you could call it that when the speeds of both ships were 160 to 170 miles an hour—was before our eyes another plane entered the combat. A Spitfire, diving vertically from above the Dornier, timed its descent so that the German swept by beneath its guns in what was a near collision. The Spitfire's guns ripped out a burst, and the Dornier suddenly nose-dived into the ground as if the pilot had fallen dead and forward on the controls. The Spitfire passed between the Dornier and the Hurricane, flattened out, and climbed away.

Before we could get around to the Dornier—following roads—we heard another roar, and a Me109, afire and streaking a long tongue of flame, came diving vertically with a terrific roar smack into the ground not 50 yards from the car. It hit, exploded, and as we looked around we saw the pilot floating down in a parachute, still 10,000 to 12,000 feet overhead. Forgetting the Dornier, we chased him.

This German drifted six miles across country, giving us a merry hunt. Parker drove as I watched, and we soon decided, as the chute came lower, that the man was hurt. His body was swinging wildly and he was hanging limp and helpless in the harness, making no effort to control his descent.

When he finally landed in an apple orchard we were there, and we found him to be a youth of 22, short, stocky, and wounded in the head and shoulder. Also he had torn the muscle in his right leg as he had clambered out of the cockpit. He was covered with blood and semiconscious.

Some police and soldiers followed us quickly, and this German airman was given first aid and rushed to a hospital just as if he had been a British flyer.

Following the fights in this personal fashion, we quickly learned that suggestions and reports that German aircraft equipment was inferior were entirely wrong. We found from personal observation that the German fighting planes were superbly built, had excellent performance — in fact, their performance was better in most instances than RAF planes—and were perfectly and fully equipped with the best engines and navigation instruments, radio and equipment.

• • •

Lord Beaverbrook—shortly after he was made minister of aircraft production — examined German aircraft and told the world that the German planes actually were well built, of the best materials, and well finished. Any success the RAF enjoyed was due to the functioning of an excellent ground organization—raid reporting and maintenance—and the individualism of RAF pilots, who universally seemed more willing than the Germans to mix it in close-range combat where man-to-man flying skill counted most.

A comparative tabulation showing the performance of the British and German aircraft engaged in this fighting gives the best valuation of the RAF performances. Fighter for fighter the Germans had more power—about 200 more horsepower per engine—more speed, faster climb and dive, and a higher ceiling than any British craft, including the much-vaunted Spitfire. The German bombers were all 300-mile-an-hour ships, and one of these bombers—the Messerschmitt 110 fighter-bomber—was actually faster than the Spitfire.

The performances of all these airplanes have been improved since this period, but the chart given here was the performance of the two fighter groups at that time. Since then the Rolls engines have been persuaded to give 1,450 horsepower. The Germans at the same time have increased their power. The Daimler Benz engine is now giving as much as 1,600 horsepower. The Germans are said to have 24-cylinder X-type engines giving more than 2,000 horsepower, and the British soon will have in service a 24-cylinder H-type engine of 2,400 horsepower.

All the bombers now fly more than 300 miles an hour with larger engines. At that time they were formidable machines, and if able to retain their close formations they could give fighters a hot reception from their various movable machine guns. The British tactics, however, were designed specifically to break up the bomber formations, scatter the ships, and give the fighters a chance to peck away at them in individual fights. In order to achieve this goal the British often flew right thru the center of a formation, which invariably then broke up, with the Nazi pilots zooming or diving away like so many sparrows startled by a predatory hawk.

In the three months of the battle for Britain the Germans several times reached objectives and bombed them heavily. For instance, on Sunday, Sept. 15, German raiders reached London still in formation during the morning attack (it came just at the noon hour). For almost an hour these raiders sailed over portions of the city, bombing at leisure and often without the interruption of fighter planes. Yet the afternoon attack—after the British had changed the defense tactics used in the morning—failed to get thru, and the Nazis lost 185 planes in the day's fighting.

This marked the last of heavy daylight attacks. It was the largest total of planes that the Germans lost in any one day. Thereafter the daylight raids tapered off into heavy night raids. The daylight raiders came infrequently, and always when heavy clouds were over England. Only a few bombers were risked in any of these later daylight raids, and always they were escorted by fighters, frequently in a ratio of 9 and 10 fighters to each bomber.

Camp Claiborne

CAMP CLAIBORNE, one of the principal cantonments of America's reorganized army, is situated in the Kisatchie national forest, 18 miles south of Alexandria, La. The country thereabout is rugged and hilly, and the camp lies in a tract of cutover land of small pines and other scrub timber. In this respect it resembles Camp Livingston, located near by and described in this section last Sunday.

Thirty-one hundred acres are included in the area of Camp Claiborne. The buildings on this site number 679, and there are 6,865 tents, of which 759 are used as quarters for officers.

Construction work at the camp began last September. It was pushed thru speedily by the employment of an average of 9,000 workmen, divided into three shifts. At one time as many as 15,000 laborers were concentrated on the site, leveling the parade grounds, building the barracks and other structures, and laying water mains and sewer pipes. Essential housing facilities there were completed in February of this year, when the first troops began arriving. First of the selectees assigned to this cantonment arrived on April 15.

It is estimated that close to $20,000,000 has been spent on Camp Claiborne to date. New buildings, however, still are being added. The camp laundry, for example, was not completed until last month, and chapels and recreation halls are under construction now.

Of the 25,500 troops assigned to Camp Claiborne about 18,000 are members of the 34th division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Elland A. Walsh. This division is made up of men from Iowa, Minnesota, and the two Dakotas. Troops at the camp other than of the 34th division include those of the 10th station hospital, 53d medical battalion, 43d evacuation hospital, 212th general hospital, 5th and 63d signal battalions, 172d signal repair unit, 203d signal construction unit, 254th signal depot, 280th signal pigeon company, Companies K and L of the 28th quartermaster regiment, Company D of the 71st quartermaster battalion, 69th refrigeration company, 367th infantry regiment, Company A of the 33d engineer battalion, 397th engineer depot company, 67th engineer topographic company, 57th engineer shop company, 585th dump truck company, 711th engineer railway operating battalion, 151st engineer regiment, and 758th tank battalion.

At the time this was written most of the troops of the units mentioned were scheduled within two or three days to leave camp temporarily to take part in vast field maneuvers in Louisiana and Texas. These war games were planned to involve about a half million men from various camps in the south and southwest. The 34th division, which represents a majority of the troops of Camp Claiborne, is one of the four divisions of the 5th army corps, which is a part of the 3d army.

Camp Claiborne originally was called Camp Evangeline, but was renamed to honor William Charles Claiborne, first governor of Louisiana after its admittance to the Union. Claiborne was born in Sussex county, Virginia, in 1775, the brother of Ferdinand Leigh Claiborne, a famous military leader and Indian fighter.

After having been admitted to the bar of Virginia, William Claiborne moved to Nashville, Tenn., where he practiced law. He was appointed a territorial judge of Tennessee and helped frame the laws of Tennessee when it became a state. He served in the national house of representatives from 1797 to 1801 and in 1802 was appointed governor of Mississippi.

After the Louisiana purchase in 1803 Claiborne was named to the commission to formally take possession of the territory. In 1804 he was appointed governor of Louisiana, and when that province became a state he was elected to continue in office as governor. Elected to the United States senate, he died in New Orleans in November, 1817, before he was able to take his seat.

THINK of it! Now you can actually remove corns including the pain-producing "core" while you walk in comfort!

This sensible treatment, endorsed by the Good Housekeeping Institute, helps bring relief without old-fashioned home paring that just affects the surface. Here's how: Felt pad helps relieve pain by lifting off pressure. Blue-Jay medication gently loosens corn so that in a few days it may be easily removed. (Stubborn cases may require more than one application.) Don't suffer needlessly. Blue-Jay costs very little — only a few cents to treat each corn — at all drug counters.

THE MODERN girl practices the old-fashioned copy book virtues in being a good citizen, but she uses them as beauty aids, too.

Self-control, temperance, persistence, patience, consideration for others may sound like the characteristics of a good but plain woman. They are equally essential in any health and beauty program.

The young woman with character is able to acquire a healthy body, a better figure, a clear complexion, brighter eyes. She is well groomed, poised, charming, and useful in her community, too.

But there is the spoiled, self-indulgent fair one who eats too many sweets and starches, gets fat and lazy, and never gets around to doing benefit work. The woman with self-control can resist the temptations of rich desserts and keep her figure. You'll notice she is present when there is work to be done.

It takes persistence to keep to a diet. A single week of reducing may be a start, but it takes the right menu meal after meal, day after day, week after week, to get lasting results. It takes patience.

Persistence counts again in exercises to slim the hips and insure a graceful waistline. The girl who tires quickly of bicycling on the road or in her bedroom will continue to carry around that fatal spread.

A girl has to have persistence to put her hair up in curlers every night. Hand lotions after washing and creams to make her complexion fine have to be used regularly to produce a soft texture.

The word temperance may suggest a dowdy reformer, but in the modern girl's language it also means moderation in all the fundamental habits of correct living. It isn't only that she doesn't drink until she is foolish and her breath has a bad odor the next day. She also is temperate about staying up at night. She doesn't overeat or indulge in orgies of emotion. Hysteria and violent tempers are not part of her code. Her goal is a balanced life, with food and fun, work and rest in healthful portions.

Consideration for others can be expressed in good grooming as well as in saintliness. The girl who keeps her clothes brushed and pressed, her white collars and cuffs spotlessly clean, her hands manicured, her hair in order, her makeup fresh, shows a thought for others, a desire to please.

Salads and Sandwiches on Dress Parade

By MARY MEADE

SALADS and sandwiches are standard summer luncheon fare and may be plain or fancy, according to the cook's inclination.

There certainly is nothing wrong with a strictly utilitarian presentation of luncheon dishes, but we all know what zest is added to food when it is put on dress parade. Here are some hints that will make those extra, inviting touches as easy for you as they are pleasing to your guests.

The handsome sandwich loaf in the picture has a fancy look about it but is surprisingly easy to make. It consists of a cheese and ham salad filling in a hollowed loaf of bread. The frosting is cream cheese, as you may have guessed, and the little tulip decorations were cut from pimiento and green pepper with a pair of kitchen scissors.

Use half an unsliced loaf of bread and half the following recipe for a small family. The full recipe makes a good company luncheon appearance.

TULIP SANDWICH LOAF
(Serves 12)

½ lb. cold boiled ham, ground
½ lb. American cheese, grated
6 sweet pickles, chopped
Mayonnaise
3 packages cream cheese
Cream
1 small can pimiento
1 green pepper
1 loaf unsliced sandwich bread

Combine ham, cheese, and pickles and add enough mayonnaise to moisten. Trim crusts from bread. Cut a slice ½ to ¾ inch thick the length of the loaf. Remove center of loaf, leaving a box shape with half to three-fourths inch sides and bottom. Spread inside of box with soft butter. Put sandwich filling inside loaf and add top slice, buttered, with butter side down. Soften cream cheese with enough cream to give a spreading consistency and cover the loaf with the cheese. Cut small tulips and leaves from pimiento and green pepper and decorate the sides of the loaf. Chill before serving. When serving cut in one-inch slices.

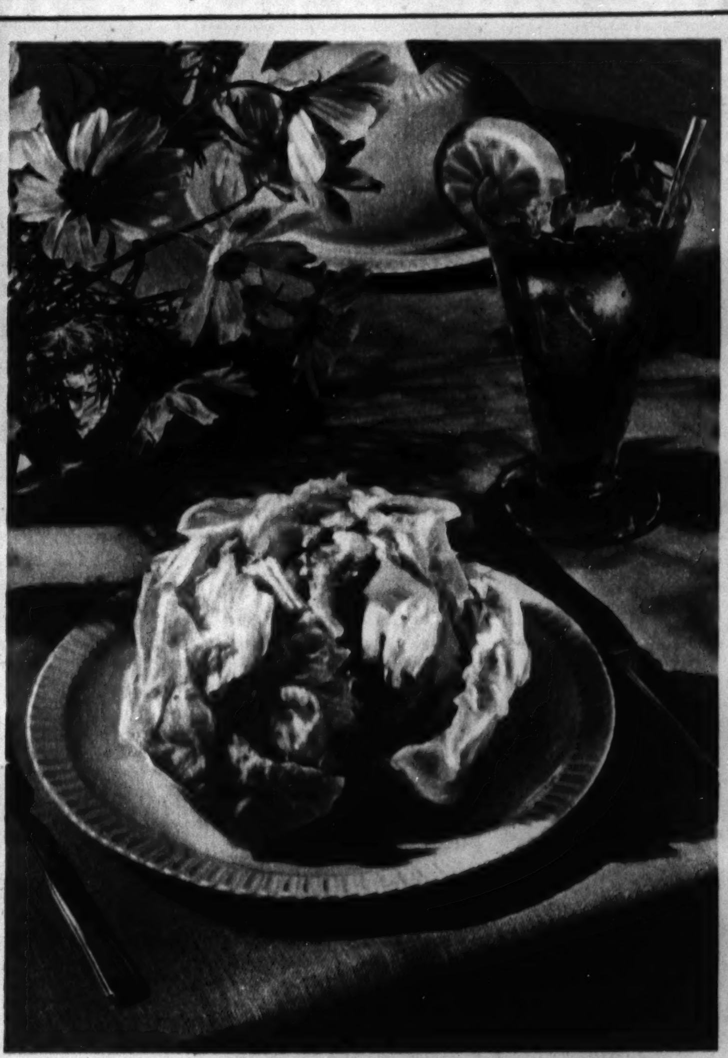
• • •

To serve with this sandwich loaf I suggest celery hearts, ripe olives, potato chips, something hot to drink, and a simple fruit dessert—peaches with cream and sugar, perhaps. This menu will do for company as well as for the family. It's simple but good, and also interesting.

Hot rolls or biscuits, a chilly fruit salad, and a glass of iced tea with mint make another good summer luncheon which is properly finished off with a piece of layer cake or chiffon pie.

A good fruit combination consists of diced apple, celery, seedless grapes, sliced fresh pear, banana, and chopped nuts, with a dressing of mayonnaise.

A very simple but startlingly beautiful salad luncheon can be accomplished by arranging fresh fruit in groups on a huge, colorful chop plate or tray. Arrange the chilled fruit first, then fill in corners with sprigs of crisp green watercress, broken pieces of chicory, or pieces of cold, fresh lettuce.



Chilly fruit salad with mayonnaise, iced tea with mint, hot rolls, and layer cake make a good summer luncheon.

On such a plate or tray you could have overlapping slices of peaches, little clusters of green and purple grapes, slices of peeled honeydew or cantaloupe, sections of banana, quartered plums. A creamy, sweetish dressing should be passed separately so that guests who like fresh fruit with no dressing at all may have it that way. To dress the fruits on the platter would ruin the appearance of the combination.

PERFECT POEMS

TOMMY'S DEAD

By SYDNEY DOBELL

You may give over the plow, boys,
You may take the gear to the stead;
All the sweat o' your brow, boys,
Will never get beer and bread.
The seed's waste, I know, boys,
There's not a blade will grow, boys,
'Tis cropped out, I trow, boys,
And Tommy's dead.

Send the colt to fair, boys,
He's going blind, as I said,
My old eyes can't bear, boys,
To see him in the shed;
The cow's dry and spare, boys,
She's neither here nor there, boys,
I doubt she's badly bred;
Stop the mill to-morn, boys,
There'll be no more corn, boys,
Neither white nor red;
There's no sign of grass, boys,
You may sell the goat and the ass, boys,
The land's not what it was, boys,
And the beasts must be fed:
You may turn Peg away, boys,
You may pay off old Ned,
We've had a dull day, boys,
And Tommy's dead.

Move my chair on the floor, boys,
Let me turn my head:
She's standing there in the door, boys,
Your sister Winifred!
Take her away from me, boys,
Your sister Winifred!
Move me round in my place, boys,
Let me turn my head,
Take her away from me, boys,
As she lay on her deathbed,
The bones of her thin face, boys,
As she lay on her deathbed!
I don't know how it be, boys,
When all's done and said,
But I see her looking at me, boys,
Wherever I turn my head;
Out of the big oak tree, boys,
Out of the garden bed,
And the lily as pale as she, boys,
And the rose that used to be red.

There's something not right, boys,
But I think it's not in my head,
I've kept my precious sight, boys—
The Lord be hallow-ed!
Outside and in
The ground is cold to my tread,
The hills are wizen and thin,
The sky is shriveled and shred;
The hedges down by the loan
I can count them bone by bone,
The leaves are open and spread,
But I see the teeth of the land,
And hands like a dead man's hand,
And the eyes of a dead man's head.
There's nothing but cinders and sand,
The rat and the mouse have fed,
And the summer's empty and cold;
Over valley and wold
Wherever I turn my head
There's a mildew and a mold,
The sun's going out overhead,
And I'm very old,
And Tommy's dead.

What am I staying for, boys?
You're all born and bred;
'Tis fifty years and more, boys,
Since wife and I were wed,
And she's gone before, boys,
And Tommy's dead.

She was always sweet, boys,
Upon his curly head,
She knew she'd never see't, boys,
And she stole off to bed;
I've been sitting up alone, boys,
For he'd come home, he said,
But it's time I was gone, boys,
For Tommy's dead.

Put the shutters up, boys,
Bring out the beer and bread,
Make haste and sup, boys,
For my eyes are heavy as lead;
There's something wrong i' the cup, boys,
There's something ill wi' the bread,
I don't care to sup, boys,
And Tommy's dead.

I'm not right, I doubt, boys,
I've such a sleepy head;
I shall never more be stout, boys,
You may carry me to bed.
What are you about, boys,
The prayers are all said,
The fire's raked out, boys,
And Tommy's dead?

The stairs are too steep, boys,
You may carry me to the head;
The night's dark and deep, boys,
Your mother's long in bed;
'Tis time to go to sleep, boys,
And Tommy's dead.

I'm not used to kiss, boys,
You may shake my hand instead.
All things go amiss, boys,
You may lay me where she is, boys,
And I'll rest my old head:
'Tis a poor world, this, boys,
And Tommy's dead.

Smoke DOES Smudge YOUR TEETH

BRYTEN UP

It's ugly, that yellowish smoke-smudge—or any smudge—on your teeth. Too often unsuspected—but it's there. Look in your mirror. Then do something now. Do this. Get IODENT No. 2, tooth paste or powder, made by a dentist especially for hard-to-bryten teeth. Guaranteed safe. You'll like refreshing IODENT as you use it twice a day. Result—your smile will sparkle up.

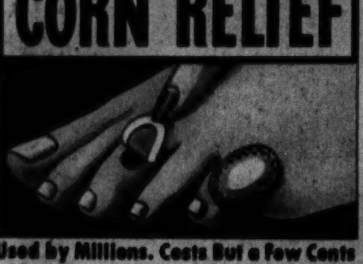
DOCTOR'S FAST CORN RELIEF



Used by Millions. Costs But a Few Cents

No waiting! Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads make short work of relieving tormenting corns. Soft, soothing, cushioning, they stop nagging shoe friction at once; lift aching pressure and quickly relieve your misery. Ease tight shoes; prevent corns, sore toes. Speedily remove corns when used with the separate Medications included. All this at a cost of only a few cents. No other remedy does all these things for you! Insist on Dr. Scholl's—the largest-selling foot relief in the world.

You sure do like your Wheaties, Mr. Feller!

"Tops with me since '33" Says Bob Feller, 8 years a Wheaties fan, this great Cleveland Indians pitcher is one of hundreds of champion athletes who eat a "Breakfast of Champions."

Try it! Bob Feller's favorite "Breakfast of Champions"

Yes, here's the breakfast for you—a "go" breakfast that gives you the pleasure you want and the kind of protective nourishment you need these busy days.

Help yourself to a generous bowlful of Wheaties, America's favorite whole wheat flakes, with plenty of milk or cream and some fruit.

There's a wealth of valuable nourishment in this "Breakfast of Champions," including all the known essential food values of natural whole wheat. For Wheaties are a preferred wheat cereal: they provide 100% the precious Vitamin B_1, Vitamin G, iron and phosphorus of our basic cereal grain.

You'll find a wealth of flavor, too, in Wheaties—a tempting, delightful flavor that promises you extra enjoyment, extra satisfaction every morning. Tomorrow's another busy day. So start it with a "Breakfast of Champions" — and start getting more fun out of life! Ask your grocer for this famous General Mills product, Wheaties.

Special Offer! Yours for only a 3c stamp! Family sample package of Wheaties (3 full servings). Also the new Betty Crocker booklet on food selection, vitamins and meal planning, "Thru Highway to Good Nutrition." Offer good only until September 23, 1941. Send 3c stamp today with name and address to Wheaties, Department 510, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Ready! Aim! Fire! If that baseball were a hand-grenade it would be bad news for anyone on the receiving end! Bob should be a natural as a grenade-thrower—especially if he gets plenty of his favorite Wheaties. And chances are he will, too! We're supplying Wheaties to many army camps and bases right along.

Extra nourishing, Wheaties are accepted as a preferred wheat cereal by the Council on Foods of the American Medical Association.

"Wheaties" and "Breakfast of Champions" are registered trade marks of General Mills, Inc. Copyright 1941, General Mills, Inc.

by C. C. COOPER
AFTER BEING CAPTURED BY THE SHAWNEES, BOONE IS HELPED TO ESCAPE BY THE SQUAW OF CHIEF BLACK WOLF, DOVE WOMAN, WHO WAS CAPTURED BY THE SHAWNEES WHEN JUST A CHILD
FOLLOW QUIETLY—I SHALL TAKE YOU TO A PLACE WHERE NO SHAWNEE WILL DARE TO GO!
AN HOUR LATER, THE TWO REACH THE SACRED BURIAL GROVE!!
NO SHAWNEE EXCEPT CHIEF BLACK WOLF MAY ENTER HERE UNLESS THERE'S A BURIAL!
IT'S SHO A SPOOKY PLACE!
-AND YOU CAN HIDE HERE 'TIL IT'S SAFE FOR YOU TO LEAVE-THEN YOU MUST HURRY HOME AND GIVE WARNING TO YOUR PEOPLE!
BECAUSE A WHITE BUFFALO, OMEN OF A GREAT SUCCESSFUL WARPATH TO THE SHAWNEES, HAS BEEN SEEN NEAR HERE LATELY—AND IF OUR BRAVES SHOULD KILL IT, IT'LL MEAN A WAR ON YOUR PEOPLE!
WAL, WHAT ABOUT YOU? I CAN'T LEAVE YOU, A WHITE GIRL, WITH THESE INJUNS!
NO, I STAY...THE SHAWNEES HAVE BEEN KIND TO ME—AND...AND I LOVE MY HUSBAND, CHIEF BLACK WOLF!
BUT MEANWHILE!!
THE CAPTIVE—HE HAS ESCAPED! BUT CHIEF BLACK WOLF WILL FOLLOW HIS TRAIL!

Mrs. America Votes 10 to One, For A Go-Gettin' Washday Soap that's "Rayon-Safe"!

LIKE GETTING 2 BOXES OF SOAP IN 1, with Super Suds! Because here's one go-gettin' washday soap that's "Rayon-Safe"! Just what women voted for, ten to one, in a recent national poll.

BIG, RICH, GO-GETTIN' SUDS that wash family clothes whiter, brighter, and sweeter smelling! Or bountiful, pure suds that wash dainty rayons, smart cottons, clean and bright. Super Suds does both!

YES, AMERICA'S FOREMOST RAYON EXPERTS, the Better Fabrics Testing Bureau and the United States Testing Co., have hundreds of tests on record proving Super Suds is "Rayon-Safe"!

SPEED UP YOUR WASHINGS, save money, too, because here's one grand washday soap for everything in your wash. Makes you proud the way clothes come out of the tub or machine so much whiter and brighter.

AND BECAUSE SUPER SUDS IS "RAYON-SAFE", it quickly washes soil and perspiration out of dainty rayons, nylons and smart cottons, safely.

SAFE FOR WASHABLE COLORS, TOO! Yes, any color that's washable is safe in Super Suds.

EXTRA SUDS FOR DISHES. Grease-cutting suds that leave dishes and glassware sparkling. Suds that are gentle to your hands. Buy Super Suds from your grocer first thing tomorrow. It's "Rayon-Safe".

HERE'S HOW RAYON EXPERTS SAY TO WASH DAINTY RAYONS.

1. Test a small patch in plain water for colorfastness. If color runs, it's not washable.
2. Wash rayons separately by hand in lukewarm suds. Pour warm water over Super Suds. Add cold water to get lukewarm suds.
3. Do not soak rayons. Wash quickly and gently. Do not rub, wring or twist.
4. Rinse thoroughly, gently, in clean, lukewarm water. Roll in towel, but don't leave.
5. Use a moderate iron.

OPEN OUTER DRIVE IN SEPTEMBER

NO. SHORE HAS HARDY COLONY OF FISHERMEN

Lake Yields Living to Waukegan Group.

BY DAVID ANDERSON.

Within the city limits of Waukegan, just a few blocks from the downtown district and on the edge of the lake harbor is a little fishing village with a population of a score or more families. Winter and summer the men set out in their blunt-nosed, diesel-powered boats for the fishing beds some 15 or 20 miles out in the lake.

The village itself is a cluster of cottages and tumbledown shacks, many of them covered with vines and hollyhocks. In the front yards stand rows of racks on which the nets are stretched to dry in the sun. They have the appearance of webs spun by giant spiders.

In one of the cottages lives Waukegan's harbor master, Adam Detloff, a stubby, husky, 50 year old man who tells you that he has held that job "off and on now for about 10 years." But his main occupation, like his neighbors, is fishing. He has fished Lake Michigan for 25 years.

Look Out for Bumps.

If he invites you to go along on a day of fishing he'll try to make you as comfortable as possible in his tug, Doughboy. As the green and white boat passes the end of the pier and plows its way into the open lake, you'll find—if you're a landlubber—that the experience is like jolting over bumpy roads in a truck without springs. The Doughboy is built for fishing, not comfort.

You remark to Detloff tnat the lake is choppy. He smiles and assures you that the day is quite calm, altho, he adds "some days there ain't a wrinkle on the water."

The crew, in addition to Detloff, consists of two men, Roy Statler, a Finn, who has been the Doughboy's engineer for 12 years, and 22 year old Walter Hugo, an Indian deckhand. Statler, a ruddy, 6 foot, 225 pound man with a chest like a barrel, has lost 20 pounds this summer, Detloff tells you, lighting his short, black pipe. "Every summer he sweats off 20 to 25 pounds."

Paid $10,200 for Boat.

Detloff has been skipper of the Doughboy since 1929 when he bought it new for $10,200. To fish successfully with such a boat costs another $20,000 in equipment, he says. Packed into a dozen boxes are several miles of nets which the crew will dump when they have hauled up their day's catch.

The Doughboy bounces and pitches as it chugs to a point 16 miles out in the lake which is marked by a buoy flying a green and gray pennant. The water here, says Detloff, is from 120 to 160 feet deep and the pennant marks his nets. No other fishermen will drop nets close by and there never is any stealing of catches.

"We work together and we respect each other's fishing beds," he asserts. "It's sort of like prospecting for gold. You don't dig where somebody else has already staked a claim."

The Doughboy churns to a standstill and the crew hauls up the buoy. A windlass is set up and the motor begins reeling in the nets, bringing up the fish. Both Hugo and Statler work at untangling the fish from the net meshes. As fast as the fish are brought in, they are cleaned and tossed into boxes. Two hours they work to haul up the catch. Altogether a dozen nets are hauled in, each 2,300 feet long, Detloff says, and each worth almost $100.

Calls It Good Catch.

The catch amounts to more than 150 pounds of chubs or lake herring, which, Detloff informs you, is pretty good for a summer's day. In the fall and winter, however, a good catch is from 2,000 to 3,000 pounds and is sold on the wholesale market for from $200 to $300, he adds. Most of the owners sell to wholesale markets in Chicago.

From time to time the men toss overboard the entrails of the cleaned fish. Now and then they chuck out a fish that is unsuitable for market.

As you look out of the stern of the boat, you notice scores of gulls wheeling and zooming in the wake. High over the blue water they sail, suddenly diving into the water, coming up with fishes thrown overboard.

Bolder in Fall.

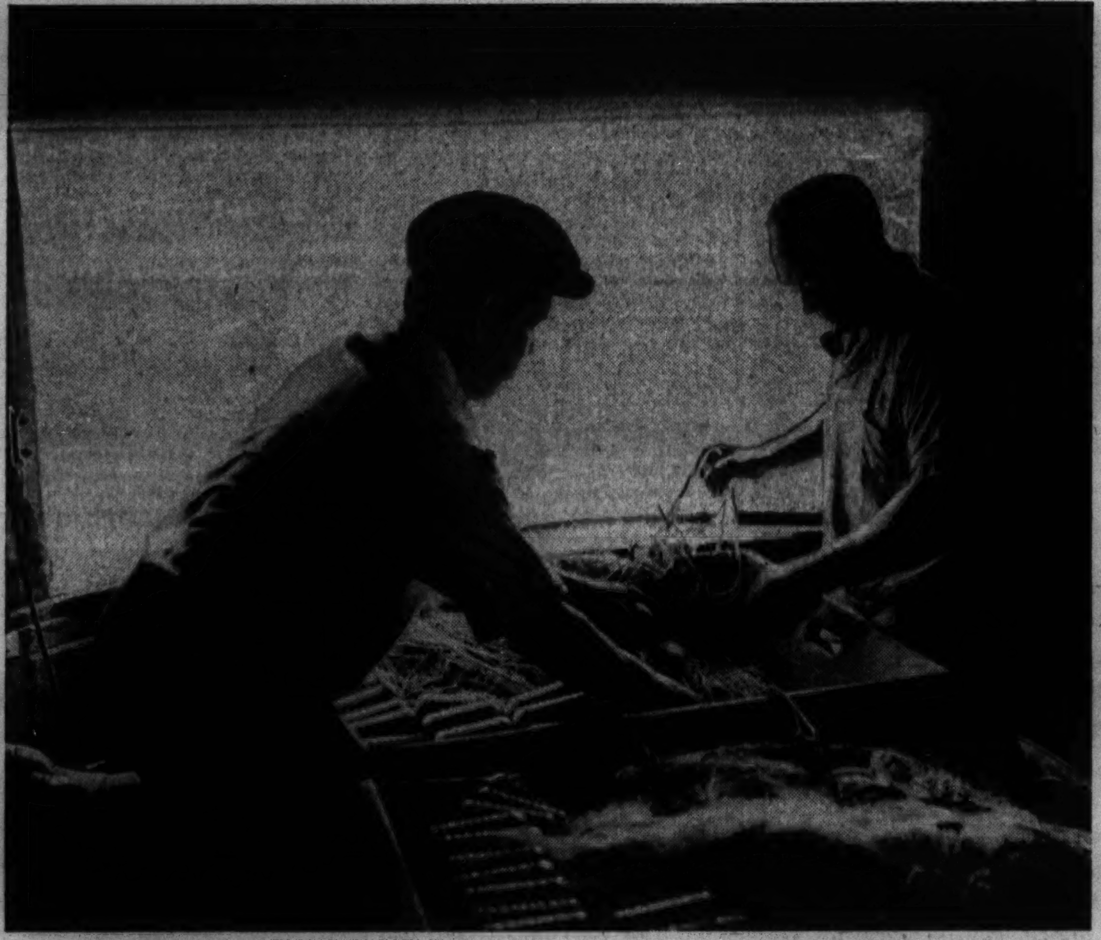
"You ought to see 'em in the fall and winter when all of 'em are back from the north," Detloff says. "Hundreds follow each boat. They're so thick that they'll ride the deck and when they scrap for a fish they make more noise than the engine."

After the catch is up, the crew ties the second set of nets to the buoy and drops it into the water. The gulls cruise along with the boat for a time, just to make sure that no more fish will be dropped over the side for them. Then, as suddenly as they have appeared, they disappear. "They'll look for another fishing boat," Detloff tells you. "They're smart, those birds."

Post Kollege Club to Take Cycle Trip Tuesday Night

Members of the Post Kollege club of the First Methodist church of Evanston will go on a bicycle tour of the north shore Tuesday evening. Bob Patterson and Ruth Ryker head the arrangements committee.

Wives and Daughters Help with Work of Waukegan's Fishing Industry



The hardy little industry of fishing in Lake Michigan thrives in the little colony of men, tugs, and nets at Waukegan. This picture was taken in the stern of the Doughboy, Adam Detloff's $10,000 Diesel powered tug. Walter Hugo (left), Indian deckhand, and Detloff are dropping the nets out of the stern of the boat.

On shore Detloff (left) is putting his nets on racks to dry. A couple of fishermen neighbors are helping. Nets usually are about five feet wide and 2,300 feet long. Each net costs almost $100 and is equipped with aluminum floats and lead sinkers. Detloff says that the fishermen will probably have to go back to using glass or wood floats because of the aluminum scare.

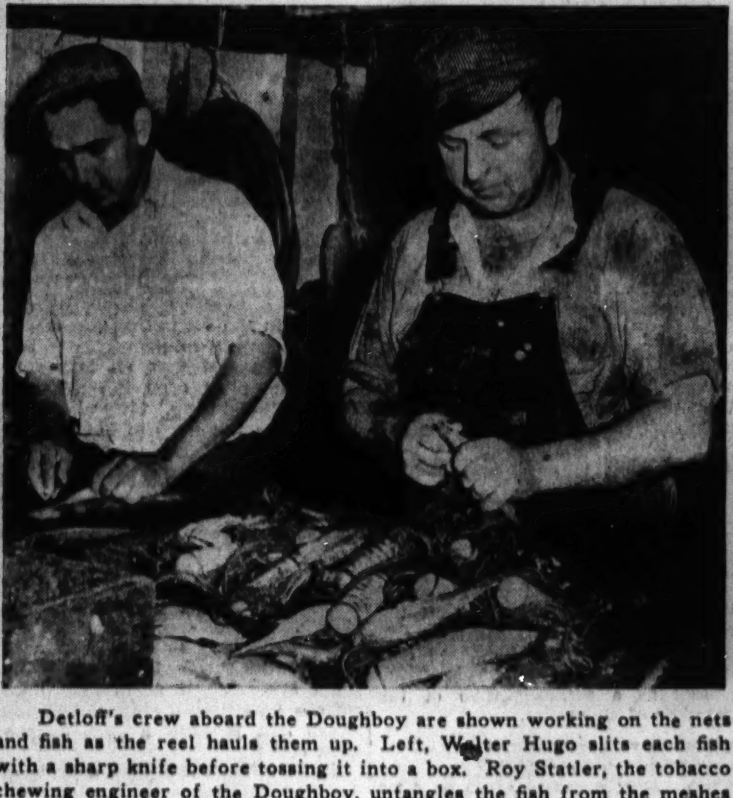
Detloff, skipper of the Doughboy, poses in the boat at the mechanical reel that hauls in the fish and nets. The engine of the boat turns the windlass which pulls up the nets. The crew untangle the fish, cut out the entrails and toss the fish into boxes for delivery to a Chicago wholesale house.



Detloff's crew aboard the Doughboy are shown working on the nets and fish as the reel hauls them up. Left, Walter Hugo slits each fish with a sharp knife before tossing it into a box. Roy Statler, the tobacco chewing engineer of the Doughboy, untangles the fish from the meshes of the nets. Statler, who weighs 225 pounds in the summer and 20 pounds more in the winter, has been Detloff's engineer for 12 years.

All the work in commercial fishing is not done on water. Back on shore, Margaret Pravanas, Detloff's next door neighbor, is shown piling the nets neatly into a box before her father goes out to the fishing beds some 15 miles out in the lake.

Both Peter Pravanas (left) and Mrs. Pravanas, Margaret's parents, work on the nets the days Pravanas and his helper (center) don't fish. The nets are hung on racks to dry in the sun. After each catch there are many rents and holes to be repaired.

Jazz for Art's Sake Is Reason for This Band

In a little sideroom of a restaurant at Rush and Hubbard streets a band in rehearsal blares out jazz music on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. Clerks ducking out from the nearby office buildings for their 3 o'clock cup of coffee stand in the doorway for a few minutes listening to the bouncing, rocking rhythms pouring out into the street.

Occasionally Bud Freeman, the leader, a round faced man with a mustache and a bow tie, takes a solo, playing a beautiful and mellow saxophone. And sometimes the people in the doorway clap and shout thru the screen door an encouraging "Yeah, man." Freeman grins and the band picks up from there.

Devotees of "Pure Jazz."

Freeman and the men, most of whom have other orchestra jobs, gather twice a week just to play what they call "pure jazz." Freeman, who could have a $100 chair in practically any man's orchestra, prefers to rehearse his own band and to play jazz his own way.

The reason for his preference goes back almost 20 years, back to the days when the national pastime was amending the 18th amendment at 75 cents a shot; back to the early 1920s when Paul Whiteman was king of jazz and Freeman a student at the Austin High school.

Freeman and four other Austin High school boys who loved music more than mathematics and Latin used to cut classes and meet in the back room of the neighborhood candy store almost daily. They came lugging their instruments and rehearsed their little jazz band for the weekly student P.-T. A. dances.

Create the Chicago Style.

The Austin band didn't have a name because the boys were too busy playing to think of one. And they played wild, relaxed jazz, full of new ideas. Today it would be called swing. But then it was known as hot jazz, the kind that the great Louis Armstrong and King Oliver brought up to Chicago on the river boats from New Orleans.

Those boys in the candy store became legendary figures in the world of jazz. They were Frank Teschmaker, the sensitive saxophonist and clarinetist, who was killed in an auto crash; Jim Lannigan, piano and bass fiddle player; the Mac Partland brothers, and Freeman, whom the critics say is one of the country's leading hot sax men.

Sometimes another boy who went to Lewis Institute sat in with the band. He played clarinet and he liked to sit in with them because, as Freeman says, "we played pure jazz, right on the note." The other boy was Benny Goodman.

The band added other Chicago men and after high school they split up. The boys got other jobs and Freeman went to play with Whiteman, Pollack, Kahn, and other big names.

The Chicago Style Survives.

All that was 20 years ago. But the Chicago style of jazz is still around. And so is Bud Freeman, the Austin High school boy, who can't forget the bouncing, slashing music they made at the P.-T. A. dances.

Now, almost 20 years later, Freeman is still playing it—with many developments, of course. When it comes to talking about it, Freeman discusses it with the same reverence that a long-haired musician talks about the classics. Jazz, he tells you, is art, America's contribution to world culture.

"Nobody can tell much about it yet," Freeman declares, tugging at his bow tie [he's worn them ever since Austin High school]. "But one thing is certain. It's here to stay, no matter if you call it swing, hot, or what. Remember, it's only 40 years old and classical music is several centuries."

Says Symphonies Will Play It.

Some day he expects to see a symphony orchestra in which the players will get up out of their chairs and improvise on a solo as they beat out the overture. "Now that sounds a little visionary," he continues, "but that day is almost here. Didn't Benny [Goodman] play long hair at Ravinia and Carnegie hall? By and by you'll see more and more of that sort of thing."

In memory of that early high school band, which the boys didn't have time to name, Bud Freeman, who didn't have time to finish Austin, has given the new group an ironic and sentimental name. He calls it his Summa Cum Laude orchestra.

And Freeman, his hair thinning but still black, leads his Chicago style band in the restaurant rehearsals, now and then taking a sax solo and getting excited when the men hit a lick the way it should be hit.

FILIPINOS SEEK $5,000 TO HELP OPERATE CENTER

The local Filipino community is conducting a campaign to raise $5,000 by Sept. 1 in order to keep open and repair the Filipino Community center at 837 North La Salle street. The center, which was founded in 1931 by Dr. Hilario C. Moncado, has been maintained to serve the general welfare of Filipinos in Chicago. It houses sleeping quarters, restaurant, barber shop, and recreation room.

The operating expenses are approximately $10,000 a year. Difficulty in meeting these expenses and keeping the quarters in repair makes is necessary to raise the $5,000 this summer.

The extra money contributed will be used, in part, to modernize the restaurant and recreation hall at the center. Leaders hope that improvement of the two units and the addition of a Philippine Goods store will mean additional income for the center. Temporary hearquarters of the fund campaign are at 839 North La Salle street.

Books of Long Ago Turn Up in Army Gifts

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

The sorting of 6,000 books Chicagoans contributed for army camps in the public library collecting campaign July 21 to 26 has just been completed at the main library, and workers are now able to keep up with the daily donations that keep coming by express and mail even tho the campaign closed a month ago. Two hundred books have been delivered to the Rock Island arsenal where the library hadn't had a new title for 12 years. United Airlines flew the cargo gratis. The other books are still at the library awaiting transfer whenever the army finds means to collect them.

Library workers who sorted the volumes and fitted them with pockets, date slips, and cards found a story of Chicago reading—the city's tastes have skyrocketed since the World war. Books collected for the boys in 1917 had to be discarded by the dozens.

6,000 Books, Some New.

The percentage of discard in the current collection was very low. The library, in publishing its appeal, asked for books soldiers would enjoy reading—not attic discards. The public responded with 6,000 worthwhile volumes, some of them newly purchased just for the drive.

Fifteen Chicago families decided they could part with that long-time best seller, "Gone with the Wind." Richard Halliburton was revived in 100 copies of "The Royal Road to Romance" and "The Glorious Adventure." "Captain Blood" and "Scaramouche" testified to Sabatini's local popularity. Edna Ferber, Booth Tarkington, Somerset Maugham, Dorothy Sayers, Vardis Fisher, Sinclair Lewis, and A. J. Cronin were among the contemporary writers represented not by single copies but by many copies of their works.

Chicagoans love mystery and detective stories. They liked S. S. Van Dine well enough to buy everything he wrote. And they like westerns, too, from the number of Zane Grey and B. M. Bower thrillers that came off home library shelves.

Kipling and Cobb.

For poetry, Chicagoans read Kipling and Edna St. Vincent Millay. The humor collection in the contributed books were authored almost exclusively by Irvin S. Cobb and Stephen

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

ROBERT G. KERR, 590 Ridge road, Lake Forest, is one of the five outstanding freshmen at Brown university, Providence, R. I., to be awarded a John Hay scholarship this year. Kerr, who will enter the university in September, was chosen for his outstanding scholarship and personality. The award is valued at $450 and is subject to renewal annually if the winner maintains a high scholastic standing. Young Kerr is a graduate of Lake Forest High school where he was a member of the honor society, a track letterman and president of the history club. He will study liberal arts at Brown.

Robert G. Kerr.

ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-FIVE relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Thompson recently attended the couple's golden wedding celebration. Mr. Thompson is 74 years old and Mrs. Thompson is 72. They reside at 1444 Jarvis avenue.

Two Our Town students of Illinois Institute of Technology recently received scholarships at the school. They are Robert I. Ball, 4227 North Ashland avenue, and Robert J. Sullivan, 7078 North Wolcott avenue. Young Ball, a student of civil engineering, is a recipient of the Edward G. Elcock award, and Sullivan, who is studying mechanical engineering, won a Malek A. Loring scholarship.

IF Mrs. Catherine Copeland has any bad luck from now on it won't be her fault. Within the last two weeks she has picked 56 four leaf clovers on her lawn at 1307 North Shore avenue. All came from the same plant, she said. Mrs. Copeland harvested 16 in one day, 15 on another, and, she adds, "Summer's not over." To assure herself that her luck will last thru the fall and winter she planted several of the four leaf clovers in a flower pot.

Weed Cutters Help Reduce City's Sneezes

Chicago's annual campaign of cutting 12,000,000 square yards of weeds as a means of combatting hayfever was at its halfway mark last week. The bureau of streets, which in the summer cuts about 260,000 square yards of weeds daily, has destroyed some 6,000,000 since the middle of July.

By the end of September the cutting will be completed. The weeds are destroyed along driveways, parkways, in parks, playgrounds, and empty lots. The destruction of weeds is a definite aid to hay fever sufferers, Al Konefes, acting chief clerk of the bureau of streets, declared.

Cool Weather Helps.

The hay fever season thus far is reported as being mild, Konefes said. Recent cool weather is said to have killed much of the hay fever carrying pollen before it has ripened on the plants and been blown into the air.

Altho the bureau of streets estimates its annual weed killing quota at 12 million square yards, less than 50 per cent of the city's weeds are touched.

Day's Work Shown.

A report of a typical August day showed that a total of 264,572 square yards of weeds were cut by relief workers under the direction of Commissioner Frank J. Flanagan of the bureau of streets. Half of this yardage is cut by hand scythes, the other by 16 mowing machines.

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt declared that a greater amount of eradication work could be done by the city if more relief workers were assigned to the program.

The following table shows the yardage of weeds cut last Tuesday by the bureau of streets on the north and northwest sides:

33	2,500	....	2,500
34	1,250	....	1,250

MILE LONG LINK OF 8 LANE ROAD NEARING FINISH

Belmont Underpass Work Rushed.

Motorists who for a year have been solving the daily jigsaw traffic puzzle in Lincoln park will have easy going shortly after Labor day, it was announced last week by George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the park district. The new Outer drive link from Fullerton to Belmont avenue is expected to be open for traffic at that time to complete the express highway from the loop to Foster avenue.

The drive will not be totally finished at that time, however. Construction work on grade separation projects at Diversey and Belmont avenues is expected to take the rest of the year. But enough work will have been done on the Fullerton-Diversey stretch to permit its opening to traffic in September, Donoghue believes.

Explain Sand Mounds.

The high mounds of sand at Belmont avenue and the drive which appeared recently to give motorists another puzzle to ponder on their way downtown were explained by park district engineers. The sand, most of it quick settling fill, was purchased thru government coöperation on a priority basis. It is to serve as the highway grading at this point. After the grade separation abutments and retaining walls at Belmont avenue are finished the mounds are to be leveled off to provide the drive grading.

Concrete footings for this project have been poured and footings for the retaining walls are now in the process of being poured. The material in the piles includes 97,000 cubic yards of bank sand and granulated slag.

The many delays in completing the project have been due to lack of funds, Donoghue declared. Now all the financing has been arranged and the Outer drive is considered a defense project. Upon its completion it will represent a thru highway, 18 miles long, beginning at Foster avenue and ending at 6700 south.

Eight Traffic Lanes.

The new grade separations at Fullerton and Belmont avenues, which are part of the drive projects, will give motorists access to east and west streets and local drives. They are expected to relieve traffic congestion for miles around.

Completion of the drive will provide eight traffic lanes from North to Belmont avenue, connecting with service drives thru the park, the principal one feeding traffic across the south end of Lincoln park into La Salle street.

More than 1,700 men are at work daily on the Fullerton-Belmont link. To date 27,477 man months have gone into the project.

The reason no definite completion date can be fixed for the project, it was explained, is because much of the work is affected by weather conditions. "I can only say that the link will be open approximately a short time after Labor day, and then, only if the weather gives us a break," Donoghue said.

WILL TAKE BRIDE OF 50 YEARS ON VISIT TO MOTHER

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Leathers of 5409 Lakewood avenue are thinking of taking a golden wedding trip. It will be a jaunt to Washington, D. C., to visit Mr. Leathers' mother, Mrs. John Leathers, who is 96 years old, in good health, and deeply interested in the political life of the nation's capital.

The Leatherses, who observed their 50th anniversary last Sunday, were married in Covington, Ky., where they were born and were schoolmates. They came to Chicago 35 years ago when Mr. Leathers was sent here by the United Fruit company to be manager of the Fruit Dispatch company. He retired four years ago. Except for their first year here, the Leatherses have always lived at their present address.

Since his retirement, Mr. Leathers, 76, says he enjoys listening to baseball games and music over his radio. He is senior elder of the North Shore Christian church.

The Leatherses have two sons and a daughter: J. W. Leathers Jr., Wilmette; Herndon Leathers, Chicago, and Mrs. Morgan Buford of Kankakee. There are eight grandchildren.

America First Notes

Harry A. Veeneman, 7552 North Claremont avenue, will speak on "For God and Country My Country, America" tomorrow evening at the weekly anti-war meeting of the Evanston chapter of America First at the Ridgeville park fieldhouse, 908 Seward street in the suburb. The usual Monday meeting will not be held Sept. 1, Labor day.

WAUKEGAN HOPE FOR COAST GUARD STATION MOUNTS

Board Holds Hearing on Plea of City.

Waukegan's 25 year old hopes of establishing a coast guard station in the city's harbor rose to new heights last week following an official inquiry into the need for such a station.

The inquiry was conducted by a five man board of Chicago district coast guard officials on orders from Washington. The board came away with more than a volume of data and testimony by Waukegan fisherman, chamber of commerce officials, yachtsmen, and others. The data is being compiled and will be sent to the national coast guard office within two weeks. A bill authorizing the proposed station is pending in congress.

Expect a Large Station.

If the station is approved, the unit will be large enough to cover many miles of the lake coastline, according to Henry Bleck, Waukegan city engineer. He said that he believed the inquiry was concerned with the establishment of a coast guard unit of more than 20 men and equipped with large high powered craft, instead of a small station so common in this section of the lake.

The board, headed by Lieut. Commander G. W. MacLane, acting director of the Chicago district, was told that Waukegan harbor is steadily growing in importance. The board learned that more than 350,000 tons of coal and more than 100,000 tons of steel billets are to be carried into Waukegan harbor during the present shipping season.

Report Big Fish Industry.

More than 2 million pounds of fish caught by Waukegan's fishermen will be unloaded on Waukegan docks, testimony revealed. Adam Detloff, harbormaster, and Milton Larsen, former harbormaster, both told of many lake disasters and rescues.

Al Shellswick, represting the Waukegan Commercial Fishermen's association, told the board he had fished in Lake Michigan and Lake Superior for more than 40 years. "For most of my 40 years," he said, "I have worked under the protection of the coast guard. But here in Waukegan we fishermen must depend on each other for protection."

Send Data to Washington.

Lieut. Commander MacLane explained that the inquiry was strictly a fact-finding one. "We received our orders from Washington to compile data and send it to headquarters with our recommendations," he declared. "What will happen I don't know."

Others on the inquiry board were Commander G. B. Skinner, Lieut. K. C. Phillips, Lieut. A. F. Glaza, and Lieut. Commander J. D. Conway.

Mancel Talcott, former mayor of Waukegan, told the board that the volume of commercial shipping and pleasure boating has increased during the last 10 years. Talcott appeared as a representative of the chamber of commerce.

FINAL SESSION TO START TODAY AT YWCA CAMP

Miss Helen Harlem, 819 Waveland avenue, and Miss Ruth Zemantis, 808 Newport avenue, are serving on the camp council at Forest Beach, the YWCA camp at New Buffalo, Mich. The council directs the camp social activities, and Miss Harlem and Miss Zemantis will assist with plans for the final week of this season. Forest Beach closes Labor day.

Miss Rita Kuerbs, 2025 Wellington avenue, has been chosen to serve on the winter camp council, a permanent advisory committee which will plan ahead for the 1942 season at Forest Beach.

North siders at the Michigan outing spot this week are: Alice Anderson, Eleanor Ehlen, Dorothy Franenhoff, Ruth Franenhoff, Olive Hales, Eleanor Hazleton, Tiba Heymann, Adeline Ipsen, Corine Johnson, Thea Israel, Cecelia Madura, Charlotte McKinley, Marian Pacelli, Shirley Patterson, Melaine Ptaszek, Mrs. Allan Ross, Florence Scott, Myrtle Shreiber, Marie Sherman, Ella Schneider, Joan Stolarski, Alice Stuchlik, Elisabeth Wehner, LaVerne Zamudio, Helen Brostow, Kathleen Daly, Marie Firnbach, Marian Karsten, and Edith Anderson.

Dances at Hungarian Picnic Today

Miss Catherine Fury, 1431 Granville avenue, will dance the Hungarian csardas and palotas at the 11th annual Magyar Radio picnic at Riverview park today. Singers, acrobats, and whip twirlers will also entertain. Over 5,000 Chicagoans of Hungarian descent are expected to take part.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Aug. 25.

Work in the garden at this season consists largely in maintenance and it is imperative that all leaves be raked and piled even tho they are from soft wood trees. They add, when decayed, some humus to the compost heap. There is always an obscure corner where leaves and soft trash can be piled and, with it, some soil. Wet the heap down when it is dry to hasten decomposition.

Tuesday, Aug. 26.

If the new lawn has not been started start working on it immediately. Fill all depressions and cut down elevations to give a smooth even surface; this is true for the small area; larger areas may have surface variations or an undulating sweep that presents a good appearance.

If the soil packs spread a layer of decayed manure over the surface; if the soil drains poorly, spade in two or more inches of sifted ashes or sand to provide some drainage. Sandy soil is improved by spading under manures or decayed vegetable matter; pulverized manures are also beneficial.

Wednesday, Aug. 27.

Order bulbs early to have them to plant at the proper time. Narcissi should be planted just as soon as they can be obtained. Crocus the same, and madonna lilies should go into the ground at the earliest time they can be procured. Tulips can be planted as late as the ground can be worked or into early October.

By a careful selection of varieties, the tulip season can be extended over a two month period and with the addition of other kinds a brilliant spring display can be enjoyed.

Small groups of bulbous material scattered according to height in the perennial border prolongs the season of bloom. Groups of hardy lilies, from three to five bulbs of a kind, are also of much interest.

Thursday, Aug. 28.

Bear in mind that water evaporates very rapidly during this season and it must be replaced almost daily. Lay the hose on the ground and allow it to run freely or until the ground is soaked to a depth of five inches.

Never allow the insect pests to gain control; the only way to prevent this is constant spraying at intervals of about 10 days. Spray roses with Triogen, a three way insecticide and funguscide. Those who can obtain tobacco stems may use them as a mulch for they serve as a repellent against root aphids and other pests.

Friday, Aug. 29.

Stake tall gladiolus or they are likely to fall over. Stake all tall flower stems. Manure water or commercial foods in solution applied to gladiolus and dahlias that show buds will increase the size of bloom and the strength of stem. Feed the peonies for next year's bloom. An application of plant food may give some good larkspur blooms for the second time.

Increase the supply of phlox from cuttings of the young stems made at this time. Just as soon as the pansies are large enough they may be transplanted into frames or in beds where they are to flower next spring.

Saturday, Aug. 30.

If the annuals that are in good condition are cut back and the soil given an application of food, they will develop stems and flowers until the frost cuts them down. Do not feed roses too late in the season or soft growth would result and is almost certain to result in severe winter freezing.

Perennials that were sown in June may be lifted and planted in their permanent beds; they will have time to become established before cold weather can injure them. Mulch during winter to prevent heaving.

MODERN HOME IS BUILT AROUND BIG LIVING ROOM

Kitchen, Dining in Wing; Bedroom in Another.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Wilson, 1611 West 105th place, knew a number of simple fundamentals of house planning and construction, and in decisions made as to layout and materials they kept steadily in mind the fact that their future home was to be as they wanted it. Their present English colonial type of dwelling fits its site and the family needs.

The home stands on a lot 55 by 120 feet and the exterior walls are brick in mellow tones, soft purples and phantom blues, creams, and browns, and tans. The roof and shutters are a deep brown and the entrance door of dark wood lives up to the tradition that an entrance door should spell hospitality and beauty.

Living Room in Center.

The floor arrangement is of interest. It deviates from the conventional and possesses quite a few assets all its own. The plan places reception hall, living room, and outdoor terrace opening from living room, directly in the center of the house. The reception hall is bright and gracious and serves its purpose well, tho it does not take too much space from the house proper. Stairs to the second floor are on the left, and beyond, the left wing of the dwelling, is occupied by master bedroom, 11 by 20 feet, and bath. The right wing is occupied by dining room, with view to gardens at back, kitchen, and breakfast room at the front.

The entire second floor is given up to a second bedroom, center hall, and bath. This suite belongs to young Mr. Wilson, who is now entering his last year at the University of Chicago.

Flush Type Doors.

The heating system, which is forced warm air, oil fueled, is in the basement, together with utility rooms and storage spaces.

The doors thruout the home are flush type, finely grained walnut, with a soft, satiny finish. "These are very easy to clean," Mrs. Wilson says. And certainly they are very lovely to look on.

Dining Room Separate.

The dining room is close, but not a part of the living room, and conforms pleasingly to tradition with its corner cupboards and effective colonial lighting fixture. In the kitchen there is a gay Mexican note in lively decals on cupboards and shelves. The walls are of cream colored linoleum flecked with blue and black, and there's a cove baseboard and black linoleum floor flecked with cream and white. There's a kitchen ventilator for coolness and shelves on each side of sink are bright with colorful jars and pottery.

On the second floor the bedroom is 13 by 18, not counting the dormers, which add still more space. There is a masculine touch here, with built-in shelves for books. The bath is carried out in linoleum, with cream and brown walls and white fixtures.

LONG FORGOTTEN BOOKS TURN UP IN ARMY GIFTS

City Contributes 6,000 to Camp Libraries.

Leacock. There were entire collections of the works of Guy de Maupassant, Mark Twain, and Stephen Crane.

Books on philosophy and in foreign languages came in. Library workers found a particularly good Spanish group, including Spanish grammar books as well as stories in that language.

Several first editions were given away by their owners, and these the library will sell and use the funds to buy more books for the army. A few books the library is keeping for exhibits. These include old-time paper backed editions of "Ten Nights in a Barroom"; "From the Ballroom to Hell" illustrated with a picture of a demure young girl and a devil hovering over her; "Fireside Game, a Repertory of Social Amusements."

Keep Best Sellers.

Best sellers of long ago will be kept by the library also. Susan Warner's "The Wide, Wide World" and Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth's "Self-Raised or From the Depths" are among these.

The books were packed for 11 camps: Camp Grant, Rockford; Chanute field, Rantoul; Scott field, Belleville; Selfridge field, Mount Clemens, Mich.; Fort Sheridan; Fort Custer, Mich.; the Rock Island arsenal; Savanna Ordance depot at Proving Ground, Ill.; Fort Wayne, Detroit; Fort Brady, Sault Ste. Marie, and Camp McCoy, Wis. The volumes were apportioned in accordance with the needs of the various camps—the kind of training given, and educational achievements of the average man stationed at each point.

N. SHORE HIKERS MAY BUY CABIN ON DES PLAINES

Club Welcomes All Who Like to Go Walking.

North Shore Hiking club members are thinking of becoming property owners. They have appointed a committee to investigate the terms for purchasing a small log cabin on the Des Plaines river west of Lake Forest. The cabin, with its acre lot, would be available to all the club hikers at any time. Funds for the project would be contributed by several of the members. The cabin would be used as a resting spot and in winter a place to get warm.

The hiking club meets between 9 and 9:30 o'clock every Sunday morning opposite the Winnetka Village Hall. The hikers drive from there to the country and then set off on a three hour walk. They plan to return at 1:30 o'clock.

No Fees and No Officers.

The group is entirely informal. Any one who wants to get out for a walk in the country has only to be at the Winnetka town hall on Sunday morning. If he has no car, he can ride with some one else. There are no membership fees and no dues, no officers to elect. The only requirements are old clothes and comfortable shoes.

Started two years ago, the club's members come from all of the suburbs along the north shore from Chicago to Kenosha. Others come from Glenview, Des Plaines, Northbrook, and Oak Park. There are 700 who have gone walking of a Sunday morning.

Oldest Hiker Is 75.

Oldest hiker is the Evanston architect, Edgar Ovet Blake, 75 years old. His fellow walkers say that he can outwalk all of the young folks. Another regular is Henry Beach, 70 years old, a retired contractor from Highland Park.

Arthur Hathaway, 65, a member of the Northwestern university engineering school faculty, is a walking enthusiast, too. The older hikers walk along with the teens and twenties—and the young ones don't get ahead. Several Fort Sheridan conscripts are invited each Sunday morning now.

TEMPLE SHOLOM WOMEN'S BOARD PLANS LUNCHEON

The annual summer board luncheon of Temple Sholom sisterhood will take place at the Belmont hotel Wednesday. New officers will be introduced, and plans for the 1941-'42 season will be announced.

The season will open Oct. 14 when members and their guests will hear Clifton Utley at a special afternoon program. The first benefit will take place on Oct. 27 when the sisterhood will join other Sholom organizations in presenting Pierre Van Paassen, author, as lecturer. The fall membership drive, under the direction of Mrs. William B. Levy, will end with a luncheon on Nov. 17. The annual "Dime-a-Day" earning fund luncheon is set for Dec. 17.

Mrs. Erwin W. Mautner is president of the sisterhood. Other officers are Mrs. Jess Raban, first vice president; Mrs. A. James Riffkind, second vice president; Mrs. William B. Levy, third vice president; Mrs. Henry Monheimer, fourth vice president; Mrs. Jules Trock, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Max A. Stine, recording secretary; Mrs. Irving E. Hollobow, financial secretary, and Mrs. Louis B. Hoffing, treasurer.

Student Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Max Friedlander, 5240 Sheridan road, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Rosalyn, to Samuel Lasky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Lasky, 3716 Douglas boulevard. Miss Friedlander will be graduated from the University of Illinois in January. Mr. Lasky is a graduate of St. John's Military academy, the University of Illinois, and Kent College of Law.

NEGRO SINGERS OFFER WILMETTE BOWL CONCERT

"Ballad for Americans" will be sung by Jack Smith, accompanied by a Negro chorus of mixed voices from the Chicago WPA Operetta company as a feature of the eighth and final symphony concert Wednesday evening in the Wilmette amphitheater. José Echaniz, as guest conductor, will again lead the Illinois WPA Symphony orchestra. The performance will close the sixth season of free outdoor concerts. Mr. Smith is a member of the Negro National Opera company and has been heard in the rôles of Poo-Bah in "The Mikado" and Ramfis in "Aïda."

Jack Smith.

The Chicago WPO Operetta company is one of the principal choruses of the Illinois music project. It has been heard by thousands of soldiers in camps thruout the state and last summer played more than 50 performances of "Chimes of Normandy" at the Chicago Coliseum.

The principal orchestral work on the symphony's concluding program will be Tschaikowsky's Fourth Symphony. Conductor Echaniz has also included the Overture, "Comes Autumn Time" by the Chicago composer, Leo Sowerby; "Fiesta Negra," by the Cuban composer, Roldan, and another Tschaikowsky composition, "Marche Slav."

CLUB TO SPONSOR CLASSES IN ART AND DRAMA STUDY

Rogers Park Unit Maps Season's Work.

Mrs. Thomas J. O'Leary, fine arts chairman of the Rogers Park Woman's club, has completed plans for the department this season. A book review group, an art class, and a drama study class are among the special groups to be organized in the department.

Mrs. James S. Harvey, literature chairman, will conduct the book review group the fourth Wednesday of each month. Assisting her will be Mrs. C. T. Jackson, Mrs. John N. Barbee, Miss Frances Smith, Mrs. Samuel James, and Mrs. O'Leary. Mrs. Harvey is in charge of reservations for this group.

The drama study class, under the leadership of Estelle Ayer Johnson, drama chairman, will meet on the second and fourth Thursdays. The art chairman, Mrs. George A. Brown, has arranged to hold an art class every Thursday, and Mrs. Samuel Ross will direct chorus rehearsals to be held on Thursdays.

Woman's Club of Evanston.

Members are working on plans for the third annual dahlia show on Sept. 12. Entries are open to the public. Mrs. Paul Klopsteg is chairman of the show which is one of the activities of the home and social service department. Mrs. W. Ira Williams is general chairman of the garden group of that department.

Members of the dahlia show committee are: Mrs. William Paddock Turner, Mrs. Thomas Dunham, Mrs. Edwin Smythe, Mrs. Edmund Claussen, Mrs. Fred C. Windoes, Mrs. E. Chatfield Koogle, and Lewis West, an attorney who makes a hobby of growing dahlias. Lew Sarett, member of the Northwestern school of speech staff, will assist Mrs. Klopsteg in arranging the exhibit.

DRAFTEES TO WATCH AS BOARDS REVISE STANDINGS IN LIST

Because two Chicago draft boards did not understand instructions for assigning draft numbers to the 21 year olds who registered July 1, 238 of the new registrants have been invited to attend ceremonies at which proper numbers will be assigned.

Louis A. Boening, Cook county draft director, said that at board No. 95, at 610 West 37th street, serial numbers were erased from registration cards after the Washington lottery and replaced with the sequence of numbers drawn in Washington. Thus the man who should have been No. 99 on the board's list was No. 1, and others were similarly misassigned. Other numbers also were improperly assigned at board No. 79, 5612 North Western avenue.

Registrants in board No. 95 have been invited to meet at 553 West 37th street at 8 p. m. Tuesday. The men in board No. 79 can witness the corrections at the Green Briar field house, 2650 Patterson avenue, at 8 p. m. Thursday. Members of the local boards and representatives of the Cook county office will supervise the renumbering of cards.

THAVIU BAND PLAYS CONCERT IN LINCOLN PARK THIS EVENING

The sixth in the series of summer band concerts presented in Lincoln park by the Chicago Federation of Musicians will feature A. F. Thaviu and his band tonight at 8 o'clock. The soloists will be Frida Savini, soprano, and Enrico Clausi, tenor.

A. F. Thaviu.

Mr. Thaviu's selections will include "Marche Militaire," "Invitation to the Dance," overture to "Russian and Ludmilla," "Dance of the Hours," from "La Gioconda," and ballet music from Gounod's "Faust."

The soloists will turn to Verdi's opera "Aida" for their selections with Mr. Clausi offering Celeste Aida and Miss Savini singing Ritorna Vincitor.

Rogers Park Kiwanians to Fete Clubs in District

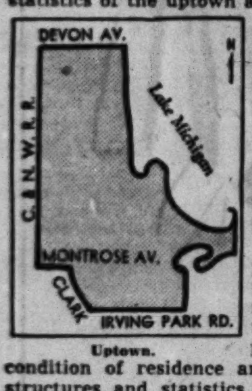
LAND USE SURVEY CONTRASTS LOOP WITH UPTOWN

Rentals Above Average in Both Areas.

Two booklets of housing and vital statistics of the uptown and loop districts were issued recently by the land use survey project under the direction of the Chicago Plan commission.



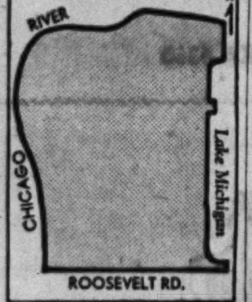
Uptown.

The pamphlets contain information of types and physical condition of residence and business structures and statistics relating to population composition, health, and delinquency rates. Thus far, 52 booklets, each a statistical portrait of a Chicago neighborhood, have been issued.

Comparative statistics show that the uptown area lists 30.2 per cent of its dwellings as single family, compared to 42.6 per cent as the city overage. There are only 47 single family residences in the loop district.

Rentals Above Average.

Uptown and loop rentals both are above the city average of $33.93. The uptown is $44.94 and the loop, $62.17. In uptown 8.5 per cent were owner occupied while only three dwellings in the loop were in this category. The city average is 26.2 per cent.



The Loop.

Only 12.2 per cent of the loop homes have private bath and toilet. Uptown has 85.4 per cent and the city average is 84.7 per cent. The city average for nonwhite residents is 7.9 per cent, uptown is .4 per cent and the loop, 3 per cent.

Vital Statistics.

No vital statistics were provided in the loop survey. The city and uptown comparison is as follows:

	City.	Uptown.
Births [per 1,000 women, 15-44 years]	50.6	34.8
Infant mortality [per 1,000 births]	43.3	34.0
*General mortality	1,040	1,000
*Tuberculosis mortality	509	300
*Communicable diseases	457	238
*Children's diseases	1,053	749
*Epidemic meningitis	8.3	3.5
*Male juvenile delinquents [per 100, 10-16 years]	4.2	1.8

*Per 100,000 population.

Hugh E. Young, chief engineer of the plan commission and director of the survey, said that the land use survey, a WPA project sponsored jointly by Mayor Kelly and the commission, took nearly two years to complete at a cost of more than 3 million dollars. The data may be used for slum clearance, for improving transportation, and by business men in solving distribution problems.

SHAWNEE CLUB PLANS LUNCHEON AND STYLE SHOW

The annual Shawnee Country club luncheon bridge and fashion show will take place Sept. 5, according to an announcement from the general chairman, Mrs. Orrin W. Clifton. Part of the show will be devoted to children's clothes, and 22 girls and boys have been chosen to show what is fashionable among the very young.

The junior models will be: Virginia Adams, Jasmine Bridell, Judith Cannon, Nancy Cathcart, Bonnie Dhu Clark, Mary Doepel, Peggy and Dick Doane, Joanne and Jimmy Ellmore, Nancy Fralick, Yvonne Gleason, Sarah Jane Keller, Joan McGowan, Ardis Miller, Jeanne and Peggy Pauley, Ann and Jim Russell, Barbara Stentiford, Harriet Richter, and Mary Lou Walker.

Mrs. Richard Howell is fashion chairman, and Mrs. Robert Doepel has charge of arrangements. Mrs. Frank Cauley and Mrs. Roy C. Parkhill head the ticket committee.

Hungarian-Americans to Picnic at Riverview

More than 5,000 Chicagoans of Hungarian descent will gather at Riverview park, Western avenue and Roscoe street, at noon today for the 11th annual radio picnic, sponsored by the Magyar radio hour. There will be folk dances, music by a gypsy orchestra, and a whip cracking exhibition by Imre Korsos. Charles Hatvany, tenor, will sing.

Six young men from the north area are among the 60 Illinois aviation cadets who have begun their third and final phase of training at Randolph field, Texas, after graduating from the basic flying training school. The graduation class included more than 300 cadets, one-fifth of them from Illinois. The north siders are: George B. Hamilton, 3312 Bryn Mawr avenue; Wendell L. Jones, 7441 Rogers avenue; Thomas P. Liston, 2909 Sherwin avenue; Norwood F. Moore, 2100 Lincoln Park West; Jean F. Rydstrom, 2515 Park lane, Glenview, and Adam A. Wojcik, 1302 Augusta street. The group was the eighth class of the year to graduate at the "West Point of the Air." After their final 10 week training period they will win their wings and be commissioned as second lieutenants in the air corps reserve.

Private Thomas P. Butler, son of Mrs. Anna Butler, 4520 North Wolcott avenue, has been promoted to private first class and was given a rating of first class specialist in the field artillery replacement center at Fort Sill, Okla. He is now attached to the detachment quartermaster corps in his new grade.

Recent transfers from Fort Sheridan to the coast artillery replacement training center at Fort Eustis, Va., included three north side men, Frank Wisneski, 347 North Clark street; Lewis Flatter, 5047 Kenmore avenue, and Donald Auld, 20 West Ohio street.

LUXEMBURG FAIR TO OPEN SUNDAY IN MORTON GROVE

The 38th annual Luxemburger Schobermesse will be held next Sunday and Labor day at Deckert's grove in Morton Grove. The festival will open with a grand parade leaving Clark street and Edgewater avenue at 1:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The procession will go thru Rogers Park, Evanston, Skokie, and on out to the grove.

The festival is sponsored by the Rogers Park section of the Luxemburger Brotherhood of America. Among its chief attractions will be floral and agricultural displays by the Luxemburger farmers and florists. There will be a Luxemburger kitchen, Luxemburger bowling alleys, and folk dances.

CITY TO INSTALL STREET LIGHTS IN NEW SECTIONS

$158,000 Will Be Spent for Project.

Work on the $158,000 street lighting program approved last Wednesday by the city council will get under way this week. The new lights are to be installed in communities which now are without electric street lighting. The program will acect 25 wards, most of them in the outlying sections of the city.

Areas in which the lights will be erected have been built up the last several years and in many cases have heretofore been lighted by old fashioned gasoline street lamps. The money is to come from a corporate bond surplus fund.

Most in South Area.

The 18th and 19th wards, on the far southwest side of Chicago, will receive the largest allocations, $18,000 each. The 10th ward in the Calumet region was next with $15,000. The 9th and 11th wards, also on the south and southwest sides, received about $14,000 and $13,000, respectively. The 41st ward on the northwest side was allocated $13,000, and lights costing about $10,000 will be installed in the 50th ward, which includes the west Rogers Park section on the north side.

Much lower amounts were earmarked for the west side. Ald. Walter J. Orlikoski [35th] complained that his ward, which he asserted was poorly lighted, had received no allocation.

Will Be Standard.

The work of installation will be directed by Commissioner Frank J. Flanagan of the bureau of streets and department of electricity. The fixtures will be of the standard type now in general use thruout the city.

The city will spend about $15,000 for new lights in four north side wards. Approximate ward allotments are 44th and 46th wards [together], $5,000; 44th, $400, and the 50th ward, $10,000.

Isabella Unit Will Give Picnic for Nursery Group

Fifty children from St. Phillip's day nursery, 535 West Oak street, will be guests of the St. Hillary council of the Ladies of Isabella at a picnic Wednesday in Whealan woods, Milwaukee and Devon avenues.

Married 60 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Viezens, former residents of Englewood, last Wednesday observed their 60th wedding anniversary at their home in Antioch.

VIEZENS COUPLE OBSERVES 60TH WEDDING DATE

Relatives and old friends visited Mr. and Mrs. Paul Viezens last Sunday at their home in Antioch in compliment to them on the eve of their 60th wedding anniversary. Old time residents of Englewood, Mr. and Mrs. Viezens were married in Chicago on Aug. 20, 1881. They moved to Antioch 18 years ago upon Mr. Viezens' retirement as a government food inspector in the packing industry.

Present at the reunion were a daughter, Mrs. George Gollwitzer of Rhinelander, Wis., and their younger son, Harry L. Viezens, 1100 West Marquette road. The older son, Herbert W. Viezens, who lives in Plainfield, N. Y., was unable to attend. There are three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren in the family.

Mrs. Viezens was born in Chicago. She is 78 years old and continues her membership in several bridge clubs. Mr. Viezens, 80 years old, is a pinochle player. Born in Saxony, he came to the United States when he was 14. He first lived in Milwaukee, and served with Milwaukee volunteers in the Spanish-American war.

Mr. D. F. McMahon
Manager
Retail Advertising
Chicago Tribune

Dear Mr. McMahon:

After several years in the greeting card business, we finally got up enough nerve to advertise in the Chicago Tribune. I thought you might be interested in the results.

We first tried a quarter-page in December on Christmas cards. This ad in the North Side Metropolitan section pulled extremely well – despite the fact that both of our stores were hard to get at because of the subway construction.

Again on February 9, we used another quarter-page on Valentines. With the streets blocked off in all directions around our shops, we drew customers from all over town, stayed open all that week until midnight and rolled up a 30 per cent increase in Valentine sales. Without this ad, our Valentine business surely would have been way down compared to last year.

On April 6, the Sunday before Easter, we came back with another quarter-page. Volume during the week following this ad beat last Easter sales by more than 30 per cent. It was the best Easter business we ever had.

Some of my friends are saying I'm crazy to use big space in the Tribune. But results show they know nothing about the way the Tribune brings in the customers.

I am now planning similar promotions for Christmas.

Sincerely yours,

John J. Sullivan

Greeting Card Stores Boost Sales 30% with Advertising in Sunday Tribune Metropolitan Section

In the accompanying letter, another neighborhood merchant tells how he increased his sales and profits with advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections.

Would you like to attract more customers to your store? No matter where in the city or suburbs you are located — regardless of what you sell or to whom you sell, you can step up your volume, speed turnover and boost profits by using the Tribune's low-cost advertising plan.

Right in your own trading area, the people best able to patronize you can be reached thru advertising in one or more of these five sections—North, Northwest, West, Southwest and South—edited especially for them and published each Sunday in the Chicago Tribune.

Advertising in these sections can do for you what it did last year for 796 enterprises in practically every neighborhood and suburb of Chicago.

For more information to help you get more business from your best prospects, call SUPerior 0100—Metropolitan section advertising. Without obligation, you can get the complete facts about the Tribune's low-cost selling method which has been producing outstanding results for neighborhood advertisers for more than 14 years.

BARFOOT IRISH BOY, THEN HOST TO PRESIDENT

Daniel McCann Talks of Land of Opportunity.

When a barefoot Irish boy grows up to be host to the President of his adopted country—that means the country is a land of opportunity, indeed. This is the sentiment of Daniel McCann, 79 years old, pioneer Evanston contractor who calls himself a "barefoot Irish boy" and who, as president of the Irish Fellowship club of Chicago, was host to President Taft.

Daniel McCann.

"I like to tell young folks about my life," McCann declares, "because I'm still convinced that this is the land of opportunity for any one who will try hard enough."

For McCann, the story of the barefoot Irish boy in America began when he was 4 years old. His father, "a fightin' Irishman, as most all of them are," had come from Ireland to the United States and enlisted with the Union forces in the Civil war. When the hostilities appeared to be nearly over, he sent for his little family.

His Soldier Father.

The future Evanston contractor was 4 years old when he stood on a street in Philadelphia clutching his mother's hand and watching the troops march by. Suddenly a smiling man stepped out of the ranks, lifted the lad high and hugged him saying, "Danny, me boy, take care of your ma."

And that was the last the lad saw of his father. "He was killed by snipers, so far as we could find out. My mother wrote to her folks in Ireland. They sent her passage home, so we went back. But always I wondered about that man in Philadelphia. In 1880 I came back to America to try to find out what happened to him."

Search of the incomplete war records at Washington showed only that 20 men of the elder McCann's company had been sent on reconnaissance one day and 18 came back. "The names of the two lost weren't given, but my father must have been one of them."

Decided to Stay.

The young Irishman's stay in the capital hadn't given him much information about his father, but it had made him sure that America would be his home. He came to Evanston in 1881 and went to work as a carpenter. His first job was helping to move a store building onto the present site of the city hall, a project which involved getting over Davis street which had a ditch several feet deep.

As a contractor, McCann was the originator of the eight hour working day for Evanston carpenters. "Some of the workmen wanted to see the rule go into effect right away," McCann remembers. "But I told them that the employer as well as the employé had rights. So we compromised by giving contractors six months notice that at the end of that period 10 hours wages would be paid for 8 hours work. That was back in 1889."

Glad enough to pay well, McCann explains that the American practice of seeking the lowest bidder for building projects sometimes interferes with the high wages.

A material record of the Irish boy's progress in his new home lies in the 36 year collection of automobile license plates in his garage.

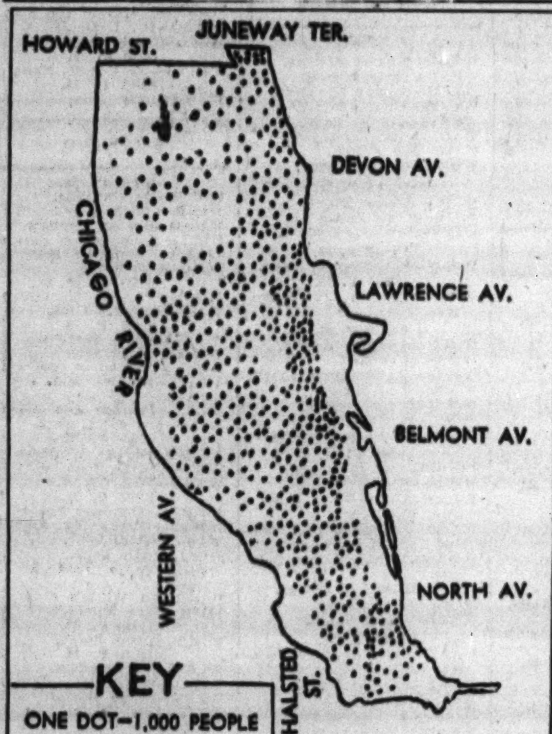
Second Car in Town.

"I had the second automobile in Evanston," he says. He also has a chainless bicycle which he rode thru Ireland on one of his 15 visits to his mother [she didn't like Evanston and went home]. "When a policeman would notice my wheel," McCann laughs, "he'd say, 'Pardon me, your honor, what makes the damn thing go?'" It operated on a shaft and gears.

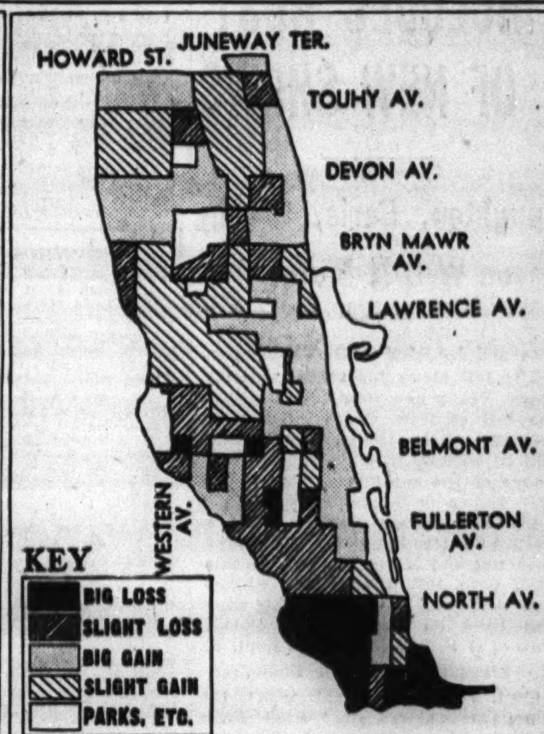
Life in early Evanston wasn't always serious work or vacations in Ireland, however. McCann was often with the young folks who rode down the old Clark street plank road into Chicago to dances. Sometimes he was the lad who diverted the toll gate keeper's attention with chatter and cigars while the others whirled past.

McCann married "one of the Kearneys," a granddaughter of the pioneer Foster family. They had no children of their own but reared two nephews and a niece. Now widowed, Mr. McCann still resides in the home at 1223 Oak street which he built and moved into in 1893. He has been president of the Evanston conference of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, laymen's charitable organization, for the last 47 years.

How North Side Population Has Moved



How the north side's 632,472 inhabitants are distributed can be seen at a glance from this map, made from detailed figures recently published by the census bureau, on which each dot represents 1,000 persons. For census purposes the area shown is divided into 137 small tracts, each of which is dealt with individually. Blank spaces indicate parks, cemeteries, factories, or, in the far northwest corner, just prairie. The large population of skyscraping apartment buildings along Lincoln park is noticeable.



Which areas lost population and which gained are shown in this map. Black areas represent a loss of more than 7 per cent of the area's 1930 population. Where a big gain is indicated, the increase was more than 7 per cent, the national average increase. Desirable regions along the lake, made more desirable by the construction of the widened outer drive and Lake Shore drive, making them readily accessible to the loop, showed the largest gains. The federal housing project at Diversey avenue and the river caused a gain there of about 45 per cent.

LAKE BREEZES AID IN GROWTH OF NORTH SIDE

Improved transportation and lake breezes are given credit for a 27,725 rise in population of the north side of the city during the last 10 years. In most parts of the city, on the other hand, the tendency was to move to the country or the outskirts of the city, and the city as a whole showed a gain of only 20,370.

The total population of the city in 1940 was 3,396,808, representing an increase of six-tenths of 1 per cent over 1930, figures released by the census bureau of the department of commerce indicate. In the area north and east of the river there are, as of last year, 632,472 persons, a gain of 4.3 per cent.

Even the north side's gain was less than the estimated rise of more than 7 per cent for the country as a whole, however. North side real estate men may be consoled, then, with the knowledge that at least fewer people are moving away from their part of the city than from others.

Real gains of as much as 25 per cent in some places were recorded in the strip within a mile of the lake and north of Armitage avenue. In this area many large apartment buildings have been built, both along the new drive and on the tree lined streets within easy reach of the drive.

The people who moved to these buildings, however, were evidently not as numerous as the builders had hoped, for along Lake Shore drive there is the highest consistent percentage of vacancy in the city. In the city as a whole 3.8 per cent of the dwelling units are for sale or rent, while on the lake front between Diversey and Devon avenues the percentage varies between 7 and 15.

Trend Toward Outskirts.

About a quarter of the section's gain was in the undeveloped region north and west of Rosehill cemetery. This illustrates the general trend to move to the outskirts of the city.

The greatest losses were in the industrial area south of Armitage avenue. The only gain was in the rooming houses and inexpensive hotels along Dearborn and Clark streets.

Other losses were also directly related to the expansion of industry, and took place in spots along the river and along the railroad lines.

A combination of high cost and commercial growth east of Michigan avenue is held responsible for the highest vacancy proportion in the city—19.9 per cent.

Singing Honors

Harriet O'Rourke.

Elmer Carlquist.

Miss Harriet O'Rourke, 2860 East 76th street, and Elmer Carlquist, Lake Forest, were third place winners in the best singer contests for men and women in the 12th annual Chicagoland Music Festival. Miss O'Rourke is a coloratura soprano, and Carlquist is a dramatic tenor.

DALE EVANS TO JOIN AFFAIRS OF TOM, DICK, HARRY

Dale Evans, petite vocalist who recently returned from successful screen tests in Hollywood, will make a guest appearance on the Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow.

Dale Evans.
[Nelidoff Photo.]

Miss Evans is a Chicago girl who has had considerable success in both radio and night clubs. Her featured vocal offerings will be "More than You Know" and a new rhumba, "Negla Soi."

SINGING CANARIES WILL RETURN TO W-G-N ON OCT. 19

The American Radio Warblers, a group of 10 canary songsters with Helen Westbrook at the organ, will return to W-G-N and Mutual at noon Sunday, Oct. 19. They will be heard at this hour each week. The Warblers are real birds and no mechanical devices or bird imitators supplement them. Thousands of canaries in the homes of listeners sing along with these radio songsters.

MISS WITWER, WILKOMIRSKI ON MELODY PAGEANT

Kathryn Witwer, noted soprano, and Michael Wilkomirski, concert master of the W-G-N orchestra, will be featured on the Pageant of Melody to be aired over W-G-N and Mutual from 9 to 9:30 p. m. next Wednesday.

Miss Witwer will sing Moskowsky's "Springtime of Love," and will join Wilkomirski in "Ave Maria," from Massanet's "Thias." Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra in excerpts from Rameau's "Dardanuas Suite"; "Berceuse" from Stravinsky's "Fire Bird Suite," and Rimsky-Korsakov's "Capriccia Espagnole."

Raymond Swing to Double Broadcasts to Britain

Raymond Gram Swing, W-G-N-Mutual commentator, who recently returned from a trip to England, will double his broadcasts to Britain. Previously heard once a month overseas, he will soon go on a fortnightly schedule. Swing's views are aired over W-G-N and Mutual at 9 p. m. Mondays and Fridays.

Hap Hazard Show Moves West for New Series

The Hap Hazard show, featuring Ransom Sherman, Songstress Edna Odell, and Billy Mills music, which has been a summer replacement for Fibber McGee, will start out on its own on Oct. 15. The show will be aired at 6:30 p. m. each Wednesday over WMAQ-NBC. Sherman and the rest of the company have moved to Hollywood, where the new show will originate. They still may be heard at 8:30 Tuesday evenings pending the return of Fibber McGee and Molly on Tuesday, Sept. 30.

'The Wail of Death' on Inner Sanctum Mystery

"The Wail of Death," an eerie mystery involving a British army post in India and a strange curse that took curtain calls for 50 years, is the inner sanctum mystery to be presented at 7:30 p. m. today over WENR. The tale deals with the thugs, Indian religious fanatics, and forerunners of several modern schools of violence.

Play by W-G-N Writer Back for Another Run

"These Are My Jewels," a modern comedy by Henry Barbour and Ruth McKay, which was presented recently at the Lake Zurich Playhouse, is being repeated. The second series will conclude with tonight's performance. Barbour is a W-G-N continuity writer.

Every Crow thinks HER Crow is the BLACKEST!

That's what Mrs. McGillicuddy said to Mrs. O'Flaherty as they overheard Mrs. Murphy prate on and on about the wonders of her new offspring, Timothy. But sure and such prating as Mrs. Murphy indulged in is the right of every proud mother. Isn't her young one merely a reflection of herself and don't we all like to put a little wind in our sails at times? Of course we do!

So "with fair words and soft speech" we'd sorta like to whisper (not shout) a few words of praise about our little Castle of Cleanliness located near the shores of Lake Michigan, where the waves play an unfinished melody. 'Tis a gem of a place, folks, an ambitious, beautiful dream come true. It's a product of unceasing labor, sacrifice and determination to offer the best washing and ironing service in the Skokie Valley.

And if acceptance of this service is any indication of its merit then you, you, and you from the length and breadth of this verdant patch of pastoral peacefulness have filled our hearts with a warm glow of gratitude. It is our avowed intention to continue to treat your treasured possessions with gentle care and to use only those washing supplies which will keep your linens in a state of perpetual loveliness.

TRY OUR SUN-GLO SPECIAL, Which Includes:

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

FALL RADIO FARE INCLUDES HOST OF NEW SHOWS

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The fall menu for radio is almost ready. Many new items are listed on the bill of fare. Many of the old favorites, off for the summer months, will be back on.

One of the most promising of the new shows is Three Ring Time, a Hollywood comedy variety show to feature Charles Laughton, the character actor, and Milton Berle, the comedian, with Bob Crosby and Shirley Ross providing the music. This show will have its première on W-G-N-Mutual at 8:30 p. m. Friday, Sept. 12.

Flagg and Quirt for Radio.

Capt. Flagg and Sergt. Quirt, the famous characters of "What Price Glory," will come to life on the air at 6:30 p. m. Sunday, Sept. 28, over WENR-NBC. Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen, heroes of the cinema version, will be co-starred in this radio version.

Gladys Swarthout, Metropolitan Opera singer, and Deems Taylor, composer and commentator, will be the headliners of the Family Hour, starting over WBBM-CBS at 4 p. m. Sunday, Aug. 31. They will be supported by Ross Graham, baritone, Al Goodman's orchestra, and a chorus.

A rib from Fibber McGee is the new show, The Great Gildersleeve, featuring Harold Peary, starting at 5:30 Sunday, Aug. 31, over WMAQ-NBC. Gildersleeve has been a popular character in the McGee show.

Already established as a popular new comedy show is Harold Teen, whose adventures are chronicled over W-G-N at 7:30 o'clock every Tuesday evening.

Orson Welles to Return.

Orson Welles, off the air most of last year, will return with a new show at 9 p. m. Monday, Sept. 15, over WBBM-CBS, replacing the present Freddy Martin show aired at this hour.

Among the new and returning shows with starting dates are the following:

W-G-N AND MUTUAL.

*July 29—7:30 p. m. Tuesday—Harold Teen. W-G-N.
*Aug. 31—11:30 a. m. Sunday—Quin Ryan reads Chicago Tribune comics. W-G-N.

Sept. 19—7:15 p. m. Friday—Jimmy Evans' Football Forecasts. W-G-N.
Sept. 28—12:15 p. m. Sunday—George Fisher's Hollywood Whispers. W-G-N-Mutual.
Sept. 28—4:30 p. m. Sunday—The Shadow. W-G-N-Mutual.
Sept. 28—5:30 p. m. Sunday—Adventures of Bulldog Drummond. W-G-N-Mutual.
*Sept. 29—5:15 p. m. Monday thru Friday—Terry and the Pirates. W-G-N.
Sept. 29—5:30 p. m. Monday thru Friday—Jack Armstrong. W-G-N-Mutual.
Sept. 29—5:45 p. m. Monday thru Friday—Captain Midnight. W-G-N-Mutual.
Oct. 19—Noon Sunday—American Radio Warblers. W-G-N-Mutual.

*Indicates new programs.

W-G-N-Mutual will carry the world series exclusively the week of Oct. 2. The exclusive broadcasts of the Mike Jacobs-Twentieth Century boxing bouts will be continued over W-G-N and Mutual.

Citizens of Tomorrow, the program featuring Philip Maxwell with students from Chicagoland high schools, will return some time in October.

DONALD M'GIBENY TO RECALL STORY OF MADAME VIC

Donald McGibeny on his W-G-N news commentary at 10:30 p. m. next Thursday will tell the story of Madame Vic, the English chambermaid who married the pasha of Ouzzan.

Donald McGibeny.

The pasha married the chambermaid after she had instructed him in correct English fashio..s. The pasha on visiting England had his clothes tailored from plates in a book of Shakespeare's plays. Then he gave a party, wearing the garb of a 17th century nobleman. While the Britishers reserved comment, a chambermaid laughed at him. Later he married her and she became known as Madame Vic because of her resemblance to Queen Victoria.

McGibeny met her several years ago, took her for her first airplane ride, and got her to recount the story of her romance.

VIOLIN MELODY ON CHICAGOLAND HOUR SATURDAY

Marion Claire, Baggiore Vocal Soloists.

A violin solo by Michael Wilkomirski, concert master of the W-G-N concert orchestra, will be a feature of the Chicagoland Hour, from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Marion Claire, noted soprano, and Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor, singing stars of the program, will join with Wilkomirski and Henry Weber, conductor of the concert orchestra, to present a varied program of good music.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Wilkomirski's violin solo will be Hubay's "Hejre Kati" with a background by the orchestra. Miss Claire will sing two solos, the "Gypsy Song" from Kalman's "Countess Maritza" and Schubert's "Ave Maria." In both selections she will be joined by the chorus under the direction of Robert Trendler.

Baggiore will offer "My Dream Girl" from Victor Herbert's "Girl of My Dreams" and DeMoya's "Song of Songs." He will also be heard with Miss Claire in two medleys from Friml's "Vagabond King" and Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe" and "Gondoliers."

The orchestra will play Leoncavallo's "Carnival" from "I Pagliacci."

The complete program follows:

"Carnival" [I Pagliacci] ...... Leoncavallo
Orchestra and Chorus
"Gypsy Song" [Countess Maritza] .. Kalman
Marion Claire and Chorus
"My Dream Girl" [Girl of My Dreams] ...... Herbert

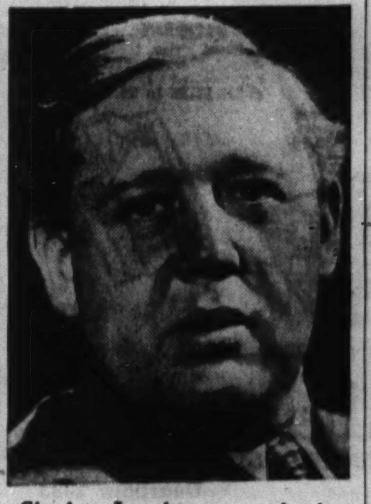
The Chicagoland Hour is under the direction of William A. Bacher, W-G-N chief of programs and production.

W9XBK to Start Theater Television Demonstrations

Daily television demonstrations will be given thru the facilities of station W9XBK on the mezzanine floor of the Chicago theater starting Monday. Patrons of the theater will be televised in a studio in the theater and viewed by others thru six receivers scattered about the floor. Six hostesses will be on hand to interview television subjects. William Eddy, director of television for Balaban and Katz, will be in charge.

In '3 Ring Time'

Shirley Ross, movie and radio songstress, with Bob Crosby's orchestra will provide the musical backdrop for the new W-G-N-Mutual Hollywood comedy variety show, Three Ring Time, starting at 8:30 p. m. Friday, Sept. 12.



Charles Laughton, noted character actor, and Milton Berle, radio comedian, will be the headliners of the new Mutual show, Three Ring Time.

34th Ward Democrats Join for Outing Today

The 34th Ward Regular Democratic organization will hold its 13th annual picnic today at Kolze's grove.

PLAIDS

The new plaids that capture the lilt of the Highland Fling and the stir of the bagpipes in their vibrant, mellow tones! The plaids that go to school, to college, to market, office or shopping. The plaids that, this season, enmesh the fashionable world!

(A) Black Velveteen Accents the Brilliant Plaid Suspender Dress. $6.94
See its new longer waistline, so slimly molded! Its softly flared skirt . . . its ingenious suspender effect and red buttons. At home, at school. 11-17. (Dress Dept.)

(B) A "Mad About Plaid" Torso-Jacketed Suit with Pleated Skirt. $8.98
Softest wool with trigger-true tailoring. Fully lined for ample warmth . . . in bright autumnal hues for women-about-town or campus. Sizes 12-18. (Sportswear Dept.)

(C) Pencil-Slim Suits That Break Into Pleats at Every Step... $3.98
Authentic Clan plaids, if you please, and lovely domestic adaptations! Cleverly contrived, new pleated treatments. Jaunty as a Scotch Kilt! 12 to 18. (Dress Dept.)

(D) Reversible Coats that Save You on that "Rainy Day." Only $10.98
They're boxy or fitted, as you please. A blithesome plaid with a hardy water-repellent reversible lining. So moderately priced! Sizes 12 to 20. (Sportswear Dept.)

(E) Flattering Fox on "Wisp o' Scotland" Plaid Sports Coats. $48.00
The fitted silhouette of 1941-'42 . . . slashed hip pockets and flaring skirt. Gloriously blended autumn colorings collared in red fox. Sizes 12 to 18. (Coat Dept.)

(F) You'll Long for a Rainy Day to Flaunt Your Plaid Umbrella. $2.00
Novelty plaids of Celanese rayon with colored or India frames. The tips, stubs and handles match, to harmonize or contrast the colorings. (Main Floor.)

OPEN OUTER DRIVE IN SEPTEMBER

THE DES PLAINES RIVER BECOMES AN OPEN BOOK

Survey to Take Luck Out of Fishing.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

The Des Plaines river, as it winds its way some forty miles between the county line on the north and the Sag on the south, attracts many fishermen. Figuring out what these patient folks catch has hitherto been left to guess work on the part of the passer-by or has depended on such yarns as those absorbed in the restful pastime have chosen to divulge.

Now, for the first time, mysteries beneath the quiet surface of the Old Man River that flows thru the villages at the city's western edge are soon to be revealed as the result of study conducted by the Illinois Natural History survey coöperating with the Cook county forest preserve district. When the final report comes from Dr. F. H. Frison, chief of the survey at Urbana, science will blend its accurate findings with the hit-and-miss lore exchanged by those of all ages and from all walks of life who seek the grassy banks of the historic stream and cast their bait into the enigmatic waters.

Recipe for Success.

Enough already has been gleaned by Dr. Donald Hansen, his field assistant, Jacob Lemm, and Lynn Hutchens, wild life technician of the preserve district, to indicate that with the proper amount of leisure and the right sort of bait—and if the rest of the family will keep quiet—those who put their trust in the dreamy Des Plaines should meet with a fair amount of luck.

In forcing the river to tell all, the science group has used drag seines—large ones for the deep pools located at intervals along the shallow stream, and small ones for getting in among the August vegetation close to shore. After the fish have been measured, their age determined, and their general appearance considered, they have been returned to the water.

One phase of the survey has been to discover if the plant life in the river is of the sort to provide the fish the right sort of diet. All is well in this respect, say the scientists, but this does not mean that a choice worm or a ball of dough would not prove a dessert temptation.

Lazy Man's Fishing.

It is estimated that at least 2,500 men, women, and children fish along the river on a pleasant week-end. The villages may continue in their routine at some points but 50 feet away and at the most a half mile distant.

Favored as tackle is the simple throw line that requires no pole. A weight far out in the river keeps the line with its hooks taut and the other end is fastened to a twig on the shore. Attached to the twig is a tiny bell that tinkles in signaling a nibble. Waiting for the tinkle, your fisherman from the neighborhoods close to the loop or from near by may partake of the basket lunch or philosophize to his heart's content on the foolish ways of a troubled far-off world.

These fishermen along the Des Plaines, having chosen spots thru the guidance of hunches and whims, and having been accustomed to let fate take its course, have witnessed the methods of the scientific group, equipped with a boat and seines. There has been much relighting of pipes as the surveying boat, coming 'round the bend, has gone into direct action.

In Praise of Carp.

Well, if speculation is to be shattered and the Des Plaines is at last surrendering all its secrets, what is the hard fact story so long kept hidden by the brooding waters?

Carp predominate among the finny tribes that maneuver beneath the river's calm waters. One of them seined upstream was 22 inches long and weighed 4 pounds. The carp will eat anything, but is itself good to eat. And carp are as smart as any fish in the water.

Pickerel are rare, but they have been found flopping about in three places—between Golf and Dundee road, at Summit, and south of Willow Springs. The scientists whisper that one pickerel that fell into the net was 27 inches long. Where? Well, you don't need to tell everybody, but it was between dam No. 1 in Pottawatomie woods and dam No. 2 in Portage Grove.

Other species discovered at various spots included black bullheads, redhorse, crappies, and bass. A school of crappies, apparently unaware that there were such things as fishhooks, was located near the Swan pond where the Des Plaines makes a wide bend at Riverside.

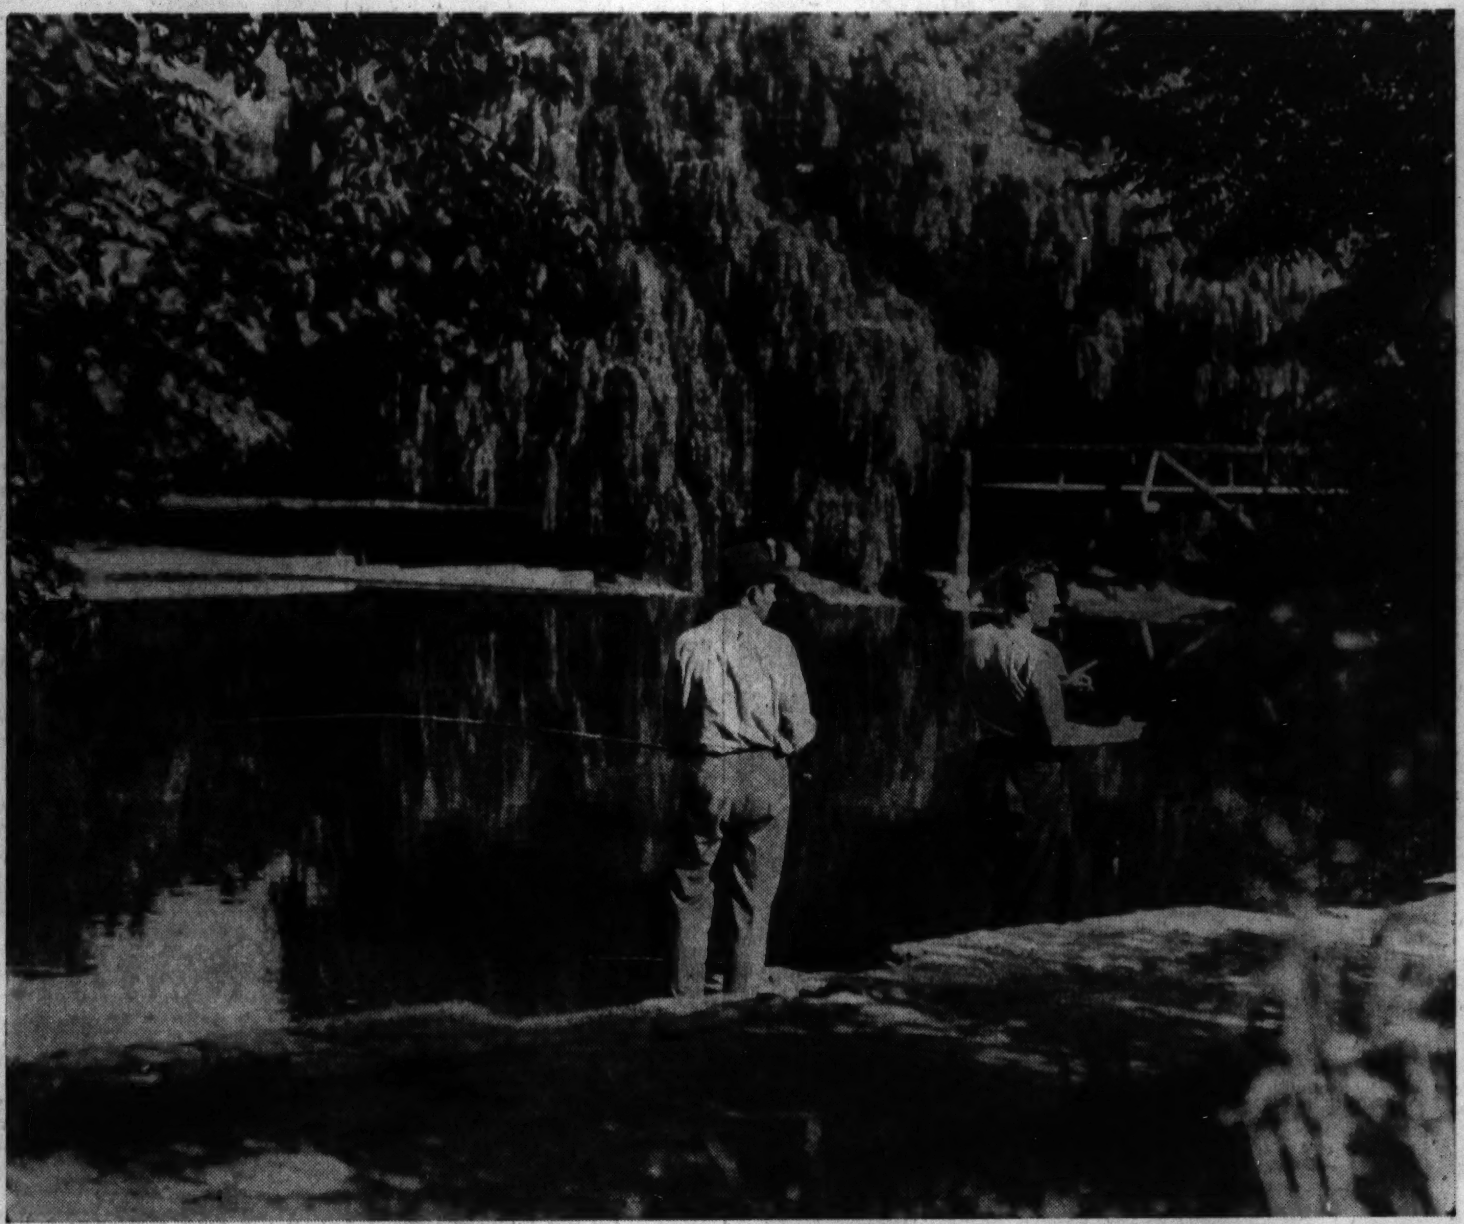
Not Up to Tradition.

In making a request for the survey, it was the desire of Clayton F. Smith, president, and the board of forest preserve commissioners to obtain the maximum recreational use of the river.

Members of the scientific group say their experience has been thrilling even tho their method of bringing up the fish has deviated from the Des Plaines tradition of languid expectancy. Each drop of the seine, they say, was like dipping into a grab bag. And, occasionally, causing a chuckle among the orthodox fishermen on shore, they struck a snag, too.

West Siders Enjoy Beauty Along Des Plaines as They Hope a Fish Will Bite

Many picnickers bring fishing tackle along with their lunch baskets as they seek recreation along the Des Plaines river as it winds thru the villages at the city's western edge. As the result of a survey being conducted, the fish population of the river soon will be tabulated. In the meantime this trio is resorting to the traditional guess and hope method in seeking to solve mysteries beneath the surface of the winding stream.



Tho nibbles may be scarce, the Des Plaines does afford some beauty spots as it flows for 40 miles between the county line on the north and the Sag on the south. This scene was taken at Dam No. 1 near Wheeling. Gesture of the fisherman on the right probably has to do with "the big one that got away." The science group with drag seines is in a position to test the accuracy of fishermen's yarns. The survey is the first of its kind ever to be conducted.

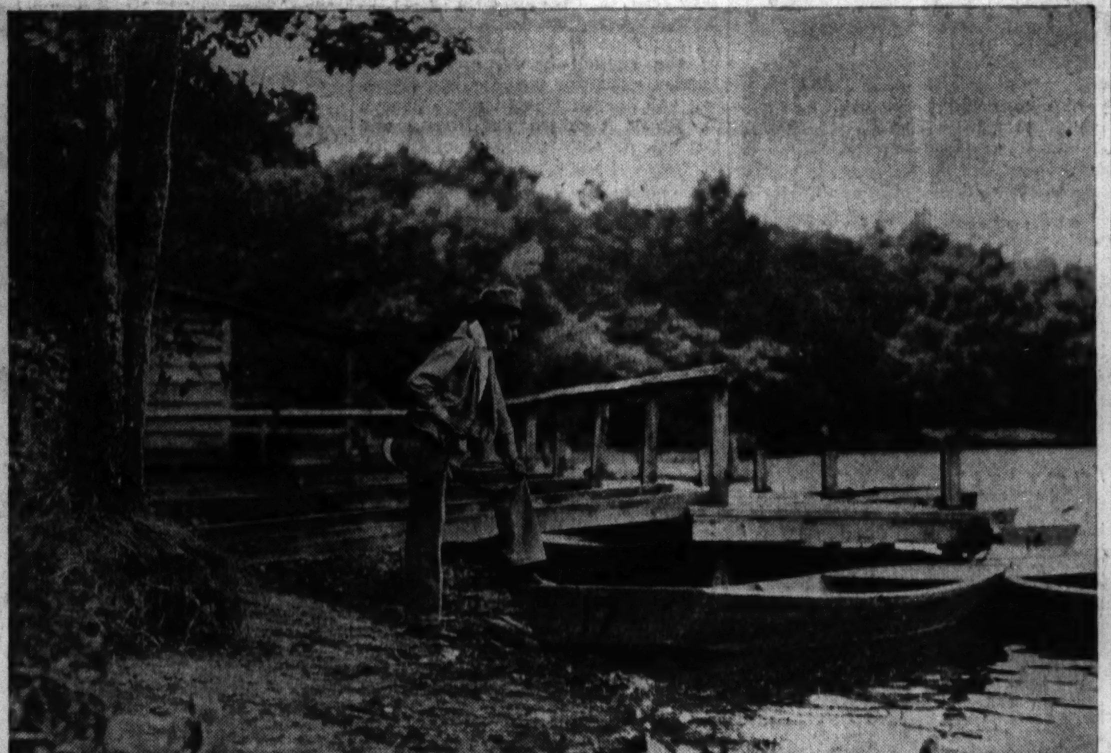
In the tangled vegetation in some places along the river bank those who cast their lines must beware of obstacles that try a fisherman's patience. Members of the surveying crew admit that in attempting to drag-seine bullheads and crappies and bass they occasionally "strike a snag," too. Maximum use of the river for recreational purposes is sought in the survey.



Lynn Hutchens, wild life technician of the Cook county forest preserve district, is assisting the Illinois natural history survey in its scientific study of the river. Plant life in the river has been found sufficient for fish diet, but the finny tribes also relish dough balls and worms.

Belmont Underpass Work Rushed.

Motorists who for a year have been solving the daily jigsaw traffic puzzle in Lincoln park will have easy going shortly after Labor day, it was announced last week by George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the park district. The new Outer drive link from Fullerton to Belmont avenue is expected to be open for traffic at that time to complete the express highway from the loop to Foster avenue.

The drive will not be totally finished at that time, however. Construction work on grade separation projects at Diversey and Belmont avenues is expected to take the rest of the year. But enough work will have been done on the Fullerton-Diversey stretch to permit its opening to traffic in September, Donoghue believes.

Explain Sand Mounds.

The high mounds of sand at Belmont avenue and the drive which appeared recently to give motorists another puzzle to ponder on their way downtown were explained by park district engineers. The sand, most of it quick settling fill, was purchased thru government coöperation on a priority basis. It is to serve as the highway grading at this point. After the grade separation abutments and retaining walls at Belmont avenue are finished the mounds are to be leveled off to provide the drive grading.

Concrete footings for this project have been poured and footings for the retaining walls are now in the process of being poured. The material in the piles includes 97,000 cubic yards of bank sand and granulated slag.

The many delays in completing the project have been due to lack of funds, Donoghue declared. Now all the financing has been arranged and the Outer drive is considered a defense project. Upon its completion it will represent a thru highway, 18 miles long, beginning at Foster avenue and ending at 6700 south.

Eight Traffic Lanes.

The new grade separations at Fullerton and Belmont avenues, which are part of the drive projects, will give motorists access to east and west streets and local drives. They are expected to relieve traffic congestion for miles around.

Completion of the drive will provide eight traffic lanes from North to Belmont avenue, connecting with service drives thru the park, the principal one feeding traffic across the south end of Lincoln park into La Salle street.

More than 1,700 men are at work daily on the Fullerton-Belmont link. To date 27,477 man months have gone into the project.

The reason no definite completion date can be fixed for the project, it was explained, is because much of the work is affected by weather conditions. "I can only say that the link will be open approximately a short time after Labor day, and then, only if the weather gives us a break," Donoghue said.

Weed Cutters Help Reduce City's Sneezes

Chicago's annual campaign of cutting 12,000,000 square yards of weeds as a means of combatting hayfever was at its halfway mark last week. The bureau of streets, which in the summer cuts about 260,000 square yards of weeds daily, has destroyed some 6,000,000 since the middle of July.

By the end of September the cutting will be completed. The weeds are destroyed along driveways, parkways, in parks, playgrounds, and empty lots. The destruction of weeds is a definite aid to hay fever sufferers, Al Konefes, acting chief clerk of the bureau of streets, declared.

Cool Weather Helps.

The hay fever season thus far is reported as being mild, Konefes said. Recent cool weather is said to have killed much of the hay fever carrying pollen before it has ripened on the plants and been blown into the air.

Altho the bureau of streets estimates its annual weed killing quota at 12 million square yards, less than 50 per cent of the city's weeds are touched.

A report of a typical August day showed that a total of 264,572 square yards of weeds were cut by relief workers under the direction of Commissioner Frank J. Flanagan of the bureau of streets. Half of this yardage is cut by hand scythes, the other by 16 mowing machines.

Day's Work Shown.

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt declared that a greater amount of eradication work could be done by the city if more relief workers were assigned to the program.

The following table shows the yardage of weeds cut last Tuesday by the bureau of streets on the north and northwest sides:

33	2,500	....	2,500
34	1,250	....	1,250
35	4,320	9,820	14,140
36	4,860	9,910	14,770
38	....	6,000	6,000
39	3,420	6,130	9,550
40	....	5,900	5,900
41	6,250	8,000	14,250
45	695	....	695
49	1,800	....	1,800
50	....	16,950	16,950

Seventy-two men were employed for the day in the area.

Head of Arlington Schools to Seek Harvard Doctorate

C. V. Baker, superintendent of public schools in Arlington Heights, will depart Sept. 5 for Harvard university for a year's graduate study in elementary education in preparation for a doctor of education degree. In addition to his study at the university Mr. Baker will serve as superintendent of schools at Lincoln, Mass., 10 miles from Cambridge, a position to which he was recommended by Harvard authorities.

MOUNT PROSPECT LIONS PREPARE FOR FALL FETE

Plans are being completed for the annual fall festival of the Mount Prospect Lions club to be held on Sept. 11, 12, 13, and 14. Local businessmen are preparing displays and there will be games and rides of all sorts. Proceeds will be used for local improvements.

L. E. Hodges and Fred Meeske are general chairmen of the festival. A. E. Busse heads the prize committee and he is being assisted by G. L. Busse, O. C. Hopper, I. E. Besander, and Henry Kruse. Clarence Winkelman will be assisted by Edwin Haberkamp in planning the rides and games.

Charles Bohm is chairman of the refreshment and lunch committee which includes: Horace Ellis, Carl Peterson, Adolph Gosch, Albert Wille, Edward Moehling, and Frank Bierman. Dr. Alfred Wolfarth, chairman of the entertainment committee, will be assisted by R. A. Seidel, Fred Bishop, and Marvin Kohlhase.

Meeske heads the exhibits committee of Gilbert Oldenburg, William Busse Jr., and F. C. Busse. Carl Hammerl has charge of publicity.

THREE APPOINTED CLUB CHAIRMEN IN 7TH DISTRICT

Appointment of three more departmental chairmen for the 7th district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs has been announced by Mrs. Milton H. G. Meyer, first vice president of the district.

Mrs. George A. Hauff of the Arlington Heights Woman's club has been appointed junior contact chairman. Mrs. H. W. Carlson of the Mount Prospect Woman's club was reappointed budget chairman.

The new legislative chairman is Mrs. Henry F. Gay of the Elmwood Park Woman's club.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

EAGLE Scouts William O'Brien of Troop 24, Park Ridge, and Dale Anderson of Troop 23, Mount Prospect, have returned from 10 days participation in the Eagle Scout service camp at the state fair in Springfield. O'Brien was awarded first place and a cash prize for his exhibit of leathercraft. Both boys served as guards of honor and aids to Gov. Dwight Green on Governor's day.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis L. Lichtmann, 4928 North Ridgeway avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Shari, to Harry A. Schaefer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Schaefer, 4844 North Ridgeway avenue.

SIX northwest side girls returned last week from vacations at Camp Sagawau, the YWCA camp for younger girls at Lemont. The campers are: Carol Arnold, 3834 North Hoyne avenue; Mary Jane and Patricia Binish, 2719 Logan boulevard; Dorothy Boll, 5439 North Bernard street; Dorothy Foster, 4856 North Troy street, and Doris Jean Keats, 5529 North Bernard street.

A party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Barr, 5135 Kolmar avenue, tomorrow evening, will bring to a close the series of summer garden visits of the Garden club of Mayfair. Barr is president of the club.

George Ives, a member of the club, will show motion pictures of gardens and two travel films of Brazil.

The last of the ten garden visits will be made before the party. The members who will show their gardens tomorrow evening are: F. C. Priebe, 4107 Marmora avenue; Frank Hrasna, 5240 La Crosse avenue; Steve Hraback, 4992 Kilpatrick avenue; R. J. Styles, 5033 Kolmar avenue; John C. Benson, 4515 Foster avenue; and Barr.

FOUR northwest siders were graduated last week from the summer session of the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts. The graduates are: Miss Leonore Henry, 7731 North Paulina street; Miss Arline Liss, 5437 North Sawyer avenue; Miss Ethel Foote, 4315 North Kildare avenue, and Mrs. Thomas Breakey, 4645½ Elston avenue.

Two northwest side girls were members of the camp council this session at the YWCA's Forest Beach camp for young business women near New Buffalo, Mich. Miss Ella Schneider, 1922 North Fairfield avenue, and Miss Eleanor Hazleton, 3713 North Drake avenue, were the council members.

FRED J. EBERHARDT, 1443 North Ridgeway avenue, was master of ceremonies at the recent reunion of Ridgeway avenue neighbors who gathered for a street dance in the block between Le Moyne and Hirsch streets on Ridgeway avenue. Japanese lanterns were used for lighting, and music was provided thru the courtesy of Norman Fick. Mrs. Ella Eberhardt, pioneer resident of the block, led the grand march. William McDonough and Elmer Olson assisted in arrangements for the fall get-together.

Birthdays of five members of the Albany Park Presbyterian church Red Cross unit will be celebrated at a party at the church, Ainslie street and St. Louis avenue, at 12 o'clock Wednesday. Mrs. Olive Spence, Mrs. Ethel Le Fever, Mrs. Dorothy Rozal, Mrs. Ann Pollock, and Miss Elva Bradshaw will be the birthday guests.

The unit recently celebrated its first birthday. During the year the members made 1,098 articles of clothing, 9,000 surgical dressings for local hospitals, and 2,560 surgical dressings for the United States army.

Twenty members have received service pins for completing more than 144 hours of work. Mrs. Ester Lazar has completed 500 hours and Mrs. Rebecca Hellar, 540 hours.

SEEK TO ENJOIN SALE OF LIQUOR IN NORWOOD PARK

Suit Based on 70 Year Old Restriction.

A suit to oust taverns and liquor stores from Norwood Park on the basis of a covenant restriction more than 70 years old has been filed in Superior court on behalf of the owners of six pieces of property in the section. The suit asks an injunction against five dealers.

The case, filed by Attorney Paul Edward Thurlow, is scheduled to come to trial the latter part of September. The suit contends that all of Norwood Park was once owned by the Norwood Park Land and Building association and was passed on to subsequent buyers with a covenant permanently restraining them from the sale or manufacture of liquor, and from the use of the property for gambling.

Altho the records of the association were destroyed by the Chicago fire, they were later restored by court order, the suit maintains.

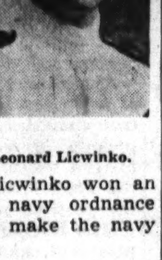
Thurlow said a favorable decision would mark the end of all liquor sales. The taverns and liquor stores named are at 6443 Newark avenue, and at 6319, 6150, 6109, and 6033 Northwest highway. They are the only such establishments in the district, Thurlow said.

Farmers' Institute

The annual Lake Zurich Farmers' institute will be held on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 2 and 3. A meeting of the household science department of the institute will be held in Lake Zurich next Wednesday.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

Ensign Leonard Stanley Licwinko, 24 year old son of Stanley Licwinko Sr., 3745 Belden avenue, was recently appointed naval inspector of electrical firing and timing devices in the naval gun factory at Washington, D. C. Following his graduation from the University of Illinois, where he received his bachelor's degree in electrical engineering last June, Licwinko won an appointment to the navy ordnance division. He plans to make the navy his career.



Leonard Licwinko.

Private William J. Gabriel, son of Mrs. Wanda Gabriel, 5758 Bernice avenue, distinguished himself recently by establishing a record in a radio aptitude test given to approximately 2,000 members of the 3d armored division station at Camp Polk, La.

Out of a possible score of 78, Gabriel made a score of 76, or a percentage rating of 97.5. This was the highest score attained by those taking the test and is believed to be one of the highest ever made. Prior to entering the service, Private Gabriel was an amateur radio operator. He is assigned to the headquarters battery, 67th field artillery.

At Camp Forrest, Tenn., First Lieut. August Schmidt, 4251 Ottawa avenue, has been advanced to the command of Company K of the 131st infantry. First Lieut. Joseph L. Ackroy, 4221 Drake avenue, is in command of the headquarters company. Richard R. Slupski, 1660 Leavitt street, also of the 131st infantry, has been promoted to corporal in Company A. John W. Nessler, 5139 Winona avenue, and Daniel E. Schueren, 595 Newberry place, Arlington Heights, have been commissioned as majors in the 122d field artillery. In the same division Richard C. Schuettner, 3821 Spaulding avenue, and Arthur G. Lorentz, 2928 Parkside avenue, have been promoted to captain and first lieutenant respectively.

Before Private Donald Sloan, 4321 Armitage avenue, enlisted in the army and was stationed as a radio man in an anti-tank company of the 60th infantry, he was a singer with Dick Jergens' orchestra. He will add dancing to his vocal talents when he is out of the army again. He now is assigned to Fort Bragg, N. C., and is operating one of the mobile radio units in a command car, but his eye is to the future.

"I'm learning to be pretty handy with my feet," Sloan explains. "Another Chicago fellow and I are practicing a dance routine and it should be good before we're thru. We'll have plenty of time to perfect it."

Six recently inducted northwest siders have been assigned to the army air corps. Among them are Joseph Czarnecki, 884 Marshfield avenue, and William Zellerneir, 3334 Evergreen avenue, stationed at Mather Field, Cal. Others are William J. Quirk, 3439 Belleplaine avenue, Taft Field, Cal.; Norman Lowell, 2622 Mont Clare avenue, and Herman Zipp, 4048 Division street, Scott Field, Ill.; Samuel Cohen, 4842 Avers avenue, Chanute, Field, Ill., and John R. Bramwell, 2901 Washtenaw avenue, Jefferson Barracks, Mo.

COMMUNITY FAIR IN DES PLAINES IS TO OPEN SEPT. 10

Industrial and Farming Displays Planned.

More than 65 displays of truck farming crops, flowers, handicraft, canned goods, and industrial products will be shown at the Des Plaines Community fair, sponsored by the Des Plaines Business Men's association at Rand park from Sept. 10 to 13.

Among the coöperating groups working on plans for the fair are the Elks club, grammar schools, Maine Township High school, Des Plaines Garden club, 4-H club, Boy Scouts, Izaak Walton league, Safety council, Eastern Star, St. Mary's church, and the Cook County Truck Gardeners' association.

Leaders in Plans.

William J. Ladendorf has charge of arrangements for the fair and he is being assisted by Joseph Feulner, J. R. Lawrence, Roy Collignon, Gus Stellmack, and Murray S. Smith.

Other committee chairmen include: Stuart Biery, grounds; George Haney, Miss Des Plaines contest; Elmer Stell, truck farm crop competition; Mrs. Ella Raymond, ladies' handicraft and canning; and Mrs. A. B. Perlin, Garden club display and competition.

Eighteen girls are competing for the title of Miss Des Plaines and the queen and a court of nine girls will appear at the fair each night. The winners will be honored at a preview at a local theater on Sept. 8.

Entrants in Contest.

Among those competing for the title are: Miss La Verne Kranz, Miss June Goebbert, Miss Pat Bender, Miss Elaine Smith, Miss Kathryn Koehler, Miss Marge Bergman, Miss Shirley Wright, Miss Ruth Zoellick, Miss Mary Ellen Raymond, Miss La Verne Carlson, Miss Mimi Held, Miss Joanne Koolstra, Miss Marjory Murray, Miss Marilyn Bishop, Miss Mava Drewes, Miss Josephine Giorno, Miss Marguerite Sedgwick, and Miss Charlene Harm.

HOME TOWN MOVIES

In the early dawn of a warm summer morning Walter Dopheide was awakened by the insistent jingling of his telephone. Fumbling with the receiver he heard an excited voice on the other end exclaim, "It's a fire, Walter, at the Villa Venice! Better rush out there!"

Now Mr. Dopheide isn't a fire chief. He isn't even a fireman. Mr. Dopheide is a normal family man, an insurance salesman, and an alderman in Des Plaines from the 2d ward. It just goes to show you how a hobby can get into a person's blood and disrupt his routine. You see, for 17 years Mr. Dopheide has been an amateur movie photographer and during the last two years the citizens of the northwest suburb have come to look upon him as a graphic historian of people and events.

Host of Tipsters.

When anything unusual happens in town he is sure to get a telephone call no matter what the hour. And usually he rushes to the scene of excitement, camera under his arm. Sometimes, tho, he doesn't wait for a call, preferring to catch the citizenry unaware with candid shots.

Last year at the community fair he presented a 20 minute color movie of life in Des Plaines. Just an experiment, the production proved to be the most popular of 101 exhibitions of the fair. People of all ages jammed the small projection room night after night, sitting thru several performances to catch fleeting glimpses of themselves and their friends. The project was so successful Mr. Dopheide decided to make it a permanent affair.

New Film Nearly Ready.

Already he is busy in his basement movie laboratory, cutting and splicing his latest production which will have its premiere at the fair from Sept. 10 thru Sept. 13. The booth is sponsored by the Des Plaines Suburban Times newspaper. High point in the film will be the color shots of the flames that lapped the Villa Venice night club earlier this summer and roused Mr. Dopheide from his slumbers at 4:30 a. m.

Mr. Dopheide has more or less grown up with the development of amateur movie photography. His present camera is his fifth and takes everything from closeups to telescopic shots. His library includes more than 4,000 feet of film, a complete and living history of his family and friends.

ALLAN H. LEWIS TO HEAD LEGION OF EDISON PARK

Joint installation of officers of Edison Park post of the American Legion and auxiliary will be held Sept. 4 at 6709 Oshkosh avenue.

JEWISH YOUTHS PLAN SOFTBALL TITLE TOURNEY

Softball championships will be played off by the four clubs sponsored by the Young Men's Jewish council at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday at Roosevelt High school field, St. Louis and Leland avenues.

The Albany Park Boys' club, American Boys' Commonwealth, Deborah Boys' club, and Humboldt Park Boys' club will take part. Meyer Visotzky, director of the Albany Park club, is in charge.

The Albany Park group plans to get a head start on the basketball season with a free throw contest at Jensen park, Lawndale and Wilson avenues, at 2 o'clock Thursday. Each entrant will be entitled to ten shots at the basket.

Singing Honors

Harriet O'Rourke. Elmer Carlquist.

Miss Harriet O'Rourke, 2860 East 76th street, and Elmer Carlquist, Lake Forest, were third place winners in the best singer contests for men and women in the 12th annual Chicagoland Music Festival. Miss O'Rourke is a coloratura soprano, and Carlquist is a dramatic tenor.

POLISH LEGION 4 DAY CONCLAVE TO OPEN FRIDAY

Auxiliary Also to Meet in Avondale.

The national convention of the Polish Legion of American Veterans and the Ladies' auxiliary will be held in Avondale from Friday thru Labor day. According to Theodore Czarnecki, chairman of the convention committee, the event will draw delegates from all parts of the United States.

Among the participating groups are the Polish Roman Catholic union, the Polish National alliance, the Polish Women's alliance, the Polish Alma Mater, and the Polish Falcons. John Lewandowski of Cleveland is commander of the veterans and Miss Wanda Sliwinski heads the auxiliary.

The veterans will convene at St. Hyacinth parish auditorium, Central Park avenue and Wolfram street, and the auxiliary will meet at the John Szumnarski hall, 3084 North Milwaukee avenue.

A parade will march down Milwaukee avenue from Diversey avenue to Belmont avenue at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. This area is being decorated with flags and bunting by the Avondale Chamber of Commerce and the Polish American Business Men's association of the Avondale area. Walter Bialczak heads the chamber of commerce and Adam Waskowski is head of the business men's group.

A drum and bugle corps contest will be held next Sunday and there will be speeches by prominent Chicagoans.

Hungarian-Americans to Picnic at Riverview

More than 5,000 Chicagoans of Hungarian descent will gather at Riverview park, Western avenue and Roscoe street, at noon today for the 11th annual radio picnic, sponsored by the Magyar radio hour. There will be folk dances, music by a gypsy orchestra, and a whip cracking exhibition by Imre Korsos. Charles Hatvany, tenor, will sing.

JEWISH CENTER FOR ALBANY PARK NEARLY FINISHED

Institute Branch to Serve 3,000.

Construction work on the Max Straus center, the new Albany Park branch of the Jewish People's institute at 3723 Wilson avenue, is rapidly nearing completion and the building should be ready for occupancy early in October, according to Dr. Philip L. Seman, general director of the institute.

The new three story brick and stone structure, capable of meeting the leisure time needs of a minimum of 3,000 members, will serve an area in which more than 50,000 people make up approximately 14,500 families.

Cost of the building and lot will be $135,000, which is being jointly met by the Max Straus estate and the Jewish Charities of Chicago, with which the Jewish People's institute is affiliated.

Outgrowth of Girls' Club.

The new community center is an outgrowth of the Albany Park Girls' club founded in 1936. At that time the women's division of the Jewish Charities set up this girls' club in correlation, but in no way affiliated with, the Albany Park Boys' club that had been in operation since 1934. The division rented a two story apartment building at 4721 Monticello avenue to house the girls' activities. Membership averaged about 500 girls.

In October, 1937, the club name was changed to the Albany Park branch of the Jewish Peoples' institute and its program was enlarged to include boys, girls, and adults. The growth of the organization necessitated larger physical accommodations.

The basement of the new building, which will contain a large game room and several arts and crafts rooms, will be used by boys up to 16 years old, under the direction of the Young Women's Jewish council, which has been supporting the Albany Park Boys' club since 1934. A coördinating committee composed of representatives of the institute, the council, and the Jewish Charities will be responsible for developing a program within the new center for the younger boys.

Leaders in Plans.

Mrs. Walter E. Heller of the institute board is chairman of this committee. Other institute representatives are M. R. Rosen, Louis M. Katz, Leonard M. Rieser, Charles Aaron, president of the institute, and Dr. Seman. Representatives of the council are Alan J. Altheimer, president of the council board, and Charles Desser, executive director. Representing the Jewish Charities are Joseph L. Block, Gardner H. Stern, and Samuel A. Goldsmith, executive director of the charities.

The first floor of the new center will include a general lounge, library, staff offices, checkrooms, a lobby, and a community hall with adjacent shower facilities to be available when the hall is converted for gymnastic use.

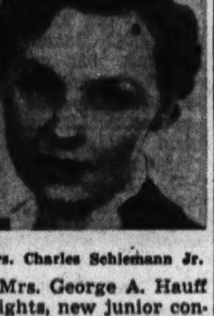
The second floor will contain rooms for domestic science, fine arts, crafts, games, and club meetings. There will be eight large clubrooms on the third floor. A varied program of educational, recreational, and leisure time activities for all ages will be offered to the community in the new Max Straus center.

Registration Begins.

Groups are already applying for admission and individuals registering as members at the present location of the Albany Park branch at 4721 Monticello avenue. Sidney J. Lindenberg, present head of group work activities of the main branch of the Jewish People's institute at 3500 Douglas boulevard, will be director of the center.

DISTRICT JUNIOR CLUB LEADERS TO MAP SEASON

Plans of 7th district junior clubs will be discussed at a meeting at the home of Mrs. Charles Schiemann Jr., 5210 Dakin street, at 8 o'clock Thursday. Presidents and contact chairmen of district junior clubs will attend. Mrs. Schiemann is a past district chairman.



Mrs. Charles Schiemann Jr.

According to Mrs. George A. Hauff of Arlington Heights, new junior contact chairman, plans to be discussed include junior participation in the district fiesta, a Christmas party for the Park Ridge school for girls, and the district junior program bureau.

Mrs. Burton A. Noyes, new district president, and Mrs. Charles R. Holton, outgoing president, will be guests at the meeting.

WILLIAMS BAY THEATER OFFERS 'LADIES OF JURY'

"Ladies of the Jury" by Fred Ballard will be presented tonight and every night thru next Sunday by the Belfry Players of Williams Bay, Wis. The play is under the direction of Leonard De Menna.

Production of a post season play, "The Gods Laugh," has been announced by the players. The play, an original three act comedy by Jacqueline Cour Peacock and Esther Hotton, will be staged on Sept. 11, 12, 13, 18, 19, and 20.

The Belfry Players present their productions in an abandoned Mormon church. Any one interested in the theater is invited to take part in one of the phases of production.

A Back Yard Cruise That's Safe

"Pull away," shouts "Cap" Robert Johnson as he waves farewell to the natives of a far off South sea isle. But his crew, Brother Don and Boots, is too absorbed with the cameraman to obey orders. Their good ship, Sink and Swim, daily rides the grass in their back yard at 5425 Warwick avenue.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Aug. 25.

Work in the garden at this season consists largely in maintenance and it is imperative that all leaves be raked and piled even tho they are from soft wood trees. They add, when decayed, some humus to the compost heap. There is always an obscure corner where leaves and soft trash can be piled and, with it, some soil. Wet the heap down when it is dry to hasten decomposition.

Tuesday, Aug. 26.

If the new lawn has not been started start working on it immediately. Fill all depressions and cut down elevations to give a smooth even surface; this is true for the small area; larger areas may have surface variations or an undulating sweep that presents a good appearance.

If the soil packs spread a layer of decayed manure over the surface; if the soil drains poorly, spade in two or more inches of sifted ashes or sand to provide some drainage. Sandy soil is improved by spading under manures or decayed vegetable matter; pulverized manures are also beneficial.

Wednesday, Aug. 27.

Order bulbs early to have them to plant at the proper time. Narcissi should be planted just as soon as they can be obtained. Crocus the same, and madonna lilies should go into the ground at the earliest time they can be procured. Tulips can be planted as late as the ground can be worked or into early October.

Thursday, Aug. 28.

Bear in mind that water evaporates very rapidly during this season and it must be replaced almost daily. Lay the hose on the ground and allow it to run freely or until the ground is soaked to a depth of five inches.

Never allow the insect pests to gain control; the only way to prevent this is constant spraying at intervals of about 10 days. Spray roses with Trigogen, a three way insecticide and funguscide. Those who can obtain tobacco stems may use them as a mulch for they serve as a repellent against root aphids and other pests.

Friday, Aug. 29.

Stake tall gladiolus or they are likely to fall over. Stake all tall flower stems. Manure water or commercial foods in solution applied to gladiolus and dahlias that show buds will increase the size of bloom and the strength of stem. Feed the peonies for next year's bloom. An application of plant food may give some good larkspur blooms for the second time.

Increase the supply of phlox from cuttings of the young stems made at this time. Just as soon as the pansies are large enough they may be transplanted into frames or in beds where they are to flower next spring.

Saturday, Aug. 30.

If the annuals that are in good condition are cut back and the soil given an application of food, they will develop stems and flowers until the frost cuts them down. Do not feed roses too late in the season or soft growth would result and is almost certain to result in severe winter freezing.

TWO BOYS STEER BOAT INTO PLAY YARD CONTEST

Most little boys sleep out in their back yards at some time in their lives, but there aren't many boys who can sleep in a back yard boat like Robert and Donald Johnson, 5425 Warwick avenue, are doing.

Bobby, 12, and Donnie, 7, have built a sailboat to enter in the Chicago Motor club's back yards playground contest. The boat's cabin, an old refrigerator crate, will sleep two boys and cover five if they don't demand comfort.

Its mainsail is a sheet and its foresail, an old hammock. The masts are clothespoles and both sails are rigged with clothesline. When Donnie and Bobby's mother, Mrs. Leslie Johnson, wants to do the family washing, the sails must come down.

From the mast flutter three flags, the American flag, an Indianapolis speedway souvenir, and a Medinah shrine pennant. "The pennant's our owner's flag," Bobby says.

An old baby buggy was taken apart to supply a steering wheel for the ship. Altho there are no steering spokes on the wheel, its rim is notched so that when the captain shouts, "Veer to the starboard!" the steersman will know which way to turn his wheel.

"We even have a hook to use in pulling us to shore," Bobby says and pulls out an old reed cane.

Mr. Johnson has made a B B gun range for the boys with a line of metal elephants, rabbits, and hippopotamuses to shoot at. When a hit is scored the animals fall over backwards into a trough made to collect the shot.

In the last 10 days the boys have rebuilt the boat three times. As soon as it's finished to their liking, they're going to hold a christening, dubbing the boat the good ship Sink and Swim.

MODERN HOME IS BUILT AROUND BIG LIVING ROOM

Kitchen, Dining in Wing; Bedroom in Another.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Wilson, 1611 West 105th place, knew a number of simple fundamentals of house planning and construction, and in decisions made as to layout and materials they kept steadily in mind the fact that their future home was to be as they wanted it. Their present English colonial type of dwelling fits its site and the family needs.

The home stands on a lot 55 by 120 feet and the exterior walls are brick in mellow tones, soft purples and phantom blues, creams, and browns, and tans. The roof and shutters are a deep brown and the entrance door of dark wood lives up to the tradition that an entrance door should spell hospitality and beauty.

Living Room in Center.

The floor arrangement is of interest. It deviates from the conventional and possesses quite a few assets all its own. The plan places reception hall, living room, and outdoor terrace opening from living room, directly in the center of the house. The reception hall is bright and gracious and serves its purpose well, tho it does not take too much space from the house proper. Stairs to the second floor are on the left, and beyond, the left wing of the dwelling, is occupied by master bedroom, 11 by 20 feet, and bath. The right wing is occupied by dining room, with view to gardens at back, kitchen, and breakfast room at the front.

The entire second floor is given up to a second bedroom, center hall, and bath. This suite belongs to young Mr. Wilson, who is now entering his last year at the University of Chicago.

Flush Type Doors.

The heating system, which is forced warm air, oil fueled, is in the basement, together with utility rooms and storage spaces.

The doors thruout the home are flush type, finely grained walnut, with a soft, satiny finish. "These are very easy to clean," Mrs. Wilson says. And certainly they are very lovely to look on.

The living room is large, 16 by 22 feet, an inviting room with wide colonial fireplace opposite the entrance door, and French doors leading to a terraced living room outside. The walls are canvased, the woodwork ivory, and deep shelves are built into wall at left of entrance. This is a room for genuine comfort and happy family use, and no small part of its charm is the outdoor living room, that in summer seems an integral part of the house itself.

Dining Room Separate.

The dining room is close, but not a part of the living room, and conforms pleasingly to tradition with its corner cupboards and effective colonial lighting fixture. In the kitchen there is a gay Mexican note in lively decals on cupboards and shelves. The walls are of cream colored linoleum flecked with blue and black, and there's a cove baseboard and black linoleum floor flecked with cream and white. There's a kitchen ventilator for coolness and shelves on each side of sink are bright with colorful jars and pottery.

On the second floor the bedroom is 13 by 18, not counting the dormers, which add still more space. There is a masculine touch here, with built-in shelves for books. The bath is carried out in linoleum, with cream and brown walls and white fixtures.

Bride of Summer

CONSIDER SITES FOR 6 NEW DAMS ON DES PLAINES

Two Other Old Ones to Be Rebuilt.

Preliminary surveys for the construction of six new dams and the reconstruction of two old ones on the Des Plaines river were begun last week by the Illinois division of waterways, according to Charles C. Estes, engineer of the forest preserve district.

Seven of the new dam sites are north of North avenue and extend as far as Wheeling. The eighth will be built near Riverside. The dams, provided for in a $50,000 appropriation of the state legislature, will be designed to raise the water level several feet along the 20 mile stretch during the dry summer season.

Pools created by the dams will make boating and other recreational activities possible in the neighboring forest preserves and also is expected to improve sanitation.

Engineers of the forest preserve are coöperating with the waterways division in designing the dams and selecting the locations. Construction will probably begin late this fall or next spring.

The present dam No. 1 located just south of Wheeling and dam No. 2 between Golf and Central roads are scheduled for reconstruction. New dam sites have been tentatively located, pending further investigation, as follows: Dam No. 3, 3,000 feet south of dam No. 2; dam 4, 1,000 feet north of Rand road; dam 5, between Touhy and Oakton avenues; dam 6, three-quarters of a mile south of Higgins road; dam 7, one-quarter mile north of Grand avenue.

UNIFIED THEME ADOPTED FOR ALL CLUB CONTESTS

For the first time in the history of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, subjects for the original short story, essay, poetry, and drama contests have been selected by the federation. Previously subject choice was up to the district, club, or individual member. This year's drama subjects must deal with the pioneer women who helped in the making of America. "Our American Heritage" is the subject for the three other groups.

Mrs. L. M. Zook. [Birch Photo.]

That the new ruling in the contests is due to the increased tension in the country is the feeling of new seventh district fine arts chairmen. "State chairmen seem to feel, as we do, that there cannot be too much emphasis on things American in these troubled times," say the district women.

Likes Play Readings.

Ever since she can remember, Mrs. L. M. Zook, 5037 Lowell avenue, drama chairman, has enjoyed writing dramatic sketches and staging them. Most of her plays have been presented by church groups.

In keeping with this year's district trend towards presentation of programs by club members rather than by outside talent, Mrs. Zook enjoys giving book reviews and readings of plays. She plans to encourage the use of home talent.

Altho she confesses that she knows little about choric drama or choral reading, Mrs. Zook plans to make them the drama department projects for this year. They, too, will take a patriotic theme. Theater parties will continue to be held thruout the year and will be scheduled as the plays arrive in Chicago. Mrs. Zook is a member of the Irving Park Woman's club.

Plans Music Studies.

A talented musician herself, Mrs. Raymond Bowman, 3638 Keeler avenue, new music chairman, plans to promote a program of music history and music appreciation in seventh district clubs this year. Mrs. Bowman has had both piano and vocal training and has a large record library for use in music appreciation programs.

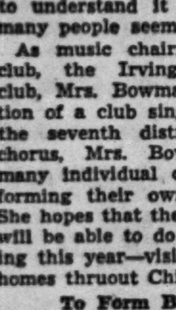
Mrs. Raymond Bowman. [Underwood and Underwood Photo.]

"We need the inspiration of really good music now as never before," Mrs. Bowman says. "Music is open to every one. It's just a matter of listening and listening. No specialized education is needed to understand it in spite of what many people seem to think."

As music chairman of her own club, the Irving Park Woman's club, Mrs. Bowman led the formation of a club singing group. While the seventh district has a large chorus, Mrs. Bowman feels that many individual clubs would enjoy forming their own singing groups. She hopes that the choir in her club will be able to do institutional singing this year—visiting hospitals and homes thruout Chicagoland.

To Form Braille Class.

Formation of a Braille class to prepare Braille books for the blind is this year's aim of Mrs. Oliver O. Olson, 1516 Spaulding avenue, new district literature chairman. Braille is one of Mrs. Olson's hobbies and she has worked with the American Red Cross in preparing Braille volumes.



Mrs. Oliver O. Olson.

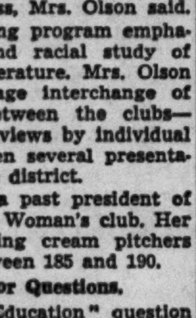
The Red Cross will supply equipment for punching out the Braille symbols and will send an instructor if enough seventh district club women are interested in forming a class, Mrs. Olson said.

The new reading program emphasizes regional and racial study of America thru literature. Mrs. Olson plans to encourage interchange of book reviews between the clubs—preparation of reviews by individual members and then several presentations thruout the district.

Mrs. Olson is a past president of the Wicker Park Woman's club. Her hobby is collecting cream pitchers and she has between 185 and 190.

Rewards for Questions.

A "Globe of Education" question and answer contest has been planned for the education department by Mrs. Charles E. Shaw, 6072 Neva avenue, chairman. Questions must be on education and not be just educational and there will be rewards for the best single question and the best set of five questions sent in.



Mrs. Charles E. Shaw.

Mrs. Shaw already has sent an original departmental outline and bibliography to each district club president. The program includes study of the education system for North America, culture for the Negro, and character education.

Mrs. Shaw is a member of the Norwood Park Woman's club and collects dolls and miniatures. Automatically a member of the student loan fund committee because of her education chairmanship.

Leads Race for Queen of Fair

Miss Pat Bender is leading the race for the titles of Miss Des Plaines and Queen of the Community fair to be sponsored by the Des Plaines Business Men's association from Sept. 10 to 13. Miss Bender is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Bender of Des Plaines and is a graduate of Maine Township High school. The fair will be held in Rand park. [Normandie Photo.]

HERMOSA CLUB WOMEN PREPARE FOR NEW SEASON

Unit Schedules Single Meeting a Month.

Only one meeting a month will be held by the Hermosa Woman's club next year instead of the usual two meetings, according to plans drawn up by the club's program and yearbook committee. All day meetings will be held on the third Friday of each month and except for the opening and evening meetings, will be held at members' homes.

Mrs. C. Leslie Counihan.

According to Mrs. Charles W. Anderson, press chairman of the club, the decreased number of meetings has been planned to allow for more time for outside activities of members.

The first meeting of the year will be on Oct. 17 and has been designated by Mrs. C. Leslie Counihan, president, as reciprocity and president's day. Mrs. Fred Brandt, program chairman, will present Mrs. Carl S. Winters who will discuss "Cathedral in the Heart." Miss Ruth Salveson, pianist, will present a musical program.

South American Art.

The art, literature, and music departments, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Monroe E. Cotes, Mrs. W. J. Larkin, and Mrs. Andrew Lee, have planned the Nov. 21 meeting. Mrs. James R. Ver Merris will discuss "Art of South America," Mrs. Lee will play a group of piano selections, and Mrs. Charles W. Anderson will give a travel talk, "My Visit to Nassau."

The Park Ridge school for girls and education will be discussed at the meeting on Dec. 19, when Mrs. Robert M. Fonner and Mrs. Oscar C. Lundell will be chairmen. Mrs. Lundell will lead an education quiz. Each member will bring a Christmas gift for the Park Ridge school.

"A Delegate's Views of the Friends of American Writers" will be discussed by Mrs. Orrin P. Catlin on Jan. 16 when Miss Anna M. B. Anderson, guest speaker and dramatic reader, will present monologs and readings.

Cooking Demonstration.

A cooking demonstration will be presented by Mrs. George M. O'Brien, American home chairman on American home day, Feb. 20.

Garden day will be held on March 20 when Mrs. Clarence C. Curtis will speak on "Table Arrangements with Flowers" and Catherine Nelton Simmons will give a group of readings. Mrs. Paul Reiter is club garden chairman.

Family night is planned for April 10 and the annual business meeting for April 17. Plans already are being made for the club's participation in the 7th district fiesta to be held on Nov. 28.

NEW RAIL GUARDS TO BE INSTALLED IN DES PLAINES

At an estimated cost of $31,211, the Chicago and North Western railroad will install increased highway protection in Des Palines this fall, according to R. L. Williams, chief executive officer. The state will pay for $10,000 as its share and the railway the remainder.

Automatic flashing-light signals, as well as gates, will be installed at the Pearson street, Lee street and Graceland avenue crossings, replacing the flagmen now present at these three intersections and affording 24 hour protection to motorists and pedestrians.

Work is expected to start on these improvements about Sept. 1 and will be completed in approximately 30 days. This project is part of the improvement and maintenance program being executed thruout the entire railway system this year at a cost of 37 million dollars, Williams explained.

Wedding Today

Ligia Danielczyk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Danielczyk, 2440 Haddon avenue, will be married to Frank G. Sulewski, 2209 Damen avenue, this afternoon at the Old St. Stephen's church, 923 West Ohio street. Mr. Sulewski is a senior student in the Northwestern university law school.

$158,000 Will Be Spent for Project.

Work on the $158,000 street lighting program approved last Wednesday by the city council will get under way this week. The new lights are to be installed in communities which now are without electric street lighting. The program will acect 25 wards, most of them in the outlying sections of the city.

Areas in which the lights will be erected have been built up the last several years and in many cases have heretofore been lighted by old fashioned gasoline street lamps. The money is to come from a corporate bond surplus fund.

Most in South Area.

The 18th and 19th wards, on the far southwest side of Chicago, will receive the largest allocations, $18,000 each. The 10th ward in the Calumet region was next with $15,000. The 9th and 11th wards, also on the south and southwest sides, received about $14,000 and $13,000, respectively. The 41st ward on the northwest side was allocated $13,000, and lights costing about $10,000 will be installed in the 50th ward, which includes the west Rogers Park section on the north side.

Much lower amounts were earmarked for the west side. Ald. Walter J. Orlikoski [35th] complained that his ward, which he asserted was poorly lighted, had received no allocation.

Will Be Standard.

The work of installation will be directed by Commissioner Frank J. Flanagan of the bureau of streets and department of electricity. The fixtures will be of the standard type now in general use thruout the city.

The city will spend about $60,000 for new lights in seven northwest side wards. Approximate ward allotments are 30th and 31st wards [together], $12,000; 32d ward, $11,000; 33d and 34th [together], $16,000; 39th, $10,000, and 41st, $12,000.

Garden Party to Supplant Flower Show at Arlington

A garden party and flower exhibit will be given by the Arlington Heights Garden club at the home of Mrs. George Max Adam Wednesday evening, replacing the club's annual flower show. The six classes in the exhibits include special entries for children. Hugo Thall, club president, is in charge of arrangements. Mrs. Robert F. Palmer is secretary-treasurer of the club.

TENANTS WEARY OF DISMAL YARD; CREATE BEAUTY

Piles of Rubbish Give Way to Flowers.

"Poor little city kids don't know what flowers look like," country folks say of youngsters who live in towering apartment buildings. The "poor little city kids" who live in one of the 45 apartments at 3251-3255 Diversey boulevard know just as much about flowers as their country cousins, for in their back court is one of the most luxuriant gardens on the northwest side.

A year ago this spring tenants of the Diverseys decided they just couldn't stand the backyard vistas of rubbish, cement blocks, and sand. Frank Schwager, the building janitor, and Walter Roehlke, a tenant, claimed to have a way with flowers and they set about making a beauty spot.

Rocks Brought In.

Soil in the yard was really only that left over from the building excavation. They hauled most of it away and spread a top layer of rich black soil. Rocks were brought in and placed in a modernistic design in the west end of the garden and in an old fashioned design in the east. One of the features of the rock arrangement in the modernistic plot is a pile of shiny black stones which are really clinkers from the furnace.

A lawn was planted in the area between the two buildings. A friend of the janitor told him about an old wash stand he could get for nothing, and it was hauled into the yard and turned into a bird bath.

A 35 foot steel flag pole soars out of the bird bath and when the flag is not flying, the pole's top sends out a sprinkler stream of water.

Have 42 Varieties.

About 42 different varieties of flowers bloom in the gardens. They range from tiny pansies to four foot phlox and are arranged so that there is always something in bloom. There are 17 Lombardy poplars and 7 hard elm trees.

Fine crushed gravel has been placed around the balance of the yard, making it dust proof. All the tenants helped put down the gravel and occasionally help weed, but most of the work is done by Schwager and Roehlke.

DES PLAINES MAY GET EMERGENCY WATER SOURCE

In an effort to provide an auxiliary water supply source for Des Plaines, the city council is investigating the possibility of tapping the Chicago system. The present water supply is entirely sufficient for normal usage, explains Mayor Charles Garland and the proposed connection would be used only in emergencies.

The connection thru the Chicago system would be made at the Maine Township High school whose water is supplied by Chicago. An engineer's drawing of the proposed connection has been submitted to the Chicago city council by Ald. John Lemke of Des Plaines and action is expected within the next two weeks.

The problem of financing the proposed $30,000 sewage system in the Cumberland Terrace district of Des Plaines is nearing a solution, states Mr. Garland.

Purchase of sewer revenue bonds has been practically assured by a private bond house. The bonds will be financed from the revenue of the sewer system. The plan calls for a $10 tap-on fee and a monthly service fee of $1 to $1.50 per unit. All the bonds would be retired in 20 years and possibly sooner, depending on the future growth of the division. There are 140 homes in the area.

Gardeners of Sauganash to Show Summer's Work

Plans are being completed for the 14th annual fall flower show of the Sauganash Garden club to be held on Saturday, Sept. 6, at the Sauganash park fieldhouse, Kostner and Thorndale avenues.

Bride at Des Plaines Ceremony

Mrs. John F. Zwaska is the former Miss Virginia Nofs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil W. Nofs of Des Plaines. Her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Zwaska of Park Ridge took place at the home of her parents. Mr. Zwaska is a graduate of the Illinois Institute of Technology. Mrs. Zwaska was graduated from Maine Township High school. PLAN FESTIVAL AT CHURCH HOME IN BENSENVILLE

Evangelical Outing Is Planned Today.

"Freedom's Light," a pageant, will be a feature of the annual festival and open house to be held at the Evangelical Home for Children and Aged in Bensenville today. Members of Evangelical churches from all Chicagoland are expected to attend.

The Rev. A. J. Munsterman. [Ray Photo.]

The day's program will start at 11 o'clock, when the Rev. Edwin Bloesch, pastor of the Zion Evangelical church in Dyer, Ind., will speak. The Rev. Mr. Bloesch was one of the group of pastors and laymen who founded the home over 40 years ago.

Founder's Son to Speak.

The Rev. Mr. Bloesch's son, the Rev. Herbert Bloesch, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical church of Monee, Ill., also will speak. He is secretary of the board of directors of the home. The Rev. Alvin J. Munsterman is superintendent of the home.

"Christian Love in an Unlovely World" will be discussed by the Rev. A. H. Bizer, pastor of St. Peter's Evangelical church of Northbrook at 3 o'clock. The Century Male chorus, directed by Orian A. Galitz, will sing.

Tells Story of America.

The pageant, "Freedom's Light," will be presented by the children of the home and will show the development of America thru song and dance. A verse speaking choir will provide background for some of the scenes. Miss Lois Hamer, a member of the home's summer staff, wrote the pageant.

Refreshments will be served at booths on the grounds, in the dining hall, and in the gymnasium.

Genoa Bride

Mrs. Arthur J. Clanter Jr., was Miss Hazel Lindquist. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. J. E. Taylor of Genoa, De Kalb county. Mr. Clanter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clanter, 9730 South Damen avenue. [Koehne Photo.]

Belmont Park C. of C. to Hold Annual Picnic Today

The Belmont Park Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual picnic today in Silver Leaf grove, 6839 Milwaukee avenue. Members of the committee include Philip A. Tafel, president of the organization; A. R. Seeber, Dr. O. H. Pitch, Jerry Gengo, Carl Hemecke, Samuel Solomon, and Frank A. Polk.

DINNER TO CLOSE METHODIST CAMP FRIDAY EVENING

Youth Hostel Unit Also to Have Meeting.

A farewell dinner will be held at the Methodist camp ground in Des Plaines Friday evening, marking the formal close of this year's camp session. In contrast to an early custom of all the campers bringing their leftover supplies to the farewell dinner and making a picnic meal of them, Friday's dinner will be a banquet in the dining hall at 6 o'clock.

The dinner is sponsored by the woman's auxiliary, of which Mrs. Ralph Lamperts is president. The Rev. and Mrs. Philip Bohl have charge of the program. Earle H. MacLeod will show movies and Mrs. Charles Youngberg, soprano, and E. R. Daggy, tenor, will sing.

Mrs. Gilbert Mitchell is chairman of the ticket committee for the dinner and she is being assisted by Mrs. Charles Millen, Mrs. David Radke, Mrs. Henry Vieau, and Mrs. Henry Cork.

Will Elect Officers.

Mrs. Charles Turner has charge of decorations with Miss Eloise Witt and Miss Nina Jean and Miss Janet Hoestetter as her assistants.

New officers of the camp woman's auxiliary will be elected at a luncheon meeting at the camp Wednesday noon. The luncheon will be given by the professional circle of the auxiliary.

At 9 o'clock that evening members and friends of the Chicago district committee of the Great Lakes Youth Hostel region will meet in the Red Gables hotel on the camp grounds.

Miss Virginia Freeberg of Des Plaines, chairman of the Chicago district committee, will describe a recent Youth Hostel canoe trip down the Wisconsin river from the Dells to Spring Green. Dr. Edward J. Matson, chairman of the Waukegan Hostel, will show pictures of the trip.

Holiday Cycle Trip.

The Youth Hostel group is planning a trip for the Labor day week-end. The group will leave the North Western depot at 1:15 Saturday, Aug. 30, and will leave the train at Lake Geneva.

They will bicycle to the hostel in Janesville and then go to Rockford via Beloit. They will cycle home from Rockford on Monday.

DEMOCRAT UNIT FROM 39TH WARD TO HAVE OUTING

The 39th Ward Regular Democratic organization, under the leadership of Ald. H. L. Brody, will hold its 11th annual picnic and outing at Kolze's grove, 6341 Irving Park road, on Sunday, Aug. 31. Arrangements have been completed for a full day and evening of games, entertainment, and dancing. Chairmen of various committees are as follows: Alderman Brody, general chairman; Joseph Benjamin and M. P. Heinz, arrangements; John Flickinger and Gene Utz, games and races; Julius Reich and James Sherin, grounds; Frank Dvorak and Emil Uber, refreshments; William Semple and Reuben Bodenstein, prizes; Frank E. Shudnow and Roy I. Levinson, publicity; Joseph Moffett and Anthony Giardina, dancing, and William Zaret and Herman Arist, concessions.

Bride at Home

Until her marriage Mrs. Robert Musselman was Miss Annette Anderson. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric W. Anderson, 4204 McVicker avenue. Mr. Musselman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Musselman, 5336 Drummond place. The ceremony took place in the Lutheran Church of Peace, Mason and Cullom avenues. Mr. Musselman and his bride are living at 4915 Bernard street. [Jenart Photo.]

FALL RADIO FARE INCLUDES HOST OF NEW SHOWS

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The fall menu for radio is almost ready. Many new items are listed on the bill of fare. Many of the old favorites, off for the summer months, will be back on.

One of the most promising of the new shows is Three Ring Time, a Hollywood comedy variety show to feature Charles Laughton, the character actor, and Milton Berle, the comedian, with Bob Crosby and Shirley Ross providing the music. This show will have its première on W-G-N-Mutual at 8:30 p. m. Friday, Sept. 12.

Laughton and Berle plan a fresh approach to radio humor. Miss Ross will join in the comedy routines as well as singing. Miss Ross has been featured in several pictures.

Flagg and Quirt for Radio.

Capt. Flagg and Sergt. Quirt, the famous characters of "What Price Glory," will come to life on the air at 6:30 p. m. Sunday, Sept. 28, over WENR-NBC. Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen, heroes of the cinema version, will be co-starred in this radio version.

Gladys Swarthout, Metropolitan Opera singer, and Deems Taylor, composer and commentator, will be the headliners of the Family Hour, starting over WBBM-CBS at 4 p. m. Sunday, Aug. 31. They will be supported by Ross Graham, baritone, Al Goodman's orchestra, and a chorus.

A rib from Fibber McGee is the new show, The Great Gildersleeve, featuring Harold Peary, starting at 5:30 Sunday, Aug. 31, over WMAQ-NBC. Gildersleeve has been a popular character in the McGee show.

Already established as a popular new comedy show is Harold Teen, whose adventures are chronicled over W-G-N at 7:30 o'clock every Tuesday evening.

Orson Welles to Return.

Orson Welles, off the air most of last year, will return with a new show at 9 p. m. Monday, Sept. 15, over WBBM-CBS, replacing the present Freddy Martin show aired at this hour.

Among the new and returning shows with starting dates are the following:

M'GIBENY TO RECALL STORY OF A MAID WHO WED A PASHA

Donald McGibeny on his W-G-N news commentary at 10:30 p. m. next Thursday will tell the story of Madame Vic, the English chambermaid who married the pasha of Ouzzan.

Donald McGibeny.

The pasha married the chambermaid after she had instructed him in correct English fashions. The pasha on visiting England had his clothes tailored from plates in a book of Shakespeare's plays. Then he gave a party, wearing the garb of a 17th century nobleman. While the Britishers reserved comment, a chambermaid laughed at him. Later he married her and she became known as Madame Vic because of her resemblance to Queen Victoria.

McGibeny met her several years ago, took her for her first airplane ride, and got her to recount the story of her romance. McGibeny served in the World war with the French Foreign Legion and was a foreign correspondent.

Hollywood Whispers Will Begin Sept. 28 on W-G-N

George Fisher, radio's original movieland reporter, will start a new series of Hollywood Whispers programs on W-G-N and the Mutual network Sunday afternoon, Sept. 28. The hour will be announced later.

U. S. Weapons in Economic War, Round Table Topic

The University of Chicago Round Table will consider the subject of Uncle Sam's weapons in the economic war in its broadcast over WMAQ-NBC at 1:30 p. m. today.

Hap Hazard Show Moves West for New Series

The Hap Hazard show, featuring Ransom Sherman, Songstress Edna Odell, and Billy Mills music, which has been a summer replacement for Fibber McGee, will start out on its own on Oct. 15. The show will be aired at 6:30 p. m. each Wednesday over WMAQ-NBC. Sherman and the rest of the company have moved to Hollywood, where the new show will originate. They still may be heard at 8:30 Tuesday evenings pending the return of Fibber McGee and Molly on Tuesday, Sept. 30.

SET NEW RECORD FOR ENROLLMENT AT MAINE HIGH

Increase Teaching Staff; Opens Sept. 3.

The largest enrollment in the history of Maine Township High school—1,725—is expected when the school opens on Sept. 3. The enrollment already exceeds last year's total by 50 and at least 100 more are expected to register.

Two new full time teachers and two internes have been hired to handle the additional load. Five new instructors have been obtained to fill vacancies.

New Practical Arts Teacher.

Theodore A. Koschler is the new instructor in the practical arts department. He will teach electricity and shop mathematics. He received his B.A. degree from Bradley Polytechnic institute and has taught at Freeport, Ill., for the last two years.

Miss Doris Nelson, an English teacher from George Rogers Clark High school in Hammond, has joined the English staff. Miss Nelson attended Augustana college for two years and received her B.A. degree from the University of Illinois.

The two internes, working toward their master of arts degrees at Northwestern university and who will assist with instruction in Spanish and typing are Miss Elaine Highland and Miss Nadine Conway.

Other New Teachers.

Miss Virginia Snyder of Janesville, Wis., has been hired to teach Latin, succeeding Mrs. Emily Deal who resigned. Miss Snyder holds B.A and M.A degrees from the University of Wisconsin and has been teaching at De Pere, Wis. Philip Ramer of Elburn, Ill., will teach mathematics, filling a vacancy left by Mrs. Josephine C. Walker's resignation. He received his master's degree at Northwestern university.

Miss Kathryn Williams, a graduate of Eureka college and holder of a master's degree from the University of Wisconsin, will succeed Miss Mary Osia in the mathematics department. Miss Helen Kutuzovich will succeed Miss Jane Chapeck in the English department. James Irving, who last year taught at the Todd School for Boys at Woodstock, will teach Jarlive Johnson's classes in general science and chemistry. Mr. Irving holds B.S. and M.S. degrees from Northwestern university.

CHURCHILL TO SPEAK AT 3 P. M. TODAY OVER W-G-N AND MUTUAL

An address by Winston Churchill from London will be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 3 to 3:30 p. m. today. It is expected that Churchill will explain the English viewpoint of the recent conference between President Roosevelt and himself.

Bob Elson's broadcast of the Chicago White Sox-New York Yankees baseball game will be interrupted for Churchill's talk. Other Chicago stations will carry the Churchill broadcast.

ST. CHARLES FESTIVAL OPENS FRIDAY

THE DES PLAINES RIVER BECOMES AN OPEN BOOK

Survey to Take Luck Out of Fishing.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

The Des Plaines river, as it winds its way some forty miles between the county line on the north and the Sag on the south, attracts many fishermen. Figuring out what these patient folks catch has hitherto been left to guess work on the part of the passer-by or has depended on such yarns as those absorbed in the restful pastime have chosen to divulge.

Now, for the first time, mysteries beneath the quiet surface of the Old Man River that flows thru the villages at the city's western edge are soon to be revealed as the result of study conducted by the Illinois Natural History survey coöperating with the Cook county forest preserve district. When the final report comes from Dr. F. H. Frison, chief of the survey at Urbana, science will blend its accurate findings with the hit-and-miss lore exchanged by those of all ages and from all walks of life who seek the grassy banks of the historic stream and cast their bait into the enigmatic waters.

Recipe for Success.

Enough already has been gleaned by Dr. Donald Hansen, his field assistant, Jacob Lemm, and Lynn Hutchens, wild life technician of the preserve district, to indicate that with the proper amount of leisure and the right sort of bait—and if the rest of the family will keep quiet—those who put their trust in the dreamy Des Plaines should meet with a fair amount of luck.

In forcing the river to tell all, the science group has used drag seines—large ones for the deep pools located at intervals along the shallow stream, and small ones for getting in among the August vegetation close to shore. After the fish have been measured, their age determined, and their general appearance considered, they have been returned to the water.

One phase of the survey has been to discover if the plant life in the river is of the sort to provide the fish the right sort of diet. All is well in this respect, say the scientists, but this does not mean that a choice worm or a ball of dough would not prove a dessert temptation.

Lazy Man's Fishing.

It is estimated that at least 2,500 men, women, and children fish along the river on a pleasant week-end. The villages may continue in their routine at some points but 50 feet away and at the most a half mile distant.

Favored as tackle is the simple throw line that requires no pole. A weight far out in the river keeps the line with its hooks taut and the other end is fastened to a twig on the shore. Attached to the twig is a tiny bell that tinkles in signaling a nibble. Waiting for the tinkle, your fisherman from the neighborhoods close to the loop or from near by may partake of the basket lunch or philosophize to his heart's content on the foolish ways of a troubled far-off world.

These fishermen along the Des Plaines, having chosen spots thru the guidance of hunches and whims, and having been accustomed to let fate take its course, have witnessed the methods of the scientific group, equipped with a boat and seines. There has been much relighting of pipes as the surveying boat, coming 'round the bend, has gone into direct action.

In Praise of Carp.

Well, if speculation is to be shattered and the Des Plaines is at last surrendering all its secrets, what is the hard fact story so long kept hidden by the brooding waters?

Carp predominate among the finny tribes that maneuver beneath the river's calm waters. One of them seined upstream was 22 inches long and weighed 4 pounds. The carp will eat anything, but is itself good to eat. And carp are as smart as any fish in the water.

Pickerel are rare, but they have been found flopping about in three places—between Golf and Dundee road, at Summit, and south of Willow Springs. The scientists whisper that one pickerel that fell into the net was 27 inches long. Where? Well, you don't need to tell everybody, but it was between dam No. 1 in Pottawatomie woods and dam No. 2 in Portage Grove.

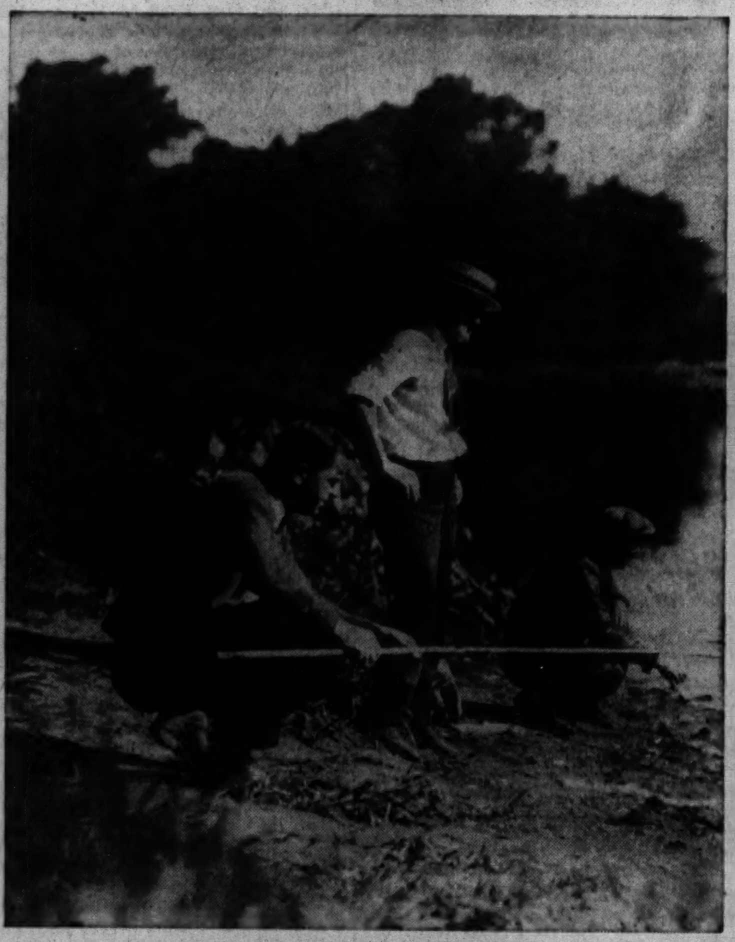
Other species discovered at various spots included black bullheads, redhorse, crappies, and bass. A school of crappies, apparently unaware that there were such things as fishhooks, was located near the Swan pond where the Des Plaines makes a wide bend at Riverside.

Not Up to Tradition.

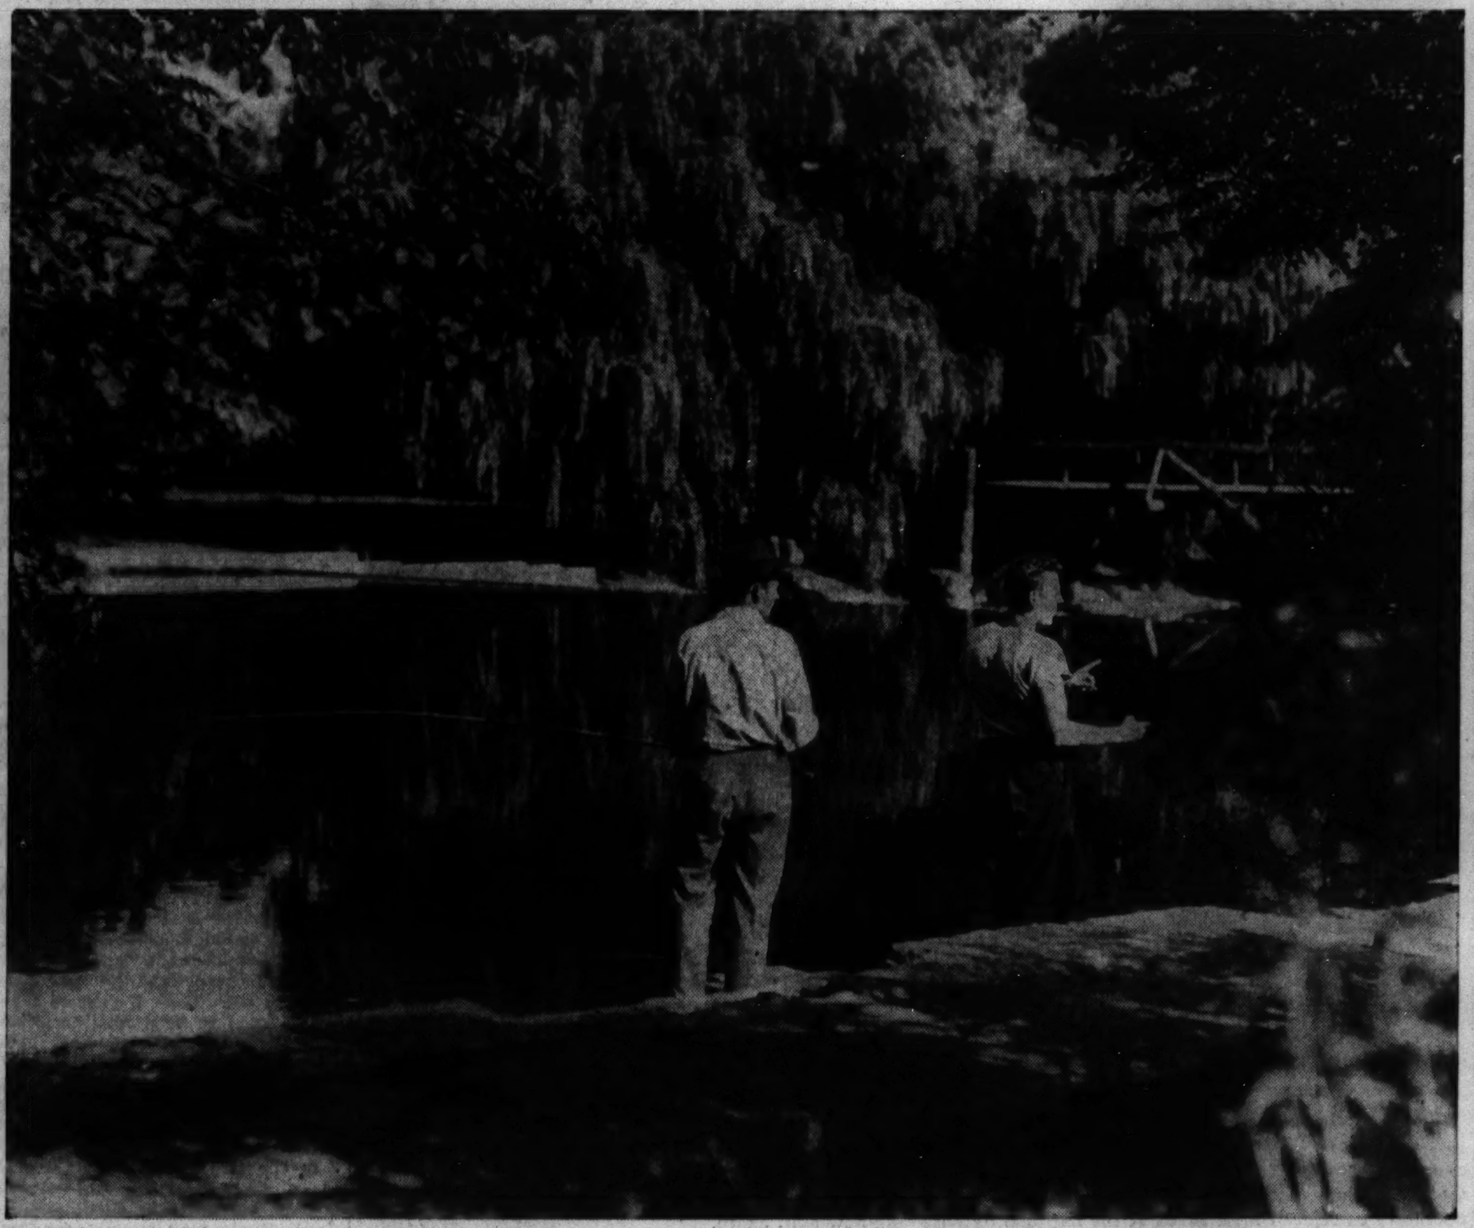
In making a request for the survey, it was the desire of Clayton F. Smith, president, and the board of forest preserve commissioners to obtain the maximum recreational use of the river.

Members of the scientific group say their experience has been thrilling even tho their method of bringing up the fish has deviated from the Des Plaines tradition of languid expectancy. Each drop of the seine, they say, was like dipping into a grab bag. And, occasionally, causing a chuckle among the orthodox fishermen on shore, they struck a snag, too.

West Siders Enjoy Beauty Along Des Plaines as They Hope a Fish Will Bite



Many picnickers bring fishing tackle along with their lunch baskets as they seek recreation along the Des Plaines river as it winds thru the villages at the city's western edge. As the result of a survey being conducted, the fish population of the river soon will be tabulated. In the meantime this trio is resorting to the traditional guess and hope method in seeking to solve mysteries beneath the surface of the winding stream.



Tho nibbles may be scarce, the Des Plaines does afford some beauty spots as it flows for 40 miles between the county line on the north and the Sag on the south. This scene was taken at Dam No. 1 near Wheeling. Gesture of the fisherman on the right probably has to do with "the big one that got away." The science group with drag seines is in a position to test the accuracy of fishermen's yarns. The survey is the first of its kind ever to be conducted.

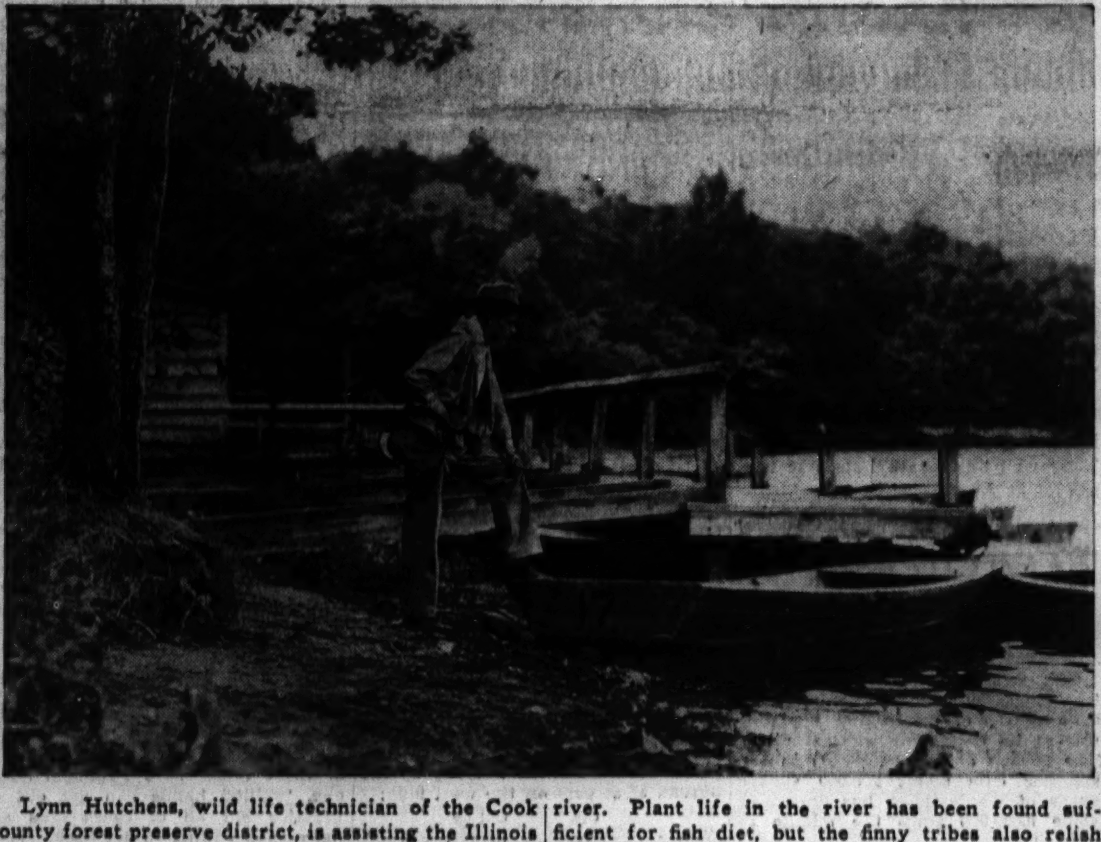
In the tangled vegetation in some places along the river bank those who cast their lines must beware of obstacles that try a fisherman's patience. Members of the surveying crew admit that in attempting to drag-seine bullheads and crappies and bass they occasionally "strike a snag," too. Maximum use of the river for recreational purposes is sought in the survey.



Lynn Hutchens, wild life technician of the Cook county forest preserve district, is assisting the Illinois natural history survey in its scientific study of the river. Plant life in the river has been found sufficient for fish diet, but the finny tribes also relish dough balls and worms.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

THE happiest boy in Our Town today is Bill Johnson, who last week found himself with a new pair of eyes. Bill arrived in Chicago a week ago yesterday from Morristown, N. J., with his dog after completing the six weeks Seeing Eye Dog Training course in four weeks. He will take his new pair of eyes to Austin High school in September, where he will be registered as a freshman, the first blind lad to attend the school.

Young Johnson, who resides at 4919 West Hubbard street, is a former pupil of the Illinois School for the Blind at Jacksonville. There he became an excellent swimmer and passed junior life guard tests and earned all the certificates. He came to Chicago so he could become a member of the Blind Boy Scout troop, No. 300. Since his membership with the troop he has become an authority in first aid work.

With an invitation to their relatives, neighbors, and friends, to attend open house today, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Nosbaum, 3928 Arthington street, plan to celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary. Mr. Nosbaum, 80, is a native of Chicago and is still active as an employé of a wholesale drug firm. Mrs. Nosbaum, 79, was born in Galesburg, and came to Chicago with her parents when she was 8, just a few weeks before the great fire.

FRANK RICHARD MEYER III., son of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Meyer Jr., River Forest, and Ned A. Ochiltree Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Ochiltree, Oak Park, will attend the 85th anniversary convention of Theta Chi fraternity at Berkeley, Cal., Sept. 3 to 6. The west area boys are representatives of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the Purdue university chapters.

AMONG the many stories of camp life coming back to the stay at homes of Our Town is a drama of heroism. It was a calm day at Camp Chi, the Jewish People's Institute camp on Loon lake. Three high school girls and a 5 year old child were out in a row boat, when a wind and rain storm broke suddenly. Within a few minutes their boat began to fill with water. Desperate, the young people turned toward a raft adrift on the lake. They were clinging to the raft when Edith Alderman, camp director; Jane Rothschild, in charge of water front activities, and Walter Hagen Jr. sighted them from the shore. The three pushed a boat out in the high waves and the strong wind and safely brought in the young people. Two of the stranded trio were unable to swim.

Mr. and Mrs. David Finkelstein, 1215 South St. Louis avenue, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary this evening in Zweig's banquet hall. Out of town relatives coming for the celebration are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gelman of Birmingham, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. Ben E. Fields of Los Angeles, Cal., and Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Singer of Toronto, Ont. The Finkelsteins have 16 sons and daughters and 17 grandchildren.

James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago chapter, American Red Cross, announced recently the appointment of Mrs. Elmer Pries, Forest Park, as roll call chairman of the Forest Park Red Cross. She will conduct the Red Cross membership campaign in November.

Leaders of the West Suburban council, Boy Scouts of America, today will close their fourth annual two day program planning camporee at Camp Delavan, Wis. W. F. Becker has arranged a program of activities that will provide an opportunity to use all the camp facilities. Don F. McDougal will discuss the budget and fall plans of the council. H. J. Hoglund is the council president.

Couple Apart Only 2 Weeks in 64 Years

Almost all of Chicago's growth and history has been seen first hand by Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Letz, 4522 Monroe street, who were born in Chicago 88 and 83 years ago and who recently celebrated their 64th wedding anniversary. Out of the 64 years Mr. and Mrs. Letz have been separated only two weeks when she went to California to visit her sister.

The story of a perfect marriage begins 66 years ago this summer. A fair was held at the St. Paul's Evangelical church and she, wearing her prettiest white organdy with a huge brown ribbon sash, went to the fair with her sister. He, dressed in tall silk hat and serge, his mustache carefully trimmed, went with a group of the boys.

Choice for Life.

The program had scarcely begun when the master of ceremonies roguishly called out, "ladies choice." This meant the men must saunter to the center of the room while the ladies looked them over and then chose their partners for the evening. The pretty Miss Hirtzel chose Fred Letz. "I don't know what made me decide," she said, "I just walked out and stood beside him."

"And I thought it was such a good idea," says he, "that she was my choice from then on."

They were married two years later in Waukegan where the David Hirtzel family had moved after the father retired from the feed and flour business on Milwaukee avenue. Their Private Dan C. Callendo, 3126 Fulton boulevard, with the 3d armored division, has been chosen to attend the radio course at the Armored Force school, Fort Knox, Ky. He is assigned to the 83d reconnaissance battalion. Private Westley J. Tuite, Oak Park, has been selected to attend the special tank mechanics course at the Armored Force school. He is with the 40th armored regiment, a unit of the 3d armored division.

James Hammond, 3210 Arthington street, has been transferred to the 64th transport group at March Field, Cal.

Machines Hum Back to Work Song for Labor

BY MILDRED WILDS.

The summer quiet that always invades High school at this time of year is absent. The whir of machinery, pounding of hammers and all the noise of high speed activity is echoing thru the corridors as the first term of the National Defense school comes to an end. A new term will begin on Thursday, one day after the close of the first, to supply the demands of industry for trained workers.

Classrooms at Austin High school are filled with students who have known and practiced their lessons for twenty or thirty years. Some of them have been machinists and tool makers in all parts of the world. They are back in the classroom to brush up. There are white heads bent over the drafting boards. Men with calloused hands pick up the tools which they laid down back in 1930 when financial depression took their jobs away. There are young faces too in the classrooms, boys of 16 years or so. Sometimes these boys help the older men and often the older men teach them an old trick.

New Jobs for Old Hands.

Austin High houses one of three such National Defense schools in the west area. Others are located at Harrison and Crane Technical schools. As fast as the men finish their refresher courses they are called by the Illinois Employment service to take jobs in mill and factory. These 600 students at Austin whose text books are machines, tools and blow torches, represent a cross section of the vast industrial man power of the United States. Most of them had abandoned all hope of working at their trades again.

Amerigo Sansone is principal of the Austin National Defense school which was made possible by President James B. McCahey of the board of education; William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, and Philip McNamee. All expenses are met by the federal government and the instructors come from industry and school personnel. Courses of both the refresher and supplementary type are offered in machine shop, foundry, and forge, drafting, boat building and auto mechanics.

From 16 to 80.

Each man who eagerly bends over his work in Austin High school has a story of experience in industry and many of them are fired by the patriotic urge to help build the defenses of the country. Their ages range from 16 to 80 years. The older ones are skilled workers who have been earning their living since 1929 as cooks, dish washers, janitors, waiters, anything that would bring them money for rent and food.

A walk thru the machine shop will find Sigmund Balkevitch, 1610 South 50th court, Cicero, who learned and practiced his trade 52 years ago at Nicolaiof ship yard in Russia. During the world war he worked in a tool factory in Cleveland, O., making ma-

4 DAY PROGRAM RECALLS INDIAN FEAST OF CORN

Sen. Wheeler Speaks on Labor Day.

Research by St. Charles palefaces reveals that when the Potawatomi Indians were in the area they celebrated "Wi-Na-Ming-Geh" or festival of the green corn in August. The theme, therefore, for the annual fall celebration being developed by the St. Charles Chamber of Commerce and the local post of the American Legion will embrace the Indian lore and history of tribes that inhabited the Fox river valley and will center in their old hunting grounds in Potawatomi park.

The four full days of activity will start Friday and continue thru Labor day.

During the festival, the Fox river bridge in the city will be decorated with the flags of the 48 states made possible thru the response of governors, many of whom have sent messages of well wishes to the festival committee. On each side of the bridge, at its center, Indian tepees have been erected.

Take Indian Names.

Leading up to festival time, St. Charles business and professional leaders are being greeted with Indian names. M. H. Hough, general chairman of the festival, is known as Head Chief Chi-Chi-Pe [curly head]. Cochairmen are Assistant Chief Sheh-Tik [pelican] George Simon, and Assistant Chief Makata-Wineshka [Blackhawk] Dr. C. E. Anderson.

Treasurers of the festival are Wampum Chief Apta-Kisich [half day] A. C. Schneider, and Wampum Chief Mes-Kwa-Bock [red rock] Glen Simpson. The secretary is Mina-Kwot [banked clouds] R. F. Munn.

According to G. E. Thompson, Chief Chakos [short of stature], the program Friday night will begin with the distribution of green corn. There will be an Indian pageant given by Chief Whirling Thunder and his real Winnebago Indians. Other features will be a children's Indian costume parade and games of a softball tournament, Saturday will be farmers' day.

The annual St. Charles fishing contest sponsored by the Sportsman's league will be held next Sunday morning between 9 and 11 o'clock. Shell races will be held on the river in the afternoon.

Wheeler to Speak.

The Sunday speaker will be provided by the Fight for Freedom, Inc., and the Labor day speaker, under the auspices of the America First committee, will be Sen. Burton K. Wheeler.

Band concerts will precede each of the speaking programs, and there will be dancing in the park pavilion thruout the festival.

The festival's model wigwam [model home] is located at 307 South Seventh street.

Center of Indian Life.

Scientists at the Field museum who have coöperated with the festival committee find that the Indian theme for the celebration is most fitting. Northwest of the city were located Indian arrow chipping grounds. A monument near Five Islands at the bend of the river marks the spot where two of Gen. Scott's soldiers were buried during the Blackhawk war. The Indians had burial mounds not far from the present location of Hotel Baker.

The city's swift progress after arrival of the first settlers in 1834 is indicated by the historical fact that at one time St. Charles boasted seven hotels and was considered one of the most important towns in northern Illinois. Mrs. Lincoln often stayed at the Howard House. Wild Rose inn was said to have been a station of the underground railroad.

FIFTH OF CADETS IN AIR CLASS ARE FROM ILLINOIS

Illinois men make up one-fifth of the graduating class of more than 300 aviation cadets who on Aug. 16 completed their period of basic training at Randolph field, Tex. This was the eighth class of the year to earn wings in the gulf coast air corps training center.

Altho cadets from 31 states are represented in this class, most of them come from the middle western states of Illinois, Ohio, Iowa, Michigan, Kansas, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Kentucky. Ohio was second to Illinois, furnishing 29 flying cadets.

West area men are Robert E. Crowley, Oak Park; Donald W. Cunningham, Maywood; Merle C. Eby, Aurora; Robert E. Hines, Oak Park; Frank C. Kluber, Cicero; John M. Martin, Berwyn; John L. Schlener, Elmhurst; Edward A. Skudrna, Berwyn; Rex D. Smith Jr., Oak Park; Robert P. Stewart, 1534 North Harding avenue.

WESTMONT NOW OF AGE—TO HONOR FIRST TOWN PUMP

Ask Du Page Labor Groups to Join Parade.

The first town pump and the new water softening plant now under construction in the suburb will be contrasted in one of the floats to appear in Westmont's parade celebrating Labor day and the 20th anniversary of the village.

Settlers not only came to the pump for their water supply but to exchange conversation, much of which had to do with Westmont's prospective future. The Labor day celebration will be that of a community of more than 3,000 persons within the incorporated village, and 2,000 more in the nearby territory.

The Second Homecoming.

Westmont's second homecoming—the first was held ten years ago—will feature a parade two miles in length that will start at 10:15 o'clock, winding up at a speaker's stand at Richmond street and Cass avenue. Arthur T. McIntosh, who opened the subdivision from which Westmont grew, has been invited along with all Du Page county officials, to attend the celebration.

Arvid N. Swanson, president of Westmont, will be master of ceremonies. M. R. Bates, a resident of Westmont from the beginning and one of its pioneer merchants, is chairman of the parade committee, and has for his assistants Walter Michaelis, W. A. Robinson, Theodore Steffes, and Paul Timmerberg.

Groups that will march to the music of three bands include the suburb's fire and police departments village officials. Boy and Girl Scouts, veteran groups and their auxiliaries, churches, civic organizations, and representatives of various crafts of organized labor.

All labor groups of the county have been invited to center their Labor day activities in Westmont.

Afternoon Activities.

Afternoon events will include a children's parade of doll buggies and pets; foot races and bicycle races, a firemen's water fight, and ball games. There will be street dancing in the evening.

L. B. Reagan, editor of the Westmont Star, is secretary of the celebration committee. Other committee members are as follows:

Clyde Gleason, chairman; William Kohler, J. A. Kyvig, C. E. Miller, Francis Maier, and A. L. England, planning; Albert Olson, ways and means; Mrs. Harold Gleason, refreshments, and Mrs. Arland Beardsley, entertainment; C. E. Miller, publicity, and Mrs. David Crook, chairman; Mrs. Otto Wunderlich, and Mrs. Frank Faber, historical.

DIVISION STREET FALL FESTIVAL OPENS THIS WEEK

A harvest festival for city folk is the offering of the Division Street Business Men's association of Austin beginning this week and continuing thru Oct. 8.

The committee on arrangements headed by A. T. Seeley, president of the organization, has arranged a program of street dancing, entertainment and other activities along the street from Austin boulevard to the railroad tracks on the east.

Prizes amounting to $500 will be awarded. A novel idea will be the Window Wishers' stunt. For three days window shoppers will count stars in the merchants' windows and the winner will have his window shopping wish granted by the proprietor of the store.

Each merchant will sponsor his own personality contest with the patrons voting for their choice of good neighbor. On Tuesday, Oct. 7, the festival will be claimaxed with a parade headed by Melin Romer post of the American Legion. Marchers will be members of the business men's association.

The officers of the Division street association are, in addition to Mr. Seeley, W. V. Sheehan, first vice president; Fred Lapetina, second vice president; C. T. Moore, recording secretary; Fred Lyons, financial secretary, and A. C. Schennum, treasurer.

The directors are J. A. Kallas, Walter W. Ahlgrim, Arthur M. Romme, Dan Bonita, Peter Lunkes, and Henry Larson.

Woman's Band to Present Concert in Garfield Park

The Chicago Woman's Concert band conducted by Lillian Poenisch will play at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the Garfield park concert series presented by the Chicago Federation of Musicians. Soloists are Teresa Ferrio, soprano; Genevieve Kaleth, trumpet, and Emily Poska, clarinet.

Singing Honors

Harriet O'Rourke. Elmer Carlquist.

Miss Harriet O'Rourke, 2860 East 76th street, and Elmer Carlquist, Lake Forest, were third place winners in the best singer contests for men and women in the 12th annual Chicagoland Music Festival. Miss O'Rourke is a coloratura soprano, and Carlquist is a dramatic tenor.

Special Classes Help Machinists Relearn Trades

Some of the men who man American industry have just come back from a vacation of many years. Machinists, draftsmen, tool and die makers, auto mechanics, and machine operators are getting the opportunity to relearn their skills at the national defense schools located at Austin, Crane Technical, and Harrison Technical High schools. One such "student" taking the refresher courses, as they are called at Austin High, is Steve Katsuridas, 7916 Parnell avenue, whose fingers, once skilled for precise work, are finding new skill again.

[TRIBUNE Photos by Julius Gantter.]

As fast as they relearn their trades they are taken back into industry for national defense jobs. Austin will soon be turning out another skilled workman in William A. Ferguson, 609 North Parkside avenue.

Erwin Peters, 1645 North Luna avenue, stands by as Max Stein, 1526 North Springfield avenue, concentrates on a delicate piece of lathe work. They will "graduate" soon at the end of the first term of the defense school at Austin.

EIGHT WEST SIDE SCOUTS ELECTED TO CAMP ORDER

Eight west side district Boy Scouts were elected into Blackhawk chapter of the Order of the Arrow, national Scout service fraternity, during the second period of camping at the A. Stamford White Owasippe camps near Whitehall, Mich.

Election to the order is the highest honor for campers. The candidate is chosen if he meets three requirements, ready for fun, loyal to the spirit of brotherhood, and ready to serve and be of service to all. The theme of the order is based on Indian legend.

The eight west side boys elected are Leo De Sario, James McCarthy, Robert Brinker, Robert Goralski, Leonard Kukielski, Chester Kukielski, Chester Flasza, Charles Zeman.

WEED CUTTERS HELP TO REDUCE CITY'S SNEEZES

Chicago's annual campaign of cutting 12,000,000 square yards of weeds as a means of combatting hayfever was at its halfway mark last week. The bureau of streets, which in the summer cuts about 260,000 square yards of weeds daily, has destroyed some 6,000,000 since the middle of July.

By the end of September the cutting will be completed. The weeds are destroyed along driveways, parkways, in parks, playgrounds, and empty lots. The destruction of weeds is a definite aid to hay fever sufferers, Al Konefes, acting chief clerk of the bureau of streets, declared.

The hay fever season thus far is reported as being mild, Konefes said. Recent cool weather is said to have killed much of the hay fever carrying pollen before it has ripened on the plants and been blown into the air.

Altho the bureau of streets estimates its annual weed killing quota at 12 million square yards, less than 50 per cent of the city's weeds are touched.

A report of a typical August day showed that a total of 264,572 square yards of weeds were cut by relief workers under the direction of Commissioner Frank J. Flanagan of the bureau of streets. Half of this yardage is cut by hand scythes, the other by 16 mowing machines.

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt declared that a greater amount of eradication work could be done by the city if more relief workers were assigned to the program.

The following table shows the yardage of weeds cut last Tuesday by the bureau of streets on the west side:

Ward—	Cut by hand.	Cut by mower.	Total.
21	3,000	....	3,000
28	600	....	600
29	1,000	....	1,000

MACHINES HUM BACK TO WORK SONG FOR LABOR

Austin School Promotes Rebirth of Skill.

chinery for armaments. He has worked in the Philadelphia ship yards, made automatic presses and was employed in a locomotive works. They call him "Pop" and his hair is sparse and silvery. "I have been out of work for 13 years, since 1929," he says and gets back to his machine with the enthusiasm of an apprentice.

Former Steel Engraver.

In the same shop is Eric Anderson, 613 North Pine avenue, who before 1929 was an engraver of stocks, bonds, and securities. It was he who made the steel plates for the beautifully engraved bonds and stocks bought in the early twenties when the world was on a spending spree. "They asked me in 1929 if I would mind a three months layoff," says the old stock engraver, "I have been out of a job most of the time since."

Eric Anderson, however, turned his skill from the commercial to the artistic field and has been earning an existence by making candy boxes, book ends and wall hangings with hammered brass trim. "Now I'm back at a lathe," he says, "It's a little tough going because I've forgotten my fractions."

Nineteen year old William O'Callahan, 5614 Leland avenue, never looks up from his lathe. He says with earnestness, "I've got a brother in the navy. He's doing all he can so I've got to learn how to make weapons for him."

Completes a Cycle.

"I was born in a machine shop," says William Ferguson, who deviated from his mechanical career during the depression to practice pharmacy. "My father owned a wagon shop and I worked there from the time I was 16 years old. Then I went to school and learned to be a pharmacist and now I'm going back to what I was born to be, a machinist."

"You see," he explains, "it takes only one pharmacist on a battleship. It takes more than 1,000 men to build one."

In the tool and die making shop, Steve Kaesuridas, 7916 Parnell avenue, is toiling in silent appreciation. Steve was a steel fabricator from 1923 to 1933. When there was little need for steel fabricating, he turned to cooking in a restaurant, sweeping floors, and washing dishes.

"It's wonderful to make a tool again," he says with a grin.

Loses to Machine.

Bill Mickle, 1713 West LeMoyne street, was laid off as a hand screw machine operator in 1932. Since then he has swept streets and done janitor work. Bill marched off to France in World War I and saw service in the Argonne. True to a promise, his company saved his job for him and after the Armistice he was back at his bench. "Eight years later," he says, "the company put in new machines and with them came some efficiency experts. The result was a total layoff of the old workers."

The electric shop filled with transformers, meters, switchboards, and fixtures is one of the busiest spots in the school. One of the students who is a veteran in his trade, is Louis Saunders, 3509 West 63d street, who worked for 25 years making electrical fixtures in the same shop. He last drew a pay check in 1930. "I'm 65 years old now," he says, "but I can still work.

Most dramatic story of all is that of Thomas Wilson, Homan avenue and Madison street, who was born in South Africa, worked as an electrician on four railroads in the United States, worked in the Liverpool ship yards, and on a United Fruit boat. "I haven't worked since 1930," he says.

"It's our job to restore the morale of these men," says Principal Sansone, "skilled hands can get out of practice but all of these men are more than willing to get back. They are anxious both to build the defenses of their country and they are more than eager to regain their skill."

NAVY BAND WILL GIVE CONCERTS IN MAYWOOD OCT. 1

Soldiers, Sailors Will Have Free Seats.

Maywood will make much of the observance of Navy day on Oct. 1. On that day the United States Navy band will play a return engagement at the Proviso fieldhouse under the sponsorship of the Greater Maywood association.

Maywood authorities have been notified by leaders in the community and the surrounding area that the date will be kept free as far as is possible so that attendance at the concert may equal last year's.

Louis E. Nelson, president of the Greater Maywood association, has appointed Conrad Strutzel, R. N. Sager, and Irving Talmadge to serve with him on the executive committee.

Other committee chairmen are R. W. Meyn, finance; R. N. Sager, advertising; George Bailey, tickets; Irving Talmadge, program; John Newcomer, auditorium; Harry Staup, parking, and Louis Ancel, decorations.

Soldiers and sailors in uniform will be admitted free to the evening concert, starting at 8 o'clock, and also to the concert for high school students at 2:45 p. m. A concert for grade school pupils will be given at 1:30 p. m.

Profits from the concert will be turned into the general fund for the benefit of the Christmas basket project. Last year, funds from this source, supplemented by gifts from civil organizations and individuals, provided Christmas dinners for more than 100 families.

Duties Only Musical.

Organization of the United States Navy band was authorized by congress that the navy might be suitably represented in ceremonies and official functions in the nation's capital. While duties of the band members are entirely musical, members are subject to the regulations and discipline of the navy.

Forum Series at Institute To Close Tomorrow Night

The topic for discussion at the final open air roof garden forum at the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow evening will be "The Summing Up: An Inventory of American and World Politics to Date." Dr. Werner Cahnman, a sociologist and a student of Jewish affairs, will discuss the present and future of Jewry. Dorothy Greene of the International Relations bureau will analyze the domestic and foreign politics at work in the current scene, and Grant Oakes, CIO union official, will speak for labor.

MODERN HOME IS BUILT AROUND BIG LIVING ROOM

Kitchen, Dining in Wing; Bedroom in Another.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Wilson, 1611 West 105th place, knew a number of simple fundamentals of house planning and construction, and in decisions made as to layout and materials they kept steadily in mind the fact that their future home was to be as they wanted it. Their present English colonial type of dwelling fits its site and the family needs.

The home stands on a lot 55 by 120 feet and the exterior walls are brick in mellow tones, soft purples and phantom blues, creams, and browns, and tans. The roof and shutters are a deep brown and the entrance door of dark wood lives up to the tradition that an entrance door should spell hospitality and beauty.

Living Room in Center.

The floor arrangement is of interest. It deviates from the conventional and possesses quite a few assets all its own. The plan places reception hall, living room, and outdoor terrace opening from living room, directly in the center of the house. The reception hall is bright and gracious and serves its purpose well, tho it does not take too much space from the house proper. Stairs to the second floor are on the left, and beyond, the left wing of the dwelling, is occupied by master bedroom, 11 by 20 feet, and bath. The right wing is occupied by dining room, with view to gardens at back, kitchen, and breakfast room at the front.

The entire second floor is given up to a second bedroom, center hall, and bath. This suite belongs to young Mr. Wilson, who is now entering his last year at the University of Chicago.

Flush Type Doors.

The heating system, which is forced warm air, oil fueled, is in the basement, together with utility rooms and storage spaces.

The doors thruout the home are flush type, finely grained walnut, with a soft, satiny finish. "These are very easy to clean," Mrs. Wilson says. And certainly they are very lovely to look on.

The living room is large, 16 by 22 feet, an inviting room with wide colonial fireplace opposite the entrance door, and French doors leading to a terraced living room outside. The walls are canvased, the woodwork ivory, and deep shelves are built into wall at left of entrance. This is a room for genuine comfort and happy family use, and no small part of its charm is the outdoor living room, that in summer seems an integral part of the house itself.

Dining Room Separate.

The dining room is close, but not a part of the living room, and conforms pleasingly to tradition with its corner cupboards and effective colonial lighting fixture. In the kitchen there is a gay Mexican note in lively decals on cupboards and shelves. The walls are of cream colored linoleum flecked with blue and black, and there's a cove baseboard and black linoleum floor flecked with cream and white. There's a kitchen ventilator for coolness and shelves on each side of sink are bright with colorful jars and pottery.

The left wing, with master bedroom, three large closets and bath dubonnet and ivory with ceramic tiled walls and floor, is comfortably detached from the rest of the house.

On the second floor the bedroom is 13 by 18, not counting the dormers, which add still more space. There is a masculine touch here, with built-in shelves for books. The bath is carried out in linoleum, with cream and brown walls and white fixtures.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Aug. 25.

Work in the garden at this season consists largely in maintenance and it is imperative that all leaves be raked and piled even tho they are from soft wood trees. They add, when decayed, some humus to the compost heap. There is always an obscure corner where leaves and soft trash can be piled and, with it, some soil. Wet the heap down when it is dry to hasten decomposition.

Tuesday, Aug. 26.

If the new lawn has not been started start working on it immediately. Fill all depressions and cut down elevations to give a smooth even surface; this is true for the small area; larger areas may have surface variations or an undulating sweep that presents a good appearance.

If the soil packs spread a layer of decayed manure over the surface; if the soil drains poorly, spade in two or more inches of sifted ashes or sand to provide some drainage. Sandy soil is improved by spading under manures or decayed vegetable matter; pulverized manures are also beneficial.

Wednesday, Aug. 27.

Order bulbs early to have them to plant at the proper time. Narcissi should be planted just as soon as they can be obtained. Crocus the same, and madonna lilies should go into the ground at the earliest time they can be procured. Tulips can be planted as late as the ground can be worked or into early October.

Thursday, Aug. 28.

Bear in mind that water evaporates very rapidly during this season and it must be replaced almost daily. Lay the hose on the ground and allow it to run freely or until the ground is soaked to a depth of five inches.

Never allow the insect pests to gain control; the only way to prevent this is constant spraying at intervals of about 10 days. Spray roses with Triogen, a three way insecticide and funguscide. Those who can obtain tobacco stems may use them as a mulch for they serve as a repellent against root aphids and other pests.

Friday, Aug. 29.

Stake tall gladiolus or they are likely to fall over. Stake all tall flower stems. Manure water or commercial foods in solution applied to gladiolus and dahlias that show buds will increase the size of bloom and the strength of stem. Feed the peonies for next year's bloom. An application of plant food may give some good larkspur blooms for the second time.

Increase the supply of phlox from cuttings of the young stems made at this time. Just as soon as the pansies are large enough they may be transplanted into frames or in beds where they are to flower next spring.

Saturday, Aug. 30.

If the annuals that are in good condition are cut back and the soil given an application of food, they will develop stems and flowers until the frost cuts them down. Do not feed roses too late in the season or soft growth would result and is almost certain to result in severe winter freezing.

JAZZ FOR ART'S SAKE IS REASON FOR THIS BAND

Follows Tradition of More Than 20 Years.

In a little sideroom of a restaurant at Rush and Hubbard streets a band in rehearsal blares out jazz music on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. Clerks ducking out from the nearby office buildings for their 3 o'clock cup of coffee stand in the doorway for a few minutes listening to the bouncing, rocking rhythms pouring out into the street.

Occasionally Bud Freeman, the leader, a round faced man with a mustache and a bow tie, takes a solo, playing a beautiful and mellow saxophone. And sometimes the people in the doorway clap and shout thru the screen door an encouraging "Yeah, man." Freeman grins and the band picks up from there.

Devotees of "Pure Jazz."

Freeman and the men, most of whom have other orchestra jobs, gather twice a week just to play what they call "pure jazz." Freeman, who could have a $100 chair in practically any man's orchestra, prefers to rehearse his own band and to play jazz his own way.

The reason for his preference goes back almost 20 years, back to the days when the national pastime was amending the 18th amendment at 75 cents a shot; back to the early 1920s when Paul Whiteman was king of jazz and Freeman a student at the Austin High school.

Freeman and four other Austin High school boys who loved music more than mathematics and Latin used to cut classes and meet in the back room of the neighborhood candy store almost daily. They came lugging their instruments and rehearsed their little jazz band for the weekly student P.-T. A. dances.

Create the Chicago Style.

The Austin band didn't have a name because the boys were too busy playing to think of one. And they played wild, relaxed jazz, full of new ideas. Today it would be called swing. But then it was known as hot jazz, the kind that the great Louis Armstrong and King Oliver brought up to Chicago on the river boats from New Orleans.

Those boys in the candy store became legendary figures in the world of jazz. They were Frank Teschmaker, the sensitive saxophonist and clarinetist, who was killed in an auto crash; Jim Lannigan, piano and bass fiddle player; the MacPartland brothers, and Freeman, whom the critics say is one of the country's leading hot sax men.

Sometimes another boy who went to Lewis Institute sat in with the band. He played clarinet and he liked to sit in with them because, as Freeman says, "we played pure jazz, right on the note." The other boy was Benny Goodman.

The band added other Chicago men and after high school they split up. The boys got other jobs and Freeman went to play with Whiteman, Pollack, Kahn, and other big names.

The Chicago Style Survives.

All that was 20 years ago. But the Chicago style of jazz is still around. And so is Bud Freeman, the Austin High school boy, who can't forget the bouncing, slashing music they made at the P.-T. A. dances.

Now, almost 20 years later, Freeman is still playing it—with many developments, of course. When it comes to talking about it, Freeman discusses it with the same reverence that a long-haired musician talks about the classics. Jazz, he tells you, is art, America's contribution to world culture.

"Nobody can tell much about it yet," Freeman declares, tugging at his bow tie [he's worn them ever since Austin High school]. "But one thing is certain. It's here to stay, no matter if you call it swing, hot, or what. Remember, it's only 40 years old and classical music is several centuries."

Some day he expects to see a symphony orchestra in which the players will get up out of their chairs and improvise on a solo as they beat out the overture. "Now that sounds a little visionary," he continues, "but that day is almost here. Didn't Benny [Goodman] play long hair at Ravinia and Carnegie hall? By and by you'll see more and more of that sort of thing."

Will Be Bride in Fall

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Schroll, River Forest, recently announced the engagement of their daughter, Jeanne Coleman Schroll. She will be married to William Quayle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Quayle of River Forest, this fall. [Toloff Photo.]

YOUNG OAK PARK READERS TO SEE MOVIES AT PARTY

Reward for Spare Time Summer Study.

A book party for the 109 children who are members of the Summer Reading club of the south branch, Oak Park public library, will be held Wednesday afternoon in the branch, 845 Gunderson avenue. Children who have read 10 books on some phase of American life have the number recorded on a scorecard. The card, bearing the name, school, and grade of the child and the record of books read, will be the ticket of admission to the party.

Attending the party will be representatives of six schools in the area from the fourth to the eighth grade. The program will include a color motion picture of the west entitled "To the Heart of the Dude Ranch Country." Mrs. Adele H. Maze is librarian. The same cards that may be used as tickets of admission may be presented to the various schools in September where reading credit will be given the children.

Animal Story Party.

Younger children from the first to third grade are given a colored card as a bookmark. When a book is read an animal sticker is pasted on the card indicating the extent of the child's reading. On the Saturday morning after school opens these small children will meet for an animal story party in the south branch.

Similar summer reading clubs have been held in the Dole and the main branch libraries in Oak Park. Miss Nancy Donaldson of the Dole branch and Miss Florence Nordine, librarian at Main, took the reading clubs on a visit to Field museum as their reward.

Plan Book Reviews.

In the adult department of the Oak Park public library the next event will be the opening of the book review clubs. There are more than 150 members enrolled at south branch and 75 enrolled at Dole branch. The tentative opening date is Oct. 1.

Bryant P-TA Board.

The executive board of the Bryant P-TA will meet at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, Sept. 3, in the home of Mrs. J. I. Jeffe, 1254 South Keeler avenue. Plans for the 1941-'42 program will be discussed.

OAK PARK DEMOCRATS WILL PICNIC TODAY AT MAYWOOD GROVE

An old fashioned basket picnic will be held by the regular Democratic organization of Oak Park this afternoon in the forest preserves at Maywood grove, 8400 West Lake street. There will be dancing, races, games, and refreshments. Ward Committeeman William L. Smith announces a special program for children complete with clowns and souvenirs.

William L. Smith.

Members of the committee are Paul V. Collanni, William P. Churchill, William J. McGah, Walter W. L. Meyer, Ben S. Nelson, Joseph Triner, David F. O'Shea, and Thomas W. Walpole.

Mrs. Mae Ferretti will be in charge of food and soft drinks.

GIFTS FINANCE NEW WHEATON COLLEGE GYM

Financed by pledges and gifts from alumni, students, faculty and friends, a new $155,000 physical education building is being erected on the Wheaton college campus. Funds on hand now total $101,500. The building will be of brick construction. Architecture is of the Georgian Colonial style. The new building will be not only equipped for Wheaton's health program and the training of physical education instructors but is also designed to serve as an auditorium for all college events.

Celebrate Golden Year Today

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Silverman, 4030 Monroe street, will celebrate their golden wedding today in their home. The Silvermans have resided in the west side for 49 years. They have eight sons, one daughter, and 13 grandchildren. [Mario Photo.]

OUTDOOR LEAGUE EXTENDS CAMP TIME FOR BOYS

The adventure camps started by the Chicago Outdoor league as week-end expeditions for boys, have been extended for one week periods as an experiment. A group of boys from the Bethlehem Community center, 1835 South Loomis street, will return today from a full week of camping on the farm of Dr. Melford E. Zinser, league chairman.

Nathaniel Leverone, chairman of the league's executive committee, says that the league wants to sponsor longer trips for children who have had some camping experience. League camp sites have been given over for the sole benefit of youngsters who have never before had such an excursion. At the adventure camps the children toss blankets on the ground, sleep under the skies, cook their own meals and plan their own programs.

The Chicago Outdoor league camping program was organized last year after announcement by the Chicago Recreation committee that at least 773,000 Chicago children have never attended camp.

Institute Concert.

The final program of the concert series at the Jewish People's Institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard, will be presented Tuesday evening by the Chicago Concert and Opera guild, directed by Silvio Insana.

COUPLE IS APART ONLY TWO WEEKS IN 64 YEAR SPAN

first home was a small apartment at 17 May street, in a section now filled with factories and business houses. Next they rented a cottage at Walnut and Paulina where their first son, Fred Letz, who now lives in Oak Park, was born.

Then they moved into their own home on De Kalb street near Ogden and Leavitt where they lived for 27 years. The neighborhood slowly grew more congested. Finally when a building next door was bombed the Letz family was frightened out. They put up a "For Sale" sign and bought the home in Austin where they have resided for 20 years.

For 39 years Mr. Letz was employed with Marshall Field, first as correspondence clerk and then as cashier. He was also cashier for the First National bank of La Grange and for the Commercial Paper Manufacturing company before his retirement 10 years ago.

Mrs. Letz' memories date back to the Civil war. She remembers now her father was drafted for the war but was permitted to buy a substitute because he had a wife and children.

In the meantime Mr. Letz over at Skinner school was marching in mock regiments formed in every schoolroom and celebrating with song and shouts every victory of the Union army.

With history still in the making Mr. and Mrs. Letz are happy in their comfortable home on Monroe street. Their interests now are their garden, their sons, Fred and Charles Letz, and a daughter, Mrs. Florence Morrow. They have one grandson, Fred Letz and two great-grandsons, Howard and Curtis.

FALL RADIO FARE INCLUDES HOST OF NEW SHOWS

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The fall menu for radio is almost ready. Many new items are listed on the bill of fare. Many of the old favorites, off for the summer months, will be back on.

One of the most promising of the new shows is Three Ring Time, a Hollywood comedy variety show to feature Charles Laughton, the character actor, and Milton Berle, the comedian, with Bob Crosby and Shirley Ross providing the music. This show will have its première on W-G-N-Mutual at 8:30 p. m. Friday, Sept. 12.

Laughton and Berle plan a fresh approach to radio humor. Miss Ross will join in the comedy routines as well as singing. Miss Ross has been featured in several pictures.

Flagg and Quirt for Radio.

Capt. Flagg and Sergt. Quirt, the famous characters of "What Price Glory," will come to life on the air at 6:30 p. m. Sunday, Sept. 28, over WENR-NBC. Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen, heroes of the cinema version, will be co-starred in this radio version.

Gladys Swarthout, Metropolitan Opera singer, and Deems Taylor, composer and commentator, will be the headliners of the Family Hour, starting over WBBM-CBS at 4 p. m. Sunday, Aug. 31. They will be supported by Ross Graham, baritone, Al Goodman's orchestra, and a chorus.

A rib from Fibber McGee is the new show, The Great Gildersleeve, featuring Harold Peary, starting at 5:30 Sunday, Aug. 31, over WMAQ-NBC. Gildersleeve has been a popular character in the McGee show.

Already established as a popular new comedy show is Harold Teen, whose adventures are chronicled over W-G-N at 7:30 o'clock every Tuesday evening.

Orson Welles to Return.

Orson Welles, off the air most of last year, will return with a new show at 9 p. m. Monday, Sept. 15, over WBBM-CBS, replacing the present Freddy Martin show aired at this hour.

Among the new and returning shows with starting dates are the following:

W-G-N AND MUTUAL.

*July 29—7:30 p. m. Tuesday—Harold Teen. W-G-N.
*Aug. 31—11:30 a. m. Sunday—Quin Ryan reads Chicago Tribune comics. W-G-N.

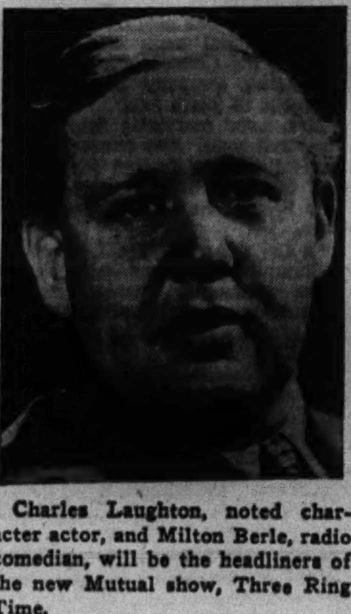
Oct. 8—6:30 p. m. Wednesday—Meet Mr. Meek.

In '3 Ring Time'

Shirley Ross, movie and radio songstress, with Bob Crosby's orchestra will provide the musical backdrop for the new W-G-N-Mutual Hollywood comedy variety show, Three Ring Time, starting at 8:30 p. m. Friday, Sept. 12.



Charles Laughton, noted character actor, and Milton Berle, radio comedian, will be the headliners of the new Mutual show, Three Ring Time.

WORLD WE LIVE IN SUBJECT OF FORUM OF AIR

Eight persons representing various backgrounds will take part in a special symposium, "The World We Live In," on the American Forum of the Air to be broadcast from 7 to 7:45 tonight over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Conducted by Theodore Granik, the forum will originate on the campus of Williams college in Williamstown, Mass., where the Institute of Human Relations will be gathered for an assembly.

The speakers will be Thomas E. Dewey, Roger W. Strauss, vice president of the American Smelting and Refining company; Dorothy Day, editor of the Catholic Worker; Harold W. Guinzburg, president of the Viking Press; David Hinshaw of the Standard Oil company; Dr. Frank Kingdon, member of the Committee to Defend America; Mildred McAfee, president of Wellesley college, and James N. Rosenburg of the American Jewish committee.

VIOLIN MELODY ON CHICAGOLAND HOUR SATURDAY

Marion Claire, Baggiore Vocal Soloists.

A violin solo by Michael Wilkomirski, concert master of the W-G-N concert orchestra, will be a feature of the Chicagoland Hour, from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Marion Claire, noted soprano, and Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor, singing stars of the program, will join with Wilkomirski and Henry Weber, conductor of the concert orchestra, to present a varied program of good music.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Wilkomirski's violin solo will be Hubay's "Hejre Kati" with a background by the orchestra. Miss Claire will sing two solos, the "Gypsy Song" from Kalman's "Countess Maritza" and Schubert's "Ave Maria." In both selections she will be joined by the chorus under the direction of Robert Trendler.

Baggiore will offer "My Dream Girl" from Victor Herbert's "Girl of My Dreams" and DeMoya's "Song of Songs." He will also be heard with Miss Claire in two medleys from Friml's "Vagabond King" and Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe" and "Gondoliers."

The orchestra will play Leoncavallo's "Carnival" from "I Pagliacci."

The complete program follows:

"Carnival" [I Pagliacci] .... Leoncavallo
Orchestra and Chorus
"Gypsy Song" [Countess Maritza] .. Kalman
Marion Claire and Chorus
"My Dream Girl" [Girl of My Dreams] ...... Herbert

"Welcome to Our Hearts Again"—Chorus.
"Bow, Bow, Ye Lower Middle Classes"—Chorus.
"If We're Weak Enough to Tarry"—Attilio Baggiore.
"O Amorous Dove"—Marion Claire and chorus.
"Buon Giorno"—Marion Claire, Attilio Baggiore and chorus.
"Dance from Cachucha"—Chorus.

W9XBK to Start Theater Television Demonstrations

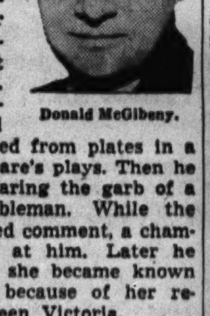
Daily television demonstrations will be given thru the facilities of station W9XBK on the mezzanine floor of the Chicago theater starting Monday. Patrons of the theater will be televised in a studio in the theater and viewed by others thru six receivers scattered about the floor. Six hostesses will be on hand to interview television subjects. William Eddy, director of television for Balaban and Katz, will be in charge.

'The Wail of Death' on Inner Sanctum Mystery

"The Wail of Death," an eerie mystery involving a British army post in India and a strange curse that took curtain calls for 50 years, is the inner sanctum mystery to be presented at 7:30 p. m. today over WENR. The tale deals with the thugs, Indian religious fanatics, and forerunners of several modern schools of violence.

M'GIBENY TO RECALL STORY OF A MAID WHO WED A PASHA

Donald McGibeny on his W-G-N news commentary at 10:30 p. m. next Thursday will tell the story of Madame Vic, the English chambermaid who married the pasha of Ouzzan.



Donald McGibeny.

The pasha married the chambermaid after she had instructed him in correct English fashion. The pasha on visiting England had his clothes tailored from plates in a book of Shakespeare's plays. Then he gave a party, wearing the garb of a 17th century nobleman. While the Britishers reserved comment, a chambermaid laughed at him. Later he married her and she became known as Madame Vic because of her resemblance to Queen Victoria.

McGibeny met her several years ago, took her for her first airplane ride, and got her to recount the story of her romance. McGibeny served in the World war with the French Foreign Legion and was a foreign correspondent.

DEAD END KIDS NO LONGER; OWN A RURAL ESTATE

Camp Site Is Bought by 20th Ward Group.

For a long time the 2,300 children who live in flats and multifamily houses between Canal street and Ashland avenue, Roosevelt road and Van Buren street, were supposed to be counterparts of the Dead End Kids. They have no money nor combs in their pockets. Today these children are owners of a 44 acre country estate.

Twenty-five acres is timber and land where hickory, poplars, white, black and burr oaks, elms and weeping willows are close neighbors. There are springs and ravines, wild ducks and rabbits.

A long time ago, almost four years, the neighborhood had a reputation. Police and social workers referred to it as the "bloody 20th ward." Petty thefts were as common as poverty and the roughest and the toughest held the most respect among their own.

Decide to Clean Up.

Then the West Side Community council started. The improvement organization grew out of what was once a neighborhood gang. These young men, tired of the reputation of their streets, tired of being turned down on jobs because of their home address, decided to clean up.

These young men knew the results of alley gambling, of poverty, and dirty sidewalks. The improving started with putting lids on garbage cans and being friends with younger boys. They even dreamed of some day owning a tract of land in the country where city boys could wade in a clean creek, climb to the top branches of trees with their tousled heads closer to the clouds.

The dream came true. A camp and picnic grove owned and operated for and by the people of the near west side is a reality. It has been named the Pompeii Community camp. Thousands of mothers, fathers, and children contributed pennies, nickels and quarters. The Rev. Remigo Pigato, pastor of Our Lady of Pompeii church, helped the young men hold a benefit dance in the church. It all added up to $4,000.

Location of Estate.

That was the purchase price of their estate, located 30 miles southwest of Chicago and 4½ miles southwest of Chicago Heights. It faces Monee road not far from Sauk trail. The title to the land is held for the people by the Fathers of St. Charles.

Every day some boy or girl stops in at the West Side Community committee headquarters, 1035 West Polk street, to ask, "When will our camp be ready?" or "When can we wade in our creek?"

The young men who worked so hard to buy the land are working to put it in order. They want to equip it for a children's summer camp, for family picnics, and week-end trips. They want to build cabins and buy a bus for the use of neighborhood clubs.

The committee bought 9,000 board feet of second hand lumber. Miss Charlotte Carr, head resident of Hull House, made the settlement's wood shop available to the young men. They are traveling out to the property every Saturday and Sunday, building cabins, picnic tables, and sanitation facilities.

Gives Use of Truck.

John Fontano, a neighborhood grocer, told the young men his truck was at their disposal for carrying volunteer workers, lumber and supplies. Myron H. West, engineer, turned over to the men a survey made of the land when it was owned by an artist who wanted it for a retreat. Victor Alm, director of camping for the Chicago Council of Boy Scouts, has offered suggestions on camp organization.

The committee plans to use some of the property for farming and the people of the neighborhood will work it coöperatively. Recently the men hired workers to drill a 150 foot well.

One of the committee workers helping with the building is Paul D'Arco, the truant officer. Once a neighborhood boy, D'Arco knows the problems of the west side school child.

Helping with Work.

Others who are designing cabins, pounding nails and sawing the lumber to size are Tony DiSandro, Fred DiAngelo, Louis Roval, John Fontana, Joe Giunta, Nick DiGiovanni, Mike Capparelli, Jack Tremonte, Rinato Alghini, Emil Peluso, Peter Scalise, Julius Spatola, and Leonard Laino.

The West Side committee, headed by Frank LaGalante, wants to keep their country property as informal as possible. Their people have had too much of paved streets, row on row of buildings and aenemic trees. They want to erect 10 cabins and a mess hall. They want pure water and sanitation. They will dam up the creek for swimmers. However, the wild flowers will continue to entertain them each spring.

The birds will share their habitat with young boys who hadn't much to do with them before. Mothers and fathers will pack picnic baskets and venture to the quiet of one spot of land free from signs reading "No Trespassing."

West Siders Building Own Camp

A 44 acre country estate tract is now owned by hundreds of mothers, fathers, and children of the congested 20th ward. It is being turned into a camp thru the handiwork of amateur carpenters. The camp is a dream come true of the west side community committee and Our Lady of Pompeii church. In honor of the church the site located on Monee road, six miles southwest of Chicago Heights, has been called Pompeian Community camp. Putting the finishing touches on one of the cabins are, left to right, J. H. Sligerland, Armando Fosco, and Louis Rovai.

Aquatic Carnival Billed in Forest Park Tonight

The Forest Park swimming pool, 7501 Harrison street, tonight will present an aquatic show including the performances of champion swimmers and divers and a water ballet. Activities will start with a swim meet for boys and girls of the area. Medals will be awarded to winners.

YOUNG READERS SET RECORD PACE IN LIBRARY GAME

This summer Legler Branch library followed the suit of all west area branches in organizing a children's reading club, "The Good Will Flight Around the Americas." Each book read entitled the young reader to move his paper airplane bearing his name to a new stop on the big western hemisphere map in the library.

A group of Legler's child readers went around the route three times. They read so many books the librarians had to put them in some special category. Today they are members of the Flying Squadron of Honor and are the most rapid readers in a club of 254.

FLYING DREAMS COME TRUE FOR BOYS AT LEWIS

3 Star Graduates Now Teachers.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

There may be patches on his pants and holes in his shoes, but a kid can dream, can't he? The low, slow thunder of a plane cutting across the skyline; circling wings flashing white fire in the sun—these are things that can start a gnawing ache way down in the pit of a fellow's stomach. What about that old bird who said he'd put up his kingdom for a horse? The guy would be a piker who wouldn't give a dozen kingdoms for a plane to fly.

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil knows his boys. Evidence of that is written across the Lockport sky in a pageant of moving wings. Not all of them, of course, but a justifiable number of the first down at the heel youngsters who eight years ago, befriended by the bishop, were sent out to the Lewis School of Aeronautics, have grown up into airmen. And the happy story for three of them is newly written on their rating cards in two significant words, "Flight instructor."

Big Evening for Bones.

The first three Lewis boys to advance from student to instructor rating are Richard Grzanka, Leroy Lyons, and Roman Bralewski. Richard, tall, lanky, and lean, is known at the field as Bones. Roman answers to Bepo on all but state occasion.

There's a story to be told about Bones aside from aviation. It's the story of a masquerade party given by friends of the school. The boys were invited. Bones turned up as a comely blonde, with padding in all the right places. Three of his unsuspecting flying mates endeavored to steal kisses, and two tried to make dates. It was one of Bones' biggest evenings.

All three of the new flight instructors are 24 years old. All have had 350 flying hours, 150 over the 200 hour requirement for instructor rating. They know airplane mechanics and design as well as flying; in June they received bachelor of science degrees in engineering. It was three years ago that they soloed. They obtained their private licenses in February of last year and their commercial licenses last fall.

Taught by Monks.

When Bones, Bepo and Leroy came to Lewis the school was still in its embryo stage. One forlornly empty hangar gave the only evidence of its purpose. There were about 65 boys of elementary and high school age there, in the charge of a small company of Franciscan monks and brothers who were but newly arrived in America from Germany. Strict disciplinarians were the German friars, and thoro teachers. The Lewis kids knew their lessons. Also, behind the brown Franciscan backs, it is admitted, the lads with a bent for mimicry mastered an accent that would do Bert Lehr credit.

Almost from the beginning, tho, John Wilson figured in the Lewis picture—"Pa John," who came in 1933 to manage the aviation end and took over the entire direction of the school when three years ago the good friars, not without honest regrets at their departure, left to establish a monastery in the southern part of the state. Pa John seemed to know exactly how boys felt about flying. He had started himself in aviation by selling farmland his father had given him to buy a couple of planes. He dug in and made things happen.

Build Own Hangar.

He and the boys built another hangar, 70 by 134 feet, it was. They laid the tile to drain the landing field. They put in the runways—a mile and a half of them. That was before Francis J. Lewis became interested in the school and had the water and lighting systems installed and the new buildings constructed.

Outsiders who have been coming to the Lewis field to do their flying can't remember a time in the early days when the trio of Bones, Leroy and Bepo weren't happily nosing and puttering around the hangars and machine shops. Their aptitude for mechanics soon became evident to Wilson and the instructors.

Mechanics for Champ.

The Lewis three, covered with grime and reflected glory, saw Rudy Kling, the Lemont garage mechanic, win the Thompson trophy and a $13,500 purse in the national air races in Cleveland in 1937. They were there as his mechanics. That was Kling's first national race. Kling was a bug on flying. His enthusiasm spread all over town. His Lemont townsfolk gave him the engine and raised $3,500 to build his plane. It was a Ted Folkerts special racer, and the boys helped Folkerts build it at Lewis. [Kling was killed the next year in a race in Florida.]

Demands of the times are shaping the Lewis school. Scores of outside students, after completing the government's civilian pilot training courses at Loyola and De Paul universities in Chicago and North Central college in Naperville, are coming to Lewis to learn to fly. Army men are sent to Lewis to learn the handling of gliders.

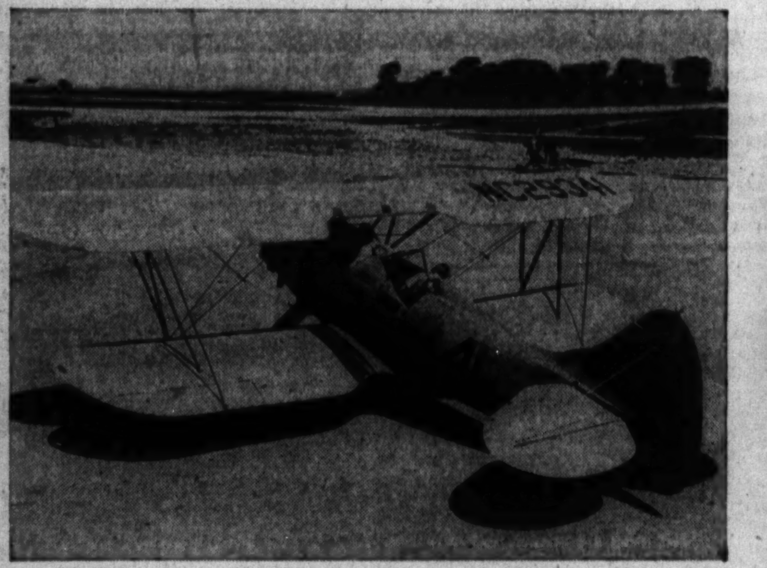
This year the academic training is to be discontinued, and Lewis will become exclusively an aeronautical school, giving a one-year advanced course in master mechanics and three years' training in aeronautical engineering.

First Students Become Flight Instructors at Lewis School of Aeronautics

Down from the clouds over Lockport swoops Leroy Lyons, trailing a new title—flight instructor. Eight years ago Leroy was just another 16 year old kid with the flying fever, one of a score sent by Bishop Sheil to the Lewis School of Aeronautics to have a chance at winning wings. Today he is one of the first three of "Pa John" Wilson's boys who have come thru strenuous years of training to exchange the role of student for that of instructor. Wilson is director of the Lewis school.

Problems of machines or problems of men, they all are brought to "Pa John" for solution. Roman (Bepo) Bralewski (left) consults with Director Wilson. Bepo is one of the three Lewis airmen who recently qualified for flight instructor rating.

The subject under discussion has to do with flight maneuvers, and Albert H. Luke, chief pilot instructor (left), registers skepticism as Richard (Bones) Grazanka illustrates his point. But that isn't going to dampen Bones' spirits. He's the third of the trio who has come into the flight instructor class.



First flight. . . . This plane is a Waco trainer. Twenty-two planes, ranging from two place Cubs to four place Stinsons and Howards, circle the Lockport skies as the Lewis schools flying classrooms.

Lewis school is one of the two important flying fields in the country working with gliders. Here, safely anchored by cable to the ground, a primary glider takes a student 10 feet aloft on an air current generated by wind making machines. Commander Eugene McDonald, working for a safe and economical system of instruction, devised this experiment. The student in the glider is within sound of the instructor's voice.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

LIEUT. JOSEPH [JUST CALL ME JOE] PIEROTH, 7735 Loomis avenue, has retired from the police force after serving the city for 36 years. Lieut. Pieroth has been at the Maxwell street station for 10 years and a lieutenant for 16 years. He was on the fire department for three years before joining the police force in 1905.

Lieut. Pieroth.

Lieut. Pieroth has been cited 16 times for exceptional work in the line of duty. In 1936 he received honorable recognition for the capture of the notorious John Dillhofer and three confederates who had escaped from an Indiana prison. Dillhofer later was executed for killing a policeman.

A thousand persons turned out recently for a banquet in tribute to the lieutenant. At the Maxwell street station he is remembered best for the saying, "Don't call me Lieutenant, just call me Joe."

LOIS RUTH ARNETT, 7524 Union avenue, has been awarded a Genevieve Melody Memorial scholarship to the University of Chicago for a year. Miss Arnett was graduated last February from Calumet High school, where she was publisher of the Calumet Crier, on the yearbook staff, and a member of the senior girls' council, the girl reserves, and the Kiwiettes.

James J. Barrett, 10007 Hoyne avenue, recently was made president of the Empire Storage Warehouses, Inc. Mr. Barrett has been employed by the company for 20 years.

Clifford W. Gurney, 7731 South Paulina street, has been awarded a two year honor entrance scholarship to the University of Chicago. Clifford was chief justice of the student court at Calumet High school, a medal and letter winner in track, member of the baseball and basketball squads, debate club and orchestra, and president of the Calumet chapter of the National Honor society. The scholarship, which carries full tuition expenses for two years, was awarded on the basis of scholarship and leadership in high school activities. Clifford hopes to teach mathematics.

JIMMIE LEIBFORTH, 8837 Hermitage avenue, made it easy to remember his 10th birthday. At a party on the anniversary recently he recorded his guests singing the song, "I Pledge Allegiance to the Flag." His father, James Leibforth, is president of the North Beverly Improvement association.

Miss Nancy Marie Drinkwater and her brother, Charles Jr., daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Drinkwater, 2300 West 109th street, were guests at the wedding and reception of Miss Gretchen Bigelow Thompson and Harry Flood Byrd, son of Senator Harry Byrd [D., Va.], at Winchester, Va., recently.

CITY TO INSTALL STREET LIGHTS IN NEW SECTIONS

$158,000 Will Be Spent for Project.

Work on the $158,000 street lighting program approved last Wednesday by the city council will get under way this week. The new lights are to be installed in communities which now are without electric street lighting. The program will acect 25 wards, most of them in the outlying sections of the city.

Areas in which the lights will be erected have been built up the last several years and in many cases have heretofore been lighted by old fashioned gasoline street lamps. The money is to come from a corporate bond surplus fund.

Most in South Area.

The 18th and 19th wards, on the far southwest side of Chicago, will receive the largest allocations, $18,000 each. The 10th ward in the Calumet region was next with $15,000. The 9th and 11th wards, also on the south and southwest sides, received about $14,000 and $13,000, respectively. The 41st ward on the northwest side was allocated $13,000, and lights costing about $10,000 will be installed in the 50th ward, which includes the west Rogers Park section on the north side.

Much lower amounts were earmarked for the west side. Ald. Walter J. Orlikoski [35th] complained that his ward, which he asserted was poorly lighted, had received no allocation.

Will Be Standard.

The work of installation will be directed by Commissioner Frank J. Flanagan of the bureau of streets and department of electricity. The fixtures will be of the standard type now in general use thruout the city.

The city will spend about $98,000 for new lights in ten south and southwest side wards. Approximate ward allotments are: 4th ward, $200; 7th, $500; 9th, $14,000; 10th, $15,000; 11th, $13,000; 13th, $7,000; 15th, $3,000; 17th, $10,000; 18th, $18,000, and 19th, $18,000.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

Eight young men from the southwest area are among the 60 Illinois aviation cadets who have begun their third and final phase of training at Randolph field, Tex., after graduation from the basic flying training school. The graduation class included more than 300 cadets, one-fifth of them from Illinois. The eight are: Melvin C. Lewis, 9820 Peoria street; Theodore K. Frystak, 6347 South Whipple street; Martin C. Haedtler, 9558 South Claremont avenue; Thomas B. O'Rourke, 7141 Peoria street, and Lloyd W. Preston, Walter H. Seibert, Paul K. Blair, and John R. Boyle, all of Joliet. The group was the eighth class of the year to graduate at the "West Point of the Air."

Frank A. Bugelbeck, 4432 Shields avenue, and Charles L. Palijas, 4629 McDowell avenue, are among the new arrivals at Camp Polk, La., as members of the 3d armored division, and both have written of their first impressions. Private Palijas wrote: "My first impression of Camp Polk was not so good, but after a while it changed. While I was not expecting home cooking, it could be better at times."

Food was also a subject of Private Bugelbeck's letter which reads: "The food is good and there is plenty to eat—and these boys can really eat. The beginning of army life is a little hard, but as time goes on it gets easier."

Three southwest siders stationed at Fort Sill, Okla., have been promoted to privates first class. They are: John R. Marszalek Jr., 4816 South Harding avenue; Charles E. Zanzig, 8935 May street, and George H. Richert, 539 West 87th street. With their new grades they are now attached to the detachment quartermaster corps.

Private Charles C. Thomason Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Thomason, 7706 South Paulina street, has been promoted to corporal at Fort Lewis, Wash.

GATES ORDERED AT RAIL CROSSING ON 95TH STREET

In response to a petition filed by the Ridge Civic council in January, the Illinois Commerce commission last week ordered the installation of automatic gates at the 95th street crossing of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway in the Beverly Hills district. The gates will supplement the present flash and bell signals.

The railroad was instructed to submit plans for the safety device within a few days for the commission's approval. Installation of the gates is to be completed within four months. The cost of construction will be approximately $8,000 and will be shared equally by the railroad, the city, and the state.

An average day's traffic at the intersection, it was shown, runs to 16,490 passenger automobiles, 2,609 service cars, and 3,299 pedestrians. Within the last two years three serious accidents, one resulting in a death, occurred at the crossing.

DRAFTEES TO WATCH AS BOARDS REVISE STANDINGS IN LIST

Because two Chicago draft boards did not understand instructions for assigning draft numbers to the 21 year olds who registered July 1, 238 of the new registrants have been invited to attend ceremonies at which proper numbers will be assigned.

Louis A. Boeing, Cook county draft director, said that at board No. 95, at 610 West 37th street, serial numbers were erased from registration cards after the Washington lottery and replaced with the sequence of numbers drawn in Washington. Thus the man who should have been No. 99 on the board's list was No. 1, and others were similarly misassigned. Other numbers also were improperly assigned at board No. 79, 5612 North Western avenue.

Registrants in board No. 95 have been invited to meet at 553 West 37th street at 8 p. m. Tuesday. The men in board No. 79 can witness the corrections at the Green Briar field house, at 8 p. m. Thursday.

CHILDREN TAKE READING FLIGHT 'ROUND AMERICAS

An imaginary flight around the Americas thru the realm of books is being taken by 264 boys and girls at the George M. Pullman branch library. In order to complete the tour a child must read six books. Sixty-four children have completed the tour and a total of 827 books have been read by the club. A reading club button is awarded to those finishing the trip. The two fastest "travelers" in the club are Jessie Wilson of the Van Vlissingen elementry school, who has read 30 books, and Joan Ferguson of the Curtis school, who has read 28.

Judges to Inspect Lawns in North Beverly Contest

Tomorrow is the last day to enter the lawn and garden contest sponsored by the North Beverly Improvement association. Judging of the entries will begin this week by the committee headed by William Minogue, 8752 South Hermitage avenue.

JUBILEE TO OPEN WITH SOFTBALL FETE SATURDAY

Pageant of History Will Be Sept. 3.

West Pullman's community orchestra, harking back to yesteryear, is rehearsing such numbers from its early répertoire as "Casey Danced with the Strawberry Blonde," "Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage," and "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" . . .

Women's and mothers' club members are ransacking attics and antique chests for Great Aunt Minnie's brown poplin with the leg-o-mutton sleeves and Grandmother Kindheart's white faille wedding dress with the 18 inch waist, lace cushion bustle and frilled, whalebone collar . . .

White haired G. F. Roberts, who started the first paper and is the recognized, if unofficial, historian of the community, is digging back into his archives, with a twinkle in his eye, for spicy bits of West Pullman lore from the era of the handle bar mustache . . .

Centers in Park.

All these preparations are pointed toward Labor day week end and the following week, when West Pullman will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary as a community.

Jointly sponsoring the jubilee are the West Pullman Civic club, headed by Charles C. Kirk, and the Chicago Park district. All anniversary festivities will be centered at West Pullman park, 123d street and Stewart avenue. The community proudly remembers that West Pullman was the first independent park in the city. Its supervisor is Forrest Lull, whose grandparents were pioneer residents. Lull is the active manager of the golden jubilee.

All community organizations are taking part in the celebration—the Woman's club, the Parent-Teacher association; St. Mihiel post of Polish Veterans of Foreign Wars; Campfire Girls and Boy and Girl Scouts, with their drum and bugle corps, and other youth groups.

Mothers' Club Aids.

Others taking part are the Stewart-Ridge Mothers' club, which Dr. Franc E. Morrill, founder of the Morrill hospital in the hill country of Kentucky, organized as one of her first steps in informing mothers in scientific infant care; three singing choruses, and the community orchestra, which has a 40 year history, and still numbers among its players two charter members, Secretary H. T. Green, in the violin section, and President E. H. Rumbold, bass fiddler.

Programs for the Labor day weekend, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, will follow the traditional pattern. Saturday afternoon the softball teams of the park league will play five games, and in the evening there will be dancing on the tennis courts.

Sunday afternoon the boys and girls of the community will parade their pets in the annual dog show. There will be blue ribbons and prizes for the largest dog, the smallest dog, the dog with the longest tail, the homeliest and the best behaved dogs, and the one who does the best tricks.

Softball Tourney Finals.

Labor day, the celebration will open early in the morning with races, contests and athletic events. The senior 12-inch softball league finals—three games—and tennis and horseshoe tournaments will be held in the afternoon, and the day will be capped with dancing and a fireworks display.

Concurrently, community organizations will run a three-day carnival south of the park in a roped off section in 124th street. The St. Mihiel veterans will set up merry-go-rounds and rides and the parent-teacher association will have refreshment booths.

The Tuesday following will be a day of rest, preparatory to three more days of celebration.

Wednesday, Sept. 3, is the day set for historic reminiscence. Mr. Roberts, assisted by his daughter, Miss Blanche Roberts, and Mrs. Benjamin Lloyd and Miss Edna W. Wilson, is writing and directing a pageant, which will be presented in the fieldhouse that night.

Recall Lighting Controversy.

The first episode will be meeting of the West Pullman Improvement association, at which the lighting of the 120th street business section was argued pro and con by Mr. Roberts, who will enact his original rôle as president of the association, Alderman Ernest Bihl and Charles Novak, a real estate dealer and civic leader.

The second episode will show the ladies of West Pullman voting in the first election after they received the franchise. Miss Roberts arose at dawn that memorable morning to vote, and she will be seen in the pageant casting the first ballot. In the third episode, women of the church societies will be shown working for the Red Cross in the World war days.

Between acts the community orchestra will play old tunes that were current hits of the times, and sons and daughters of the first settlers will parade in period costumes. Mrs. Oliver A. Richmond, Mrs. P. C. Newswanger, Mrs. L. C. Anderson, and Mrs. Percy E. Richards are to alternate as narrator.

Plan Historic Exhibit.

477 GRADUATED FROM 11 SUMMER SCHOOLS IN CITY

4,049 Attend Vacation Session This Year.

Diplomas were awarded to 477 summer high school graduates last Thursday morning at exercises held in 11 schools thruout the city, marking the close of the board of education's eight week summer course which was taken by 4,049 high school students.

A radio address made by Supt. Johnson was heard by the graduates in their school auditoriums. Following his message to the students, the summer school principals awarded the diplomas.

Hirsch High school had the largest graduating class with 88. Graduates at the other schools were: Lake View, 39; Senn, 37; Lane, 52; Schurz, 25; Englewood, 26; Tilden, 46; Lindblom, 37; Morgan Park, 21; Austin, 53, and Crane, 53.

Following are the graduates from schools in this district:

Englewood.

C. Leonard Bonnevier, Gertrude Buff, Daniel Crowder, William H. Emmert, Guadalupe Gonzalez, Amy Y. Harper, Vivian Hayden, La Verne Hewlett, Clifton P. James, Phillip J. Johnson, Delphine E. Jones.

Frank S. Karl, Leo M. LaCoste, Rose Mangione, James R. Marshall, Ross F. Martin, William Rademacher, Betty J. Randall, Lois J. Rentz, Ernestine Z. Smith, Stanley W. Smith, Bessie Stergios, Robert Travis, Lillian R. Trojanowski, Viviane Whitehead, Jassmine A. Yarbrough.

Tilden.

Thelma Aldrich, Clarence Barlleau, Albert J. Bonnema, George P. Bovie, Marian W. Brown, James Burg, Robert Ciralsky, Joseph Crown, James Curtis, Joseph S. Ferreri, Martha Lee Fuller, Angelo S. Garofalo, Warren George Geller, Edward W. Gibson, George N. Graff, Samuel M. Hall, Robert Hammer, Horace W. Holloway, Jeanette E. Hooper, Edward M. Jackovac, George W. Jones, Robert H. Jones.

Carl Kromminga, Salvatore J. Lange, Percival E. Lawrence, Donald W. Lill, Wallace Lockett, Joseph P. Loguzzo, Robert J. Mandernack, Robert P. McCormick, James P. McMahon, Robert C. Misar, Donald J. O'Grady, Jerome Palma, Robert G. Pepin, Fred C. Rhodes, George Ruzich, Frank J. Scezney, Peter A. Simonelis, Homer Smith, John F. Stachura, James J. Stalzer, John A. Uidl, Sigmund J. Ulatowski, Sidney Wilbon, Jessie Williams.

Lindblom.

Ray Bovshis, Mary J. Brannen, June E. Brown, Alyce L. Bryzek, John Buncak, Dorothy B. Friedl, John N. Gorse, Albert G. Granholm, John E. Griffin, George J. Janoviak, Betty A. Jercick, Vincent A. Kazlauskas, Robert W. Koehler, Eugene R. Kostelnak, William R. Kuhl, Bernice Ann Kukulski, Raymond F. Kura.

Clarence G. Lubick, Richard Mangham, Shirley M. Martin, Edward C. McCann, Thomas J. McKay, Anne Miller, Hubert E. Miller, Frank Leo Mirabella, Raymond S. Olejniczak, Joseph B. Parliman, Charlotte D. Peck, Ruth Pospisil, Eleanor J. Puchmelter, Shirley May Radtke, Helen B. Rak, Edward Reminger, Mildred La Verne Schumacher, Edward J. Stanislawski, Howard E. Thommen, George E. Wilson.

Morgan Park.

COMBINE MUSIC AND WATER FETE AT FULLER PARK

A combined water carnival and music festival will be held next Friday evening in Fuller park, 45th street and Princeton avenue. Neighborhood boys, including Nicholas Campagna, George Eliasen, Albert Benedict, Ed Eliasen, and Robert Fanelli, will participate in the aquatic events, while the musical program will be presented by the Illinois Philharmonic choir under the direction of Adalbert Hugelet, and the American Concert orchestra conducted by Theodore Romhild. The event is sponsored by the 14th Ward Democratic organization, Ald. J. J. McDermott, and the park district.

Queen Candidate

Miss Carol White, 2333 Vernon street, Blue Island, is one of the pretty candidates in the Miss American Legion contest of Legion festival week, opening in Blue Island tomorrow. Miss Legion will be chosen next Saturday night.

Post Lists of Draftees in Service

Honor rolls inscribed with the names of young men of the community who have been called into service were posted last week at the three draft board centers in the Bridgeport district. They were presented by the Bridgeport Lions club. The Bridgeport Lions propose to place similar scrolls in other public places. In the picture are P. J. McCarthy, park supervisor at Mark White square; John M. Falasz, Bridgeport Lions' president and district chairman of the Chicago commission for national defense; Stephen Bailey, chairman of draft board No. 19, and Francis L. Kennedy, a member of the board.

CONSCRIPT ROLLS WILL BE POSTED IN BRIDGEPORT

Lions Club Compiles Lists for Area.

The Bridgeport district is to have the names of its conscripts posted in public places.

Within the Bridgeport district, which is bounded by the south branch of the river, Ashland avenue, Pershing road, and Canal street, three draft boards are in operation. They are Board 19, at 2911 Archer avenue; Board 95, at 610 West 37th street, and Board 96, at 3205 South Morgan street.

Task of Lions Club.

Already the three boards have conscripted for army service 160, 144, and 184 young men, respectively, a total of 488 men. Due to the concentration of population along old Archer road, the community is one of those ranking highest in the number of its men conscripted for army training under the selective service act.

Listing of the men on honor rolls is a project of the Bridgeport Lions club, which has undertaken the task in coöperation with Patrick J. McCarthy, supervisor of Mark White Square park, and the three draft board chairmen, Stephen Bailey of Board 19, John Burke of Board 95, and Michael Schoenwald of Board 96.

In charge of the Lions club is John M. Falasz, Lions' president and Bridgeport chairman on the Chicago commission for national defense. Falasz is government appeal agent for Draft Board 19.

Placed at Headquarters.

The first honor rolls were placed last week at the three draft board headquarters and Mark White Square. Later they are to be posted in the three motion picture theaters, four public and six parochial schools of the community.

Bridgeport's honor rolls reflect the district's cosmopolitan character. Names listed classify under nine national or racial backgrounds—Irish, German, Jewish, Italian, Polish, Lithuanian, Russian, Czech, and Slovakian.

EARLE PTA SEEKS OLD PHOTOS FOR PARTY EXHIBIT

Former pupils of the Charles Warrington Earle school at Hermitage avenue and 61st street are asked to search the old family album for pictures of their school days. The Parent-Teacher association plans to hold on "Old Scholars' Night" at the school on Wednesday, Oct. 8, and old time photographs are wanted for an exhibit on that occasion.

The Earle school, one of the older schools of the city, was built in 1896. It was named for Dr. Earle, a Civil war hero, and distinguished Chicago physician. Dr. Earle was instrumental in founding the College of Physicians and Surgeons. He was prominently identified with the college and the postgraduate school until the time of his death in 1893.

Those who have photographs for exhibit are requested to notify Mrs. Ambrose Lorenz, 6009 South Paulina street, the PTA president, or Miss Mary Burke, assistant principal at Earle school.

St. Salomea Carnival.

Proceeds from the St. Salomea parish carnival, which closes tomorrow night after 10 days, will be used to pay for the new interior decorating of the church. The carnival is at 119th street and Indiana avenue.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Aug. 25.

Work in the garden at this season consists largely in maintenance and it is imperative that all leaves be raked and piled even tho they are from soft wood trees. They add, when decayed, some humus to the compost heap. There is always an obscure corner where leaves and soft trash can be piled and, with it, some soil. Wet the heap down when it is dry to hasten decomposition.

Tuesday, Aug. 26.

If the new lawn has not been started start working on it immediately. Fill all depressions and cut down elevations to give a smooth even surface; this is true for the small area; larger areas may have surface variations or an undulating sweep that presents a good appearance.

If the soil packs spread a layer of decayed manure over the surface; if the soil drains poorly, spade in two or more inches of sifted ashes or sand to provide some drainage. Sandy soil is improved by spading under manures or decayed vegetable matter; pulverized manures are also beneficial.

Wednesday, Aug. 27.

Order bulbs early to have them to plant at the proper time. Narcissi should be planted just as soon as they can be obtained. Crocus the same, and madonna lilies should go into the ground at the earliest time they can be procured. Tulips can be planted as late as the ground can be worked or into early October.

Thursday, Aug. 28.

Bear in mind that water evaporates very rapidly during this season and it must be replaced almost daily. Lay the hose on the ground and allow it to run freely or until the ground is soaked to a depth of five inches.

Never allow the insect pests to gain control; the only way to prevent this is constant spraying at intervals of about 10 days. Spray roses with Trigen, a three way insecticide and funguscide. Those who can obtain tobacco stems may use them as a mulch for they serve as a repellent against root aphids and other pests. Examine the plants at frequent intervals for pests.

Friday, Aug. 29.

Stake tall gladiolus or they are likely to fall over. Stake all tall flower stems. Manure water or commercial foods in solution applied to gladiolus and dahlias that show buds will increase the size of bloom and the strength of stem. Feed the peonies for next year's bloom. An application of plant food may give some good larkspur blooms for the second time.

Saturday, Aug. 30.

If the annuals that are in good condition are cut back and the soil given an application of food, they will develop stems and flowers until the frost cuts them down. Do not feed roses too late in the season or soft growth would result and is almost certain to result in severe winter freezing.

MODERN HOME IS BUILT AROUND BIG LIVING ROOM

Kitchen, Dining in Wing; Bedroom in Another.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Wilson, 1611 West 105th place, knew a number of simple fundamentals of house planning and construction, and in decisions made as to layout and materials they kept steadily in mind the fact that their future home was to be as they wanted it. Their present English colonial type of dwelling fits its site and the family needs.

The home stands on a lot 55 by 120 feet and the exterior walls are brick in mellow tones, soft purples and phantom blues, creams, and browns, and tans. The roof and shutters are a deep brown and the entrance door of dark wood lives up to the tradition that an entrance door should spell hospitality and beauty.

Living Room in Center.

The floor arrangement is of interest. It deviates from the conventional and possesses quite a few assets all its own. The plan places reception hall, living room, and outdoor terrace opening from living room, directly in the center of the house. The reception hall is bright and gracious and serves its purpose well, tho it does not take too much space from the house proper. Stairs to the second floor are on the left, and beyond, the left wing of the dwelling, is occupied by master bedroom, 11 by 20 feet, and bath. The right wing is occupied by dining room, with view to gardens at back, kitchen, and breakfast room at the front.

The entire second floor is given up to a second bedroom, center hall, and bath. This suite belongs to young Mr. Wilson, who is now entering his last year at the University of Chicago.

Flush Type Doors.

The heating system, which is forced warm air, oil fueled, is in the basement, together with utility rooms and storage spaces.

The doors thruout the home are flush type, finely grained walnut, with a soft, satiny finish. "These are very easy to clean," Mrs. Wilson says. And certainly they are very lovely to look on.

The living room is large, 16 by 22 feet, an inviting room with wide colonial fireplace opposite the entrance door, and French doors leading to a terraced living room outside. The walls are canvased, the woodwork ivory, and deep shelves are built into wall at left of entrance. This is a room for genuine comfort and happy family use, and no small part of its charm is the outdoor living room, that in summer seems an integral part of the house itself.

Dining Room Separate.

The dining room is close, but not a part of the living room, and conforms pleasingly to tradition with its corner cupboards and effective colonial lighting fixture. In the kitchen there is a gay Mexican note in lively decals on cupboards and shelves. The walls are of cream colored linoleum flecked with blue and black, and there's a cove baseboard and black linoleum floor flecked with cream and white. There's a kitchen ventilator for coolness and shelves on each side of sink are bright with colorful jars and pottery.

At the front the diminutive breakfast room has a gayly flowered paper on its walls and the open cupboards are lined with red.

On the second floor the bedroom is 13 by 18, not counting the dormers, which add still more space. There is a masculine touch here, with built-in shelves for books. The bath is carried out in linoleum, with cream and brown walls and white fixtures.

Club Will Feast Sept. 7 on Porcupine and Bison

Roast porcupine and bison cooked on hot stones will highlight the sixth annual roundup and barbeque of the Porcupine club Sept. 7 at Russnow's Grove, 127th street and 56th avenue. Neil Myroup, president, is in charge of the affair assisted by William Cummings and Sheldon W. Govier.

Bride Next Saturday

Miss Mary Steadman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Steadman, 322 West 52d place, is to become the bride of Stoddard Adams, the wedding taking place Saturday in St. Anne's church. The wedding breakfast will be at the Del Prado hotel. Miss Steadman's fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Adams, 7232 South Oakley street.

PLANE ENGINEER STUDY TO START AT ILLINOIS TECH

Degree in Specialized Work Offered.

A new course leading to a bachelor of science in aeronautical engineering degree will be initiated next month at the Illinois Institute of Technology, it was announced by H. T. Heald, president of the school. The innovation will make Illinois Tech the sole engineering school in the state and one of the few in the middle west to offer such a degree.

Altho students will be able to register for the course at the beginning of the new semester, actual setting up of courses for the new program will not take place until September, 1942, as the first two years of work for the degree will be that of the freshman and sophomore curricula for either civil or mechanical engineering degrees. At that time students now sophomores in the two branches of engineering can elect the aeronautics option.

Training for Work.

President Heald said that graduates of the new program will be able to step immediately from the classroom into the aircraft factory.

The first aeronautical engineering degrees will be given at the June graduation in 1944. Work in the aeronautics field will be under joint sponsorship of the civil and mechanical engineering departments.

President Heald also announced that honor scholarships for 1941-'42 have been awarded to six seniors of the Armour college of engineering division.

Winners of Awards.

The awards, based on scholastic record, personality, extracurricular activity and general fitness, went to George A. Storz, 9644 South Winston avenue, and Warren Spitz, 7405 Bennett avenue, architectural students; George Orescan, Gary, chemical engineering student; Robert J. Sullivan, 7078 North Wolcott avenue, mechanical engineering student; Charles I. Ball, 4227 North Ashland avenue, civil engineering student, and Robert W. Kerney, 1742 West 95th street, fire protection engineering student.

40 AND 8 ELECTS NEW OFFICERS IN WILL COUNTY

Will county voiture of La Société des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux [Forty and Eight] last week elected T. F. Ivy, Lemont druggist, as chef de gare for the 1941-'42 season. The organization is a society of World war veterans affiliated with the American Legion. Its members are the men whose overseas experiences included riding in the bumpy eight-horse box cars in France.

Ivy succeeds C. A. McCay of Joliet as head of the county voiture.

Dr. Raymond H. Powell of Joliet was elected chef de train; Max Hopper of Lemont, correspondent; Raymond E. Bassett, Joliet, conducteur; Alfred White, Lemont, guard de la porte; Robert J. Doyle, Joliet, commis voyageur; the Rev. John F. Nellis, Wilton Center, aumonier [chaplain], by unanimous vote, and Hayes Kennedy, Joliet, avocat.

Hans J. Orbesen of Joliet was reelected lampiste for the fourth successive term and William C. Tetens of Joliet was reëlected voiture historian. Edward Brennan, Ralph Strand and Harry Mendenhall were made cheminots [trustees]. McCay, Silas Johnson and Reginald were elected delegates to the grande promenade, held last Friday in Springfield.

The society has one voiture in each county, but because of Cook county's large size Lemont is included in the Will county voiture.

FERNWOOD CLUB TO GIVE BENEFIT PARTY THURSDAY

Southtown Women Also to Play Bridge.

In support of its philanthropies, the Fernwood Woman's club will give a benefit party at 2 o'clock Thursday in the Fernwood fieldhouse, Lowe avenue and 104th street. There will be cards and other games. Mrs. A. L. Benner, chairman of occupational therapy, is in charge of arrangements with a committee composed of Mrs. Frank Darling, Mrs. Joseph Schaaf, Mrs. John Ohman, Mrs. Joseph Mancel, Mrs. Harold Hazen, Mrs. Peter Inthout, Mrs. William Gibbon, and Mrs. B. I. Meyer.

Mrs. Benner's occupational therapy committee is organized in the interest of the Oak Forest infirmary, which is a special beneficiary of the 3d district clubs. Her group is to give one day each month in service at the infirmary's therapy shop.

Southtown Woman's Club.

Closing a series of summertime home benefits, the Southtown club will have a dessert bridge party at 1 o'clock tomorrow at Mrs. Layton M. Dochterman's home, 140 West Marquette road. Mrs. Harry N. Aldrich, Mrs. Maturin B. Bay, and Mrs. Frank C. Brandenburg will assist the hostess.

Chicago Heights Club.

The knitting needles of Chicago Heights are working up to the production output they attained in World war days. Thruout the summer an Aid to Britain unit of the Woman's club, with volunteers from church groups in town, has been working two mornings every week in the public library.

The chairman, Mrs. Donald McClure, after making an inventory check last week, reported that the unit had produced 44 undergarments, 26 dresses, 30 pajama suits, 36 comfort kits, 18 air force sweaters, 16 long sleeved sweaters, 16 cap mufflers, 14 pairs of seaboot stockings, and 24 pairs of gray socks.

Besides knitting and sewing, the women are collecting used clothing and shoes. Assisting in this enterprise are women's groups from St. Ambrose Episcopal, the Methodist and the Presbyterian churches, and the Jewish council. A benefit party yielded sufficient funds for three hospital beds.

Unit leaders are giving lessons in knitting at the biweekly sessions, which run from 9 to 12:30 o'clock on Tuesday and Friday mornings. Mrs. McClure directs the sewing, Mrs. Arthur Struve has charge of cutting out garments, Mrs. Frank E. Seipel heads the knitting corps, and Mrs. E. G. Guyton is in charge of the comfort kits department. The used clothing program is carried out under Mrs. Clarence E. Showalter's direction.

Mrs. Adolph Scheid, is the club president.

Brainerd Woman's Club.

Mrs. W. A. Keller, 8246 South Aberdeen street, has been finance chairman and Mrs. Emmett M. Flood, 8159 South Loomis boulevard, co-chairman, to manage a dessert bridge and style show for the Brainard club on Oct. 14 in the Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. The party will be a charity function.

Palos Woman's Club.

The Palos club's 39th anniversary and the birthday of the president, Mrs. Joel L. Collins, coinciding, club members are holding a double celebration this week-end. A garden picnic was scheduled for last Thursday at Mrs. Charles Matthews' home on 120th street. Today Mrs. Collins will be presented with a gift from the members. Directing arrangements for the festivities are Mrs. Warren Thomas, luncheons chairman, and Mrs. Lee Lauderback, chairman of hostesses.

PTA Unit Chairman Opens Free Homemaking Classes

Free classes in sewing, remodeling clothes, knitting, crocheting, tatting, and flower making have been opened by Mrs. Michael Doran, homemaking chairman of the McKay Parent-Teacher association, at the Marquette park fieldhouse, Marquette road and Kedzie avenue. Meetings are held from 1 to 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoons.

Talk on Defense.

Col. Robert L. Bacon of the 6th corps area will be guest speaker at the meeting of the Woodlawn-South Shore Kiwanis club Wednesday noon in the Southmoor hotel. He will talk on national defense.

VIEZENS COUPLE OBSERVES 60TH WEDDING DATE

Relatives and old friends visited Mr. and Mrs. Paul Viezens last Sunday at their home in Antioch in compliment to them on the eve of their 60th wedding anniversary. Old time residents of Englewood, Mr. and Mrs. Viezens were married in Chicago on Aug. 20, 1881. They moved to Antioch 18 years ago upon Mr. Viezens' retirement as a government food inspector in the packing industry.

Present at the reunion were a daughter, Mrs. George Gollwitzer of Rhinelander, Wis., and their younger son, Harry L. Viezens, 1100 West Marquette road. The older son, Herbert W. Viezens, who lives in Plainfield, N. Y., was unable to attend. There are three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren in the family.

Mrs. Viezens was born in Chicago. She is 78 years old and continues her membership in several bridge clubs. Mr. Viezens, 80 years old, is a pinochle player. Born in Saxony, he came to the United States when he was 14. He first lived in Milwaukee, and served with Milwaukee volunteers in the Spanish-American war.

CHURCH SHRINE TO BE DEDICATED IN RITES TODAY

St. Anthony's Also Holds Two Day Carnival.

Prayers for peace have found tangible expression in St. Anthony's church at Kensington and Prairie avenues in a shrine erected to the Madonna of Monte Berrico.

Today, with ancient rite, the shrine will be dedicated at an 11 o'clock high mass in the presence of the Very Rev. Benjamin Franch, provincial of the Missionaries of St. Charles, and other church dignitaries. Carrying lighted tapers and torches, the clergy and people of the parish will circle the church grounds tonight in a religious procession. For 11 days special prayers for peace will be said at the shrine, the Rev. Umberto Bonomo conducting the devotions.

Dates to 15th Century.

The Madonna of Monte Berrico is identified with the Italian town of Vicenza, near the city of Venice. In the 15th century an epidemic swept the village, causing many deaths. Thru prayer to the Blessed Virgin, it was believed, the epidemic abated, and in gratitude the people raised a shrine in her honor.

Subsequently many miracles were credited to the Madonna of Monte Berrico and the shrine became the center of devotion for thousands of pilgrims in succeeding generations. But never had the devout travelers to Vicenza come in numbers to equal the World war victims. In countless legions the wounded, crippled, and blind crowded to the shrine with their petitions and many left there, in token of their faith, their crutches, stretchers, and canes.

When two years ago war spread again over Europe, the Rev. Joseph Chiminelli assembled the people of St. Anthony's parish, most of whom are of Italian antecedents, to pray to the Madonna of Monte Berrico for peace. If but for one year America would be spared the tragedy of war, they pledged, they would raise in their church another shrine to the madonna who had befriended Vicenza. With the erection of the new shrine, the parish fulfills its pledge.

Two Day Carnival.

Concurrent with the religious festivities the men and women of the parish are holding a two day carnival—today and tomorrow—on the parish grounds. There will be concerts both nights by the Roseland Community band. Tomorrow will be Joe DiMaggio's night. The New York Yankees' hard hitting star will make a personal appearance to meet all the young baseball fans and a varied program of amusements will be presented.

Serving on the carnival committee for Joe DiMaggio night are Dominic Lupo, Oscar Mellili, and Louis Panozzo.

4 PLAYGROUNDS ARE COMPLETED IN ARGO-SUMMIT

Four playgrounds have recently been completed for the children of Argo and Summit by the Community Building committee. A desirable location is now being sought for the establishing of a fifth playlot.

Coöperating with the committee were Leo F. Kennedy, president of Summit, the village trustees, Miss Alexander Spertus, WPA supervisor, and the board of education of district 104. Local business men contributed to the fund to cover the purchase of playground equipment.

The playgrounds at the Community Building, Argo school, Graves school, and Zopelis Grove, in addition to supervised play activity will have classes in wood work, rhythm band, art, and painting.

Great Lakes Yacht Champs

Day of Music Sept. 4.

Thursday, Sept. 4, will be Music Festival day, with a concert by the Sterling chorus and other vocal ensembles and the West Pullman orchestra. Youth night will close the festivities Friday. The Campfire Girls, with their Minnetoska drum and bugle corps, all of the scouting units, girls and boys, Sons of the Legion, and other community youth groups will participate in a parade and a program of music, demonstrations and drills.

Committees for the jubilee are as follows: Ways and means, Charles C. Kirk, W. G. Davis, Vernon Knudson, Forrest Lull; program, John Woodward, Frank Kiss, Anthony Jaksa, Martin J. O'Donnell, Grace Ryan, Eugene Heisler, Walter Schrader; reception, Arthur G. Lindell, Sheldon W. Govier, John C. Fiddelke, and Judge John Prystalski; police, Capt. Albert Jenner, Sergt. Arthur Judson, and Patrolman John Adams; carnival concessions, Charles W. Novak Jr., Wayne Moore, W. H. Stuebing, Frank Ernst; dog show, Guy Castle, Charles Humphrey, and Mrs. Paul Schulze.

Others Aiding Fête.

Youth program, Castle, Shirley E. Lutes, Guy Cross, Vernon Ringey, Ivor Stone, Mrs. Jessie Lyon, and Mrs. Lenora Lowery; musical program, Richard Wesselius, Harlan Bragg, Fred Short, James Schiro, Dorothy Boersma, E. O. Larson, E. H. Rumbold, Mildred Dolman, and Glenn Bushee; historical, G. F. Roberts, Blanche Roberts, Edna Wilson, Mrs. Benjamin Lloyd; properties, William Cholewa, John Politylo, Charles Chmielewski, Max Rachwal, and Walter Cieles; dancing, Stone and Harry Green; first aid, Dr. Charles H. Hibbe; arrangements, V. K. Brown, Herman Roy, Elizabeth Kelly, Frank Shephard, Walter Roy, Lull, and Frank Sikora.

West Pullman's beginning dates to the era in Chicago's history when the city, preparing for the World's Columbian exposition, was offering land grants and money to induce industries to move here. The International Harvester company transplanted its Plano manufacturing company to the West Pullman district in 1891. Families of workers moved in from Plano. This is the year which sets the date for the community's golden anniversary.

Singing Honors

SOUTH SIDE BOYS SEEK AMERICAN SAILING LAURELS

Final Race Is Tomorrow Off Eastern Coast.

Yachtsmen's interest, the country over, will be focused tomorrow on the white sails of 10 star schooners skimming the horizon off Marblehead, Mass. It is the day of the North American Racing union's junior championship meet, in which regional champion crews, nine from the United States and one from Canada, will engage for national honors and the Sears cup.

The Great Lakes region perches its hopes for victory on the mast of a ship skippered by Coleman Anderson, 16 year old veteran of Lake Michigan races and regattas.

Coleman and his sailing mates piled their bags last Monday in the Andersons' car, and with the skipper's father, Charles Anderson, at the wheel, headed east. They timed their departure to allow for a few days practice in handling the Atlantic seaboard racing ships, which vary somewhat from the stars they are accustomed to sail on the lakes.

Great Lakes Champs.

Coleman and his crew enter the national competition as holders of the Great Lakes junior championship trophy. Surviving a series of elimination contests, they won their title in July, racing at St. Joseph, Mich., in a final contest into which the Inter-Lake, the Lake Michigan, and the Western Michigan Yachting associations sent their best junior star-sailing crews. In Milwaukee two years before, Skipper Coleman and his mates had missed the Great Lakes junior championship by one-quarter of a point, but the race brought them the second place Moller trophy and set them up as formidable contenders for first honors.

Crew members of the quartet are Don Friend, 17 years old, of 7801 Hermitage avenue; Chick Weege, 15, of 10635 Maplewood avenue, and Ernie Soutter, 15, of 8506 Throop street.

Coleman and Don have sailed together for four years—ever since grade school days. Don and Chick were Coleman's crew last summer when his sloop, Irish, took a national championship in a race at Michigan City. That was the race in which theirs was the only boys' crew sailing. And Coleman has been crew for Don on his Ro-Don-Dot, a sailing dinghy, in races that have brought them other medals and trophies.

Recall One Failure.

They admit, with engaging grins, that there was one race in which, as Don put it, it wasn't glory they got covered with. That was their first star race in Milwaukee. Another boat jammed their ship, splintering her side. They weren't exactly scared, but neither did they feel like Viking heroes as they floundered and waited wet and shivering, for the rescue boat to arrive.

Boat building first brought Don and Coleman together. Don and his father were working on the Ro-Don-Dot [named for the three young friends, Ronald, Donald, and Dorothy] and Coleman and his father on the Irish in the Gage park ship building classes when the two boys hit up the friendship which was destined to produce a champion sailing crew. The younger Chick and Ernie were recruited later. The boys sail from Burnham park, where their fathers are members of the Burnham Yacht club.

Don will be a senior classman, Coleman a junior, and Ernie a sophomore at Calumet High school next fall. Chick will be a sophomore at Morgan Park High school. The crew is recognized among the lake yachtsmen for its smooth teamwork.

FALL RADIO FARE INCLUDES HOST OF NEW SHOWS

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The fall menu for radio is almost ready. Many new items are listed on the bill of fare. Many of the old favorites, off for the summer months, will be back on.

One of the most promising of the new shows is Three Ring Time, a Hollywood comedy variety show to feature Charles Laughton, the character actor, and Milton Berle, the comedian, with Bob Crosby and Shirley Ross providing the music. This show will have its première on W-G-N-Mutual at 8:30 p. m. Friday, Sept. 12.

Laughton and Berle plan a fresh approach to radio humor. Miss Ross will join in the comedy routines as well as singing. Miss Ross has been featured in several pictures.

Flagg and Quirt for Radio.

Capt. Flagg and Sergt. Quirt, the famous characters of "What Price Glory," will come to life on the air at 6:30 p. m. Sunday, Sept. 28, over WENR-NBC. Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen, heroes of the cinema version, will be co-starred in this radio version.

Gladys Swarthout, Metropolitan Opera singer, and Deems Taylor, composer and commentator, will be the headliners of the Family Hour, starting over WBBM-CBS at 4 p. m. Sunday, Aug. 31. They will be supported by Ross Graham, baritone, Al Goodman's orchestra, and a chorus.

Already established as a popular new comedy show is Harold Teen, whose adventures are chronicled over W-G-N at 7:30 o'clock every Tuesday evening.

Orson Welles to Return.

Orson Welles, off the air most of last year, will return with a new show at 9 p. m. Monday, Sept. 15, over WBBM-CBS, replacing the present Freddy Martin show aired at this hour.

Among the new and returning shows with starting dates are the following:

W-G-N AND MUTUAL.

*July 29—7:30 p. m. Tuesday—Harold Teen. W-G-N.

*Aug. 31—11:30 a. m. Sunday—Quin Ryan reads Chicago Tribune comics. W-G-N.

Sept. 19—7:15 p. m. Friday—Jimmy Evans' Football Forecasts. W-G-N.

Sept. 28—12:15 p. m. Sunday—George Fisher's Hollywood Whispers. W-G-N-Mutual.

Sept. 28—4:30 p. m. Sunday—The Shadow. W-G-N-Mutual.

Sept. 28—5:30 p. m. Sunday—Adventures of Bulldog Drummond. W-G-N-Mutual.

*Sept. 29—5:15 p. m. Monday thru Friday—Terry and the Pirates, W-G-N.

Sept. 29—5:30 p. m. Monday thru Friday—Jack Armstrong. W-G-N-Mutual.

Sept. 29—5:45 p. m. Monday thru Friday—Captain Midnight. W-G-N-Mutual.

Oct. 19—Noon Sunday—American Radio Warblers. W-G-N-Mutual.

*Indicates new programs.

W-G-N-Mutual will carry the world series exclusively the week of Oct. 2. The exclusive broadcasts of the Mike Jacobs-Twentieth Century boxing bouts will be continued over W-G-N and Mutual.

Citizens of Tomorrow, the program featuring Philip Maxwell with students from Chicagoland high schools, will return some time in October.

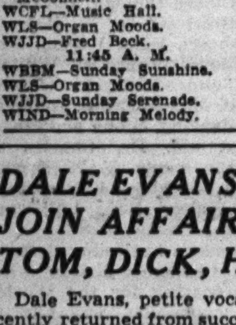
DALE EVANS TO JOIN AFFAIRS OF TOM, DICK, HARRY

Dale Evans, petite vocalist who recently returned from successful screen tests in Hollywood, will make a guest appearance on the Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow.



Dale Evans.
[Nelidoff Photo.]

Miss Evans is a Chicago girl who has had considerable success in both radio and night clubs. Her featured vocal offerings will be "More than You Know" and a new rhumba, "Negla Soi."

Radio's craziest trio, Tom, Dick, and Harry, will expostulate about "My Operation" and "Since We Put a Radio in the Henhouse." The Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry is presented each Monday evening.

U. S. Weapons in Economic War, Round Table Topic

The University of Chicago Round Table will consider the subject of Uncle Sam's weapons in the economic war in its broadcast over WMAQ-NBC at 1:30 p. m. today.

Smarter!

Quiz Kid girls are smarter than boys, according to Betty Swanson (seated), who got together with Margaret Mary Dougherty, left, Joan Bishop, center, and Cynthia Cline, all Quiz lassies. Her statistics showed that of the 66 kids who have been on the show (7 p. m. WLS Wednesdays) 38 were girls.

VIOLIN MELODY ON CHICAGOLAND HOUR SATURDAY

Marion Claire, Baggiore Vocal Soloists.

A violin solo by Michael Wilkomirski, concert master of the W-G-N concert orchestra, will be a feature of the Chicagoland Hour, from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Marion Claire, noted soprano, and Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor, singing stars of the program, will join with Wilkomirski and Henry Weber, conductor of the concert orchestra, to present a varied program of good music.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Wilkomirski's violin solo will be Hubay's "Hejre Kati" with a background by the orchestra. Miss Claire will sing two solos, the "Gypsy Song" from Kalman's "Countess Maritza" and Schubert's "Ave Maria." In both selections she will be joined by the chorus under the direction of Robert Trendler.

Baggiore will offer "My Dream Girl" from Victor Herbert's "Girl of My Dreams" and DeMoya's "Song of Songs." He will also be heard with Miss Claire in two medleys from Friml's "Vagabond King" and Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe" and "Gondoliers."

The orchestra will play Leoncavallo's "Carnival" from "I Pagliacci."

The complete program follows:

The Chicagoland Hour is under the direction of William A. Bacher, W-G-N chief of programs and production.

Irish Club Unit to Have Picnic in Woods Today

Unit No. 2 of the Irish club will hold its annual basket picnic in Forbes woods, 95th street and Wolf road, today. Joseph Ryan is chairman of the picnic committee.

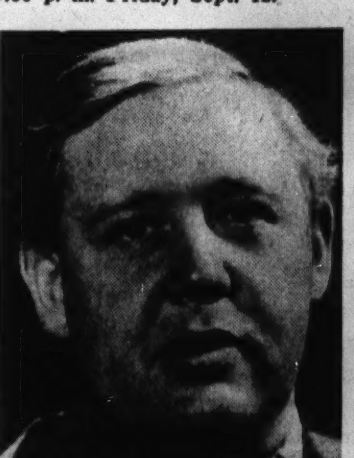
CHURCHILL TO SPEAK AT 3 P. M. TODAY OVER W-G-N AND MUTUAL

An address by Winston Churchill from London will be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 3 to 3:30 p. m. today. It is expected that Churchill will explain the English viewpoint of the recent conference between President Roosevelt and himself.

Bob Elson's broadcast of the Chicago White Sox-New York Yankees baseball game will be interrupted for Churchill's talk. Other Chicago stations will carry the Churchill broadcast.

In '3 Ring Time'

Shirley Ross, movie and radio songstress, with Bob Crosby's orchestra will provide the musical backdrop for the new Mutual Hollywood comedy variety show, Three Ring Time, starting at 8:30 p. m. Friday, Sept. 12.



Charles Laughton, noted character actor, and Milton Berle, radio comedian, will be the headliners of the new Mutual show, Three Ring Time.

WEED CUTTERS HELP TO REDUCE CITY'S SNEEZES

Summer Task Reported Half Complete.

Chicago's annual campaign of cutting 12,000,000 square yards of weeds as a means of combatting hayfever was at its halfway mark last week. The bureau of streets, which in the summer cuts about 260,000 square yards of weeds daily, has destroyed some 6,000,000 since the middle of July.

By the end of September the cutting will be completed. The weeds are destroyed along driveways, parkways, in parks, playgrounds, and empty lots. The destruction of weeds is a definite aid to hay fever sufferers, Al Konefes, acting chief clerk of the bureau of streets, declared.

Cool Weather Helps.

The hay fever season thus far is reported as being mild, Konefes said. Recent cool weather is said to have killed much of the hay fever carrying pollen before it has ripened on the plants and been blown into the air.

Altho the bureau of streets estimates its annual weed killing quota at 12 million square yards, less than 50 per cent of the city's weeds are touched.

A report of a typical August day showed that a total of 264,572 square yards of weeds were cut by relief workers under the direction of Commissioner Frank J. Flanagan of the bureau of streets. Half of this yardage is cut by hand scythes, the other by 16 mowing machines.

Day's Work Shown.

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt declared that a greater amount of eradication work could be done by the city if more relief workers were assigned to the program.

The following table shows the yardage of weeds cut last Tuesday by the bureau of streets on the south and southwest sides:

Ward—	Cut by hand.	Cut by mower.	Total.
2	1,050	....	1,050
4	725	....	725

One hundred and one men were employed on the program for the day in the area.

W9XBK to Start Theater Television Demonstrations

Daily television demonstrations will be given thru the facilities of station W9XBK on the mezzanine floor of the Chicago theater starting Monday. Patrons of the theater will be televised in a studio in the theater and viewed by others thru six receivers scattered about the floor. Six hostesses will be on hand to interview television subjects. William Eddy, director of television for Balaban and Katz, will be in charge.

Together 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Stegenga celebrated their golden wedding by holding open house in their home at 10546 State street. Lifelong residents of the Roseland district, Mr. and Mrs. Stegenga are both 69 years old. Of their family of eight sons and daughters, six survive. They have 19 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. Mr. Stegenga works for the Acme Steel company in Riverdale.

Lesnevich, Muriello Bout on W-G-N-Mutual Tuesday

A 15 round championship lightheavyweight bout between Gus Lesnevich and Tami Muriello will be aired over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 9 p. m. Tuesday from New York's Madison Square Garden. Don Dunphy and Bill Corum will describe the contest. Dunphy will handle the blow by blow account while Corum will present the color and commercials.

NEW STREET LIGHTS TO BRIGHTEN CITY

SAILORS' OFFICE MANS FREIGHT BOATS IN HURRY

It's Clearing House for Lake Jobs.

BY PAUL HEALY.

A little, second floor office at 9251 South Chicago avenue is a good barometer of the record breaking shipping activity on Lake Michigan these days. The office, which is maintained by the Lake Carriers association to contact sailors, is the anteroom to jobs on the Great Lakes for seamen in the Calumet district, where 35 freighters sometimes dock in one day.

The office adjoins a large seamen's assembly room where a few score sturdy sailors lounge about daily from early morning until late at night. Dressed in conservative, comfortable clothes, they read newspapers, play cards, or just smoke and swap yarns. Nearby is a free checkroom, piled high with overnight bags and suitcases ready for departure. Occasionally the men cock an inquiring ear or an eye toward the glassed in office.

Jobs in a Hurry.

If they hear the phone ring, there is a lull. . . .

"Hello . . . Engelke speaking . . . Yeah, Jim . . . You need a couple of oilers . . . Three? . . . O. K. . . . And a cook? . . . Sure, we got a good one . . . How long before you sail? . . . All right . . . They'll be right down. Good-by."

Harold Engelke, the office supervisor, hangs up and selects four men from the adjoining room. Dock passes are written out and quickly signed, the four men reach for their traveling bags, shake hands, and leave the building for a waiting taxicab. In a few minutes they are whirled to one of the numerous freight docks on the southern tip of Lake Michigan, where they board a ship that may be bound for any point on the lakes.

The ships are known as bulk freighters and some are 600 feet long with a gross weight of 16,000 tons. Week after week during spring, summer, and fall, these ships ply their courses between the Calumet district and Duluth, Two Harbors, Superior, Marquette, Escanaba, Ashland, and other lake ports. Their cargoes are coal, ore, grain or stone for the steel mills, the grain elevators and the coal yards located between the 86th street docks and Gary.

Captain and the Crew.

Each ship carries a captain, three mates, three wheelsmen, three watchmen, three deck watches, three deck hands, a chief and three assistant engineers, three oilers, three firemen, three coal passers and a cook and two porters.

Five minutes before a freighter is ready to sail the captain may discover that one of his crew has become ill or neglected to return in time. This means a hurried call to the association office, where he knows there are qualified seamen available for substitution. The office is open 24 hours a day, weekdays and holidays, during the shipping season, prepared to supply pinch hitters for any dock from Milwaukee south. Similar offices are maintained by the association in other cities on the lake.

"Most of the men here are able seamen or oilers with comparatively little experience," explains Engelke, "because with lake activity at a new peak the veterans are on shipboard almost constantly. But young seamen today are ambitious, for the most part. They plan to study for their master's papers and, what's more, most of them really save their money, contrary to the tradition of the sailor."

They Save Money.

Engelke points out that the crew of the Charles M. Schwab boat led the other crews in the Interlake Steamship company when it deposited $2,462 in the company bank during June and has saved $6,057 this year. The Smith Thompson crew topped other ships in the Great Lakes company, saving a total of $2,501 in June and $5,238 so far in 1941. He added that there are still some old-timers, however, who like to scatter all their wages during their first night in a port.

Wages range from $198 a month for cooks to $90 a month for coal passers, who are lowest on the scale. Oilers earn $126 a month and wheelsmen receive $129 monthly. All the men customarily are given a $25 bonus monthly also. Every man must be registered with the government in order to qualify for employment.

During the 3½ months off season in the winter many of the lake seamen now travel to salt water ports, where they are paid a big bonus to accompany cargoes into the war zone. About 90 per cent of the lake seamen are natives of the United States, according to Engelke, and they are descended from a variety of nationalities, altho there is a slight preponderance of Swedish, Norwegian, and English. Draft deferments of six months have been granted to some of the men because of the importance of their occupation.

355 Boats in Fleets.

Twenty-seven shipping companies, including Great Lakes, United States Steel Products, International Harvester, Ford Motor, Interlake, Shenango Furnace and Huron Transportation, are members of the association. They own a total of 355 vessels which could transport a total of 3,091,372 tons of cargo every week.

Give a Woman a Hammer and This Is Result

Mrs. Margie Johnson says that when she pulled down the mantel last April, her husband and children thought she'd lost her mind. They apparently didn't realize she is allergic to male carpenters. Since then, equipped with a hammer, a saw, some nails, and a fund of ideas, she has ripped up and modernized her old 10 room house at 4235 Prairie avenue at a total cost of $45, thus saving an estimated $175.

"Why, I've been driving nails ever since I was a child in Hendersonville, Tenn.," explained the Negro housewife, who is pleased that her house has become the showplace of the neighborhood. "Besides, I think I've inherited a talent for designing and decorating, and when I was younger I studied drafting, designing, and figure drawing. What's more, I can shoe a horse, too."

What She Did.

In a little more than three months, between cooking, washing dishes, and making beds, Mrs. Johnson has accomplished the following:

1. Replaced the gas grate with a real brick fireplace.
2. Removed all moldings and curved walls into blue ceilings, which have the illusion of being lower.
3. Designed and made arched, fireproof windows and arched interior doorways.
4. Tore out china closet and made a nook for dishes in the wall, using a baseboard from the old gas grate.
5. Put leaded glass from the old china closet in the upper half of the kitchen door.
6. Tore out the kitchen pantry and installed built-in cabinets covered with red linoleum.

Designs a Cottage.

Mrs. Johnson designed and helped carpenters build the Johnson cottage in the country. The only men who aided in the modernization project were a few plasterers. Her husband's skill with a hammer and saw she considers no better than the average male's, ever since she found his archway in the kitchen 1-32d of an inch off her specifications. Mr. Johnson, a steel worker, immediately retired to the rôle of spectator and mutters respectfully that "no man can work with her."

Mrs. Johnson, who is possessed of a driving energy, customarily wears overalls and a plasterer's cap during the daytime. She figures that her three arched windows, two arched doors, kitchen nook arch, radiator grill, bookshelves, and brick fireplace have cost her about $45 for materials. She also took off the wall paper and had the rooms done in stippled white paint.

Reared in Tennessee.

The amateur carpenter was reared in Tennessee and came to Chicago when she was 12 years old. A few years later she married her first husband, Dr. William Blackner, who died after the first World war. During the war she worked with the Ida B. Wells Bennett Kit and Comfort club and in 1923 she was the first colored captain of her precinct.

Mrs. Johnson plans to have a formal opening of her remodeled home later this month.

465 TO RECEIVE U. OF C. DEGREES NEXT THURSDAY

Four hundred sixty-five candidates for degrees will be graduated from the University of Chicago in the 205th convocation at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon in Rockefeller Memorial chapel. The convocation, which will be the fourth of the 50th anniversary year, will bring the number of graduates to more than 1,500 for the last four quarters.

Dr. Robert Redfield, noted ethnologist and dean of the division of the social sciences, will deliver the graduation address. His title is "How Shall the City Attempt Philosophy?" President Robert M. Hutchins will preside at the convocation, which will be the last formal university function before the golden anniversary academic festival planned for September.

Among the graduates is Patricia Wolfhope of Pontiac, who frequently was chosen a beauty queen of undergraduate publications. She will receive a bachelor's degree in the division of the humanities.

Jassim Mohamad Khalaf, who is attending the university on a grant from the government of Iraq, will receive a bachelor's degree in the division of physical sciences, department of geography. He lives at International house and plans to return to Iraq in the fall.

Ssu-Mien Fang of Hunan, China, will receive a doctor of philosophy degree in physics in absentia. He has returned to his position in the department of physics at the National Hunan university in Hunan, China.

Richard Lounsbury of Crown Point, former captain of the Maroon basketball team, will receive a bachelor of science degree. Of the 465 candidates for degrees, 153 will receive the bachelor's degree and 208 the master's degree. Five will become bachelors of divinity, 35 will become masters of business administration; 10, including three from the Rush Graduate School of Medicine, will become doctors of medicine, and 54 will receive the Ph. D. degree.

Club Will Feast Sept. 7 on Porcupine and Bison

Roast porcupine and bison cooked on hot stones will highlight the sixth annual roundup and barbeque of the Porcupine club Sept. 7 at Russnow's Grove, 127th street and 56th avenue.

Woodlawn Property Owners Await Judges in Garden Contest

Passengers on elevated trains and street cars are pleasantly surprised to find a carefully nurtured garden spot when they reach 63d street and Blackstone avenue. Roswell G. Ackley fixed up the landscaping to cover his empty lot, which is 93 feet by 81 feet. Assisting him in preserving its beauty are Miss La Verne Fielding (left), 1180 East 63d street, and Miss Lillian Drawert, 1172 East 63d street. There are cannas and petunias in the center bed, zinnias, marigolds, and cosmos in the hedges, and morning glories on the wall. The lot is competing with 360 others in the general landscaping division of the Woodlawn Property Owners league's lawn and garden contest, which is being judged these days.

Another entry in the Woodlawn Property Owners league contest is the lawn at the Colonial hotel, 6335 Kenwood avenue, where Miss Helen Bunegar (left), 1180 East 63d street, and Miss Dorothy Law, 6410 Kenwood avenue, are helping to prepare it for the judging. The hotel management has declined to accept any award this year, however, and will contribute one instead. Owners of lawns and gardens located between Cottage Grove and Stony Island avenues and 60th and 67th streets are eligible. A dinner will climax the contest on Sept. 8.

JUBILEE OPENS TODAY AT WELLS HOUSING PROJECT

7,000 Residents Join in Week's Festival.

Beginning this morning, tenants of the Ida B. Wells Homes are inviting the public to inspect their modern community as part of Wellstown jubilee week, which has been planned to celebrate the complete occupation of the homes. Wellstown's 7,000 inhabitants will participate in a seven day fiesta of drama, music, races, games, tours, stunts, community singing and a fashion revue.

Backbone of the program will be the community's own newspaper, Cub and Boy Scout troops, theater guild, orchestra, band, athletic clubs, and music and choral groups. More and more groups have been organized since families started to trickle into the homes six months ago. The Federal housing project covers 47 acres just south of East 39th street.

Average Income $15.

Each of the 1,662 single family units comprising Wellstown is now occupied. The grounds have been landscaped, a recreational program started, and a free employment club organized. The average income for each family is $15 a week. Proceeds from the jubilee will go to the community center fund.

Consecration services between 8 and 9 o'clock this morning will launch the jubilee celebration. At 1:30 o'clock there will be a flag-raising ceremony by the two new Boy Scout units, which will be followed by the dedication of the new modern community center building.

Tomorrow will be entirely taken up with music. Every section of Wellstown will hear both individuals and community singing groups. Highlights of Tuesday will be an extensive, colorful bazar in the evening.

Contests and Movies.

Wednesday will be children's day. There will be a swimming exhibition sponsored by the Wabash Avenue YMCA, a junior track meet and a home talent program. Thruout the grounds will be minor contests—pie-eating, hot dog-on-a-string, and sack races, boxing, tumbling, and wrestling. At 9 o'clock in the evening there will be movies. Climax of the day will be the election by the children of a mayor and his cabinet.

Tours of the grounds and general activity will take place Thursday. Highlights will be a style show in the evening. Friday will be the day for sack races and fat men's races for adults and a home talent show in the evening.

The Wellstown baseball team will play a game Saturday. During the day there also will be contests for twins and in the evening there will be a dance to climax the entire celebration. It will be called the "Jubilee Jump."

Plan Tours Daily.

Tours of the grounds for visitors will be offered every day. Lectures also will be given by members of the staff, the model apartments will be open to the public for inspection and the unique lowpressure heating and hat water system will be explained.

Officers of the Jubilee committee are Mrs. Venetta Hudson, chairman; Mrs. Wortley Berry, vice chairman; Charles Estelle, secretary; Katherine Montgomery, corresponding secretary; George Rabb, treasurer, and Robert Jones, business manager.

PROVE AMERICA IS STILL LAND OF FREE ENTERPRISE

Five rooms above a garage in the rear of 3920 Lake Park avenue that until a few weeks ago were silent and dusty today are occupied by a bustling young corporation known as the Lake Specialty Manufacturing company, producers and distributors of plastic novelties.

Nine young men, the oldest of whom is 19, run the firm which is the newest of the Junior Achievement companies in Chicago.

Ross Martin, 18, of 4062 Lake Park avenue, is president of the concern. Martin, with Jack McCord, 18, of 3917 Ellis avenue, treasurer, conceived the idea for the company and interesting seven neighborhood friends, they applied to the Achievement headquarters for a charter.

The young members all have outside jobs but Walter A. Robertson, 18, of 3920 Lake Park avenue, production manager, has worked out a schedule so that each youth is able to put in at least 15 hours' work a week at the plant.

Others in the firm are Edwin Dunmore, 18, of 3843 Lake Park avenue, secretary; Myron Gleberman, 17, of 4015 Lake Park avenue, sales manager; Franklin Fish, 19, of 3833 Lake Park avenue, assistant treasurer and secretary; Richard Street, 18, of 4119 Ellis avenue, assistant sales manager; Jerrie Shields, 18, of 1318 East 46th street, designer, and Eurie Mathis, 18, of 3714 Lake Park avenue, assistant production manager.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

Four south side aviation cadets have begun their final phase of training at Randolph Field, Tex., after their recent graduation from the basic flying school at the "West Point of the Air." The four, Milton E. Connelly, 2456 East 72d street, William H. Fleming, 7136 Yates avenue, Albert J. Freund, 8747 Harper avenue, and Charles D. Smith, 7256 Luella avenue, were among 60 Illinois men who made up one-fifth of the graduating class of more than 300 cadets. In November, after their final 10 week training period, these young men will win their wings and be commissioned as second lieutenants in the air corps reserve.

Second Lieut. Elaine W. Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Max Harris, 6463 Kenwood avenue, was one of four Illinois young women in the Army Nurse corps who reported recently at Camp Polk, La., from Fort McClellan, Ala., for temporary duty at the station hospital for the duration of the fall maneuvers.

Raymond J. Skibb, son of Mrs. Mae Meyer, 7850 Jeffery avenue, has been promoted to corporal at Fort Bragg, N. C., where he is attached to Battery A of the 5th battalion of the field artillery replacement center. Another promotion for a south sider occurred at Fort Sill, Okla., where Edward A. Tobin was made a private first class. He is now attached to the detachment quartermaster corps in his new grade. Tobin is the son of Mrs. Clare Tobin, 7632 Colfax avenue.

Transfer orders have sent four south siders from Fort Sheridan to the coast artillery replacement training center at Fort Eustis, Va. They are: William Westenberg, 5735 University avenue; John Heiberg, 2422 East 74th street; John Howe, 7025 Dante avenue; and Robert Thomas, 1629 Hyde Park boulevard. Also from Fort Sheridan, William Georgen, 5327 Ellis avenue, has been sent to Fort Riley, Kan.

David Kupferschmid, 5209 Woodlawn avenue, has been transferred to the air corps at Jefferson Barracks, Mo.

San Brelant, 7325 East End avenue, who was a laboratory analyst before being inducted, has been assigned to the medical replacement training center at Camp Grant.

Jerome Feingold, 5220 Kimbark avenue, has been transferred to the replacement training center at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md.

Everett Haglund Inducted as Lions Club President

New officers were installed in the South Shore Lions' club at a recent meeting. They are Everett Haglund, president; Robert Blain, secretary; Edward Schlosberg, treasurer; William Welsh, tail twister, and Edward Taber, lion tamer. Vice presidents are Marshall Anderson, Arthur Clemenson and David Saper, and directors are Frank Dukes, George Schael, Albert Joseph, Carl Seuring and Lee Johns.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

LIEUT. JOSEPH [JUST CALL ME JOE] PIEROTH, 7735 Loomis avenue, has retired from the police force after serving the city for 36 years. Lieut. Pieroth has been at the Maxwell street station for 10 years and a lieutenant for 16 years. He was on the fire department for three years before joining the police force in 1905.

Lieut. Pieroth.

Lieut. Pieroth has been cited 16 times for exceptional work in the line of duty. In 1936 he received honorable recognition for the capture of the notorious John Dillhofer and three confederates who had escaped from an Indiana prison. Dillhofer later was executed for killing a policeman.

A thousand persons turned out recently for a banquet in tribute to the lieutenant. At the Maxwell street station he is remembered best for the saying, "Don't call me Lieutenant, just call me Joe."

MR. AND MRS. FRANK ADAMSKI, 8448 Muskegon avenue, will observe their 50th wedding anniversary next Sunday. A high mass will be celebrated at 10 o'clock in the morning at St. John Bosco church in Hammond by the pastor, the Rev. John T. Bartkowski, a nephew of Mr. Adamski. The Adamskis, both residents of Chicago for 52 years, have two sons, Edmund and Vincent, and a daughter, Evelyn Julia Anderson. Their friends and relatives will be present at a dinner Sunday evening at St. Bronislava hall, 8732 Colfax avenue.

James J. Barrett, 10007 Hoyne avenue, recently was made president of the Empire Storage Warehouses, Inc.

Four south siders have won scholarships to the evening college of Northwestern university. They are Helene Friedlander, 1969 East 73d place; Bette Epstein, 7502 Kingston avenue; Sumi Ise, 4709 Cottage Grove avenue, and James P. Baldasseroni, 5915 California avenue.

ELEVEN Our Towners recently were graduated from the summer school of the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts. They are Ruth Holman, 7739 Cregier avenue; Patricia Redmond, 7928 Ellis avenue; Charles Thompson, 11531 South Park avenue; Helen Wexler, 7835 Phillips avenue; Jacqueline Woolf, 1344 East Marquette road; Marie Foote, 7336 Blackstone avenue; Mrs. Meta Snowdon, 6646 Lafayette avenue; Mrs. Janet Freund, 4940 East End avenue; Donald Richter, 3828 West 59th street; Florence White Williams, 1114 West 50th street, and William Harahan, 2035 West 110th street.

11TH CATHOLIC ACTION SCHOOL TO LAST 6 DAYS

The 11th annual summer school of Catholic Action will take place tomorrow thru Saturday at the Morrison hotel. More than 2,000 priests, nuns, brothers, and lay people will attend the convocation, which will be directed by the Rev. Daniel A. Lord, author, lecturer, and editor of The Queen's Work.

Speakers will include the Rev. Gerard Ellard, author of "Men at Work at Worship"; the Rev. Francis Le Buffe, author and lecturer, and the Rev. Edward Dowling, former newspaper man and authority on government and social problems. Special classes will be given for priests, teachers, and high school and college groups.

Host to the delegates will be CISCA, Chicago Interstudent Catholic Action group. Highlights will be the chanting of the mass in the Gregorian style each morning by a choir composed of students, and puppet shows presenting the miracle, mystery, and morality plays of the middle ages.

South side committee chairmen are Coletta Fitzgerald, 6644 South Campbell avenue; Edward Marciniak, 5607 Whipple avenue; Edmund Castillo, 5608 Blackstone avenue; Mary Agnes O'Connell, 7324 South Park avenue, and Marianne Keating, 5731 Winchester avenue. Committee workers from the south side include Charles Casale, Donald Reticker, Rita Gross, Rita Kuhn, Theresa Heneghan, Marjorie Delaplane, Margaret Mary Roche, Thomas Hanlon, John Ruddy, Jean Coubeau, Fernando Castillo, Jean Hart, Delphine Rogan, John McCullough, and Al Wiora.

KENWOOD YOUTHS TO JOIN IN PLAY DAY FESTIVAL

The Kenwood Community playground, better known as Farmer's field, at 50th street and Dorchester avenue, will be the scene of the second annual interplayground day Wednesday. Play day will be the closing event of the summer playground program supervised by the Hyde Park YMCA in conjunction with the Hyde Park-Kenwood-Oakland Community council and the WPA community recreation service.

The program will consist of relays and contests, a doll buggy and bicycle parade, a horseshoe tournament, a clown softball game, and an exhibit by the Kilbourne Dancing school. The

EXTEND SYSTEM TO AREAS NOW LACKING LAMPS

$158,000 to Be Spent for Installation.

Work on the $158,000 street lighting program approved last Wednesday by the city council will get under way this week. The new lights are to be installed in communities which now are without electric street lighting. The program will acect 25 wards, most of them in the outlying sections of the city.

Areas in which the lights will be erected have been built up the last several years and in many cases have heretofore been lighted by old fashioned gasoline street lamps. The money is to come from a corporate bond surplus fund.

Most in South Area.

The 18th and 19th wards, on the far southwest side of Chicago, will receive the largest allocations, $18,000 each. The 10th ward in the Calumet region was next with $15,000. The 9th and 11th wards, also on the south and southwest sides, received about $14,000 and $13,000, respectively. The 41st ward on the northwest side was allocated $13,000, and lights costing about $10,000 will be installed in the 50th ward, which includes the west Rogers Park section on the north side.

Much lower amounts were earmarked for the west side. Ald. Walter J. Orlikoski [35th] complained that his ward, which he asserted was poorly lighted, had received no allocation.

Will Be Standard.

The work of installation will be directed by Commissioner Frank J. Flanagan of the bureau of streets and department of electricity. The fixtures will be of the standard type now in general use thruout the city.

The city will spend about $98,000 for new lights in ten south and southwest side wards. Approximate ward allotments are: 4th ward, $200; 7th, $500; 9th, $14,000; 10th, $15,000; 11th, $13,000; 13th, $7,000; 15th, $3,000; 17th, $10,000; 18th, $18,000, and 19th, $18,000.

'MEN NOT WANTED' IS SIGN TODAY AT OLIVET CHURCH

The Olivet Baptist church, 3101 South Park way, will be closed to men today. Woman's Day services will be held all day to celebrate the progress of the rehabilitation program, which now has made the church available to its congregation again.

Worship services will start at 10:45 o'clock this morning with Mrs. William H. Alexander presiding. Miss Hortense Love, lyric soprano, will be guest soloist and Mrs. Rebecca Stiles-Taylor, guest speaker, will talk on "Christian Women in the World Today." Mrs. Taylor is a national leader in Negro woman's club work and a newspaper woman.

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a parade of the young women of the church, emphasizing the important accomplishments of each. Miss Ethel Billups will preside.

The evening service, beginning at 7:45 o'clock, will introduce the girls of the first division of the church school who are between 2 and 9 years old. According to Mrs. Ann P. Bell, who will supervise the event, Mrs. Wendell E. Green will be the principal speaker, discussing the topic, "Modern Trends in Character Education."

Mrs. Alexander, program chairman, and Mrs. Estella Howse, general chairman, invite Chicago women to attend the program.

Olivet church, a landmark in the city, was established 92 years ago. Last November it was destroyed by fire a week after the death of its pastor in an airplane crash at Olivet, Mich. It has since been led by the Rev. J. H. Branham. Dr. J. H. Jackson of Philadelphia is pastor elect.

MODERN HOME IS BUILT AROUND BIG LIVING ROOM

Kitchen, Dining in Wing; Bedroom in Another.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Wilson, 1611 West 105th place, knew a number of simple fundamentals of house planning and construction, and in decisions made as to layout and materials they kept steadily in mind the fact that their future home was to be as they wanted it. Their present English colonial type of dwelling fits its site and the family needs.

The home stands on a lot 55 by 120 feet and the exterior walls are brick in mellow tones, soft purples and phantom blues, creams, and browns, and tans. The roof and shutters are a deep brown and the entrance door of dark wood lives up to the tradition that an entrance door should spell hospitality and beauty.

Living Room in Center.

The floor arrangement is of interest. It deviates from the conventional and possesses quite a few assets all its own. The plan places reception hall, living room, and outdoor terrace opening from living room, directly in the center of the house. The reception hall is bright and gracious and serves its purpose well, tho it does not take too much space from the house proper. Stairs to the second floor are on the left, and beyond, the left wing of the dwelling, is occupied by master bedroom, 11 by 20 feet, and bath. The right wing is occupied by dining room, with view to gardens at back, kitchen, and breakfast room at the front.

The entire second floor is given up to a second bedroom, center hall, and bath. This suite belongs to young Mr. Wilson, who is now entering his last year at the University of Chicago.

Flush Type Doors.

The heating system, which is forced warm air, oil fueled, is in the basement, together with utility rooms and storage spaces.

The doors thruout the home are flush type, finely grained walnut, with a soft, satiny finish. "These are very easy to clean," Mrs. Wilson says. And certainly they are very lovely to look on.

The living room is large, 16 by 22 feet, an inviting room with wide colonial fireplace opposite the entrance door, and French doors leading to a terraced living room outside. The walls are canvased, the woodwork ivory, and deep shelves are built into wall at left of entrance. This is a room for genuine comfort and happy family use, and no small part of its charm is the outdoor living room, that in summer seems an integral part of the house itself.

Dining Room Separate.

The dining room is close, but not a part of the living room, and conforms pleasingly to tradition with its corner cupboards and effective colonial lighting fixture. In the kitchen there is a gay Mexican note in lively decals on cupboards and shelves. The walls are of cream colored linoleum flecked with blue and black, and there's a cove baseboard and black linoleum floor flecked with cream and white. There's a kitchen ventilator for coolness and shelves on each side of sink are bright with colorful jars and pottery.

At the front the diminutive breakfast room has a gayly flowered paper on its walls and the open cupboards are lined with red.

On the second floor the bedroom is 13 by 18, not counting the dormers, which add still more space. There is a masculine touch here, with built-in shelves for books. The bath is carried out in linoleum, with cream and brown walls and white fixtures.

Singing Honors

Harriet O'Rourke. Elmer Carlquist.

Miss Harriet O'Rourke, 2860 East 76th street, and Elmer Carlquist, Lake Forest, were third place winners in the best singer contests for men and women in the 12th annual Chicagoland Music Festival. Miss O'Rourke is a coloratura soprano, and Carlquist is a dramatic tenor.

LONG TONS, SHORT TONS AWEIGHT FAMILY REUNION

Approximately 500 persons are expected to attend the 46th annual reunion of the Ton family Thursday in Wicker park near Hammond. Most of the clan will come from Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Missouri, and Texas, altho California also will be represented. The gathering was started in 1895 by the late Mrs. Thomas Begshaw [Lina Ton] and the late John Ton, both of Lansing.

The variety of contests on the program will include a peanut scramble, a rolling race, a pop drinking contest, a balancing contest, and a ball throwing contest. Awards also will be given for the youngest baby, the longest married couple, and the largest complete family. Awards will range from suspenders to jars of cookies.

The formal part of the program will include the reading of the minutes by Secretary Dwight V. De Young of 59 East 109th street; a report by the historian, Mrs. J. H. Ton, of 10900 Wabash avenue; and a report by the treasurer, John G. Koster, 159 West 104th street. The president is Peter Van Weelden of Lansing.

Bendix Band to Present Concert in Avalon Park

Max Bendix and his Illinois WPA band will give a concert at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in Avalon park, 83d street and Dorchester avenue, under the sponsorship of the park district. The program, composed of classical and semiclassical numbers, is being arranged by David Henderson, park dramatic instructor.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Aug. 25.

Work in the garden at this season consists largely in maintenance and it is imperative that all leaves be raked and piled even tho they are from soft wood trees. They add, when decayed, some humus to the compost heap. There is always an obscure corner where leaves and soft trash can be piled and, with it, some soil. Wet the heap down when it is dry to hasten decomposition.

Tuesday, Aug. 26.

If the new lawn has not been started start working on it immediately. Fill all depressions and cut down elevations to give a smooth even surface; this is true for the small area; larger areas may have surface variations or an undulating sweep that presents a good appearance.

If the soil packs spread a layer of decayed manure over the surface; if the soil drains poorly, spade in two or more inches of sifted ashes or sand to provide some drainage. Sandy soil is improved by spading under manures or decayed vegetable matter; pulverized manures are also beneficial.

Wednesday, Aug. 27.

Order bulbs early to have them to plant at the proper time. Narcissi should be planted just as soon as they can be obtained. Crocus the same, and madonna lilies should go into the ground at the earliest time they can be procured. Tulips can be planted as late as the ground can be worked or into early October.

Thursday, Aug. 28.

Bear in mind that water evaporates very rapidly during this season and it must be replaced almost daily. Lay the hose on the ground and allow it to run freely or until the ground is soaked to a depth of five inches.

Never allow the insect pests to gain control; the only way to prevent this is constant spraying at intervals of about 10 days. Spray roses with Trigogen, a three way insecticide and funguscide. Those who can obtain tobacco stems may use them as a mulch for they serve as a repellent against root aphids and other pests. Examine the plants at frequent intervals for pests.

Friday, Aug. 29.

Stake tall gladiolus or they are likely to fall over. Stake all tall flower stems. Manure water or commercial foods in solution applied to gladiolus and dahlias that show buds will increase the size of bloom and the strength of stem. Feed the peonies for next year's bloom. An application of plant food may give some good larkspur blooms for the second time.

Increase the supply of phlox from cuttings of the young stems made at this time. Just as soon as the pansies are large enough they may be transplanted into frames or in beds where they are to flower next spring. They will be protected during winter against heaving.

Saturday, Aug. 30.

If the annuals that are in good condition are cut back and the soil given an application of food, they will develop stems and flowers until the frost cuts them down. Do not feed roses too late in the season or soft growth would result and is almost certain to result in severe winter freezing.

WEED CUTTERS HELP TO REDUCE CITY'S SNEEZES

Weather Also Is Boon to the Allergic.

Chicago's annual campaign of cutting 12,000,000 square yards of weeds as a means of combatting hayfever was at its halfway mark last week. The bureau of streets, which in the summer cuts about 260,000 square yards of weeds daily, has destroyed some 6,000,000 since the middle of July.

By the end of September the cutting will be completed. The weeds are destroyed along driveways, parkways, in parks, playgrounds, and empty lots. The destruction of weeds is a definite aid to hay fever sufferers, Al Konefes, acting chief clerk of the bureau of streets, declared.

Cool Weather Helps.

The hay fever season thus far is reported as being mild, Konefes said. Recent cool weather is said to have killed much of the hay fever carrying pollen before it has ripened on the plants and been blown into the air.

Altho the bureau of streets estimates its annual weed killing quota at 12 million square yards, less than 50 per cent of the city's weeds are touched.

A report of a typical August day showed that a total of 264,572 square yards of weeds were cut by relief workers under the direction of Commissioner Frank J. Flanagan of the bureau of streets. Half of this yardage is cut by hand scythes, the other by 16 mowing machines.

Day's Work Shown.

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt declared that a greater amount of eradication work could be done by the city if more relief workers were assigned to the program.

Ward—	Cut by hand.	Cut by mower.	Total.
2	1,050	....	1,050
4	725	....	725

FALL RADIO FARE INCLUDES HOST OF NEW SHOWS

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The fall menu for radio is almost ready. Many new items are listed on the bill of fare. Many of the old favorites, off for the summer months, will be back on.

One of the most promising of the new shows is Three Ring Time, a Hollywood comedy variety show to feature Charles Laughton, the character actor, and Milton Berle, the comedian, with Bob Crosby and Shirley Ross providing the music. This show will have its première on W-G-N-Mutual at 8:30 p. m. Friday, Sept. 12.

Laughton and Berle plan a fresh approach to radio humor. Miss Ross will join in the comedy routines as well as singing. Miss Ross has been featured in several pictures.

Flagg and Quirt for Radio.

Capt. Flagg and Sergt. Quirt, the famous characters of "What Price Glory," will come to life on the air at 6:30 p. m. Sunday, Sept. 28, over WENR-NBC. Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen, heroes of the cinema version, will be co-starred in this radio version.

Gladys Swarthout, Metropolitan Opera singer, and Deems Taylor, composer and commentator, will be the headliners of the Family Hour, starting over WBBM-CBS at 4 p. m. Sunday, Aug. 31. They will be supported by Ross Graham, baritone, Al Goodman's orchestra, and a chorus.

Already established as a popular new comedy show is Harold Teen, whose adventures are chronicled over W-G-N at 7:30 o'clock every Tuesday evening.

Orson Welles to Return.

Orson Welles, off the air most of last year, will return with a new show at 9 p. m. Monday, Sept. 15, over WBBM-CBS, replacing the present Freddy Martin show aired at this hour.

Among the new and returning shows with starting dates are the following:

W-G-N AND MUTUAL.

*July 29—7:30 p. m. Tuesday—Harold Teen. W-G-N.

*Aug. 31—11:30 a. m. Sunday—Quin Ryan reads Chicago Tribune comics. W-G-N.

*Sept. 8—11:15 a. m. Monday, Wednesday, Friday—At Your Service. W-G-N-Mutual.

Sept. 12—8:30 p. m. Friday—Three Ring Time with Charles Laughton, Milton Berle, Shirley Ross, and Bob Crosby's orchestra. W-G-N-Mutual.

Sept. 19—7:15 p. m. Friday—Jimmy Evans' Football Forecasts. W-G-N.

Sept. 28—12:15 p. m. Sunday—George Fisher's Hollywood Whispers. W-G-N-Mutual.

Sept. 28—4:30 p. m. Sunday—The Shadow. W-G-N-Mutual.

Sept. 28—5:30 p. m. Sunday—Adventures of Bulldog Drummond. W-G-N-Mutual.

*Sept. 29—5:15 p. m. Monday thru Friday—Terry and the Pirates. W-G-N.

Sept. 29—5:30 p. m. Monday thru Friday—Jack Armstrong. W-G-N-Mutual.

Sept. 29—5:45 p. m. Monday thru Friday—Captain Midnight. W-G-N-Mutual.

Oct. 19—Noon Sunday—American Radio Warblers. W-G-N-Mutual.

*Indicates new programs.

W-G-N-Mutual will carry the world series exclusively the week of Oct. 2. The exclusive broadcasts of the Mike Jacobs-Twentieth Century boxing bouts will be continued over W-G-N and Mutual.

Citizens of Tomorrow, the program featuring Philip Maxwell with students from Chicagoland high schools, will return some time in October.

DALE EVANS TO JOIN AFFAIRS OF TOM, DICK, HARRY

Dale Evans, petite vocalist who recently returned from successful screen tests in Hollywood, will make a guest appearance on the Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow.

Dale Evans.
[Nelidoff Photo.]

Miss Evans is a Chicago girl who has had considerable success in both radio and night clubs. Her featured vocal offerings will be "More than You Know" and a new rhumba, "Negla Sol."

Radio's craziest trio, Tom, Dick, and Harry, will expostulate about "My Operation" and "Since We Put a Radio in the Henhouse." The Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry is presented each Monday evening under the direction of William A. Bacher. Robert Trendler conducts the orchestra. Paul Larmer writes the scripts.

VIOLIN MELODY ON CHICAGOLAND HOUR SATURDAY

Marion Claire, Baggiore Vocal Soloists.

A violin solo by Michael Wilkomirski, concert master of the W-G-N concert orchestra, will be a feature of the Chicagoland Hour, from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Marion Claire, noted soprano, and Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor, singing stars of the program, will join with Wilkomirski and Henry Weber, conductor of the concert orchestra, to present a varied program of good music.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Wilkomirski's violin solo will be Hubay's "Hejre Kati" with a background by the orchestra. Miss Claire will sing two solos, the "Gypsy Song" from Kalman's "Countess Maritza" and Schubert's "Ave Maria." In both selections she will be joined by the chorus under the direction of Robert Trendler.

Baggiore will offer "My Dream Girl" from Victor Herbert's "Girl of My Dreams" and DeMoya's "Song of Songs." He will also be heard with Miss Claire in two medleys from Friml's "Vagabond King" and Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe" and "Gondoliers."

The orchestra will play Leoncavallo's "Carnival" from "I Pagliacci."

The complete program follows:

"Carnival" [I Pagliacci] .... Leoncavallo
Orchestra and Chorus
"Gypsy Song" [Countess Maritza] .. Kalman
Marion Claire and Chorus
"My Dream Girl" [Girl of My Dreams] .... Herbert
Attilio Baggiore
"Vagabond King" Medley .... Friml
"Song of the Vagabonds"—Orchestra
"Only a Rose"—Marion Claire, Attilio Baggiore and Chorus
"Valise Huguette"—Orchestra
"Someday"—Marion Claire, Attilio Baggiore and Chorus
Address by Col. Robert R. McCormick.
"Songs of Songs" .... DeMoya
Attilio Baggiore and Chorus
"Ave Maria" .... Schubert
Marion Claire and Chorus.
"Hejre Kati" .... Hubay
Violin solo by Michael Wilkomirski.
Medley from "Iolanthe" and the "Gondoliers" ..... Gilbert and Sullivan
"Welcome to Our Hearts Again"—Chorus.
"Bow, Bow, Ye Lower Middle Classes"—Chorus.
"If We're Weak Enough to Tarry"—Attilio Baggiore.
"O Amorous Dove"—Marion Claire and chorus.
"Buon Giorno"—Marion Claire, Attilio Baggiore and chorus.
"Dance from Cachucha"—Chorus.

The Chicagoland Hour is under the direction of William A. Bacher, W-G-N chief of programs and production.

SINGING CANARIES WILL RETURN TO W-G-N ON OCT. 19

The American Radio Warblers, a group of 10 canary songsters with Helen Westbrook at the organ, will return to W-G-N and Mutual at noon Sunday, Oct. 19. They will be heard at this hour each week. The Warblers are real birds and no mechanical devices or bird imitators supplement them. Thousands of canaries in the homes of listeners sing along with these radio songsters.

CHURCHILL TO SPEAK AT 3 P. M. TODAY OVER W-G-N AND MUTUAL

An address by Winston Churchill from London will be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 3 to 3:30 p. m. today. It is expected that Churchill will explain the English viewpoint of the recent conference between President Roosevelt and himself.

Bob Elson's broadcast of the Chicago White Sox-New York Yankees baseball game will be interrupted for Churchill's talk. Other Chicago stations will carry the Churchill broadcast.

Chicago Sunday Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

CAMPUS CLOTHES

By REA SEEGER

STORY ELSEWHERE IN THIS SECTION

Sketched are 1941 models suggested by this year's college fashion counselors.

A—Brand new, soft jersey pullover model worn with plaited skirt in gay tweed mixture. This pullover is available in three or four good contrast colors.

B—Stunning corduroy coat, also new, comes in red, beige, and green. Fashioned with the new wide sleeves, this comfortably cut topper has a tied sash belt and notched lapel collar. The corduroy is wide-waled and a smart contrast for all kinds of casual campus clothes.

C—Daytime dress of large checked, soft woolen with a velveteen blouse top. The sleeves are of the checked wool. The velveteen bodice is in a harmonizing, but darker, shade to complement the checks. The skirt flares widely with four gores, and the bodice buttons match the velveteen.

D—Not an inexpensive wool suit, but worth every penny asked for the slim, distinctive lines of fine wool tweed used for plaited skirt and fitted jacket. It's smart and sturdy enough to last for seasons. With it, ideal, long sleeved silk shirt, in contrasting or blending colors.

E—Huge plaid wool reefer coat that really fits the figure lines. Large patched-on pockets accent the hips. Shoulders are easy, the collar line trim, yet casual, and the skirt flared. This coat in bright color schemes is lined with harmonizing shades. A coat classic such as this is practical.

F—Wool daytime dress, expertly cut with simplicity, with scant side fullness on the skirt, long sleeves gathered into cuffs, and the newest detachable, dazzling white dickey of pique. Crocheted yarn skullcap with long tassel matches the large, casual type handbag. Plaid coat, E, keeps it company.

G—College girl's special pet this season, a jaunty jacket of natural American opossum, a fur with stunning markings in beige and dark brown.. The price tag is amazingly low and this fur wears well. It goes out at night with the same swank it offers for daytime duty.

H—Date dress of sophisticated dull faille trimmed with velvet bands and chest bow. The skirt is beautifully flared, the bodice contrastingly fitted, the waistline hits the new low, and the sleeves extend to just below the elbows. The opossum coat, G, makes fashion-right companion.

I—Duet for dancing and dining, a lovely taffeta dress in a rich, bright shade, worn with a fitted, demure jacket of velveteen in the same color. The jacket has two bows accenting the fullness at the hips and short sleeves in contrast to long evening gloves.

J—The same dress without the jacket, a perfect dance frock. While the skirt is very widely flared, the waistline is well defined and without a belt. The bodice is figure-fitted, with draping over the bustline and beautifully soft shoulder detail, a classic evening decolletage.

K—High-covered-neckline dinner dress with elbow length sleeves featuring two colors. The color contrast (two schemes from which to choose) gives the illusion of a low waistline

All these college clothes sketched will be found in one showing, together with accessories and many other new ideas. For information call Sup. 0200

'My Sister Eileen' Cast Continues High Acting Standards

Miss Christie Is Skilful in Role of Ruth

By Cecil Smith.

The dog days of mid-August are not conducive to much exercise of personal initiative, and so when I needed something to do last Monday evening I thought I'd wander over to the Harris theater and see "My Sister Eileen" again, for the fourth or fifth time—I forget which. I entered the theater—slightly bored, but at 10:50 I came out completely invigorated. For "My Sister Eileen" is a delightful comedy indeed, and one which wears well on continued scrutiny.

In 27 weeks the cast has not let down. All the laughs are still there, and all the bubbling vivacity of performance which transforms a good script into an even better play on the stage. Marcy Westcott is back in the part of Eileen now, much more the proper visual type than K. T. Stevens, and certainly a smoother actress. Effie Afton, who did not join the company until some time after that February opening so long ago, is a better loud-mouthed Violet than her predecessor. Gretchen Davidson, whom I saw in her second performance as Helen Wade, was scarcely superior to Priscilla Newton, her predecessor, but she is good to look at, and she will be entirely effective when she overcomes a bit of stiffness.

The other performers, all of whom have been with us for 27 weeks, have not allowed their standard to drop. Guy Robertson is as bumptious and buoyant as ever; Edward Hyans Jr. still keeps the janitor an amusingly uncouth lump of flesh, and the various other men continue to function valuably and divertingly.

• • •

This whole elaborate preamble, however, is primarily an excuse to talk about Audrey Christie. Not enough has been said about her in these months between February and August. Indeed, I doubt whether many actresses of her unusual charm and competence have ever spent so long a time in Chicago with so little suitable reward in the public prints.

Audrey Christie. [Seymour photo.]

I like Miss Christie's performance as Eileen's sister, Ruth, because it is both completely skilful and completely honest. Every one of us has known somebody like Ruth, a girl whose attractiveness of face and figure is considerably eclipsed by her sister's, and who has developed a habitual wise-cracking patter to conceal the considerably sadder emotions she really feels.

The greatest tribute to Miss Christie's performance lies in the fact that most patrons emerge from the theater thinking that Ruth was very brave and very appealing, but not very pretty. The truth, as you will see if you look twice, is that Miss Christie is really very personable indeed, and that she is achieving quite a feat of projection in making us all imagine that her purely physical aspect is somewhat unprepossessing.

• • •

Miss Christie has had time to learn to become a good actress, for she has climbed slowly up the ladder of success. Born in Chicago, she appeared first on the stage as a small child in various dramatic school productions. Before she turned 16 she obtained a little professional experience in vaudeville, and a few months later she found her first New York job in the musical, "Good News." In the subsequent years [she is 29 now] she has divided her time about equally between musical comedy and the non-musical stage. In her early musicals, while she was learning the business of the stage, she made no great stir, altho she played in such successful pieces as "Follow Thru" and "Sweet and Low."

It was the rowdy comedy, "Sailor Beware," which brought Miss Christie into real prominence for the first time. She appeared in this farce in New York, but was not in the Chicago company. Later New York, but not Chicago, saw her in "The Women," which she left in order to play Anna Murphy in "I Married An Angel." Those who saw this sterling musical comedy in 1939 will not have forgotten her exuberant performances of "How to Win Friends and Influence People" and that riotous production song, "At the Roxy Music Hall."

In January, 1937, she married Guy Robertson, who had not yet deserted the singing stage for such plays as "Of Mice and Men," "Petticoat Fever," and "My Sister Eileen." Their one heir, Christie Jane, was born in November, 1939.

Predicting futures for actresses is an uncertain affair, but Audrey Christie ought to have a brilliant future. She has learned her craft well, and she has never suffered the misfortune of being catapulted too quickly into a rôle beyond her capacities. She has, as her press agent says, "come up the hard way," and she has come up a long way, purely and simply because she is infectious and charming, talented and energetic, and perfectly honest about giving her best to every single audience that has paid money to see her.

IN 'MY SISTER EILEEN'

Gretchen Davidson is a new member of the cast of "My Sister Eileen" at the Harris theater, playing Helen Wade, the young wife-to-be from upstairs.

Drury College to Inaugurate New Study Plan

By The Rev. John Evans.

A plan of "personalized education" new to the curriculum of Drury college, Springfield, Mo., will be inaugurated with the opening of school in September. The plan will be based on four major procedures: [1] The discovery of each student's interests thru a thoro counseling program; [2] the adaptation of the curriculum to these interests thru the counselor as guide; [3] the provision of a vocational tryout experience; in a job related to the student's field of concentration, thus offering him an opportunity to correlate classroom theory and practical experience; [4] the establishment of an evaluative process for determining the effectiveness of the program and its future direction.

The counseling program will aim at a close and personal relationship of student and faculty counselor. Bi-weekly conferences will be arranged to provide guidance on both social and educational problems. By this method the curriculum can be adjusted to suit the particular needs and capacities of the student. Special aids will be provided thru a guidance clinic, the administration of objective tests, the maintenance of a complete cumulative record, special counselors in vocational guidance, a revamped extra curricular program looking toward the development of the student's interests and his personal adjustment, and proper placement upon graduation.

• • •

The curriculum will emphasize flexibility. If the student cannot pass a proficiency test in English, this subject will be required. All other courses will be open to the student's choice, based upon careful selection under the guidance of his counselor or major adviser. During the first two years the student will be encouraged to choose a broad, general training by choosing a well distributed selection of courses. During the last two years he will be expected to major in a single department.

To encourage "individualized education" qualified students will be permitted to carry on independent study, take examinations for credit in subject matter on which they have prepared themselves by syllabi or other methods, or register for "honors work." The objective is to encourage the student to progress at his own pace.

• • •

Under the new plan, students at Drury will have an opportunity to "try their wings" in their chosen business or profession while still in college. Arrangements have been made for students to apply the theories learned in classrooms in local business, industrial, and laboratory concerns. It is expected that this working experience will encourage students in assuming responsibility and will provide him with both a broad cultural education and a field of specialization.

The program at Drury aims at the idea of personalized education for individual development and for social living, and strives to provide an education and an opportunity for the full growth of the individual.

VANITIES AT STATE-LAKE

Linda Deane is one of the many beautiful dancers with Earl Carroll's Vanities, which currently holds the stage of the State-Lake theater.

Butterworth to Play in "Western Union, Please"

Returning to the stage via the straw hat theater circuit after several years in films, Charles Butterworth has found a play he is willing to do in New York next fall. It is Albert Hackett's "Western Union, Please," in which the film comedian plays a messenger boy. Richard Myers and Richard Aldrich will sponsor the production. A six or eight week tour in the direction of Chicago prior to the Broadway showing has been planned.

At the State-Lake theater the latest edition of Earl Carroll's Vanities has arrived from the producer's Hollywood theater-restaurant. Among its 60 entertainers are the Wiere brothers, the Slate brothers, Buster Shaver with Olive and George, Jeanne Devereaux, Fay Carroll, Al Norman, Anna Lee, Lois Morrissey, Beverly Carroll, the Dorothy Byton dancers, and, of course, the famous Earl Carroll beauties. "Dance Hall" is the film.

Malko and Naomi Cook Headline Program in Grant Park

Coming Week Offers Variety of Conductors

By Edward Barry.

The Grant park band shell will be the scene tonight of an interesting collaboration between Nicolai Malko and Naomi Cook. The former is the Russian conductor who made his local debut at Ravinia during the season of 1940 and who has since joined the ranks of Chicago's music educators. He has classes in conducting and opera at the Central YMCA college school of music. He returned to Ravinia for a week this summer.

Miss Cook is a Maywood, Ill., soprano who has to her credit several appearances in concert and oratorio and one in opera. She made her debut with the Chicago Opera company last fall as Leonora in "Il Trovatore." She has sung once before in Grant park. Tonight will be the first time she and Malko have worked together. Altho they have little in common besides the fact that they are both good and sincere artists, this alone should insure a highly acceptable concert tonight.

• • •

The remainder of the week offers a variety of conductors and a profusion of soloists.

Nina Serena.

Nina Serena, tomorrow's soprano, is a newcomer to Grant park. She is a Chicagoan with eight years' study abroad to her credit. She has appeared in French and Greek benefit concerts here and in New York. Note the presence of a choral group—a rather rare phenomenon in Grant park—on the Saturday evening program of the Jerzy Bojanowski orchestra.

The Grant park band shell is located on the lake front opposite 11th street. Admission to the concerts is free. Programs for the week follow:

TONIGHT AT 8.

Notes of Music and Musicians

On Wednesday night the Illinois WPA Symphony orchestra will bring to a close its series of eight free, al fresco concerts in the Wilmette amphitheater. The program will be conducted by José Echaniz as have most of the concerts this summer, and he has included on it a composition by his fellow countryman, Amadeo Roldán. It is Fiesta Negra from the "Three Little Poems," which were introduced to Chicago by the same orchestra last December.

Earl Robinson's popular "Ballad for Americans" will be sung with the orchestra by the Chicago WPA Operetta chorus, which will be remembered for its remarkable singing in "The Chimes of Normandy" at the Coliseum last summer. Jack Smith, bass soloist for the cantata, has appeared as Pooh-Bah in a touring company of "The Mikado" and as Ramfis in the Negro National Opera company's production of "Aida."

The program follows:

Overture, "Comes Autumn Time" .. Sowerby
Symphony No. 4, F Minor, Opus 36 .... Tschaikowsky
"Ballad for Americans" ...... Earl Robinson
Jack Smith.
Fiesta Negra, from "Three Little Poems" .... Roldán
Marche Slav, Opus 31 .... Tschaikowsky

Harold Cobb, regularly the organist and choirmaster for Sinai temple, will give an organ recital in the First Unitarian church, 57th street and Woodlawn avenue, this morning at 11. His program lists Herbert Howells' Psalm Prelude, Opus 32; Dupré's Quatrième Versets des Psaumes; Vierne's Arabesque, and four chorale preludes by Karg-Elert. Next Sunday morning the organ recitalist will be Robert Woodman Wadsworth.

A. F. Thaviu will conduct his band in Lincoln park tonight, one of the three free park concerts sponsored this week by the Chicago Federation of Musicians. He will have as his soloists Frida Savini, soprano, and Enrico Clausi, tenor. The second concert will be given by Col. Armin F. Hand and his American Legion band in Jackson park tonight, when Henry Thompson, tenor, will be the soloist. On Friday night the Chicago Woman's Concert band will give the third concert in the Garfield park band shell. This ensemble is under the direction of the able Lillian Poenisch, who also is founder-president of the Woman's Symphony orchestra. Soloists on her concert will be Teresa Ferrio, soprano; Genevieve Kaleth, trumpeter, and Emily Poska, clarinetist. Miss Poska will play Weber's Concertino for clarinet and orchestra. These park concerts are free and start at 8 p. m.

Jascha Heifetz, violinist, whose appearances with the Chicago Symphony had to be canceled last season because of a minor operation, will play with the orchestra next spring on March 26 and 27.

Aldo Bortolotti, one of the efficient drummers with the Grant park bands, also is the conductor of the Chicago Postoffice band. This organization performs the thoughtful task of giving concerts at the various homes for the sick and the aged in and around Chicago. For example, on Sept. 7, Mr. Bortolotti will conduct the band at the Oak Forest Infirmary and on Sept. 23 at Hines hospital. The programs consist of lively marches, operatic overtures and potpourris, and popular numbers by such representative composers as Offenbach, Lehar, Borowski, Drigo, Gounod, Gomez, and Sousa. On Aug. 29 Mr. Bortolotti will appear as guest conductor for the Anton Hellstem band at the Navy Pier.

The St. Louis Municipal Opera company concludes its 23d annual season at the Municipal Open Air theater in Forest park with the American stage première of "Balalaika." The operetta, of European origin, has already been transferred to the screen with Ilona Massey and Nelson Eddy in the leading rôles. In St. Louis it will be given from Monday thru next Sunday.

'San Antonio Rose' a Pert Musical Film

"SAN ANTONIO ROSE."
Produced by Universal.
Directed by Charles Lemont.
Coming to Neighborhood Theaters.

THE CAST.

Hope Holloway	Jane Frazee
Con Conway	Robert Paige
Jigsaw Kennedy	Lon Chaney Jr.
Gabriel Trent	Eve Arden
Benny the Bounce	Shemp Howard
Nick Ferris	Luis Alberni
Mona Mitchell	Mary Lou Cook
The Merry Macs	by Themselves

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Here's a right pert little comedy with music. It features the Hut Sut song and the Merry Macs who know how to sing it, and there's that Eve Arden to lend the piece the sure and experienced comedy touch with which she invariably blesses productions featuring her.

• • •

Don't get the idea that the Hut Sut ditty's the only song the picture has. Heavens NO! It's alive with catchy tunes, well sung, and laughs—well, my dears, you should have heard the audience I heard!

Silly story—but who cares! All about two girl entertainers down on their luck and two racketeers, equally so, who buck each other in the café business. . . . Like this—the gals fall heir to a roadhouse—in manner the film shall show you—and are soon plenty pestered by the racketeers who run a rival joint. . . . How Con Conway and his band enter the scheme of things to take sides with the girls, how Conway falls in love with Hope, how Gabriel [funny name for a girl] shows a pair of tough guys how to be really tough—and a lot of other hows are engagingly detailed by a cast of peppy young people whose work is backgrounded by the experienced acting of Shemp Howard and Luis Alberni.

• • •

Action is fast, completely incredible, and LOADS of fun.

"San Antonio Rose" is just the movie to lend your blues a devastating touch of rose color.

See you tomorrow.

STARS OF 'MANPOWER'

SEE WITH YOUR OWN EYES

YOU'LL WANT THESE BOOKS! You'll want them not merely because you'll want to read and re-read their deeply absorbing pages, but because you'll know that the huge fund of information in them is equivalent to many years of intensive study and wide travel to places that few men have ever seen—an enormous stock of background knowledge of the world that is exactly what a college education seeks to give—culture and broad knowledge that every man and woman in the world today needs to get ahead, to win and hold the attention and respect of others, to bolster self-confidence and esteem—to KNOW MORE, and hence have the power to GAIN MORE!

You'll want these books, and we are giving you the opportunity to SEE WHY with your own eyes!

SEND NO MONEY

Just mail in the coupon at left—and in a few days BOTH volumes will be delivered to you. When the books arrive, you simply deposit the small sum of $2.00 with the postman. Then, after reading and examining the volumes, if you don't think they are the very finest of their kind you have ever seen—simply return them to us in five days. We immediately return your deposit in FULL—and you have lost nothing!

On the other hand, if you do want to keep the volumes, your first $2.00 deposit becomes your first payment, and you merely send us $2.00 each month thereafter until you have paid the amazingly low price of only $7.95 IN ALL, plus postage—and this special low price is not for one, but BOTH BOOKS!

How can we give you so much for so little? . . . It is because through fortunate circumstances, the original plates being in England, we have gained the American rights to these extraordinary books, plus duplicate plates, at a ridiculously low royalty. First published, the original plating and editorial work on these tremendous volumes could cost no less than FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS—and this sum, liquidated even on so large an edition as five thousand would ordinarily ADD NO LESS THAN TEN DOLLARS to the cost of each set.

Mail Coupon! Act Now! Quantities Limited!

YOU ARE GETTING THESE VOLUMES AT LESS THAN HALF THEIR USUAL PRICE! When you use the coupon at left you are actually SAVING TEN DOLLARS on what should be a legitimately low price on the set.

Yes—use the coupon at left AT ONCE! The number of sets we have on hand is not large, and we cannot guarantee to supply your needs unless you act quickly. THAT COUPON IS WORTH TEN DOLLARS TO YOU. So use it without delay. You gamble nothing—and the least you can gain is to see this latest wonder in the world of knowledge.

AN ANSWER IS REQUESTED

By Diana Maugham

(Copyright: 1941: News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

AS THE AUTHOR of several treatises on the effects of alcohol on the human brain, my friend William has the most discriminating taste in brandy.

"Blunting of self-criticism," I said as I passed the bottle, "paralysis of the higher mental functions, gross impairment of sense perception, and skilled movement passing by degrees into heavy inertia and sleep."

"Don't forget the effect on the kidneys," he said cheerfully, cupping the glass in his square, capable looking hands.

"I am not likely to, after your revolting pamphlet, 'Alcohol and You.' I couldn't touch drink for a week. It amazes me what doctors get away with."

"You've been reading 'The Citadel.'"

"I have not. I was brought up in the 'always tell the truth to your doctor and your lawyer' school. I am so soaked in the literature of old village doctors struggling thru blinding storms with their black bags that I couldn't doubt the word of a medical man now if I tried."

"The perfect patient," William said. "It's a pity you're so seldom ill. If everybody told their doctor the truth the world would be a better place."

"But surely you can tell easily enough when a patient is lying to you?"

"I used to think so. As a young man human nature seemed to me almost pathetically simple. After 30 years' experience I am not so sure."

"Nonsense," I said. "You know you've got the eye of a gimlet. I wouldn't care to try and slip anything past you. Who has been telling you fibs, anyway?"

He sighed, and reached for the bottle.

"A man. Or a woman."

"You don't know which?"

"I do not."

There was silence, and I waited patiently.

"O, all right then. I suppose I may as well tell you. But you needn't expect one of those gripping tales of human drama you can write up with an ingenious twist for your Sunday paper. A woman's soul laid bare beneath the microscope, or anything of that sort. Because the story hasn't got an ending and it hasn't got a point, unless the point is that I'm getting past my work.

Takes Over Work of an Old Friend

"It happened while I was in Birmingham, and for some reason I can't put it out of my mind. Perhaps if I tell you the whole business it will stop worrying me. You see the trouble is I don't like being fooled. But there's more than that I don't like.

"You know Cotterill? Well, you met him once at dinner. He's an old friend of mine, altho we meet very seldom as his practice is in Birmingham. He was laid up in August with a most unseasonable go of flu, and his wife was worried about him. I was half way thru my summer holiday at the time, and you know I get fed up with any holiday after the first week, so I was really rather pleased to receive their S. O. S. and dash off to have a look at him, and take over his share of the practice until he was on his feet. He was thoroly overtired, and as soon as he was out of bed, I persuaded him to take 10 days by the sea with his wife while I carried on. Most of his richer patients were away, and altho his young partner was able to go off on a fishing trip the day I arrived, I wasn't overworked.

"It was the day Cotterill left that I received a telephone call from a Mme. de Guise, who desired an appointment. I explained that Dr. Cotterill and his partner were both away, and that I was doing their work and she sounded disappointed. She explained that she was not an old patient, in fact she had seen no doctor in England, but she heard so much about Dr. Cotterill in the neighborhood that she had decided to consult him. She had a very charming voice on the telephone, low, and with the very slightest French accent. After a short conversation she said that she would like to see me, and I told her I would expect her the following morning in the consulting room at 11.

"I take a good look at people when they first walk in—one can learn so much sometimes from a patient's walk, and the way they shake hands, and you must believe me when I say that this was the most beautiful woman I have ever set eyes on. She had enormous blue eyes and dark hair, and a pale oval of a face. In spite of her pallor she had a skin like a baby, and I was astonished when she told me that she was 35; she looked so much younger. I received the impression that she was nervous, altho her manner was distinctly grande dame. She had an air about her as if she were accustomed to walk into the most expensive restaurants, and receive the attention that was her due. Not at all condescending, you understand, but gracious, poised. It made me rather sorry for her because I had a sort of feeling that she was not going to enjoy telling me whatever it was she had come to see me about.

"He made such a violent scene that the management had requested them to leave."

"As it happened I was wrong. She had come with a perfectly ordinary tale of tiredness, of sleeping badly and of suffering from 'nerves.' When I pressed her for details she said that she started at sudden noises, and struggled with a more or less constant desire to weep. She had lost a little weight recently, but nothing alarming, and her principal trouble was insomnia. She had tried a few mild remedies for this, but with little success, and she felt that it was time to obtain a thoro overhaul.

"When she finished what she had to say I made a careful examination, and could find no trace of organic disease. She lit a cigaret and watched me in silence while I proceeded to write out a prescription for one of the less useless tonics, and a mild sedative to be taken at bedtime.

"'These should help you a little,' I said. 'But I daresay you have realized for yourself that there is nothing wrong with you that can be put right by something out of a bottle. You must take yourself in hand and this state of affairs must not be allowed to continue. If there is not a marked improvement by the time I see you next I am going to suggest that you go to a psychiatrist. If you have a real determination to get well, there is a person I know who will be able to help you. I hope you have, because life can hardly be worth living at the moment, can it?'

"She shook her head, and the tears began to trickle down her face.

"I said, 'Hadn't you better tell me what is on your mind?'

"She snatched a handkerchief out of her bag, and pressing it against her face began to sob violently.

"I waited patiently, and after a while she regained her self-control and said that she was extremely sorry to behave in such a way, but that I had sounded so sympathetic. Then she said abruptly, 'All right, I'll tell you if you like, but there is nothing you can do about it, or anybody else.'

"I suggested that she had better let me decide that, and told her to start at the beginning. My injunction, as usual, was wasted, because she began in the middle, and jumped to and fro so rapidly that I had the greatest difficulty in following what country she was speaking of, let alone which period in her life.

"The story, however, took shape fairly clearly. She had been married for some five years to a French business man. They were distant cousins, and had played together as children in the house of some relation at Versailles. I gathered that it was an old family, now proudly impoverished, and that young Louis de Guise had met with tremendous opposition when he wished to go into trade to restore the fallen fortunes. However, he was young and handsome, and his mother's pet, and the family soon came around, especially since he showed a remarkable aptitude for making money. When she met her cousin again at a party in Paris he was doing very well indeed, and it was regarded as a most suitable match on every side. In spite of family arrangements and careful planning, theirs was no marriage of convenience.

"They were violently attracted to each other the first time they met as adults, and altho, she said sadly, they had had no children in five years, she was still in love with him. If only, she said, he were not so jealous. It had started during their honeymoon. He had thought a man was staring at her in the hotel dining room, and he made such a violent scene that the management had requested them to leave. She had not even noticed the man until Louis began his storm, and was completely taken aback.

"Later he apologized, but this was the first of a succession of incidents which were to make her life gradually unbearable. Very soon she discovered that if she were to enjoy any peace at all it was inadvisable for her even to speak to another man, unless Louis were standing at her side. He was jealous of her family, of her religion.

She Tells How Louis Calls Her All Day

"She had fought many battles for a normal life, and sometimes he would seem to be more reasonable, but never for long. His business took him abroad, and they had traveled to many European towns. She enjoyed travel, and would not have minded the perpetual change of background, if only she were allowed to make contacts in each new place. But this Louis flatly refused.

"Lately, she said, he had grown worse. During their stay of three months in Birmingham she had been to one house with him, to visit a business acquaintance. It was there that she had heard of Dr. Cotterill, and the name had stuck in her memory. Her hostess and various other women at the party had tried to be friendly, but Louis would not allow her to accept their invitations.

"She had been sitting all day in their furnished flat, alone except for the maid, and frightened to go out. 'Because now,' she said, and the tears returned to her eyes, 'he rings me up all day from wherever he is, eight times a day sometimes to make sure that I have not left the house. You may call me weak if you like. I am weak, but after five years I cannot fight any longer. His rages are so terrible. I love him too much to run away. It is easier to give in.'

"Well, you can imagine pretty well what I said. I did not wish to frighten her, it was obvious that she was scared enough already, but I pointed out gently that her husband was mentally sick, I think I used the term 'psychological disturbance' to be on the safe side, and insisted that she should get him to a doctor as quickly as she could. I said that I would talk to him myself, and that I felt sure that if she would help me we would be able to persuade him to undergo treatment. I told her that the present state of affairs could not be allowed to continue, for his sake as much as for hers, and that it was of the utmost importance that she should pull herself together and tackle the situation bravely.

"She stared at me piteously, and said that she would not dare tell him that she had been alone to see a doctor, she only prayed that he had not telephoned during her absence, he would be so angry he might do anything. She shivered, and then said in a low voice that sometimes she was afraid he would kill her. I said that in that case the best thing I could do was to see that she was accompanied home by myself and a policeman, and that if he had one of his scenes and became violent, we would place him under restraint.

"She shook her head and cried that I did not understand. It was not his fault, he loved her very much, he did not mean any harm. Finally she calmed down and said that she would confess she had been to a doctor because she felt so very ill, and did not wish to worry him, and she thought he would be too anxious about her to be angry. She would bring him to see me the first day he was free, indeed he would probably insist on coming to hear my opinion, but would I promise not to repeat anything that she had said? Well, I succeeded in convincing her that she must leave that entirely to me, and I had the satisfaction of seeing that she looked a good deal happier when she left me.

"I was very busy the next day, but it did not prevent me from wondering a little about my possible future interview with Monsieur de Guise. She might funk telling him, but somehow I did not think she would. She had promised. When I arrived back about 6:30 the following evening, I half expected to find an indignant paranoiac waiting for me with a revolver. The maid told me that a lady and gentleman had called, the 'lady who was here yesterday' and she had asked them to wait, since she knew that I was due back about seven. I hurried into the consulting room, and as the maid showed them in I can assure you I was prepared for almost anything.

"But not for Louis de Guise. He looked even younger than his wife, a mere boy, and his fair good looks and shy, charming smile were a perfect foil for her more tragic type of beauty. He gripped me by the hand, and burst out before I even had time to ask them to be seated. 'My wife? How do you find her? She is not truly ill? I will not believe until I hear you say.' His English was far from perfect, but it improved later as he became less agitated. I glanced at her, but she dropped her eyes quickly.

"'Please sit down,' I said, and smiled at him. 'I examined your wife yesterday, and you will be pleased to hear that I could find nothing organically wrong. You have no cause for alarm. But I think that she is run down, out of sorts.' I racked my head unnecessarily for a French phrase. 'Pas dans son assiette,' I managed. 'I felt that you and I should be able to put our heads together and discover some way of restoring madame to her usual health and spirits.'

"My voice sounded curiously unconvincing to my ears, but he seized on my words eagerly. He took his wife's hand and said earnestly, 'Monsieur, I am at your service. For long, long now I have been worried about my wife. I have begged her to see a doctor, but she would not. Tell me what to do and I will do it. She is not happy, she is not right in herself, but when I talk she will not listen. Vrai, cherie?' He cocked one eyebrow at her, and I could have sworn that the look which he gave her was of utmost tenderness. She smiled, but did not reply. I said:

"'What can you suggest yourself, monsieur, as a possible cause of your wife's—er—indisposition?'

"'Is it, perhaps, the travel?' he said, and his puzzled looking blue eyes sought mine. 'I have asked myself that many times of late. She has no foyer of her own, no—' He hesitated, and I felt sure that he was about to say no children. 'No home of her own. It is not a good life for a woman. But next year I stay with my firm in Paris. We need not wander any more. But Yvonne is not happy at that notion either.'

Doctor's Thrust Takes Effect

"I cleared my throat, and said with all the authority I could muster:

"'In my view the principal trouble with your wife is that she does not go out and about enough, see enough people, distract herself. Now I know,' I hurried on, 'that your wife is a very home loving person. She has told me herself how happy she is by her own fireside. It is quite against her wishes that I should say this, but I consider, as a doctor, that it is my duty to advise her to go more into society, and I should be glad of your opinion in the matter.'

"He clapped his hands together like a child, and turning to his wife said in tones of delight, 'Tu ecoutes? Tu entens ce que dit le medicin? Monsieur—' he turned to me, 'If you can persuade my wife in this matter I shall be eternally grateful. She may listen to you, where she will not pay attention to her husband. Make her go out. Make her see people. It is not good to sit and brood all day. For a young and lovely woman it is the way to illness. I cannot be with her all the time. I must work in the day. I ring up when I can, because I know that she is alone and sad, but I cannot telephone all the time. She should be occupied. Even in a strange city there are places to go. I have business connections, I do not say their wives are of the most gay, the most brilliant, but they are kind hearted, they give little parties. It is better Yvonne should be bored sometimes in company than sit alone and weep. Is it not so?'

"I agreed with him as heartily as I could, altho I was feeling distinctly at a loss. The interview was proceeding so little according to plan that I was uncertain what to say next. I looked at Madame de Guise, we both looked at her, but she kept her eyes fixed on her lap. Her hands were clasped, she was twisting them slowly together. I said boldly:

"'Perhaps your wife feels that you would not be altogether happy if she made too many friends, became too social. After all madame is a very exceptional looking lady, one would

What Has Gone Before

Nora Riley, whose uncle Lem Goodal, has just struck gold, receives a letter from Jim Chambers, an honest old truck driver, who asks her to meet him secretly near her uncle's mine at Seven Troughs as he has dangerous information to divulge. Enroute to Winnemucca in her car she is followed by a man in another car and while stopping for gas her follower also stops and manages to put sugar in her radiator. Far out in the wilderness her car stalls. She halts an on-speeding car and forces the driver to give her a lift. The driver is Hugh Shannon and tho she likes his looks, she is afraid when she hears the radio in his car broadcast his description as a man wanted for robbery. They are pursued by another car whose occupants fire at them but when they reach Winnemucca the pursuit stops. She tells Curly, a cowboy with whom she thinks she is in love, about her wild ride but does not tell him of Jim's note. She does not quite believe Curly when he tells her Hugh Shannon must be a dangerous criminal. That night she goes to meet Jim at the mine and sees a strange car and hears voices inside the pump house. Then a dull blow and a body falling. She is sure she had heard a murder committed.

She listened to the scraping of their feet on the dry earth, and after that . . . "Take him to that second canyon."

INSTALMENT III.

FOR some moments after that deep groan the only sound which Nora heard was her own breathing. It seemed very loud to her; it seemed as if the murderer, who was standing less than a yard away with only those sun-warped boards between them, must hear it. She wanted to scream; the desire was so overwhelming that she pressed her hand against her lips.

Chambers was dead. . . . She had heard the sound of the blow which killed him, and she had heard him die. He had come here to meet her and he had been murdered because of the letter which he had written her. He realized the danger he was running; she remembered his words:

"—becaus what I am going to tel you is dinamite and I am on the spot—"

He was not—he had not been—much when it came to spelling and he had known still less of punctuation, but he had known how to do the right thing.

Heat lightning leaked across the horizon, revealing for an instant ragged summits lying as black as ink against the sky, the skeleton frame work of the windmill, the motionless wheel. A dull rumble of distant thunder followed. Some one was moving behind the board wall. A voice said:

"Well, that's that!"

Another man was laughing softly. "He was sure surprised when he walked in and saw us waiting for him." The sound of bootheels on the loose floor followed, then, "Look at his face, Monk. He ain't gotten over the surprise yet."

The first voice was a rasping bass, the other was pitched a little higher, one of those smooth, persuasive voices which usually go with good looks and cold blood. While she was listening to them, Nora's mind caught a picture.

The thing had happened more than two weeks ago. She had been telling Curly how different this western country was from what she had expected.

"Mining camps," he had said, "are that-a-way. The men that follow a rich strike nowadays are mostly mechanics out of work and dust bowlers and the like. I'll take yo' down to Seven Troughs some time and show yo' the real thing." And they had driven to the hamlet a few evenings later.

Clumps of sagebrush grew between the wheel tracks, and there was an old corral. Half a dozen young fellows were lounging on the dusty earth before the bars. They wore loudly colored shirts, five gallon hats, and high heeled boots, and one of them—he was dark haired and his shirt was a bright magenta—was playing a guitar; he was singing "Casey Jones." Keyes was his name and he seemed to be on familiar terms with Curly.

She was just beginning to sense a vague association of ideas, she was very near to a perception which would have saved her from some ugly experiences later on, when she heard her own name spoken and the picture vanished from her mind.

"It's me, Miss Riley," the smooth voice was mimicking Jim Chamber's slow drawl. "Then he opened the door and did you see how his mouth flew open!"

Another flash of heat lightning. It was more vivid than the first. It showed the network of sun cracks on the flat and the sand dunes which had been the shore of the old lake. A peal of thunder shook the air. Nora felt a sudden nausea. The voice within the pumphouse went on:

"It's a good thing I didn't like the way he acted when we propositioned him about hauling those two sacks of high grade ore to Winnemucca. If it hadn't been for that, I'd never of noticed when he gave the storekeeper the letter to hand to the stage driver. It didn't look right with the post-office close by; why couldn't he mail his letters there instead of sending 'em to Winnemucca? And if the storekeeper hadn't gone out to hoist a few drinks, I wouldn't of had the chance to open the envelope."

High grade. That meant stolen ore. Nora's mind was working clearly now.

"Think there's any chance of that girl coming to Seven Troughs tonight?" It was Monk's harsh voice. And then Keyes answered smoothly: "Not a chance. She's in luck if she got to Winnemucca. Besides, she won't hear what Chambers was going to tell her."

The glare of lightning that interrupted the speaker was followed almost immediately by a sharp crack of thunder. And, if there was any reply, it was drowned by the crashing echoes of the peal. Several seconds passed before Nora was able to distinguish what they were about inside the little building. She caught the shuffling of footsteps and the door flew open, a stream of yellow radiance gushed forth within a few feet of the spot where she was standing; she heard the thump of a heavy body on the baked earth. The man to whom she had been listening before the uproar of the heavens deafened her was talking.

"All right. Put out that lantern. I'll get the truck."

Nora Barely Escapes Being Discovered

More footsteps and they were quicker now. The stream of light before the doorway winked out. A few moments later a starter whined somewhere in the darkness; a motor roared, it backfired, and the noise startled her so that she would have fallen in the road if she had not caught herself just in time. As it was, she barely managed to draw back into the shelter of the wall before the headlamps came on. That was Jim Chambers' truck; there was no mistaking the rattle of its running gear, the jingling of loose metal. The dry brakes shrieked as it came to a stop before the building. A cab door banged. Keyes' thin voice followed:

"Give me a hand with him." And after a brief silence, "You take the feet, I'll handle this end."

She listened to the scraping of their feet on the dry earth, and after that, to other sounds which left her sick. It came to her that the truck would be passing the spot where she was standing within a few moments; she should have fled long since. She turned and went on tiptoe to the building's rear. The voices were not so distinct here.

"—take him to that second canyon where the sheepmen built a fence last spring."

She wished Curly were here. The wish grew stronger, and the self-reproach she felt when she remembered how near she had come to telling him about that letter, became sharper as the speaker went on:

"Ten-fifteen now. It'll be half an hour before we dump him. We got to step on it to make the mine by midnight. I don't know how you feel about it but I want to be on hand when the blow-off comes." And Monk's harsh bass answered:

"You're telling me. If we ain't there to see those bricks ourselves when the safe is sprung, they'll be able to gyp us. And I wouldn't put it past 'em."

That, Nora told herself, would mean the mill. There wasn't another safe within a hundred miles. And this was Saturday night. Cleanup night. When the afternoon shift went off at 4 o'clock that afternoon the foreman had started scraping the mixture of gold and quicksilver from the plates; at 6 o'clock her uncle had taken the amalgam from him and put it into an iron retort. By this time the little golden bricks would be cooled and he would have placed them in the safe. She remembered the scene in the Humboldt hotel office when she had walked into the door this afternoon; Curly's words came back to her:

"A grass rope an' a cottonwood limb." And what was it that he had said about the law? "Men, yo' can suit yo'selves. If yo' all wishes to throw in with the sheriff, I ain't got nothing agin' it. But we have got a heap of rope at Seven Troughs, an' we aim to handle——"

She remembered how his voice had trailed off when he had caught sight of her.

Curly had learned of the ore stealing at the mine and he was trying to deal with it according to the old frontier recipe. And, in the meantime, the thieves were after bigger loot. They were planning to get the week's cleanup from the mill tonight. If she had only confided in Curly this afternoon, he would be here now and she would be back in her hotel room where she belonged. The situation would be handled properly.

It was black dark; she could not see the wall of the pumphouse behind which she was crouching. She heard the truck start down the road and she drew a deep breath of relief. In a few moments she would have the place to herself.

And, as she was thinking how she would still have time to drive out to the mine and warn her uncle, the truck brakes squealed; the headlights became motionless; she heard the smooth hard voice, which she had grown to hate.

"Look at that car. There's some one here."

She saw the hired car where she had left it; the sides were gleaming in the stream of radiance which flowed from the truck's headlights. And, as she started running, the lightning flashed again. A voice behind her was shouting.

"It's that girl. There she goes now!"

When Nora heard that voice announcing her discovery the lightning was illuminating the whole flat. She saw the level floor stretching ahead of her; there wasn't a weed upon it; the network of thin cracks, where the hard crust had shrunk under the fervid Nevada sun, was unmarked by a pebble. The whole smooth expanse did not offer cover for a horned toad.

She had a glimpse of the pumphouse on her left and, just beyond it, the bleak metal framework of the windmill outlined against the starless sky. On her right, dunes of loose sand rose from the edge of the plain; they extended like a long succession of billows, to the foot of the range of sawtooth mountains in the east.

A Searching Light Sweeps the Desert

The darkness extinguished everything while that voice was still sounding behind her. But the picture remained vivid, as she had seen it in the preceding instant. She turned, as a rabbit whips aside when the dogs are about to overtake it, and she headed towards the sand dunes.

The two men had left the ignition on when they leaped from the cab of Chambers' truck.

Several seconds had passed since the lightning. If she could reach the sand dunes before the next flash betrayed her whereabouts, there was a good chance for her to hide and slip away. She covered about one-third the distance. She was gasping for breath; her chest felt as if an iron band was tightening about it, her limbs were growing heavy.

A moment later she stumbled and fell to her knees. She crouched there, with one hand implanted on the sun-baked earth. It was the hardest thing she ever did to get to her feet again. And while she was standing there, swaying, fighting for breath, she saw a stream of brilliant light leap thru the blackness which surrounded her.

For a moment she stared at it, uncomprehending. It came from somewhere behind her and it went on by. Tiny motes of dust were moving within it. And while she was looking, it swerved away from her in a wide arc; new areas of plain leaped into sight, they stood forth for an instant and were swallowed again by the night. Then she heard the humming of a motor, and the low purring of the gears, and she realized that the lights came from a pair of headlamps.

She understood the meaning of the silence which had followed that shout a few moments ago. As soon as those two had lost sight of her in the darkness, they had run back to the road and now they were in their own car. The surface of the flat was as smooth as a skating rink, and they were driving in a semicircle in order that the lights might pick her up.

The car was drawing away from her; the sound of the motor ceased and the racketing of the truck dominated everything once more. The sand dunes were somewhere near, out there in the blackness ahead of her. She glanced at the stream of light which was searching for her. It had stopped swinging; it hung for a few seconds motionless, and then it started back along the same wide arc which it had described before; it was moving faster now, it kept on and on and suddenly it enfolded her.

She discovered something black traveling along the earth before her; it was her shadow. The light streamed on beyond it, revealing the sand dunes. It bathed her from head to foot; it seemed as if she could feel the heat of those two glowing lamps, which were speeding toward her now, growing larger as they came.

It was as if the movements of her limbs were automatic. For she was waiting for the end, and when she dodged aside, she was not conscious of doing it. The car roared on past. It was so close that she felt the sting of sand which the wheels flung into her face.

Almost at once her eyes were blinded by a new glare. This came from straight in front. She was looking into another pair of headlights. She heard the snarl of gears in the car behind her. Some one was shouting. She caught the flat report of a revolver.

She stood stock still; her senses had never been as acute as they were in this final moment, but too many things were happening at once; she stood bewildered, trying to grasp the situation while it changed. And when she saw that the new car was about to run her down, it was too late to leap aside.

She had not moved when the climax passed. She was still on her feet and she was conscious of something hard and cold that pressed against her knees. It was the bumper of the car and she was standing between the glaring headlights, looking down at the license plate. She read the printed inscription: Nevada 1940, and the number—9402. A familiar voice was saying:

"It's you again!"

The exclamation was sharpened by surprise but she felt no astonishment when she saw those figures which she had seen that afternoon, and when she looked up into Hugh Shannon's face she accepted his presence as if she had been expecting him. She was weary from trying to understand the reason why things happened to her.

He had leaped out of his car as soon as it had halted and the two of them were facing each other, almost exactly as they had been eight hours before on the Jungo flats.

He was smiling, but there wasn't any doubt about it, the smile was forced; his eyes were filled with grave concern. She drew a deep breath; it was the first full breath since she had started running from the pumphouse, and then her knees gave way; she would have fallen if he had not reached out and taken her in his arms.

She was grateful for the pressure of his body against her own; she was thankful for the tightness of his arms. There was—she became conscious of this now—something hard in one of the hands which supported her. As she glanced down at it, the hand was withdrawn, and she saw the black automatic revolver which he slipped into a coat pocket. She remembered the flat report which she had heard a moment ago.

"You fired that shot?" she asked. He shook his head.

"Not I." And then abruptly, "Who are those fellows?"

Hugh Learns About Murder from Nora

She watched the tail lights of their car drawing together as they receded across the flat. As she was looking, the two red specks swerved in an abrupt curve, then they sped up the road toward Seven Troughs.

"I didn't see them," she told him. "I only heard their voices."

"You heard their voices?" He was frowning and his face was puzzled. She whispered:

"And I heard them kill him."

"So!" He whistled sharply between his teeth. "That's what happened."

"I'm sure of it. I was outside the pumphouse. They were inside, I was standing by the wall. I heard them strike him, and"—her voice faltered—"I heard him moan after he fell."

She would have fallen herself if he had not been holding her. Then she discovered that he had suddenly grown harder; she was conscious of the same quickness in his eyes which she had noted when they were talking on the Jungo road that afternoon. He was wearing a canvas trench coat and a soft hat, its rim was slouched low over his brow, and the gray eyes were glinting under it in the shine of the headlamps. He said:

"We'll go and have a look." All at once, his face softened again, his eyes became gentle. He picked her up, and as he held her cradled in his arms, the feeling of thankfulness returned to her. She murmured:

"I'm so glad you're here!"

He muttered something which she couldn't understand. She closed her eyes and her body relaxed. She was so weary that she could not have taken a step if her life had depended on it. But when he placed her in the seat she managed to say:

"I never thought this afternoon that I'd be riding in this car again."

When they reached the road before the pumphouse Shannon stopped the car; he flung the door open and leaped out, he went to the truck and shut off the ignition, and when the racketing of the motor ceased, Nora felt as if a weight had been lifted from her.

He stepped down from the running board and walked toward the rear of the truck. He stood there looking over the tail gate and Nora saw his face tighten until his lips made a straight thin line. He remained for some time, leaning over the tail gate. He straightened abruptly.

HOT GOLD

"It's Chambers, all right." And then, "Where's your car?"

She pointed without speaking and he vanished in the darkness. She was still wondering how he could have known that Chambers would be here, when Hugh returned with her luggage.

"You're riding with me," he told her as he slid into the driver's seat. "You can send for that car tomorrow."

It was raining steadily now; fine drops that made a thin film on the windshield; he was staring at the film; he seemed to be talking to himself.

"How did you know?" she gasped. He glanced at her; he said:

"You're shivering." He stretched one long arm over the top of the seat and got a gaudy Navajo blanket. When he had wrapped it around her, "You've taken more than your share tonight," he told her gruffly. And, if he had not been so intent on his own business he might have broken down the last barriers of her suspicion then. A little frankness would have done it. But he was frowning at his wrist watch. He muttered:

"An hour and a half to midnight. I've got to step on it."

A moment later they were speeding off in the gray pathway of rain which the headlights revealed and Nora was thinking of the voice which had come from the dash radio that afternoon.

"Wanted for robbery," the voice had said. Was he racing to another robbery now?

When Curly left the office of the Humboldt hotel to go up to his room with Nora that afternoon, one of the men before the bar said to his neighbor:

"Search me." The other shrugged his shoulders.

With which the pair dismissed the matter from their minds, as those about them had already done, and turned their attention to news of a rumored tungsten strike over in the Sawtooth country. The most of them had spent their lives in the deserts and the mountain ranges west of the continental divide, and if any one had taken a poll of the gathering on the question of Curly, he would have found unanimous confirmation of the first speaker's opinion.

Like William White Bird, none in that line bore any resemblance to the westerner whom Hollywood has invented, but there was a tradition of the sagebrush country which they all observed. It was included in four words: Mind your own business. Now that the man of mystery had departed, they proceeded to do this at once.

It was a few minutes past 3 o'clock when the elevator descended to the street floor with Curly as a passenger, and within five minutes, he was driving westward on the paved highway. When he had told Nora that he was going to Reno, he had been truthful, and it was, as he had said, on business. She would have suffered her first large disillusionment and one of her most cherished dreams would have been shattered that afternoon instead of a few days later on.

The car was large, a late model; the paint was unscratched, there wasn't a dent on any of the fenders, and these facts were a source of never ending wonder to those who had seen it tearing along the dirt roads in the mountains around Seven Troughs during the past three months. He was lollying back in the seat, his full face was placid, but there was no placidity in the features of other drivers whom he passed on the highway.

"I only heard their voices . . . and I heard them kill him."

During the long straight stretches across the Humboldt flats, which lie west of Winnemucca, the speedometer needle sometimes hovered beyond the 90 mile mark; when the big sedan entered the winding interval where the road has been gouged into the sun-baked mountainsides, just east of Reno, the needle subsided grudgingly, but it seldom sank below 70.

More than 20 years before, in the days when he was first breaking into newspaper headlines as an enigma, he had found this sort of driving a sure aid to coveted publicity. It had helped him in those lean days when he was fighting for a toehold to climb from the obscurity of a circus roustabout to a position in the public eye where he could contact the multitude of credulous, well to do easterners who were beginning to appear in southern California. Thereafter, speed had remained a habit. But this afternoon, it was essential.

When he departed from the Reno garage, where he left the car with instructions for lubrication and gas, he glanced at his platinum wrist watch and told himself:

"That's cutting it close." It was, in fact, shaving it extremely fine. Before he had registered at that same hotel from which Nora had departed nine hours earlier, a hired cabin monoplane was settling down on the long runway of the airport at the western edge of town. Its solitary passenger might have been ahead of Curly if it hadn't been for the fact that the former had to wait a few minutes for a cab; as it was, he reached the hotel shortly after Curly had established himself within.

A thick-bodied man, a trifle under medium height, with small, restless black eyes, oversized nose, and a tight buttonhole mouth, he was extremely dressed, but the up to the minute tailoring wasn't altogether successful; there was something in the way he wore his clothes which proclaimed that he wasn't meant to be well groomed.

And this was borne out by the untidiness of his hair, which refused to remain sleeked back over a bald patch of crown. There was nothing spectacular in his appearance; there was, in fact, a hint of innate meanness in the general ensemble, and in the tight mouth more than a hint of ruthlessness. When he had departed from the room clerk's wicket and vanished in the elevator, the wise looking bell captain sidled up to the desk.

"That," the clerk said, "is Larry Miller." And the bell captain said:

"Who's going to be taken to the cleaner's now?"

In various manners the same question had been asked many times by men in western mining towns. More than one judge had asked it of himself upon the bench, and with reluctant acquiescence to the law's requirements, had answered it to the sorrow of some hapless respondent whose good faith was greater than his legal perspicacity. This sort of thing had been going on for several years, and since the rise of gold to thirty-five dollars an ounce, the name of Larry Miller had been spoken thruout the intermountain country with very much the same peculiar trepidation that the name of Al Capone had gotten further east a few years before.

At his knock, Curly went to the room door; charlatan and buccaneer gripped each other by the hand. As soon as the door had closed they sat down and Miller asked:

"How's it going now with Goodal?"

"He's drunk by the third drink, and that's an hour after breakfast." Curly shook his head. "Whiskey's had him licked for more than 20 years. But what good does that do me? As soon as he gets tight he gets stubborn, and, the longer it keeps on, the more onery he grows. I've been sticking with him pretty nigh four months and he'd give me the shirt off'n his back if I asked for it. I reckon I'm the only man he ain't suspicious of, and that's only because I slipped him twenty dollars one night in Goldfield when he couldn't rustle eating money off of anybody else."

"I know," Miller interrupted quietly. "I was counting on that. The law of Nevada on grubstakes is right down our alley. If you'd only gotten him to sign some sort of acknowledgment, we'd be sitting pretty right now."

"He's done acknowledged it a hundred times," Curly said. "But he won't put it down on paper. He says his word's good. He shies off like a skeered colt. And, if I try an' get at him on the other angle, it's as bad. Whenever I mention how it might be smart if he was to take advantage of yo'r offer and stake himself so that he could handle that mine the way it ort to be done, instid of gophering, the way he does it now, he lays his ears back. It ain't that he don't want to do it either; he's losing half his rich ore, those miners are stealing him blind. That part of it is working out mighty nice. He's all stove up from prospecting in them hills and fighting booze, an' he's anxious to take life easy. But he's passed his word to some feller that got there before I did, same as I done told yo' when we had our last talk, an' he won't go back on it. Not onless the other party fails to come thru. It is," he sighed, "like butting my haid agin a stone wall."

"The name of that other party," Miller said, "is Shannon."

"Never heard of him," Curly replied, which was a lie.

Curly Pretends He Is Surprised

"No reason you should," the other went on quietly. "He's working for a Texas oil man, name of McCarthy. When gold went up, this oil man started to look for mining properties, and sent Shannon to Nevada. Shannon contacted Goodal, and the two made a verbal agreement. According to its terms, McCarthy was to sign papers to buy the mine on an option basis, quarter of a million dollars down. That's what happened before you came to the mine.

"Shannon went away and talked it over with his oil man. He was due at the mine today with that option contract and the check. Midnight's the deadline. That's why I phoned you last night. I'd managed to get my information just in time. That is, if you tended to your end of it."

"So that was the man you wanted picked up!" Curly pretended surprise. "It's been looked after. The broadcast went out this afternoon. When I left Winnemucca, Shannon was bottled up there. The boys was camped in front of the hotel. Minute he gets out of town, they'll tend to him. I'll be at the mine bright an' early in the mo'nin' an' I'll have Goodal signed up before yo're out of bed."

"I'll feel easier when you phone that he's signed," Miller said. "And before you clear out, there's another matter. I don't know who's handling it, but some one's started a new investigation about high grading. I'm told they're going to check up on my Carson City mill. As soon as you get back to the mine, tell Keyes we're not handling another ounce of hot gold till further notice."

"Which yo' ain't hurtin' my feelin's none," Curly replied. "I never did like the idea of sending that bunch of Los Angeles mobsters to Seven Troughs."

"They accomplished something," Miller reminded him coldly. "That's more than you've done so far. When they began buying stolen ore, the miners started looting. And, if it hadn't been for that, Goodal would have given up the idea of selling the property after he struck that thousand dollar ore shoot last month."

"Long as they was content with fencing stolen high grade," Curly said, "it was okay. But they're gettin' itchy. The other day I found out they was figurin' on knockin' over the mill after the weekly cleanup. But I put a stop to that." He rose from his chair. "I'll tell Keyes to lay off. And now I'm on my way. I've got to drive out to the mine tonight."

AN ANSWER IS REQUESTED

understand—' I paused, seeking the right words, and Louis de Guise burst suddenly into laughter. It was a most infectious sound.

"Ca c'est le comble,' he said. 'No, really you will forgive my laughing, but when I consider the hours I have spent trying to persuade Yvonne to enjoy herself, it is too much to be pictured as the disapproving husband. Seriously monsieur,' he leaned toward me, and the laughter died out of his face. 'You will understand that I am not a mari complaisant. I am a normal, jealous man. But if one loves a woman as I love my wife, and sees her growing quieter, thinner, more unhappy day by day, I assure you that one feels that there can be worse evils in life even than a lover.'

"There was silence in the room and Madame de Guise stood up suddenly.

Promises to Call for Appointment

"'The doctor is a busy man, Louis,' she said. 'He has told us what he thinks and we should not keep him any longer.' She held out her hand, and I was forced to take it. For an instant I was on the point of urging her to speak out, but her eyes implored me to be silent.

"'I shall see you again,' I said. 'If you will make an appointment for next week, shall we say Monday? By then we shall know if my prescriptions are having effect.'

"'But certainly. I will telephone you.'

"Her voice sounded flat. It was as if all the life had gone out of it. I knew as she spoke that she had no intention of coming back.

"Her husband shook me firmly by the hand, and assured me that he would make it his business to see that his wife followed my directions.

"He stood aside to let her pass, and as she reached the door she gave me a fleeting look over her shoulder. It was a most curious glance. I felt as I met her eyes that she was pleading for something. Apologizing, perhaps. I don't know. It might have been despair."

William shrugged his shoulders.

"But surely," I protested, "that can't be the end. You must know. You must have formed some conclusion. You never saw her again?"

"I told you it was an unsatisfactory tale. Of course I informed Cotterill on his return, but he had never heard of them. He sent in the bill to the address Madame de Guise had given me, and received a check several weeks later from Genoa. He wrote to tell me, knowing my interest in the matter, but there was no message accompanying it; not even the usual brief thanks. The check was honored, and that is the end of the story."

"I won't believe it," I cried. "You must have some idea which was lying."

"I assure you I have none. That is the devil of it. I only know that I am damn sorry for the one who was speaking the truth."

The Answer Is Yet to Be Found

We were both silent.

Then I said, "With your permission I will write it exactly as you have told it to me, with the slight alteration of name and place."

"And a fat lot of good that will do either of us."

"I am not so sure about that," I said. "You see, I am a journalist and an optimist. Perhaps they are synonymous. I only know that the magic ripple of the printed word is great, and your mysterious couple don't exist in a void.

"I believe that if I write this story and it is published, one day, somewhere, from Birmingham or Bronx, somebody is going to write and tell me the answer."

Wave of Spanish Dancers Engulfs Chicago Night Clubs

Carmen Amaya at Chez Paree Latest Addition

By Will Davidson.

When that electric little dancing genius, Antonio — one of the Kids from Seville—said that jitterbugs are to American dances what the gypsies are to Spain's, he hit upon a most logical explanation of the increasing popularity in this country of Spanish and Latin dance forms.

Antonio and his tiny and beautiful young cousin, Rosario, come onto the Empire room floor in the Palmer House and dance with a fire and a spirit that lifts their work above the level of a mere repetition of a good dance pattern. They are, like the American jitterbug, dancing without thinking, following a general motif but enhancing it with whatever diversions the spirit prompts.

Now we have Carmen Amaya, perhaps the most talked of single dancer in America today. With her sisters and her cousins and her aunts as a staccato tempo beating background, she flashes across the Chez Paree floor like a wraith out of hades—elemental, volcanic, completely uninhibited. Where the Kids from Seville are gay, passionate, and fresh, Amaya is violent, primitive, and sulphurous. And if any more adjectives are necessary, you might add vicious. Sex appeal does not enter into her magnetic hold upon an audience, for her approach to dancing is strongly masculine. But there is a dynamic quality about her that makes her impulsive interpretations a spectacular thing to watch.

Still another form of Spanish dancing will be exploited here by a fiery little girl named Diossa Costello. She comes to the Rhumba Casino Sept. 3, and those who saw her in "Two Many Girls" know what to expect—a whirling, flashing expression of sheer energy about as stylized as a hurricane. Costello is not of the same cloth as the Kids or Amaya. But in her class she's an artist, a rampaging Romany rug cutter.

An adroit master of tongue-in-the-cheek magic is Russell Swann. All the hokum the average magician uses with solemn mien, he uses for what it is — hokum. And when his tricks come off you are not only surprised, but delighted. The new entertainer at the Drake's Camellia House has long been a favorite around Chicago, and many of his amusingly familiar stunts are still there. For instance; Max, the very independent cobra, who selects the gentleman's card; the completely annihilated rope that would be a good trick if it went back together, but doesn't; the prop banana with zippered peels; the rabbit that won't hypnotize, but does finally disappear. But best of all is the lemon trick. Getting a one, a five, a ten, a twenty, and a fifty dollar bill from the audience, Swann transports them into a fresh lemon, which when cut open reveals the juicy currency. Any one can make money disappear, and lots of people can make it reappear. But it takes an engaging deceiver like Swann to get that much money out of any café crowd.

New shows dot the café horizons. The Chez Paree has Amaya, Cross and Dunn, Sara Ann McCabe, Christine Forsythe, and the Four Hollywood Blondes; The Blackhawk has Jean Richey, roller skating star, along with Art Jarrett; The Bismarck's Walnut room has Don and Jane Ford, dancers, Gene Fields, mimic, the Jane Hadley dancers, and Jimmy Joy's band.

Coming Friday night to the Panther room are Lionel Hampton's orchestra, Billie Holliday, singer, and Sun and Sonny, dancers. On Sept. 4 Griff Williams opens in the Empire room of the Palmer House, with a show featuring Raye and Naldi, the Three Nonchalants, Johnny Woods, satirist, and the Abbott dancers. Popular Del Courtney comes back to the Stevens Continental room Sept. 13.

Bowelling the Bistros: Advantage-out-of-Adversity note: When fire destroyed the roof of Albert Bouche's Villa Venice club it was quite a blow. But the show goes on under a canvas canopy that actually adds a roomy, colorful touch to the suburban garden spot . . . The Rhumba Casino has moved its bar up to the balcony, providing more table space, and in a week will have a separate entrance for this new subdivision, which will be called the Rhumbabar . . . Don Pedro, Monchito, and Fernando Canay, are providing some elegant Latin music there, by the way.

Out of the west comes a lyrical Lochinvar to play at Melody Mill ballroom. He's Ralph Barlow, and a chance audition in Omaha netted him a Sept. 17 date for an indefinite run . . . Mary Ann Courtney, wife of Delightful Del, has the lead in a summer stock play in Williams Bay, Wis. . . . Dick Jurgens drew more than three thousand persons into the Aragon ballroom on his triumphant return week-end. . . . The Latin trend has engulfed the Glass Hat of the Congress hotel, with Vincent Bragale's orchestra doing the engulfing . . . After signing away practically every right I had, except the right to breathe, in order to get an apartment, I recognize added meaning in that phrase "a new lease on life." On my life.

RHUMBA CASINO DANCER

Christine Carol, long familiar as one of the most beautiful line girls in Chicago's top flight cafes, is one of the Pan-American dancers whose routines add so much to the shows at the new Rhumba Casino.

Notes of the Theater

John Golden celebrated his 25th anniversary as a producer in New York last week. On Aug. 17, 1916, he staged the comedy, "Turn to the Right," with Winchell Smith as co-producer. The theater which accommodated "Turn to the Right" was the Gaiety, now a forlorn burlesque house. This first venture of Smith and Golden was a great success, and led to a continuation of Mr. Golden's activities as a producer, first in collaboration with his original partner, and later entirely on his own responsibility. In 25 years Mr. Golden has produced 69 plays, up to and including the new production of "Theater," with Cornelia Otis Skinner.

When "Theater," Guy Bolton's adaptation of Somerset Maugham's novel, comes to Chicago on Sept. 29, Arthur Margetson will play opposite Miss Skinner in the leading rôle of Michael Gossleyn. Mr. Margetson undertook the rôle in the four week preliminary tour of "Theater" in the east last spring. In June, when John Williams left his rôle in "Claudia" to join the British army, Mr. Margetson took over Mr. Williams' part for the summer in order to keep occupied until "Theater" resumed its career in the fall. Other players under contract for the cast of "Theater" are John Moore, a young Englishman who has appeared in this country in "Knights of Song" and with Elsa Lanchester in "They Walk Alone"; Viola Roache, last seen here with Constance Bennett in "Easy Virtue"; Heler Flint, the Lorraine Sheldon of the original Chicago company of "The Man Who Came to Dinner"; Frederic Bradlee, the juvenile of the same company, and Nancy Cochrane, a young recruit from the summer theaters.

In the John Golden production of "Claudia," opening at the Selwyn theater on Sept. 15, Reed Brown Jr. will play the principal male rôle of David. Mr. Brown has appeared in three previous plays in Chicago—"Room Service," "The Big Pond," and with Mrs. Fiske in "Against the Wind." As announced last week, the title rôle in "Claudia" has been awarded to Phyllis Thaxter.

John A. Schreiber, new managing director of the Grand Opera house, has concluded negotiations with the United booking office in New York whereby important touring attractions are enabled to play at the theater on Clark street. As yet the first booking is not ready to be announced, but it takes no crystal gazer to see that "Theater" will require a satisfactory loop home if "My Sister Eileen" continues on at the Harris past Sept. 27, and that Katharine Cornell will have to have a stage at her disposal for "The Doctor's Dilemma" early in the fall.

James Hargis Connelly, in association with Eva Fitz-Gerald, has been constructing a new intimate playhouse, seating fewer than 100 persons, on the ninth floor of the Kimball building. The new theater will be known as the Connelly playhouse. During the fall and winter months performances will be given twice weekly with casts composed of professional, semi-professional, and amateur actors. The first play scheduled for October will be "Rat Holler," a play of the Carolina mountains by Mr. Connelly and Anthony Kerr. A revival of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will follow. The plays according to Mr. Connelly will be "done with the feeling of the show boat era and in a brousy, folksy manner."

The final play of the Michiana Shores theater season is a world première—"Orchids to Franta," by Margery Williams [Mrs. Frank Dare] of Chicago. This play replaces another by the same author which had originally been scheduled, but which was withdrawn because of production difficulties.

"Mr. and Mrs. North," a comedy by Richard Lockridge, New York drama critic, and his wife will conclude the summer season of the Port playhouse at Port Washington, Wis. The comedy, which enjoyed a successful run in New York last season, has not been presented in the middle west. The two title parts will be played by Glenn Arnold and Mary Agnes Wagner. Parker Mills will direct.

The Village Summer theater in Hinsdale concludes its season next week-end with further performances of "Off Stage," the new play introduced last week. Everett Clarke is the director.

Current Music News

Soldiers' field will be taken over this afternoon by the second annual American Negro Spiritual Song festival. The list of musicians and actors who will appear at the festival is headed by Roland Hayes, one of the most eminent tenors of the 20th century. With him on the program are the "Wings Over Jordan" radio chorus; the Southernaires, radio quartet; William Franklin, baritone; La Julia Rhea, soprano; Natalie Leota Henderson, young Cleveland pianist; Eddie South, violinist; Ethyl B. Wise, coloratura soprano; the "Sharps and Flats," a choral group; Canada Lee, star of the play "Native Son"; Bobby Brooks, young motion picture player; Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, reader, and a thousand-voiced choir under the direction of Prof. J. Wesley Jones. Proceeds of the festival will be turned over to the United Service Organizations instead of the war relief funds as announced last week.

The Rockefeller Memorial chapel, 59th street and Woodlawn avenue, will present its third annual summer concert on Wednesday evening at 7:30. The performers will be the University of Chicago choir, assisted by members of the Swedish Choral club, under the direction of Mack Evans, and the University of Chicago Symphony orchestra, conducted by Charles Buckley. Accompanied by the orchestra the chorus will sing Gustav Holst's setting of the 86th Psalm, Brahms' "Schicksalslied" ["Song of Fate"], Opus 54, and Moussorgsky's "Joshuah." The last named work is a single chorus remodeled from one composed for the unfinished opera, "Salammbô."

The orchestra will be heard in the Overture to Gluck's "Iphigenia in Aulis," the Introduction to Moussorgsky's "Khovanchtchina," and the Elégie from Tschaikowsky's Serenade for string orchestra, Opus 48. Frederick Marriott, the chapel organist, will contribute two chorale-preludes by Bach to the program. Soloists for the choral numbers are Ardis Molitor, soprano; Eleanor Limbach, contralto; Robert Topping, tenor, and James McEnery, baritone.

Fresh from its successes at Ravinia park the Budapest string quartet will embark on a new series of 10 weekly chamber music programs over the Columbia network, starting next Sunday, Aug. 31. The programs will present the 16 quartets and the Grand Fugue by Beethoven from the Library of Congress in Washington, D. C., under the auspices of the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation. The concerts are to be broadcast each Sunday from 10:05 to 11 a. m., central daylight saving time.

Auditions for membership in the National Orchestral association training orchestra for the season of 1941-'42 will begin on Sept. 15. Applications are available to students and young musicians who wish to gain experience and training in orchestral performance and who can arrange their professional work so as not to conflict with regular and punctual attendance at rehearsals and concerts of the ensemble. All applications and inquiries should be sent to the association, 113 West 57th street, New York.

Laurent Novikoff has been appointed to succeed Boris Romanoff as ballet master and choreographer for the Metropolitan Opera company next season. Mr. Novikoff is well known in Chicago, where he was once ballet master for the Civic Opera ballet and where he has taught continuously up till the present summer. As a dancer he has served with the opera house in Moscow and St. Petersburg and as a partner for Anna Pavlowa.

Lorin Maazel, the 11 year old conductor who recently came into prominence directing the NBC Summer Symphony orchestra, will conduct at Grant park at the next to the last concert on Saturday, Sept. 6.

Quarterly publication of scores of contemporary chamber music is to be inaugurated next season by the College of Music of Bradley Polytechnic institute, Peoria, Ill. This is to be done on a subscription basis. Scores may be submitted for consideration to Halsey Stevens, director of the college. Tentative plans call for the first publication next January. Composers whose works are chosen will retain performance rights, while the college will seek to encourage the performance of scores published under its imprint.

Chicago Ranks High in Music Council Survey

In the National Music council's survey of compositions performed during the 1940-'41 season by the 16 major symphony orchestras of the United States it was found that the Chicago Symphony had played the largest number of works by American born composers. Our orchestra drops to second place, however, when the works of naturalized and foreign-born composers living in the United States are added to the others. In this instance the Chicago ensemble is nosed out of the lead by the New York Philharmonic-Symphony by three compositions.

But considering the number of American compositions as a percentage of the total number of works lowers the Chicago orchestra to 8th place. For the orchestra played more numbers on its regular subscription concerts last season than did any other American group, namely 183. Yet only 12.6 per cent of this number were by native or resident musicians. The three best showings in this respect were made by the Indianapolis, Boston, and Los Angeles orchestras with 28.6 24.5, and 22.2 per centages respectively.

This is the second annual survey made by the council, and in the nation as a whole it found that the number of native works played this year had gone down since last year from 111 to 92. On the other hand the figures for naturalized and resident composers made a great leap upward from 23 to 114. These latter numbers indicate a well known fact: A large number of foreign-born composers have fled wartorn Europe to settle in this country.

The National Music council, which conducts these surveys, is a young organization, having been founded in April, 1940. It was formed to act as a unifying center for the many American musical clubs and societies. Just a few of the member groups, for example, are the American Guild of Musical Artists, the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, the League of Composers, the Music Teachers National association, the National Federation of Music clubs, the Columbia and National broadcasting companies.

• • •

For these member organizations the council provides a forum for the interchange of ideas and for discussion, publishes surveys of proposed national legislation affecting music in any way, acquaints each member with what the others are doing in the musical world, acts as a bureau of information and a musical clearing house. It also has collaborated with the government in providing musical activities in army camps and cantonments, has assisted the Metropolitan Opera association in building up the groups which listen to the Saturday afternoon broadcasts—groups which have contributed notably to the Metropolitan's support—assisted in the promotion of performances of opera in English in cities and communities outside the large centers of operatic production. Committees have been appointed by it to report on the adoption of standards in American-published editions of foreign works, the creation of repositories of orchestra scores and parts in various areas, easily available at moderate rental fees, and on the extension of the cataloging of music entries in the copyright office of the Library of Congress. It also is prepared to give information on the availability for performance of any American orchestral composition, and also to submit lists of American music for symphony orchestras.

The president of the National Music Council is Edwin Hughes, 338 West 89th street, New York.

Classical Recordings

One of the most unusual of recent record releases is Victor's Smoky Mountain ballads. These songs catch perfectly the twang and whine and earthiness of authentic American folk music. They have been preserved by mountain people who have been relatively unaffected by such standardizing influences as movies and radio.

To find these songs John A. Lomax, an authority on native American music, penetrated to the high clearings and the remote hollows of the Great Smoky and Cumberland mountains. He talked and worked with men and women who live much the same life today that they did a century ago. He has brought back a treasure of American music.

The songs are about love and death and a variety of other things, but strength and boldness and sometimes incongruous gayety gave them a certain unity of style. Even when the words are most mournful, there is likely to be a crude, dancelike vigor to the tune.

The recordings are the work of singers, violinists, and banjo and guitar players.

• • •

The bass-baritone, Paul Robeson, is well represented in the list of single disks issued by Victor during these last few months. He has recorded "Loch Lomond," "Land of My Fathers," "Down de Lovers' Lane," and "Shenandoah." Other Victor music of the lighter sort includes Hayden Wood's "Homage March" and a waltz from his suite, "Moods," played by the Light Symphony orchestra under the composer's direction; a Widor serenade and "The March of the Bowmen," from Curson's "Robin Hood," suite, played by the London Palladium orchestra under Clifford Greenwood's direction; the Boccherini minuet and a Simonetti madrigale played by the New Myfair String orchestra, and the ballet music from Rossini's "William Tell," played by the Sadler's Wells orchestra.

Ballet Russe Opens Season in Washington

Last night the Original Ballet Russe opened its 1941-'42 season with the first of seven performances in the Watergate stadium, Washington, D. C. It continues this year under the general direction of Col. Wassily de Basil, but it has a new manager in the person of Fortune Gallo, director of the San Carlo and Chicago Opera companies.

The personnel of the troupe is basically the same as when it performed so notably in the Auditorium theater last October. But it has been exchanging dancers with the two other major ballet companies in America, the Massine-directed Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo and the Ballet Theater, which appeared with the Chicago Opera company last fall. It has lost Tamara Toumanova to the Massine group and Irina Baronova to the Ballet Theater. But from the latter organization it has acquired the beautiful and striking Nana Gollner in addition to Vera Nemtchinova, a brilliant soloist who has free lanced for a number of years and appeared briefly with numerous groups.

• • •

Tatiana Riabouchinska heads the list of ballerinas who remain with the Original Ballet Russe. The others are Nina Verchinina, Lubov Tchernicheva, Genevieve Moulin, Tatiana Leskova, Tatiana Stepanova, Olga Morosova, Tamara Grigorieva, Marina Svetlova and Anna Volkova.

The company's male contingent remains virtually the same with David Lichine, Paul Petroff, Roman Jasinsky, Dimitri Rostoff, Yura Lazovsky, Michel Panaieff, Marian Ladre, and H. Algeranoff all accounted for. Leon Danielian is a worthy acquisition from the Ballet Theater.

No additions to the répertoire have been announced as yet, and such items as "Paganini," "The Golden Cockerel," "Petrouchka," "Les Sylphides," and "Swan Lake" will serve as the programs' mainstays.

• • •

Another acquisition from the Ballet Theater, Alexander Smallens, is conducting the Watergate performances. Whether he will remain with the Original Ballet Russe for the duration of the season is unknown.

The company moves on from Washington to a tour of Canada under the patronage of the Governor General of Canada, the duke of Athlone, and the Princess Alice. Subsequently it will tour the United States, during which time it is sincerely hoped it will visit Chicago. Its Chicago run last October was highly successful both artistically as well as financially.

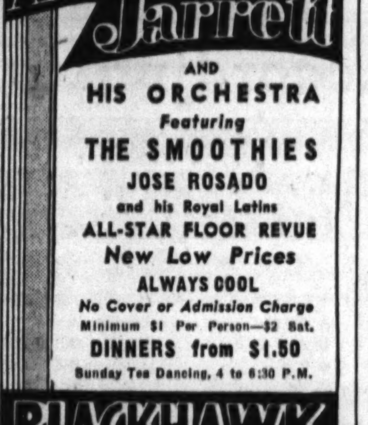
AMUSEMENTS. AMUSEMENTS.



Too Strict Discipline Is Unsuccessful with Children

Antagonism Is Usual Result of Severity

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.

Has this Sunday gotten off to a bad start? Has it been "one of those" days? Did you 12 year old son bristle when you ordered him to do something? Was he sulky this morning when you bore down on his manners at breakfast? Did he rebel when you ordered him to leave the table? And did you end by getting out the strap and punishing him?

If all this, or something like it, happened today, did you sit down to read your newspaper, furious at the boy and feeling yourself a pretty much injured father?

Or did you, perhaps, lay down the paper, pull on your pipe thoughtfully, and, with some remorse, say to yourself: "This has happened too often. Certainly Bill is not taking my strictness and punishment in a very good spirit. Perhaps this way isn't the right way. Maybe I'm at fault, not the boy?"

If you did think like this, you're probably on the right track, since whipping a boy nearly in his teens, or already there, and using severity as your only way of bringing him up, is wrong.

• • •

Think over the following dozen or so statements:

The results of sternness and spanking show themsleves in ways that are not always recognized as results. Indirectness or evasiveness in general manifests itself. Actual untruthfulness usually follows.

The teen age boy or girl who is controled by harshness or spanking may develop underhand ways that lead to serious consequences. Rebellion is safer because more direct.

This stern treatment creates a barrier between parents and children.

Respect and good will toward parents seldom results from harshness and punishment.

The pre-adolescent years are a bad time for children to be alienated from their parents, because adolescence itself is a difficult period and children need all the guidance and understanding their parents can give them.

• • •

When you find friction and antagonism cropping up with almost every issue that arises, it is time to question your system of management. The first step will consist of abandoning whipping or spanking and a cold, harsh, commanding manner. While these are bad enough with a small child, they are especially humiliating and repugnant to a young person who is looking ahead to manhood or womanhood.

Overlook as many little things as possible that offend you.

Seek out opportunities to praise.

Do everything you can to make your 10 or 14 year old feel that you are his champion, not his enemy.

Be willing to listen to your child's objections and quietly talk things over with him.

Try not to think always of holding him up to adult standards and behavior. What he needs and what he wants at this stage in his life are very different from what a mother or father needs.

• • •

And this brings us to the definite piece of advice which is: Try very hard to get your child's point of view and to use your imagination and observation, also, in figuring out how the world looks to him. I sometimes think that a very graphic lesson in this would be driven home with many of us if, when our children were tiny, we would occasionally sit on the floor with them, and then look up at the room and the furniture and the people that are in the child's landscape.

August 24, 1941.

Universal day—Keep busy with the little things around the house or office.

September—Those in a four year may find that they have to really get down to work this month. If they haven't put their house and themselves in order, now is the time to do it. They ought not to waste any more time. System and order are called for in personal and financial matters. It is a good time to make out the winter budget, decide to save a regular amount of money, put yourself on a schedule and decide to be punctual and efficient. This doesn't sound like much fun, but this is not your year to play, but to work, and this month finds the emphasis right on this sturdy, dependable, table 4. You can't be furious or superficial when that number rules. Get back into harness for the time being because you may be due for radical changes later.

Fashions

By Angela

American girls and women are a race of active sports enthusiasts. And well dressed ones, too. You have to be well dressed—you can't be otherwise—because you can't afford to turn your back on tricky and practical sports clothes such as the ones illustrated here.

At the top of the column is an action-free costume for the stretchingest athlete. The gray flannel skirt has a cluster of six plaits, front and back, and broad bright green suspenders.

Another fashion borrowed from the young masculine wardrobe is the "little boy" jacket. The one sketched second is of natural corduroy of a fine wale, reversible for rainy days, zipper closing. The youthful skirt is a red and white dress Stuart plaid—plaited all 'round.

• • •

Then look! Third is a bowling dress tailored of a hard firm covert cloth. The hidden features are the divided skirt ,not culottes, but a real divided skirt], the fly front closing of the skirt, and the deep cut armholes that have a little inverted box plait worked into the underarm seam to give roominess and remove all possible strain. Little glass bowling pins take the place of buttons. Under $8.

Another sport coat—this one of a heavy and soft 100% wool material of camel's hair color. Notice the special features such as the seven-eighths length, the lining [lower half of wool plaid], the tremendous inside pockets. And such tailoring details as the fell seam, cuff tabs, and rows of stitching around the bottom. Around $10.

• • •

For the hiker, the golfer, the camper, for the country life in general, I submit the three-piece sport suit including skirt, slacks, and jacket. Material is a heavy wool flannel of light brown.

For information call Angela, Superior 0200. A stamped, self-addressed envelope should accompany mail requests.

Sally Closes Party Season, Says Good-by

By Sally Joy Brown.

Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Summertime's almost over, boys and girls, and it won't be long before school bells will start to ring in the tiny towns and the big cities all over the United States. Youngsters will be summoned back to their studies, and another vacation period will come to an end.

Our last party will take place on August 28, and within a few brief days after that all you children will be marching off with books under your arms, so we'll have no more time for parties until next year.

• • •

It has been a grand season, hasn't it, boys and girls? We've seen lots of good movies, some swell baseball games, and, of course, we didn't miss the circus! Every single one of the many, many hundreds of boys and girls whom I met and entertained this year was just as good as gold at our parties, and there were very few who forgot to stop and say "Thank you" at the end of every good time. Everywhere we went people always remarked about what nice, courteous boys and girls we had in our groups, and I was always able to agree heartily.

I'm just as sorry as you are that the party season is over, and I hope you'll all remember that, altho we don't have parties all the year 'round, I'm always interested in all boys and girls, and if I can ever help you in any way, just write another letter to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Good-by and good luck until next summer!

Here are the names of the fortunate youngsters who've been selected as my guests for our last big party of the year. They'll all see Jack Benny in "Charley's Aunt" on Aug. 28. Personal invitations containing further details concerning the party will be mailed to each child in the following list.

Knitted Sleeveless Bolero

By Jean Macdonald.

Knitting a sleeveless bolero is a quick and simple needlework job. A diamond design worked in the knitting is no trick, and is included while knitting the regular body of the jacket.

For instructions in knitting the sleeveless bolero, No. 975, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York City.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

In the long and honored history of games belonging to the whist family, there has probably never been a player who went thru even one session without making a mistake. Contract bridge, the latest addition to the family, created an entirely new crop of experts, but it is a lamentable fact that a bridge expert is no superman; indeed, his claim to the title rests solely on the comparative excellence of his play over that of more fallible folk.

It is a tribute, I think, to the greatness of the game itself that there is no such thing as a perfect or errorless player. Yet, it is giving the expert something less than his due if we imply that he can fall into the same snares that beset the average player. The fact is that at bridge, perhaps more than at any other game, there must be the widest classification of errors, ranging from tiny and highly abstruse flaws in judgment to the horrendous "bulls" produced by the dub. Some problems are so "close" that it cannot be truly said there is a right and wrong solution; others are so clear cut that failure to solve them points to an utter lack of reasoning ability. In this latter class belongs the error made by the East player in the following hand:

Rubber bridge.
Both sides vulnerable.
North-South 40 part score.
South, dealer.

NORTH
♠ 9 5
♥ J 9 6 3
♦ Q 9 5
♣ Q J 6 4

WEST
♠ 8 4 2
♥ 8 5 4
♦ 10 2
♣ 8 7 5 3 2

EAST
♠ 10 6 3
♥ None
♦ A K 8 6 4 3
♣ A K 10 9

SOUTH
♠ A K Q J 7
♥ A K Q 10 7 2
♦ J 7
♣ None

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	2 hearts	Double
6 hearts	Pass	Pass	Double
Redouble	Pass	Pass	Pass

Particular attention is called to South's bidding. Many readers will be aghast at his opening one heart bid, feeling that with about 4½ honor tricks and virtually 11 winners, he had the soundest kind of a two bid. This judgment would be unimpeachable except for the all-important matter of the score. On the 40 part score, South's decision to open with a meek and mild one heart was highly strategic. He knew, beyond a shadow of doubt, that one of two things would happen: either North would hold the bidding open until at least the two level was reached or, even more likely, the opponents, who might be very strong in both minor suits, would do some bidding on their own account. Actually, of course, South expected to show both his suits, but when North raised the hearts and East put in his takeout double, South could not resist the opportunity to make a sensational rebid. I cannot say that I approve his jump all the way to six hearts; indeed, considering that there was no legitimate play for that contract, I'd be very foolish to give such approval. Nevertheless, there was more to South's bidding than meets the eye. With the heart suit solidified by North's raise, there was sound reason to hope that the spade suit would permit the discarding of diamonds from the North hand, so that South might eventually be able to ruff at least one of his losing diamonds. Hence, even if the opponents had the two top diamond tricks, they would have to cash them in a hurry. The chance that they would first try to cash club tricks made South's leap to the slam a fair gamble.

East, with four honor tricks, cannot be blamed for feeling that South had gone temporarily insane and it would take a braver man than I to criticize the penalty double. South's redouble was based on pure percentage. He knew he could go down no more than one trick and if he fulfilled the contract, he would roll up a huge score.

As may easily be seen, any lead but a diamond by West would have put the contract "on ice" inasmuch as South could have controled any other lead, drawn trumps, run the spades, discarding diamonds from dummy, and finally, ruffed a diamond. Actually, however, West hit upon the highly fortunate lead [from his point of view] of the diamond ten. Dummy ducked, East won with the king, and declarer promptly false carded with the jack. East carefully scrutinized declarer's play before leading to the second trick, and undoubtedly he considered the possibility that South had false carded. However, to his eternal discredit, East finally decided that the safest thing he could do was to lay down the club king. Curtain! Declarer gleefully ruffed, drew trumps in three leads, then laid down his five spade tricks. Dummy's diamonds were neatly ditched, and a diamond ruff accounted for the fulfilling trick.

East's failure to lay down the diamond ace at the second trick had been a monumental error. Completely aside from the fact that South's six heart bid would have been considerably less sound with two singletons than with a doubleton diamond, East had been given a crystal clear signal on the opening lead. West had led the diamond ten and dummy had put down the diamond nine. Almost any player will lead the ten spot as a singleton or from a doubleton, but no player past his bridge infancy leads the ten from a holding of 10-x-x. Hence, West had announced in strident terms that he did not have more than two diamonds, and by this token East should have known that declarer was false carding.

There are no trumps, and South leads. North and South are to win two tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads a small heart, West and North both play small. East makes two heart tricks, South holding the jack. East now leads club jack, putting West in to make the heart ace, while North discards the diamond. West now leads one of his higher diamonds. South ducks it and makes the seven and jack.

Note that East cannot afford to make his eight of spades while North holds the diamond queen; also that if East makes all his tricks, leading the club ace and then the jack and then the spade eight, he makes it easy for North.

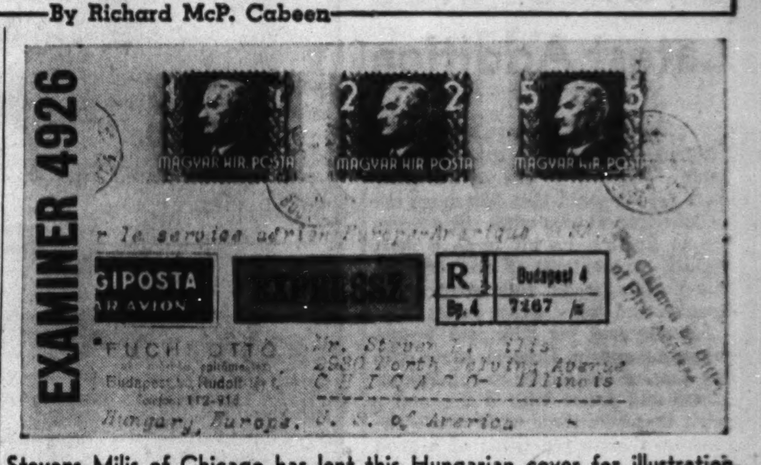
The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps but not value. The Stamps and Coins advertising column in this page contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



Stevens Milis of Chicago has lent this Hungarian cover for illustration. The stamps are an issue commemorating the birthday of Admiral Horthy, regent of Hungary.

Recently a friendly argument concerning the merits of plain stamp collecting versus postal markings collecting brought it forcibly to the attention of all those present that the majority of our so-called postal markings collectors are actually stamp collectors at heart who want the clear markings as an added item of interest.

It is apparent that the ideal cover to show postal markings should be the prestamp cover of early days for there is no stamp to obscure the design or lettering. But these are not collected by the general run of postal markings enthusiasts except perhaps to clarify a marking which they have found on a stamped cover. Neither do these same collectors favor the embossed envelopes put out by the postoffice department altho it is a well known fact that many of the most interesting markings are found only on this type of cover.

Since the postal marking group neglect stampless covers, and practically abhor embossed envelopes, it is almost self-evident that the adhesive stamp is the "sine qua non" of their hobby, but without the postal marking, the stamp itself would be without interest. As an added aggravation more often than not the postal markings collector insists that the stamps be perfectly centered.

• • •

The subject of postal markings covers a wide field and includes everything which may be handstamped or written or otherwise marked on a cover by a postal employé during the period of transmission thru the post. As all of these markings and inscriptions change thru the years a comprehensive collection covering the period of 150 years just passed would require a small public library to house it.

For example the early pieces of first class mail matter could hardly pass by post without two marks. Most important was the town mark, which gave the town and state names as well as the month and day. This was usually in a circular form and rarely indicated the year. The second mark was the rate for the letter and this was handstamped at the larger offices and written in at the smaller offices. Since it was customary to send letters "collect," the dispatching postmaster was required to stamp or write the word "paid" on a letter if such was the case.

When postage stamps were introduced the town mark was retained but rate marks were discontinued for letters bearing stamps. New marks were sometimes provided for use in canceling the stamps but in many cases the rate mark or other handy stamp was used for this purpose, thus giving the collector such items as 3 cent stamps with the unnecessary announcement "paid 3," or with the untrue legend "free." All of the various office stamps saw duty at one time or another as "killers" in canceling stamps. Many offices used the town mark to cancel and such covers are especially desired as the stamps are almost always tied to cover.

• • •

This was before the days of rubber stamps and the town marks stamps were of boxwood or metal and saw many years of service. The killers most often bought by postmasters were the target of concentric circles and the grid of parallel lines in a circular frame. All handstamps were at the private expense of the postmaster and it is no wonder that small offices penmarked the stamps or even resorted to thumb prints when the pen was in use. Many postmasters cut a design in the cork of the office ink bottle and used this until worn out and then fashioned another with no attempt to make it similar to the first. A few postmasters appear to have enjoyed making novel killers and none outranked the postmaster of Waterbury, Conn., who with his clerks carried on almost daily variations for many years.

Eventually it became a hardship to use two hand stamps on a letter and the duplex stamp came into use. This stamp mounted both the town mark and the killer and is essentially the same stamp as is used today by small offices and by the largest offices for letters too bulky to pass thru an automatic canceling machine.

As the quantity of mail increased the larger postoffices required very large staffs engaged in canceling stamps, and finally on March 9, 1876, a machine was placed in use in Boston which postmarked the envelopes as they were fed into it. It is not within the size of this article to discuss all canceling machines except to say that at the start they were hand operated and hand fed. Even in this advanced mechanical age collectors may find a few of the flag type marks made by hand operated machines. A few years ago many of these machines were located in smaller offices and were brought into use only when the volume of mail made it necessary.

Present day motor driven cancelers are responsible for such marks as are used by the Chicago postoffice, and by all of similar type, whether with or without a slogan or other device in the killer of horizontal lines.

In a recent issue of STAMPS Lieut. Max G. Johl, M. A. C., explains the reason for the two sizes of national parks stamps which many collectors have noticed. In all machine made paper there is a definite grain in the direction of the web or continuous strip of paper which issues from a paper making machine. The fibres of wood pulp or linen are arranged more or less in the direction of the grain rather than across the web. The tension which occurs in the web of paper as it is being formed has considerable effect on the future stretching and shrinkage of the paper.

In a handmade paper in which the fibres are felted and have no grain it is expected that the stretching and shrinkage will be equal in all directions. In the machine made paper there is much less stretch and shrinkage in the direction of the grain than across the web. When engraved stamps are printed on wet sheets of paper, some of which is cut crosswise and some lengthwise to the web it will be found that the stamps vary greatly in size.

Crocheted Bib Collar

By Ellen Bruce.

One cannot imagine the loveliness of the completed crocheted bib collar illustrated today. It is the ideal accessory for fall dresses. When it is crocheted of fine white cotton, and moderately starched and pressed, it defies competition, since it possesses all the charm and daintiness essential to the feminine sex, plus the maximum of style.

For instructions in crocheting the bib collar, No. 959, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York City.

Home Owners' Queries

Chicago.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—If we build a basement under part of our house and not under entire house, can we save money? F. G. H.

Answer: Yes, quite a bit. It means less excavating.

Chicago.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—Will furring strips be a help in eliminating basement wall condensation in summer? Or will plenty of windows be sufficient to insure basement dryness? Mrs. T. C.

Answer: Furring strips are a good investment under wall board, plaster, wood, or whatever your recreation room walls are made of. They keep the finish away from the chill, dampish outer walls. Windows alone cannot be depended upon to eliminate what we call "condensation."

Furniture Fashions Emphasizing Styles of Colonial Days

Trend Is Away from Clumsy, Crude Outlines

"Color Schemes for the Living Room," a booklet by Claire Winslow, gives detailed ideas on color of rugs, walls, furniture, and draperies for six different interiors. Price, 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

With the emphasis on American home furnishings this season, there is renewed interest in our own, simple, homey maple furniture of colonial days. But this early American period, as it is called, has undergone a number of changes in the last few years.

The trend has been away from the clumsy, crude kitchen type of red-orange-tan finish that never accurately reproduced New England pieces, anyway, and toward a much more subtle, honey tone of brown and finer, more satinlike finish. Lines are not dumpy, you'll find, as they used to be, but more slender, more graceful and refined.

In short, the new copies of early American are really good copies. And the woods are carefully chosen. Besides maple, it's possible to find well made cherry pieces in this period, as well.

The vogue for painted furniture will be seen everywhere this coming winter. Smart decorators are using one or two lacquered pieces in the new rooms they are doing, and in an early American maple room what could be more attractive than a few chairs of the Hitchcock type, painted black and ornamented with quaint colored stencils of fruit or flowers?

You won't find it difficult to locate several varieties of these charming little chairs in the stores now. And if you wish, you can make ruffled seat pads for them in a fine striped cotton or flowered chintz.

Another new note for the early American maple room is to bring in a couch side book table, or lamp table, or chair side magazine stand of French provincial style. These two types of furniture always go well together, both being simple, unpretentious and designed for the informal interior.

And floor coverings? Within the last few years a splendid variety of rugs has been developed especially intended for use with maple furniture. There are the genuine hand hooked rugs, gay and colorful, there are the machine made copies of this same thing, and there are numbers of tweedy, or shaggy or wooly floor coverings that blend beautifully. Large, oval, braided rag rugs are tried and true favorites, wear like iron and are so easy to clean, and you can even spread out a Victorian carpet covered with cabbage roses, if you want to do a little mixing of styles.

The photograph today shows how effectively the movies have made use of an early American setting, the picture being taken at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio. The Boston rocker has been painted black and made gay by a padded head rest and seat cover plus a big cushion. On the floor is a braided rag rug and the built-in shelves are treated like a window, being hung with flowered chintz curtains.

On the mantel is a handsome old fan placed between two tall brass candlesticks. A pair of white Chelsea china dogs is in front of the fan. This is a quite unusual and thoroly delightful way of treating the fireplace shelf in an early American room.

This delightful Early American room on a movie set offers a number of ideas for your own living room done in the same period. Note the mantel treatment and the curtaining of the built-in shelves.

August Blues.

Suddenly I realize it is getting along toward late afternoon of the year as faint, melancholy signs of its autumn twilight are seen here and there—graying blues and purples set in tarnished old gold; high lights of scarlet flame; ripening fruit in fading foliage.

Weeks ago the showy plumes of Echium vulgare [blueweed] changed from rosy purple to brilliant blue; then faded to autumn brown. A fortnight ago purple amorpha and the lovely liatris [blazing star] set their blue flames along woodsy roadsides, and blue asters began to peer from weedy hillsides.

I should be feeling those faint stirrings of the fresh access of energy that seizes me with cooler weather and the oncoming autumn, but still [like John Leyden in his "Noontide"]:

"Beneath a shivering canopy reclined,
Of aspen leaves that wave without a wind,
I love to lie, when lulling breezes stir
The spiry cones that tremble on the fir."

Referring to the many patrons who plead for the survival of the Auditorium, one of the "people on the other side of the footlights, who were a part of it, whose happiest days were spent there, and who loved it most of all," sends this little tribute:

To the Auditorium—

Many lives have I lived upon your renowned stage! Egyptian slave girl in the shadow of the pyramids—Chinese maid in ancient China—sultry tempered cigaret girl in sunny Spain—a courtesan of France—a patient nun in Italy—a proud lady of Old Russia—a Japanese maiden among the cherry blossoms—all these and more! Beloved Auditorium, my many selves yet linger there in happy memories and little songs still tremble on my lips.

DALE POOLE DE L'OPERA.

Summer Song.

Today I feel so very gay,
My heart is singing a sonnet,
A song borrowed from a bluebird,
A bird with a sky-blue bonnet.

Summer has come, summer will go,
Departed will be bird and song;
But the melody will remain
Long after summer is gone.

MARGUERITE ZRALEK.

Emancipation of the Sunday Cook.

The idea of eating a large dinner and supper on Sunday is, upon examination, an erroneous notion. People do their heavy work during the weekdays and it is then that they require their greatest nourishment. On weekdays the meals should be best.

As Sunday is a day of rest and relaxation, heavy eating is not needed. The extra food consumed on this day is largely waste and more or less luxury eating. Sunday eating should be light and should allow the housewife some needed rest.

JULIA GUSTAFSON.

Garden in a Box.

We have no yard, no place for a garden, but we wanted fresh home-grown vegetables. Our front yard is a cement court, our side yard a deep steep banked ravine, and back yard belongs to the neighbors. So we placed a big box in an angle of the court, covered the bottom with a thick layer of dry leaves and piled in quantities of black dirt from the ravine. Then we planted radishes, tomatoes, and cucumbers—forgetting leaf lettuce.

Radishes are gone and today we are harvesting tomatoes and cucumbers faster than we can eat them. I am even canning a few. The neighbors who laughed are envious now, so we pass along the idea to other dwellers in garage apartments who "hone" for a wee truck garden of their own.

SUBURBANITE.

As I contemplate the raggedness of my own August garden it is small comfort to be told that few native plants are ever weeds in their own country and that 99 per cent of North American weeds have been introduced from foreign shores.

I determine to do better by it next year, and forage about for the delicate new sprigs of herbs and greens that are apt to come along after a rainy day or two. The tiny colorful blossoms, or just the little corollas, add a less trite and blatant decoration than the ever present maraschino cherry when floated in a pitcher of some cooling beverage.

College Shops Offer Counsel to 1941 Co-Eds

By Rea Seeger.

See color page, this section, for illustrations of these fashions.

After years of college collections featured anywhere from six weeks to a month before the opening day, clever co-eds have assembled their wardrobes, profiting by the experience of those who shopped before them, the upper classmen. Remembering their mistakes, hearing what they didn't pack that should have been included, shuddering over the extras and the misfits that hung way back on the hooks, the stuff that never saw the light by night or day, freshmen now arrive with a well nigh perfect wardrobe.

College shops are staffed with such experienced counselors, girls who are only too eager to assist, to let down their back curls and tell all. With such expert advice it's only the stubborn minded shoppers who start out on their own, refusing all hints and first aid. Luckily, these are rapidly vanishing, and college girls each year rate a higher reputation for smart, smooth clothes.

• • •

This year color will sweep across the country. Brilliant shades of yellow, old gold, carbon pencil blue, red, and the plaids, checks, and mixtures will rival the best paint cards. Also, smoother grooming is assured. No longer will the sloppily dressed co-ed disturb the fussy and fastidious spectators. Suits, coats, jackets, blouses, sweaters all fit a bit more securely, if not revealingly. Skirts snap crisply because of clever plaits. Two piece outfits of smart jersey also feature sunburst plaid skirts and the new pullover, 1941 version of the middy blouse. Tailored silk blouses are classics, along with all the sweater finds imaginable. Topcoats come in vivid plaids, in classic camel's hair cloth, and are the models that lead a busy life, because they may be worn with practically every dress or outfit in the wardrobe.

Date dresses are a "must," and this year the sophisticated dull blacks are extremely popular, as they are the obliging kind that are foundation or background affairs for interesting costume accessories. Faille and dull crêpe are the best buys, with the smart combines of velvet with either material as special attractions. Party gowns are exceedingly swish in sound and flare, with the duets of dance dress, with low décolletage, teamed with a fitted, short, velvet or velveteen jacket leading the list as favorite finds. And the sleek dinner dresses with high necklines and short sleeves, the kind that may be just as easily worn for informal dancing parties, come along in second place.

Footgear and other costume accessories depend upon the campus you choose. So do the extras, such as amusing jewelry, funny coats, and the long or short socks or knee high stockings of bright color. Mittens, extra jackets and coats, the much discussed sleeping pajamas and lounging coats, lingerie and hats, all are featured in the current college collections now stealing all the spotlight glory around the shops and stores.

Some of the things virtually every seasoned college counselor advises against either buying or packing include: 100 per cent all-wool, itchy pink shirts and panties, toe rubbers urged by too many parents, too many pairs of dressy shoes, as on the campus you will wear only casual sports types. Also, don't pack too many hats. One sports model and a couple for dress parade are sufficient. Don't stock up with fads. The chances are they'll never be worn, because no one else wears them. Don't pack too many simple wool dresses for class wear, as only casual sports type clothes are popular for that purpose. Have a lightweight raincoat, enough sweaters, long sleeved silk shirts, and informal formals says one authority, and so it goes.

They agree that the first impression counts tremendously, and that college clothes assembled with the first aid of seasoned veterans are the flawless assortments that click.

Miss Ella Hlavacek Is Engaged to Be Married

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

If overweight is your problem, you can be happy in the knowledge that designers these days are paying special attention to your fashion needs. The days of jabots and matronly lines are over. The 1941 crop of patterns for larger size dresses is just as smart as those styled for slimsters.

No. 3021 is a youthful model with the new bell sleeves which are one with the shoulder yoke. The neckline is tied with a contrasting bow which matches the one at the waistline. Gored for wide and graceful flare, the skirt is beautiful. In crêpe, sheer woolen, or jersey with velvet trimmings, this model will take you to all kinds of informal social occasions.

No. 2981 is a distinguished model with high V neckline, shirred shoulderline, and softly draped bodice above a slim corselet waistline. The skirt is bias-flared for grace and loveliness. The sleeves of this model, too, are full and bracelet length. There's no trimming except a row of small buttons and whatever costume jewelry you care to add. Crêpe, velvet, and sheer woolen all are suitable mediums.

No. 3449 is a semitailored model with long, comfortable sleeves, notched lapel collarline, and buttons all the way down the front. Paneling in the skirt lends the illusion of height and slimness: Use woolen or crêpe for this practical, yet attractive, dress.

Style No. 3021 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material for dress; ¼ yard of contrasting.

Style No. 2981 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 3449 is designed for size 16 and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 2½ yards of 54 inch material.

Household Forum by LOUISE BARGELT

[Have you some favorite household help, something that lightens labor and gets results? Is there some comfort or convenience you could enjoy? We will be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers. Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune.]

Mrs. T. H., Oak Park—I rely on vinegar for a host of family and household uses. It can be used in small quantities to clean flower vases and water bottles, and a half teaspoonful of it added to poaching eggs will make them hold together. It will also help to remove ink stains from fingers, take the odor from pots and pans in which fish, cabbage, etc., has been cooked. Also, I keep my brass, copper and pewter in good shape by applying a paste made of equal parts salt and flour and vinegar. Put on paste let it stand for an hour and rub off, wash and polish.

Miss Maisie Ray, Chicago—If you are having a lot of painting done this time of year around inside of your house, and don't like the smell, try spraying oil of cedar in alcohol around the rooms.

Kate C., Evanston—To remove the odor of onions or garlic from a knife you have been using for peeling, try running the knife thru a potato. It will help!

H. M., Milwaukee—With all the wonders science is performing, why not a paint for household use, inside homes and apartments, which possesses potent germ killing properties!

Mrs. Ruth F., Chicago—Since I am the mother of several small children the idea has occurred to me more than once that it would be nice if all small children's shoes were stamped with colored markings. A red mark perhaps for the right shoe and a green for the left so a child could tell easily which shoe goes on the correct foot.

Mrs. Dorothy Smith, Chicago—Ever try rubbing your aluminum with lemon juice? Rub it on with a cloth and wash in warm water afterward. It acts as a good "brightener."

Mrs. G. E. D., Chicago—I clean my candles with a cloth dampened with alcohol. And to make them last longer I give them a coat of white varnish and put them away for a day or two. This varnish keeps the wax from running over when the candle is lighted and prolongs their life considerably.

Now—YOUR IDEA—Please.

You Can Bleach Your Skin to a Lighter, Prettier Hue with Mercolized Wax Cream

FASHION indicates the return to favor of fairer, softer skin. Ever in stride with the latest mode, Mercolized Wax Cream lends its subtle bleaching and beautifying action to help you win a fashionable, lighter, lovelier complexion. Mercolized Wax Cream hastens the natural shedding of the dull, surface skin and uncovers the fairer, softer, smoother underskin. The action takes place so gradually that the actual flaking process is not visible. But soon you become aware of the improved appearance of your complexion. Start bleaching your skin tonight using Mercolized Wax Cream according to directions and you will be pleased.

REMOVE FACIAL HAIR with PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Phelactine not only takes off the surface hair, but actually extracts the portion embedded under the skin, leaving no fuzz or stubble. It can be applied quickly and easily in a few seconds. Not a cream or powder. Has no obnoxious odor. You will like Phelactine.

TRY SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT, the DELIGHTFUL SKIN FRESHENER. It is a quick acting, refreshing aid for daily care of the skin. Saxolite reduces excess oil on the surface skin; and its contracting action temporarily tightens the skin tissue. Simply dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat this lotion briskly on the skin several times daily.

2 Mistakes Wives So Often Make

Because of inward shyness or ignorance, many married women make needless mistakes—risk health, happiness. Why? Generally because feminine hygiene is considered too personal to be discussed. And so many women use over-strong solutions of acids which can burn or scar delicate tissues. Today risks are needless. For science has given womankind Zonite. Non poisonous, non caustic, yet kills germs bacteria on contact. Destroys undesirable odors. Protects personal daintiness. Most important, safe for delicate tissues. Pull the Trigger on Constipation, with Ease for Stomach, too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna at your druggist today. Try one laxative combined with Syrup Pepsin for ease to your stomach, too.

Preserves Made Now Will Be Welcome Holiday Gifts

Wise to Have Well Stocked Shelves, Too

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

If, when company comes, you can turn to a well stocked supply shelf and take down a jar of your preserves or a pickle relish you've made yourself, you'll have one of those little proud moments which are a cook's reward for industry and forethought.

And if Christmas, with its concomitant financial drain, is already beginning to worry you, why don't you plan right now to make many of those gifts the kind you pack into jars during canning and pickling season [which time is right now]? Any homemaker will value such a present, especially if she doesn't do any canning or preserving on her own hook.

PLUM AND APPLE MARMALADE.

3 pounds purple plums
2 pounds Duchess apples
3 oranges
¾ cup sugar for each cup of fruit pulp.

Wash and pit plums. Core washed apples. Put plums and apples thru coarse food chopper, or chop them by hand. Peel two of the oranges and leave the third unpeeled. Dice orange pulp and cut the whole orange into quarters. Put it thru the food chopper. Add 1 cup water and simmer until peel is tender. Add to the other orange pulp, apples and plums. Measure and add ¾ cup sugar for each cup of fruit. Bring slowly to boiling point, stirring to dissolve all of the sugar. Boil very gently, stirring occasionally, for 45 minutes. Pour into clean, hot jars and seal.

THREE WEEK DILL PICKLES.

35 to 40 fresh cucumbers, medium size
2 tablespoons mixed pickling spices
¾ pound dill
2 cups salt
2 gallons water
2 cups vinegar

Wash and dry cucumbers. Put a layer of dill and half the mixed spices in the bottom of a stone crock and add the cucumbers. Put remaining dill and spices on top. Bring salt, water, and vinegar to a boil, cool to room temperature, and pour over cucumbers. Cover with a plate and weight the plate so that the cucumbers will be under the brine at all times. Remove scum from top of pickles every day. The pickles should be kept at an even temperature of around 80-85 degrees. When pickles are crisp, uniform in color, and well flavored with dill, they are sufficiently cured. The time averages three weeks, but may be longer. Pack cured pickles in clean jars. Strain brine, heat to the boiling point and pour over them. Seal at once.

KOSHER STYLE PICKLES.

Part of the pickles may be prepared kosher style at the time they are canned. For every 3 cups brine, add 1 clove garlic, 2 bay leaves, 1 teaspoon mustard seed, ¼ cup sugar, a strip of hot red pepper, and 1 cup vinegar. Boil 2 minutes and pour over packed pickles. Seal at once.

CARROT PICKLES.

2 quarts prepared carrots
1½ cups sugar
1 stick cinnamon
1 tablespoon allspice [whole]
2 cups vinegar
1 cup water

Boil young carrots whole for 5 minutes. Cool slightly and slip off skins. Combine spices, tied in a cheese cloth bag, vinegar and water with sugar and boil for 10 minutes. Add carrots and simmer for 10 minutes longer. Let stand overnight in the spiced syrup, bring to boiling point, remove spices, and pack carrots into clean, hot jars. Pour hot sirup over them and seal at once.

GREEN TOMATO CHOW-CHOW

1 peck green tomatoes
8 large onions
10 green peppers
5 hot red peppers
3 tablespoons salt
1 quart cider vinegar
1 stick cinnamon
1 tablespoon whole allspice
½ tablespoon whole cloves
3 tablespoons dry mustard
2 bay leaves
1¾ cups sugar
½ cup horseradish

Chop tomatoes, onions, and peppers together and sprinkle with salt. Let stand overnight. Drain, add vinegar, spices, sugar, and horseradish. Spices should be tied in a cheesecloth bag. Simmer until tender, about 15 minutes. Pack into clean, hot jars and seal.

"Favorite Pickles and Relishes," a popular little mimeographed recipe booklet, will supply formulas for good things such as quick dills, bread and butter pickles, pepper relish, piccalilli, chili sauce, and watermelon pickles. All the recipes have been thoroly tested and only time-tested favorites are included in the collection. You may have a copy by sending 5 cents in stamps to Mary Meade, in care of the Chicago Tribune.

Whole Heart, Fancy Free.

"Dear Miss Blake: I had been going with him for quite a while when his friend asked me for a date. He became very jealous because he thought I two-timed him. I still care for him and not his friend. Please advise. M. S."

Whether or not you continue to see his friend is something you'll have to decide for yourself. It's natural for him to be jealous, but you can't help it if he is. You've a right to go with whomever you please, as long as you're not engaged to any one.

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

The cool weather this week gave the Chicago women who are foresighted enough to have a head start on their fall wardrobes an opportunity to show off their new clothes in perfect comfort. A luncheon meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, a rare event in August, looked, from the standpoint of the audience, as if it might have been October. . . . There were some, like Mrs. Samuel M. Rinaker, who were dressed strictly in autumn clothes, and glad for their warmth. However, every one, if not dressed for fall from head to toe, at least brought along a wool coat or furs, altho they clung to summery prints and white flowered hats. Mrs. Rinaker, however, was a fashion forecaster's dream come true in a black dress, perfectly tailored, relieved with a yoke of gold, a color "they say" is to be right on top this season. The yoke was outlined in a fine line of red, and the gold color was echoed in Mrs. Rinaker's flat pancake of crocheted wool, which she wore well forward. The hat was the most becoming shape and shade imaginable with Mrs. Rinaker's heavy gold hair, which she wears brushed smoothly up from the nape of her neck in a thick, flattering roll. The ensemble was completed by a pair of silver fox skins. . . . Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, here from Washington on a short visit, was glad to have with her a warm black wool coat which she wore over a black skirt and white satin blouse ornamented with a sparkling brooch. Pinned to a lapel of the coat were tiny, fragrant blossoms of snowy white stephanotis. Her hat was a brimmed one of black, with a face veil, topped by two lovely wings of breast feathers.

• • •

Another Washington visitor, Mrs. James L. Houghteling, greeted the cool weather in the sort of a wonderful tailored suit which is "good" the year around. It was of black men's suiting, striped vertically in gray. Relieving its strictly tailored lines was a frilly, lingerie blouse of white, which Mrs. Houghteling wore with the collar outside. Her hat was a tailored black straw sailor swathed in fragile black veiling. . . . Mrs. Watson McLallen also wears the collar of her blouse outside the suit. The suit she was wearing the other day was of soft black wool, and the blouse of white crêpe, rather like a little boy's. Because it still is August, she was wearing a white flowered bonnet with the costume. . . . Strictly summery and exceedingly fetching is a costume Mrs. G. Corson Ellis sometimes wears in town. It consists of a navy blue dress with small white polka dots and a knee length white linen coat with collar and revers faced in the navy and polka dot material. The hat Mrs. Ellis wears with this costume is a saucy, tiny, white sailor which perches high on her head, topped off by a bushy, white feather jutting gayly out to one side. Having luncheon with Mrs. Ellis the other day was Mrs. Frederick L. Spencer, in a cunning little hat which was a circlet of pink and white flowers with a pair of white feather wings at the center front.

• • •

Mrs. George Schulz, the former Mary Dawes, came into town one day in a long, tightly fitted, well tailored coat of black wool, the kind that certainly will be popular this, or any other, year because of its utter simplicity. The same sort of a coat, in navy blue, was part of the traveling wardrobe Mrs. Walter Miles Harvey Jr. brought from New York when she and Mr. Harvey came west to visit her mother, Mrs. Cornelius Lynde. Perfect, too, for a traveler who wants, above all, hats to wear with "everything," was Mrs. Harvey's wide brimmed navy straw bonnet with a suspicion of white trimming at the front. It was sufficiently simple to go well with tailored things, yet smart enough to be worn on dressy occasions. . . . Red will not be losing its popularity this season, according to last week's preview of fall fashions brought forth by the cool wave. Miss Elizabeth McCormick has a "love" of a bright red feathered hat, a little on beret lines, trimmed with a long black feather. Mrs. King Mitchell has another, a little flowered hat of velvet. To the Council on Foreign Relations meeting Mrs. Mitchell wore this hat with a stunning black and white print dress and coat, and for warmth she added several sable skins made into a neckpiece. . . . Bright, flaming red was the suit Mrs. Walter S. Brewster wore to the same meeting. With her snow white hair, she wears vivid colors easily. Topping her curly hair was a tiny white faille hat rather Dutch in feeling. Mrs. Byron S. Harvey couples a gray pin-striped suit with a beige hat which has an enormous brim and produces an effect of mystery.

Mrs. George Schulz. [Bermuda News bureau photo.]

• • •

The cool weather did not coax Mrs. Solomon B. Smith into a dark hat when she drove into the city from Lake Forest last week, for topping her warm and smartly tailored gray wool suit was a spanking white coachman's hat. Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, too, clung to a summery hat of white, altho she added a cape of fur to her dark town costume. . . . For dancing the other evening at the Pump room, Mrs. Edmund D. Mansure wore a charming and extremely becoming costume of soft sky blue crêpe, which fashioned her dress and its matching Dutch bonnet. The gown was cut on simple and feminine lines, with a V neckline and sleeves shrugged gently above the elbows. A rope of russet colored seeds formed her necklace and at the nape of her neck, just visible behind the wings of her close fitting little Dutch cap, were clusters of miniature fruits in the same ruddy shade. . . . What a bride wears in a fashionable wedding in hot Puerto Rico is described in a letter about the wedding of Jeanne McKenna, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Hugh McKenna of Lincoln Park West, and Gerard Markey, lieutenant, United States air corps, which took place in one of the oldest churches in this hemisphere, the Cathedral de San Agustin in San Juan. Mrs. Markey wore a dotted Swiss gown made in three tiers, with a net ruching around the heart shaped neckline. The single strand of pearls she wore was echoed in the pearl buttons down the front of the dress and on her head was a little toque of white violets. She carried a white prayer book and a bouquet of gypsophila, white roses, and a white orchid. The bridegroom and his attendants, of course, were in full dress military uniform.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

For your approval there is now a prefabricated form of sparkling structural glass, opaque and in stunning plain colors or in marbleized effects, that can be literally nailed to your kitchen or bathroom walls. Panels of this glass are strongly cemented to plasterboard and can be delivered to your home in packaged units ready to install. With these cut-to-size sections, installation costs are reduced and walls of structural glass can be afforded in very moderate cost homes.

A new steel window in double hung type is manufactured to harmonize with your house architecture, be it the very traditional Colonial cottage or Cape Cod style. This unit admits maximum light because of its narrow frame. In the moderate cost bracket.

A special line of decorative mouldings for use with wallboard panels has been developed to harmonize with the panels and can be depended on to furnish a smart finish for ceilings and walls, either paneled or plain. These mouldings include crown and cove moulds, panel markers, joint corners, picture moulds, and so on. Floating fasteners have also been developed with this line of panels and mouldings so that surface nailing is eliminated, panels being securely anchored from the back.

If you are building this fall, there are types of glass to keep out the heat in summer and the cold in winter. Thus an all-season benefit is performed by a double pane type of glass with dead air space between.

The 'Company' Breakfast Is a Grand Party

By Helen Bartlett.

Should newlyweds bid their parents farewell? Helen Bartlett answers this and many other questions about wedding customs in her valuable booklet, "The Wedding Reception or Breakfast." On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents; by postpaid mail, 3 cents.

In the next month or two hostesses will be able to remember the social obligations which piled up on the debit side during the heat wave, when warm weather and summer activities prevented keeping up with these responsibilities.

When you are planning your fall parties, don't forget the company breakfast. One of the most delightfully friendly and informal ways of entertaining is the leisurely Sunday breakfast, fun even for the hostess. We recommend it. A company breakfast may be served at any time after 9 and before 12. And it is of such an informal nature that invitations may be telephoned if the hostess finds that most convenient. If not telephoned, they may be written on a little double calling card or in the form of a personal note.

Guests should be selected with the same care for this type of party as for any other. To insure a pleasant time for all, be sure that all guests are amiable. And keep the group fairly small in number, and casual. Breakfasts don't lend themselves well to large numbers, or to persons who are inclined to be on the formal, stilted side.

The menu should be confined to the foods which are typical of the breakfast meal. It being a company breakfast, foods may be glorified somewhat, but not to the extent that they become luncheon masterpieces. The sequence of the courses also is the same, with fresh fruit and possibly a cereal with cream for those who wish them. For the principal offering there may be scrambled eggs with bacon or sausages; waffles or pancakes; popovers, spoonbread; chipped beef; kidneys; slice of ham baked.

• • •

Coffee is the prime essential. And make it good. With it, of course, rich, thick cream. There should be an inexhaustible quantity, because guests will consume cup after cup, and linger over their coffee long after the edge has been taken off the appetite and the breakfast considered officially over.

Entertainment will be no problem at all. Pleasant conversation will take care of that. There isn't another type of party on the calendar which makes people more at home or which makes conversation easier than does a heart-warming breakfast.

Clare Fisher Selig and P. H. Magnus Wed July 30

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd M. Landeker of Blackstone avenue announce the marriage on July 30 of their daughter, Clare Fisher Selig, to Philip Henry Magnus, son of Mrs. Claire Magnus. After Sept. 1 Mr. Magnus and his bride will be at home at 5465 Everett avenue.

Miss Martha Fryer Is to Be Bride in October

Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Fryer of Western Springs announce the engagement of their daughter, Martha, to Edward B. Wendorf of Congress Park. The wedding is planned for October.

Frozen cologne, frosty cool and delicately perfumed, is a grand pick-up for the wilted and the weary. Because it's in solid form, it may be used quickly and tidily for forehead massage when you have a headache or for quick cooling off when the temperature soars.

The newest thing in the way of perfumed refreshants for the weary and the wilted is frozen, or solid, cologne.

We've had great fun with a new one, and it seems to us to have special charms. It comes in a jar instead of a bottle, and instead of sloshing or spraying it on you merely rub it over the surface. It has an instant cooling effect.

Cologne is a lifesaver when you have a headache or are so hot you want to curl up and die. In this form it's better than ever, because it's so wonderfully easy to rub it gently onto your temples, or your wrists, or the back of your neck. It doesn't dribble, as it does in liquid form. And, of course, a jar is a lot easier to carry around with you than a bottle would be. It's ideal for traveling, which is one occasion when cologne is almost a necessity to preserve your freshness, and it's perfect for invalids.

The frozen cologne we've learned to like so much is the good old classic cologne, plus perfume. Its name, "frosted flowers," gives you a delectable picture of its character. The scent is delicate and, somehow, uplifting, and its use constitutes one of the best simple pickups we can think of.

• • •

In this form the cologne seems also a little more useful for the office worker who can't be brandishing a fancy bottle about every time she wants to cool off a bit. A gentle massage with it takes only a second, but works wonders in restoring the sense of well being. The jar can be kept in the desk drawer, the contents used unobtrusively.

Waistline Reducing.

Naomi: This exercise will help to reduce the waistline. Stand, feet apart, arms out at sides, twist waist to right and touch fingertips of left hand to toes of right foot. Reverse.

Silk Stockings Galore!

Amazing new mill-type hosiery chemicals now enable you to have all the stockings you may need for a long, long time!

The big shortage in hose is steadily increasing. But you can solve it! Simply save and re-use every odd, faded or out-of-season stocking this easy way. Now you can "positively take out old colors" from odd, left-over stockings and re-dye them into lovely new pairs! Also re-dye faded, out-of-season hose to the latest fashion-approved shades! Your hose will again have that lovely new-stocking lustre; snag-resistant, and mud spots brush out easily.

AND, WHAT'S MORE AMAZING, you can treat all full-fashioned hose fabrics, including silk, rayon, nylon, at the same time in the same solution. Imagine this: One 25c Cemar Hosiery Re-Dye Kit does up to eight hose (four pairs) perfectly and completely at one time.

So Quick, So Easy, It's Fun

Trinidad Seat of Flourishing U. S. Defense Activities

By Cousin Eve.

The Argentina rolled up from Rio de Janeiro to Trinidad without much ado. To be sure, passengers had realistic drills in cork jackets while we watched sailors lower the lifeboats and prepare for the worst. But nothing happened on the outside other than visits from schools of merry dolphins and marvelous sunsets.

NEW YORK

Yehudi Menuhin, noted violinist, and I were in the same lifeboat. And two years ago, coming from France in wartime, Gregor Piatigorsky, noted cellist, was in my lifecraft.

Our convoy vanished at Trinidad. We came into harbor at Port of Spain early in the day, and again I felt a creepiness at this mysterious mountain isle, five miles from the coast of Venezuela.

Voodoo or devil worship was in my mind, maybe, and the strange mingled cults of Africa and the far east. Nowadays, however, Trinidad is the seat of a friendly American invasion, and seething with engineers, builders, and military men.

We arrived at 8 a. m., but did not go ashore until long after 3 o'clock. The delay was caused by a native immigration officer who had the power to detain us. And he did so painstakingly.

• • •

When finally we were freed from the shackles of native red tape we boarded a thundering old tug that took an hour thrashing its way among the 40 ships in the great harbor. A heavy dark mist hung over the mountains, partly veiling the town, and I thought it looked sinister enough with long, sleek destroyers guarding the shore.

Having seen Trinidad once and survived, there is nothing further to do about it on a second visit. The atmosphere of voodoo that hangs over all is its real charm. Do away with that and you have only an island port smelling of tar and spices. It is the closed season for Calypso singers and Sir Harry Huggins orchids. There were interned French ships in the bay, German merchantmen, Swedish boats, and not a few British freighters. On shore there were some new, showy, modern style buildings, a hum as of industry, and it was clear that Trinidad had speeded up a bit in two years. The neat little statue of Columbus stared down snootily upon us in King's square. On the way to Frederick street the taxi man admitted that the influx of Americans had helped his business, but he looked bitter about it. We heard later that clashes are frequent between brisk Americans and somnolent islanders.

• • •

It was nearly 4 o'clock when we came to the teeming shops of Frederick street, where the crowds are a dusky hodge-podge of East and West Indians and Chinese. At 4 o'clock bells rang, iron bars went up, keys rattled, and we were out upon the pavement in a wartime curfew. Nothing can be sold after 4 under penalty of jail. However, peddlers hissed their jargon in one's ear, strange sounds from set jaws like coffee grinding in a mill. There was nothing to do except find Queen's Park hotel and meet some English friends for tea. Sir William Gorthwaite had agreed to be there after a round of calls, and we had to be aboard ship by 7 and inspect the new army and navy bases as well.

Millions of our national wealth is being planted here, and it behooves Americans to see these sites, which in 99 years will revert to Great Britain.

The Queen's Park had been dolled up with a false front, an open air lounge, and new lighting and plumbing, and with my English islander friends I put in an amusing hour in the center of Trinidad fashion. We had a time getting a table, so great was the rush.

A handsome American officer in white linen proved to be Gen. Talbot, in residence across the Savannah. And at 6, men in dinner coats and ladies in evening silks and long bobs sailed by to hear Yehudi, who was giving a concert in the theater.

• • •

We had a big English tea—toast, jam and all. And a cake full of raisins that the British called "fly cake"—they said the raisins looked like flies. And ere long swarms of flies settled on the cake and us, and in short broke up the party.

It was late when we drove to the new bases, and black night when we finally reached the comfortable haven of our ship and its Lido life. It was the beginning of the end of a voyage that has no twin for its glorious smooth sea and perfect tropical days and nights. We had only five more days of it.

• • •

The Argentina swung west of Trinidad, and we skirted the mountain shores of Venezuela for many miles. Not a single light gleamed anywhere in this jungle wilderness. I was walking the deck with a man who had yachted for many years in the Caribbean and knew these islands well. On our right as we plowed along were the shore lights of Puerto Rico and Santo Domingo. And somewhere in the glowing dark was Haiti, spiciest island of them all and the most backward. Among the palms of Haiti natives still practice voodoo and black magic. Far away Martinique lay back of the horizon. Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Malige and their children had disembarked at Trinidad for an American consular post at Martinque and had to wait a week at the Queen's Park for plane service.

All regular boat connections with Martinique have been severed, and the heavy luggage of this family could only reach them by tramp steamer. They had come up from a long stay at Rio with boxes and trunks galore, and the chances were against seeing their effects before many months.

We took on many new passengers at Trinidad, rough and ready men who had been working at the bases. And a pretty school teacher who had been touring.

• • •

Days at sea fly by, and one morning early we awoke at quarantine and soon were running the gantlet of New York port officials. They promptly took our new green passports from us, and the journey was over.

For my part, I could have turned around and sailed on the Argentina back to the far, fair antipodes. An anticlimax, without doubt, but a period of sweet peace in this warring world, and a lovely boat. The New York customs ordeal was milder than usual. The agent pounced, catlike, upon some semi, demi-precious junk of mine, and I thanked him for the compliment. Outside of aquamarines there's no loot one can find in South America other than amulets and crude wood carvings.

I was searching for old colored prints of Buenos Aires and Rio, no matter how crude, but with no luck. The Argentines had gone in heavily for large oil paintings in the past. And the Brazilians had specialized in amusing and garish posters of the Guanabara bay and early day city. But the London market had swallowed everything long ago.

• • •

New York has developed a very nice August season, just as Paris did. When the solid citizens have migrated to the mountains and the sea, then the chic world emerges from its lair and fills the restaurants and theaters. The prettiest woman I know with a fortune in eight figures is in her suite at the St. Regis and wouldn't be elsewhere for anything. She week-ends at Newport and revels in the peace and quiet of New York at midsummer.

And there is Vivian, exiled from London and living on the proceeds of her gorgeous jewel box in a tip-top apartment at the Plaza. She chooses her week-ends in the choicest resorts, but summer in town. She plans it that way.

I kept meeting people I like on the street or in shops, and rather soon was dated up with things not so important, but for me quite charming.

There was a luncheon one day at Mayfair House given by a cosmopolite—everybody except me owned a house in Paris or its environs. All these houses and châteaux are being run by French servants, and none of their contents have been disturbed in any way. There was Capt. John Gade, brother of Herman Gade and lately naval attaché of the American embassy in Bruxelles. Then there was Count Serge Fleury of the French foreign service and William Labouchere, a nephew of the great Henry Labouchere.

Capt. Gade has taken over the chairmanship of relief for France and is meeting with a great response. His slogan is "France Forever," whether occupied, unoccupied, bound or free—nonpolitical, nonsectarian, nonpartisan, wholly beneficent. Some of his regular contributors send very small sums, others contribute large sums each month. The French relief hums like a beehive, and Capt. Gade is heartened by the help given the stricken nation.

The Monte Carlo Beach club on East 52d street is a place one dines if one can get in. Next door to Monte Carlo, which is now closed for the summer, it is a narrow room wonderfully decorated in tropical style. The usual bar clogs the lobby, and its shiny black ceiling reflects doings below. The Beach club is yellow and white, and I seem to remember bunches of bananas, and smart looking patrons, and rather indifferent food. Yes, definitely. I don't know exactly who or what its patrons expect to see in a place like this restaurant, but it struck one that the "assistance" was on the qui vive for Brendas and Dianas, Huttons and Astors. The crowd was out for sight rather than eats, and was certainly amusing. The name of the place is perfect. Monte Carlo Beach club harks back to wonderful days in the golden past.

Robin Copelin of Chicago, long a dweller in Paris, has settled in the seventies on New York's east side. I took time to take tea with this most diverting exile and to hear the latest of her witticisms on life as lived in Gotham at the present.

All around in the apartment were choice pieces collected in the Paris years, and I expected to hear my hostess say she was settled here for life. But not at all. With fire in her eye she spoke of returning to Paris on the very first passenger boat—with her household goods neatly crated in the hold. How Paris holds her lovers! Once a Parisian always a Parisian, and the true Francophile loves his Paris more than ever these days.

If there is a resort in our country less like South America than is Southampton, I don't know it. Southampton, Newport, and Bar Harbor are three summer places of high fashion, with the first leading in conservatism. Southampton, on the south shore of Long Island, has been going for 300 years and hasn't changed much in the last three decades. The air is sweet, the meadows are green, and there are fine old elms arching over her lanes and highways. The town gives one the feeling of peace and quiet, and one knows definitely that it is really gay.

These sleepy old gray shingled houses snuggling close to the sand dunes are full of life and animation from early June to late October.

I was staying in a charming house, large, full of flowers, and girdled on every side with magnificent pink hydrangeas. They were massed in the marble foyer, they bloomed thick on the verandas, and ran over hedgewise to the terraces. On the sides of the mansion were small cozy rose gardens. And at an angle a formal garden with a lily pool. But the thing I liked best was its vast expanse of velvet green lawn that spread in every direction. A tapis vert if ever there was one, green as emeralds and so fine.

The house was on Ox Pasture lane, and nearby was Captain's Neck road. It kept one wondering about this quaint old name, was it a long neck, "good for hanging," as the Russians say, or a mere "neck of the woods"?

Of titled people there is a list long as one's arm at Southampton this summer, including a Hapsburg or two and every shade of European nobility. Chicago is represented by Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine and members of her family, Mrs. John Crerar, Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Berdeau, and the Charles Edward Browns, tanned to a turn and delightful as ever.

On Sunday the luncheon crowd at this club was something to see. The young moderns were there in force, and you saw acres of sunburned pelts. Particularly fascinating to me, however, was the daytime dress of Mrs. Orson Munn. She goes to the other extreme and wears ballet skirts. O! So many skirts, by day and by night, too. Being slim and dark, she gets away marvelously with this fad. Mrs. Berdeau, too, was an eye opener in an Antibes regalia of violet and green with sunglasses to match. Mrs. Jacob Baur was lunching that day, staying with the Berdeaus en route to Newport for a visit with Mrs. Paul Fitzsimmons.

We had many a charming hour at Southampton and met a whole new world of attractive people. The spookiest thing we did was the 30 mile ride to the Montauk Point club one night to dine and dance. One of those Long Island fogs blew up and we had to drive by dead reckoning, but finally arrived. The hotel and various clubs at Montauk are what is left of the vanished millions spent for a foolish scheme to shorten the trip to Paris and London.

In spite of the dense, gay crowd, I thought as always that Montauk is one of the loveliest places in the world.

Entertaining of Week to Be for Brides-to-Be

By Judith Cass.

The week before Labor day might rightly be called the dullest of the summer for stay-at-homes. The last two weeks of August traditionally are the most favored for summer vacations as the Labor day week-end adds a day or two of grace, usually, so every one who can get away usually does.

The season's debutantes will be storing up plenty of sleep this week, for by the middle of next week the fall debut season will be in full swing. This week's entertaining seems to be mostly for brides-to-be. One of them is Miss Ruth McCormick, daughter of Mrs. Albert Gallatin Simms and the late United States Senator Medill McCormick, whose marriage to Maxwell Peter Miller Jr. in the Middle Creek church near Rockford, Ill., on Friday afternoon will gather many friends from Chicago and surrounding towns. The bride spent her early childhood in Chicago.

For the convenience of the many guests who will come from away, Mr. and Mrs. Simms inclosed maps showing the way to Middle Creek church with the wedding invitations. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock, central standard time, and a reception will follow at a small house on National avenue, Rockford.

• • •

Miss McCormick will have her sister, Mrs. Courtlandt Barnes Jr. of New York, the former Katrina McCormick, as her matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Miss Eleanor Metcalf of Providence, R. I., a former schoolmate of the bride at Foxcroft and Bennington college, and Miss Frances Ann Elmms of Albuquerque, N. M., a niece of Miss McCormick's stepfather. She also is a good friend of the bride.

Mr. Miller is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Miller of Rockford, where he and his bride will make their home. His younger brother, Frederick, will enter the University of Chicago this fall.

• • •

There will be a number of parties this week for Miss Anita Louise Straub and William W. Darrow, who are being married on Sept. 3. Miss Straub and her fiancé are guests of the Hill Blacketts this week-end at Green Lake, Wis. Miss Patsy Blackett is to be a bridesmaid. Next Sunday night the Blacketts will give a supper for the large bridal party.

Dr. and Mrs. E. V. L. Brown are giving a supper and shower for the bridegroom next Friday night, and on Saturday Miss Anne Daughaday will entertain at cocktails in the Winnetka home of her parents, the Hamilton Daughadays. That night the bridesmaids and ushers will go in town to dine and dance.

Miss Straub, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Straub, will have her younger sister, Suzanne, as maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Miss Daughaday, Miss Blackett, Miss Jane Darrow, sister of the bridegroom, who will fly back from New Mexico, where she is stationed with a Field Museum expedition; Miss Katherine Davidson of Brooklyn, N. Y., the bride's roommate at Vassar; Miss Kathryn Sieck, cousin of Miss Straub; Miss Mary Hammond, and Miss Josephine Wallace.

John Darrow will be best man for his brother. They are sons of Mrs. Theodore Butz. Ushering will be their cousins, Rogers Butz and Philip von Ammon; Donald Brown, the bride's brother, John, and three of Mr. Darrow's Yale classmates, Benjamin Pierce of New York, Atwood Collins of Hartford, Conn., and Elihu Hyndman of St. Louis.

• • •

The big pool at the Knollwood club will be a jolly spot this afternoon, for the club is having a swimming meet for children under 15. The event is an annual one, but never before has a full day been given over to the youngsters. There will be strolling minstrels and clowns to entertain the young aquatic stars, and a luncheon party for them on the terrace.

The finals of the ninth annual tennis tournament of the alumnæ of the Convent of the Sacred Heart will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon on the courts of the convent at 6250 Sheridan road. Tea will be served. This afternoon will bring the finals of the national 12 goal polo championships at the Oak Brook Polo club in Hinsdale.

ENGAGEMENTS

Wedding and engagement announcements must be signed by a member of the family, and must bear the address and telephone number of the signer. Announcements must reach the society editor by Tuesday noon preceding the Sunday of publication. Please print names.

First Issue of Finance Forum Bulletin Out

"Now," a monthly bulletin published by the Women's Finance forum, made its first appearance last week "Now," says an introductory paragraph, "is dedicated to a single purpose: to present timely and pertinent news of women to all members of the forum. While the forum is a nonpartisan organization, 'Now' will try to serve as a signal station to flash significant items of present trends in those particular matters which affect the status of women as citizens, workers, homemakers, property owners, taxpayers, and equal participants in the destiny of the nation."

Mrs. Ruth M. Burgess. [Maurice Photo.]

The current number mentions bills proposed in congress to provide for "unborrowed, 'printing press' money . . . as the means to finance war" and to provide for compulsory defense savings. The issue also asks for an opinion on proposed income tax exemptions for children over 18 if attending recognized college or professional school, and for reasonable medical and legal expenses.

Mrs. Ruth M. Burgess, new president of the forum, is one of the committee on publication, which includes Mrs. Lorraine L. Blair, founder of the forum; Dr. Myrtle S. Farnsworth and Miss Vivian Bennett.

The forum, a nonprofit organization dedicated to informing women on finance and economics, will begin its season with a dinner meeting Sept. 25 at the Stevens Building restaurant. Other new officers, besides Mrs. Burgess, are Miss Kathryn Coger, vice president; Miss Betsy Burnson, treasurer; Mrs. Beatrice Tinsley, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Marie Bradley, recording secretary; Mrs. Helen McCollum, promotional chairman; Mrs. Lillian Prugh, membership chairman; Dr. Farnsworth, hospitality chairman.

Marking Poison Bottles.

Effective ways to mark a bottle containing poison are to place it in a fruit jar with a tight lid, to paste adhesive tape over the cork and down the sides of the bottle, to stick pins in the cork, or to tie a small bell around the bottle.

Chicagoland Weddings

Onita Weiskopf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Weiskopf, Hyde Park boulevard, to Lester Kaufman, son of Mrs. May Kaufman, New York, on July 17.

Get what you want and save time, energy and money with helpful TRIBUNE WANT ADS

A HINT TO BRIDES

To find the apartment which will make you happiest in your new home, choose from the Apartments to Rent columns in the Tribune want ad section. Then you will make sure of overlooking no worthwhile value because the Tribune prints more apartments to rent want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined. Whether you are a bride-to-be or a housewife of many years, the larger selection of apartments described in Tribune want ads can help you save time and energy, and assure you of greater satisfaction in your choice.

SUGGESTION TO MOTHERS

Do your children get enough sunshine? Have they a safe place to play? Sunshine, fresh air and vigorous exercise can help your children build sturdier, healthier bodies. Why not consider buying a house with a yard around it? Then your children will have the best opportunity to develop themselves. Modern financing methods have made home ownership possible for thousands of families which heretofore could not consider it. To find the type of home you want, in the location you prefer and at the price you want to pay, follow the Real Estate columns in the Tribune want ad section—Chicago's largest real estate market.

Because want ad users get better results, they place more want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

You'll See Many Chicagoans in Mystic, Conn

By India Moffett.

MYSTIC, CONN. In the days when "everyone" flocked to Paris it was said that if one sat at a table in front of the Café de la Paix long enough the whole world would go by. We feel sure this summer that if we sat on the bridge in the friendly little village of Mystic we'd see every Chicagoan who is summering or taking a vacation in the east go by. For the bridge, a ponderous counterweight affair that opens when a siren that seems to foretell a fire screeches, is on Route 1, the main road between New York and Boston. It is the old Post road, probably the oldest thorofare in the country.

Mystic, like every other village on the Post road, has this famous road as its main street. Along it are the stores and shops where the year around residents and the summer colonists buy necessities and luxuries. In Mystic there are no shops that are boarded up during the winter, for it is not primarily a summer resort. If people around here want the sort of clothes that are sold during the winter in Palm Beach and Miami Beach they go to nearby Watch Hill in Rhode Island, or to some one of the many other smart resorts on this coast.

• • •

Mystic is a cozy little place. Most Connecticut villages are. They are so compact, so trim and pretty. To middle westerners, who are accustomed to the wide open spaces, the distances here seem infinitesimal, but even so it takes quite a while to go from one place to another even tho the actual mileage is little, for the traffic is heavy. "Densely settled" is a familiar roadside sign, and the "cops" are tough if one ignores the speed markers.

Passing is difficult, for the road winds and turns, up hill and down dale, giving the motorist entrancing views but making it hard to make time. And that is one of the things that Chicagoans always are trying to do, even when on a vacation. It isn't until one is able to settle down and move along unhurriedly and sedately that we visitors are able to get the most and the best out of a visit to this land of enchantment and peace. Yes, peace, in spite of the defense work that is making nearby New London a madhouse. Every one avoids it like the plague, for the bridge leading into the town from the east is likely to be up for hours when the workers from the electric boat shop are changing shifts and it is no fun to sit for two or three hours waiting to get to the railroad station, believe me. The last trains from New York to Boston stop at New London, so almost every one hereabouts has to go there occasionally to meet a train.

• • •

Mystic is noted especially for its art gallery, where the artists who live around here during the summer exhibit their works. "The annual art exhibit in Mystic in some respects tops the list," writes the art critic of the New York Times in describing the various summer shows. "Mystic is extremely reliable. It does not do things showily, but it does things well. Some of this art is more, a great deal more, than just pleasant summer art."

He then goes on to mention especially the works of such well known artists as Lester Boronda, Kenneth Bates, Nat Little, Beatrice Cuming, Galed Gesner, Paul Ullman, Y. E. Soderberg, Harve Stein, Guy Pene Dubois and his daughter, Yvonne Pene Dubois, and Robert Brackman.

Mr. Stein and Mr. Soderberg are former Chicagoans, and so are several other active members of the Mistic Art association, which runs the gallery. Garrett Price, cartoonist and water colorist, is vice president of the association, of which Mr. Stein and Mr. Soderberg are directors. Carl Lawless and Herbert Morton Stoops, two other well known painters in oil, also started their artistic careers in Chicago.

As I write, sitting in front of a cottage on Mason's Island, I can look across a little bay to the Stoops' charming house, built of Connecticut field stone. The roof once was a bright red but time, also the hurricane of three years ago, no doubt, has washed away most of the color so that today it is a soft, almost neutral color, blending perfectly into the green of the forest beyond. The shutters are as blue as the sea, altho they, too, are not as bright as when they were new about 10 years ago. It is one of the most pleasant houses on this island, beloved by the comparatively few who know it, beyond all other places along the eastern shore.

The Prices and the Soderbergs also live on the island, which is reached from Mystic via a causeway. There are only about 50 houses on the island, which was given to Maj. John Mason, Puritan and Indian fighter, for his victory over the Pequots in 1651. One of the early Mason houses was on the site of the present Stoops house, but it long since went the way of all houses that are not lived in, and cared for.

• • •

One of the old houses that belonged to one of the Mason family still stands, but there are no Masons left, at least none on the island. The last to live there were a brother and a sister, about whom many amusing and fantastic tales are told. A disagreement many years ago resulted in their dividing the house into two parts, but there was only one staircase so they had to share that. The only other thing they shared was a cat, perennially Thomas, to and thru whom each talked, expressing his and her views on life in general and each other in particular.

This state of affairs continued for a generation, but at last the brother died and then the hurricane, the ravages of which are still evident everywhere it hit, blew away half the house. The sister stayed on in the half that remained but she, too, is gone now, and strangers live there. The Half House is unpainted so that it has the marvelous old, weather beaten look that old houses near the sea have, but it is bright and gay because of its aquamarine shutters and the purple petunias that bloom in the garden under the front windows. The lawn is green and the whole is an attractive, but a strange sight.

• • •

There are many Chicagoans living in this vicinity in the summer. The Robert Foote Halls have a delightful old house on the river in Mystic, and Mrs. Frank B. Mulford has a charming place which she calls Cockade-on-Pentacres in Stonington, which is the next village east of Mystic. The Halls spent most of last winter in Mystic, but Mrs. Mulford returns to Chicago every autumn.

Mrs. Alfred T. Martin and her sister, Mrs. Philip Hamill, have one of the oldest big houses in Stonington, a lovely old place filled with beautiful antiques. Mrs. Hamill's daughter, Miss Peggy, is there and so are Mrs. Martin's grandchildren, Peggy and Peter Gratiot, who will be returning to school in September.

Mrs. J. Allen Haines, an ex-Chicagoan who is as noted for her taste in decoration as for her marvelous recipes, has a house at Shelter Harbor, near Stonington, this summer. The house is a show place because of the originality and imagination of its chatelaine, who has the gift of transforming any place that she calls home into a distinctive and chic establishment. Her sister, Mrs. William Paul Martin of Lake Forest, is visiting Mrs. Haines at present. Mrs. Ruth Meeker is studying at Robert Brackman's school in Noank, a quaint old fishing village on a point just west of Mystic. The Charles Counselmans are at Black Point near Lyme, where the William S. Reyburns have a new house. Mrs. Reyburn was Mrs. Glidden Osborne when she lived in Chicago.

Mrs. Vance D. Chapline, who was Mrs. Lyston Morgan of Highland Park before her marriage to Capt. Chapline of the United States navy, and the four daughters of the family are occupying the old Morgan homestead in Mystic this summer. Mrs. Christopher Morgan still lives there and she is enjoying a houseful of young people again, now that her granddaughters, Cynthia and Frances Morgan, and the young Chaplines, Bunny and Sherry, are there. Capt. Chapline's boat is in New York harbor so he is able to join his family for most week-ends.

Mrs. Richard Baum arrived last Monday with her baby son for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Wallace, who have a summer home on Mason's Island. Mr. Baum will join them in about 10 days. Miss Carolyn Wilson is another Chicagoan on the island. Her house has an ideal location, far out on a point so that it is almost as secluded as if it were on its own little island.

Federation's New President Outlines Aims

By Betty Browning.

Mrs. Preston L. Wettaw.

This year the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs has a new type of president, the very antithesis of your popular conception of a club leader. Mrs. Preston L. Wettaw come from Eldorado, a town of 8,000 just 20 miles from the Ohio river and Kentucky. Her voice is as silken, her pronunciation as soft, her manner as gentle as that of any typically feminine southern woman, but the blood of Ethan Allen of Revolutionary war fame runs in her veins, and it requires only a few minutes of conversation with her to reveal that Mrs. Wettaw has ideas of her own.

One of these ideas is that the Federation has a useful rôle to perform in bringing about greater understanding between town and country women. Mrs. Wettaw has found that country women, undeservedly, are likely to have somewhat of an inferiority complex so far as city women are concerned.

Having insight into the matter from more than one point of view, since she herself was farm bred and has lived for years in small towns, Mrs. Wettaw believes that both have much to learn from each other. Generously, she gives credit to city women for their progressive outlook and their speed in getting things done.

• • •

It is a president's duty and privilege, Mrs. Wettaw holds, to make full use of the many talented women about her. She herself intends to delegate a great many of her responsibilities, and so have time for fun as well as hard work in the difficult rôle of leader of 80,000 clubwomen.

The new president is following the lead of the General Federation of Women's Clubs this year, and, in her own words, is concentrating on the activities of the new national defense committee.

Mrs. William T. Bruckner of Hinsdale, General Federation director for Illinois, and Mrs. Wettaw's predecessor as president, has charge of this committee. She is appointing chairmen to head subcommittees, as suggested by the General Federation in its proposed plan to organize women in every county and town in the country for national defense.

• • •

Registration of talents for volunteer service; an educational campaign for Americanization; housing, consumer problems; nutrition; nursing; vocational training in agriculture, industry, and aviation; recreational activities for soldiers and sailors; and the sale of United States stamps and bonds are activities to be directed by these subcommittees, as outlined by Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the General Federation.

In connection with the section on consumer problems, 75 picked leaders of the Illinois Federation will attend a program on food conservation and nutrition at 1 o'clock Thursday at the Commonwealth Edison company.

Mrs. Harry A. Brinkman of Hinsdale has been appointed by Mrs. Bruckner as her aide in organizing the national defense program. An important aspect of this work is the Federation's coöperation with other women's groups interested in national defense. Two meetings of these groups already have been held to work out a common program, and a third will take place tomorrow at Federation headquarters, 30 West Washington street.

Mrs. Wettaw is one of the youngest presidents in the Federation's history. From the standpoint of length of service she is young, too, as such things go in the Federation, with a mere 14 years of membership in clubs to her credit. Unusual for a state president is the fact that she had been on the state board only as a district president before her election to the highest office in the organization. Her one other service to the state organization was as a member of the finance commitee.

She has been a member both of the Eldorado Woman's club and the Harrisburg Woman's club, in a town eight miles from Eldorado. This arrangement Mrs. Wettaw has valued because it has kept her informed as no one set of programs could have done.

The educational contribution of clubs to the homemaker is their greatest appeal to Mrs. Wettaw. This is natural, for she herself taught school for seven years, first at the age of 18, in a country school, then in town. She has retained her membership in the Illinois, national and county teachers' associations, and still substitutes as a teacher occasionally in the high school near her home, where her daughter is a senior.

Music and English are her favorite subjects, she says, and confesses that she and the students both "make a lark of it." She is sponsor member of Beta Sigma Phi, educational sorority of young teachers and college girls.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Dear Julia: We are so pleased at the remarkable record our World's Fair is making—over ten million paid admissions in four months. September and October are expected to show even larger figures. Will and I go down once or twice each week and yesterday we attended a session of the Catholic Education society in Festival hall, which we enjoyed. It was a large and enthusiastic gathering, Bishop Spalding of Peoria having charge of the service, while Archbishop Feehan of Chicago introduced the speakers.

We heard some of the great men of the Catholic church, among them Bishop Muldoon of Chicago, and Archbishop John Hennessey of Dubuque, Ia. We liked the latter's earnest words as he expounded the need for religious education.

"Man belongs to God and was made to enjoy Him" was one of his sentences, and I thought how much like our own Westminster Catechism it sounded. The first question and answer in that, as perhaps you know, are: "What is the chief end of man?" "Man's chief end is to glorify God and to enjoy Him forever."

I like to think of the beliefs we have in common with other denominations rather than of our differences. We are all traveling toward the Heavenly Country, some by one route, some by another, and why not wave a friendly hand to those in another conveyance?

Will and I, confirmed theater-goers, heard Lillian Russell's Opera Comique last week. She gave the farewell performance Sunday night. We would not attend that, as we never go to the theater or any other place of amusement on Sunday. "The Mountebanks" is one of the three operas which Miss Lillian Russell and her troupe has presented, and we heard that. The words are by Gilbert, the music by Cellier. The dialogue is not so brilliant as in some of Gilbert's previous works, but he is still the prince of librettists and we enjoyed the entertainment, while the beautiful Lillian is such a ravishing creature that it is a pleasure to look at her even if she never sang a note. Her Opera Comique has been quite successful, producing three operas here, each in most sumptuous fashion and taking rank with the best opera companies of the country.

We were pleased today to read that John McWade, our popular baritone, is soon to join the Francis Wilson company. I shall never forget John McWade in "Pinafore," that charming Gilbert and Sullivan opera, when the Chicago Church Choir company gave it here. Mr. Wade was the Captain of the Pinafore. He has but one arm, but manages so well that you don't notice his disability.

I must not write more, for Martha, Sandy, and the children are coming for dinner and I hear their voices outside, the children clamoring for permission to ring the doorbell. The twins are able to take their part in such a dispute now. But they are all darlings! Much love,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Foot Notes.

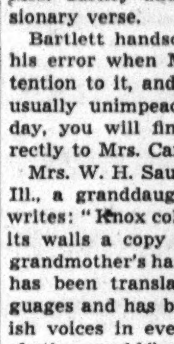
The names of Muldoon, Hennessey, Spalding, and Feehan are familiar and beloved by Catholics of the middle west. Have our readers a memory of the great conference mentioned in the letter?

Little Drops of Water.

So much interest has been expressed by readers in the authorship of this child's verse that we are giving most of the space in our footnotes to it.

Louis J. Keller, 5540 Hyde Park boulevard, Chicago, notable collector of autographs, has sent us a full account of his correspondence with Julia F. Carney, the author, when, finding that Harper's Encyclopedia had attributed the verse to Frances S. Osgood, a mistake repeated by Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations," he [Mr. Keller] sought to establish Mrs. Carney's title to it as author.

Mrs. Carney, herself, was not much concerned about the error. Mrs. Osgood, she felt, was not to blame for the error that linked her name with it. But friends who knew the real author wrote to newspapers in the east and in time it was recognized that Mrs. Carney had written the poem in 1845, when as Julia Fletcher, she was a school teacher in Boston. She wrote it, by the way, as an exercise in a phonographic class [shorthand] in old Tremont temple, Boston.



Julia F. Carney.

"Laudes Domini," a hymnal published by the Century company, gave credit for the authorship of the poem to the Rev. Eden C. Brewer, an English clergyman, who had used the four stanzas originally written by Mrs. Carney and had added a missionary verse.

Bartlett handsomely acknowledged his error when Mr. Keller called attention to it, and if you consult that usually unimpeachable authority today, you will find it attributed correctly to Mrs. Carney.

Mrs. W. H. Saunders, of Galesburg, Ill., a granddaughter of the author, writes: "Knox college has hanging on its walls a copy of the verse in my grandmother's handwriting. The poem has been translated into many languages and has been recited by childish voices in every civilized country of the world." Born in Medford, Mass., in 1823, Julia A. Fletcher came, after her marriage, to the wilds of Illinois and the history of the Carney family is bound up with that of Galesburg. She died in 1908 and is buried in Galesburg.

Mrs. Earle A. Bronson, 800 Simpson street, Evanston, possesses a small Sunday school hymnal, "Songs for Little Folks," published by Biglow & Main, in which credit for "Little Things" is given to the Rev. Eden C. Brewer.

Mr. Keller calls attention to the statement by Mrs. Carney that the lines in the last stanza, often altered, should be:

"Help to make earth happy,
Like the Heaven above."

Poem of the Week.

"Twinkle, twinkle, little star."

If you would like the entire poem, send stamped, addressed envelope to Herma Clark, care Chicago Tribune

The B'nai B'rith Juniors to Meet for 5th Session

The Labor day week-end will bring delegates from Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin to Detroit, Mich., for the fifth annual convention of B'nai B'rith Juniors of district No. 6. A program of culture, athletics, social and philanthropic activities and Americanism is sponsored by the Juniors of the district, which was organized seven years ago and numbers 3,000 members.

Miss Rose Ottenfeld, president of the junior council, will conduct business sessions, which will be interspersed with informal parties, athletic contests, luncheons, a reception, a dance, and a banquet.

Horse Show at Cape Cod to Be Major Event

HYANNIS, MASS. With only two weeks of the summer remaining, a few more major events are being crowded into Cape Cod's social and sports calendar to make the season a happy memory for the thousands of vacationists who fine their way here from the scattered sections of the country.

Among the late events of the summer, and one which bids fair to become an outstanding function of seasons to come, will be the first annual horse show in Osterville next Saturday, the proceeds of which will aid Our Lady of the Assumption Catholic parish. The show will be held at Leo Boyle's riding school with an ample number of boxes and other facilities so spectators may have excellent vantage points for watching the 31 class schedule.

It is reported by the Rev. William O'Reilly, assistant pastor of the parish, and head of an executive committee for the show, that entries almost will equal those of the well established Cohasset horse show, a highlight of the summer activities for colonists along Boston's south shore. Numbered among Father O'Reilly's committee members is Mrs. Robert M. Roloson Sr. of Chicago. Mrs. Roloson's name also appears among the boxholders along with that of Mrs. Vincent T. Burns, who reports an enthusiastic response to the event from the Wianno colony, where she is in charge of box reservations.

• • •

The Wianno club, always a popular meeting place for Cape Cod visitors, will be the scene of three gala social functions next week. First of the events will be the final Wednesday night dance of the season with all previous weekly contest winners of the summer, about 40 in all, participating for seasonal honors under the watchful eye of a corps of judges representing titleholders of previous years. Serving on the board of dance critics is Miss Carolyn Crossett, daughter of the Edward C. Crossetts.

Promptly at 9 p. m. Thursday, Mrs. L. Gould Newell and Mrs. Reed Estabrook, proprietors of a smart dress shop in Newberry street, Boston, will present an annual showing of distinctive fall fashions in the Wianno club ballroom in the interest of Cape Cod charities. Last year's revue donated $500 toward enterprises of the Cape. Five Chicago women listed as patrons for the promenade are Mrs. Duncan H. Browne, wife of the rector of St. Peter's chapel in Wianno, who has arrived on the cape after convalescing from an illness; Mrs. Crossett, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Roloson, and Mrs. Lawrence H. Viles.

A sixth Chicagoan who will serve as a mannequin is Mrs. Seymour H. Wheeler, who rejoined the Wianno colony a few days ago for a late season visit. Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler, who leased their Cape summer home this year, are vacationing at a cottage in the West bay section.

All the Wianno cottage colony and the club guests are using their ingenuity to devise costumes for the club's costume ball Saturday night, rounding out the busiest week the resort has seen this summer. There will be no general theme this year, permitting a wider choice of costumes than usual. Prizes will be awarded for the most beautiful, most amusing and most original attire.

Mrs. Albert B. Dick has arrived at the club in time to enjoy a few weeks' stay before the curtain comes down on another summer.

The house of the famous artic explorer, Commander Donald B. MacMillan, is among the interesting houses in Provincetown, opened today for the benefit of the church of St. Mary of the Harbor from 2 to 6 p. m.

The beautiful rose garden, home and studio of the late Frederic J. Waugh, dean of American marine painters, will be another place available for inspection, and also the home of Robert Ball, well known illustrator, with its blue garden and house with a great window overlooking the harbor. Additional stops in the pilgrimage will be the vicarage of St. Mary of the Harbor church, with its beautiful memorial gardens; the home of Mrs. Charles Hawthorne, widow of the internationally known painter; the garden and wharf studio of Miss Blanche Lazell, leading modern artist; Way-up-Along, the dignified colonial house with a stately doorway, residence of Mrs. R. Perry Bush and her daughter, Miss Edith, dean of women at Tufts college; Mrs. Warren Aker's early Victorian house, The Lilacs, and the quaint old houses maintained by Mrs. W. L. Bidwell and Mrs. Henry Marion Hall.

A recent visitor in Provincetown, which is the tip end community of Cape Cod, was Mrs. Ray Glaspell, who was a guest of her sister-in-law, Miss Susan Glaspell, noted author. Vacationing there for two weeks is C. Angelo Lynch of Evanston. Mr. Lynch is there to visit with his daughter, Joan, and mother-in-law, Mrs. John Matheson.

• • •

In Provincetown for a four week visit is Mrs. James Weber Lynn, who will be entertained at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Caliga, both members of the community's renowned art colony. Mrs. Lynn, whose late husband was a professor at the University of Chicago, will leave Provincetown about mid-September to visit friends in Windsor, Vt.

Chicagoans figured prominently in the annual elections of two groups that convened on the Cape recently. When the Union Chapel association of Hyannisport met for its yearly business session, Mrs. Robert D. Forgan was chosen to serve on three committees—membership, decorating, and flower. Dewitt Doane of Chicago, was chosen by the descendants of John Doane to act as treasurer of the Doane Family association.

The Doane association meeting, a biennial affair, was held in the Pilgrim Congregational church of Harwichport with about 100 present. It was featured by a Cape Cod clambake and speeches by Gilbert H. Doane, library director at the University of Wisconsin, and Rollins Robbins Winslow, United States consul at Quebec.

MARRIED

Mrs. Eugene Edward Hult is the former Sara Louise Bowes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Bowes of Park Ridge. Mr. Hult is the son of Mrs. A. J. Hult, also of Park Ridge. The wedding took place in St. Paul of the Cross church in the same suburb. [Carlos Photo.]

William Tell's Story Will Be Told in English

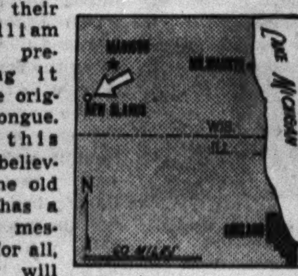
By Chester Holway.

NEW GLARUS, WIS. Not quite 650 years after the day when the three forest cantons of what is now Switzerland formed a democratic union to protect themselves from the tyranny of Austrian princes the Swiss people of Wisconsin will present their fourth annual performances of "William Tell," Schiller's drama of the Swiss fight for freedom.

These performances, Sunday, Aug. 31, and Monday, Sept. 1, in a natural outdoor theater among the hills of Green county, in southern Wisconsin, come as near to being an American counterpart of Oberammergau as exists in the United States. Each year the farmer, the cheesemaker, the lumberman, the editor, the storekeeper lay aside their chores and take up their rôles.

• • •

In previous years the Swiss of New Glarus have been content to please themselves with their "William Tell," presenting it in the original tongue. But this year, believing the old play has a new message for all, they will give one performance in English, Sept. 1. The show begins at 1:30 p. m., standard time, in William Tell glen.



More than 250 citizens, young and old, participate. The region's finest Swiss cattle, goats, and Arabian horses join in the pagentry.

The week-end of the spectacle is a festival occasion. Next Saturday night there will be singing and dancing on the village green. On Sunday all members of the cast attend the Swiss church before they hurry home to don their costumes for the afternoon performance.

• • •

This village, Wisconsin's original Swiss community, was settled in 1845 by immigrants from Canton Glarus. The district has long been one of the state's most prosperous, and the Swiss cheese made here is known the nation over. Green county is a land of hills and valleys and oak woods, originally chosen by the first settlers because it reminded them of their old world home.

New Glarus has limited facilities for overnight guests, but hotels can be found at Monticello, 6 miles distant; Monroe, 18 miles; Madison, 30 miles, and Janesville, 45 miles, all within easy driving distance over paved highways.

An interesting Labor day week-end tour, with a performance of "William Tell" here, might include visits to Madison, Blue Mounds, Cave of the Mounds, Little Norway [all three near Mount Horeb], Taliesin [the Frank Lloyd Wright estate near Spring Green], and Mineral Point. New Glarus woods and Tower hill, the latter near Spring Green, are state parks ideal for a picnic lunch or supper.

Peach Festival at South Haven

SOUTH HAVEN, Mich.—Michigan's Peach festival at South Haven, Aug. 29 and 30, will find a regatta and an archery meet as part of the attraction. The Lake Michigan District Lightning class sailboat races, with contestants already entered from Michigan, Indiana, and Illinois, and the Michigan Archery tournament will be run off simultaneously.

On the final night of the festival Jean Lois Muske is to be crowned peach queen. Miss Muske was chosen blossom queen at the Twin Cities fête this spring.

Art Institute Plans Show by Famed Artist

By Edith Weigle.

Interesting news of an important exhibition to be held at the Art institute in January of 1942 has been made by Daniel Catton Rich, director of fine arts, there. The show will be the first extensive exhibit of the works of the famous and intriguing French painter, Henri Julien Rousseau [1844-1910] to be seen here and will be made up of 35 paintings, 6 drawings and 1 etching chosen from private and public collections in the United States.

The Museum of Modern Art of New York is collaborating with the institute and will also show the collection, but only after it has left Chicago. The dates here are from Jan. 22 to Feb. 23.

Rousseau, known as Le Douanier [the custom house officer] Rousseau to distinguish him from Théodore Rousseau [1812-1867], was famous for his minutely detailed, highly colored jungle scenes which are as decorative as they are fanciful. The whole range of his activity from his early so-called primitive manner to these mural-like canvases will be traced in the exhibition.

Mr. Rich says of the show: "The purpose is to demonstrate that Rousseau is a great artist in his own right and is no longer to be considered as the half humorous primitive or as the man who influenced cubism. The coöperation of the Art institute and the Museum of Modern Art will bring together the finest examples of Rousseau's work in the United States and the exhibition will confirm Rousseau's important place in the art of the 19th century in France."

An unusual event in any army camp was the recent art exhibition called "Army Illustrators" held at Fort Custer, Mich. The canvases were the work of a class of artists, professionals, and amateurs, sponsored by Maj. H. E. Cooper and directed by Sidney Seeley of the Michigan Arts and Crafts project, himself an artist. This class is thought to be the only army sketching group in any of the camps.

One of the exhibitors was Private Alexander Smith Jr., a Negro soldier in the 94th Engineer battalion, who operated a punch press in a Detroit motor factory before he was inducted. He works in sandstone and clay and he also paints, having been a free lance commercial artist in Detroit.

Others were Private Don G. Moore of Wheaton, and Private Anthony Pedicone of Chicago whose work has been seen at the Art institute here. Also, Leonard Krimsin of the Chicago Palette and Chisel academy.

Among Chicago painters spending the summer months in California are Leslie and Claude Buck, who are working at their craft in Santa Monica.

Ten dry point etchings by the Chicago artist, R. H. Palenske, which were shown at the Banff Springs hotel recently, were purchased by the duke of Kent for his collection.

Irving Tarrant, lecturer on art, will give a talk on "Renaissance Painting in Italy" today at 2:30 p. m. in gallery 45 of the Art institute. The lecture is free.

The "Masterpiece of the Month" at the institute is a Chinese porcelain bowl of the Yung Lo period, 1403-1424, the gift of Russell Tyson. It is said to be one of the rarest Chinese bowls in existence, is of the eggshell type, and is decorated in the "secret" manner. That is, it is only when the bowl is held against the light that the delicate design can be seen.

Vessels of this type had a fabulous reputation in China, and some of the finest of them were made in the Yung Lo period of the Ming dynasty, but later on copies were made which were almost as fascinating as the originals. In the 18th century the imperial factories reproduced the art wares of former times and while it was possible to make bowls of the same thinness and translucency, the subtlety of the decorations, the dragons and phoenixes, was not duplicated.

In the display of the Art institute bowl an electric light has been placed close by so that the "secret" design may be seen distinctly.

The International Water Color show continues to draw crowds of art lovers to the institute, as do the sculptures of Carl Milles which are seen to perfection against the foliage of the trees and the splashing waters of the Triton fountain in McKinlock court.

World Peace and Temperance Will Be WCTU Topics

World peace and temperance will figure prominently as topics of discussion at the 67th annual convention of the national Woman's Christian Temperance union, to begin Thursday at Grand Rapids, Mich. More than 2,000 delegates, representing 500,000 members, are expected to attend the meeting, which will continue thru the following Wednesday. The meeting also will serve as the nearest approach to a convention of the world's WCTU, which has had organizations in 54 nations.

Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith.

Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, national president, who will head a large delegation from the Chicago area, will open the convention proper Friday morning with her annual address. Among other speakers will be Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, state superintendent of public instruction of Michigan; Charles P. Taft, assistant coördinator of health, welfare, and related defense activities; Miss Jessie F. Binford of the Juvenile Protective association of Chicago, the Rev. Dr. Carl S. Winters of Oak Park, and Paul E. Thurlow of Chicago.

Two Business Women's Clubs Meeting Today

The Pump room of the Ambassador East hotel will be the scene of two informal breakfasts of business women's organizations today. The Women's Advertising Club of Chicago will bring together 25 members at 12:30 o'clock, and the Pilot Club of Chicago is having a noon get-together of its members.

For the Women's Advertising club it is to be the last meeting before the first dinner of the autumn season, Sept. 16 at the Bismarck hotel. Miss Ellen Littlejohn, social chairman, will be in charge.

Miss May Plaunt, advertising representative for an eastern newspaper, is the club's new president. When Miss Ruth Callender, the program chairman, left Chicago to sail next Friday for Puerto Rico, where she will be an army hostess, Miss Plaunt appointed Miss Gladys Blair as her successor. Miss Blair is a member of the editorial staf of a farm newspaper.

Mrs. Thomas E. Fetter, who is president of the Pilot club, and Miss Geraldine Gurnsey, program chairman, will be hostesses at that club's breakfast. The 20th anniversary of this international service organization for business and professional women now is being celebrated with a 20 day campaign to have every Pilot member buy defense savings bonds.

• • •

The first meeting of the new board of the Cook County Federation of Women's clubs will be held at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow at Mrs. Charles J. LaHodney's home, 19 West 11th street. Luncheon will follow, and Mrs. George B. Van Buren, new president of the Friends of American Writers, will review A. J. Cronin's "The Keys of the Kingdom." Mrs. Van Buren, who several times has headed the committee in charge of selecting the winner of the $1,000 award made annually to an author by the Friends of American Writers, has an LL.B. degree from Washington College of Law, and has a background of social work, newspaper writing, and employment by state and federal governments. Mrs. Elmer B. Jones of Western Springs heads the federation.

Mrs. Norman B. McKeagan will be hostess to Sigma Lambda Phi national sorority Tuesday at her summer home at Rolling Prairie, Ind. A picnic luncheon, swimming and boating will be in order.

• • •

The Woman's City club Friday afternoon will hold the last of a series of current events classes which have kept members abreast of public affairs thruout the summer. The annual reports of the Chicago park district and of the Cook County Public Health unit will be reviewed at this meeting at the clubrooms, 410 South Michigan avenue.

The Chicago Catholic University club has chartered a yacht for its annual cruise this afternoon along Chicago's shoreline. There will be dancing and entertainment. Miss Lillian Urban, John McKian, Thomas Leyden, Bernard Bertrand, Miss Dorothy Hurney, Miss Margaret Breen, and Miss Cecelia McGough will be in charge.

Miss Lillian Urban. [Normandie photo.]

The Woman's University club will hold another of its informal summer dinners at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday at the clubrooms, 410 South Michigan avenue.

Mrs. Lloyd Faxon will give a reading from Irvin Cobb's autobiography, "Exit Laughing," at 11 o'clock Wednesday before the Chicago Woman's club at the clubhouse, 72 East 11th street. Luncheon and cards will follow this informal summer program. Mrs. Henry T. Martin will be in charge.

The Chicago Alumnae association of Alpha Phi will be hostess to college freshmen at a tea tomorrow at Mrs. William Fuller Gregson's home, 2203 West 116th place.

Medicinal Herbs.

Club women in New York state have been growing medicinal herbs, it is reported.

Beverly Season to Be Climaxed by Horse Show

BEVERLY, MASS. With its history covering nearly a half century, the annual horse show of the Myopia Hunt club will be held at the polo field at Hamilton on Labor day. It climaxes the season on the north shore, and serves as a harbinger for the approach of the hunting meets, for which the Myopia district is famous, ranking with the seasons in Maryland and Virginia.

As befits a Myopia show, the classes will feature hunters. The club colors, canary and red, will fringe the field, and the gallery will include thousands from all of the north shore colonies. There will be much entertaining over the week-end, featured by a dinner-dance at the Myopia Hunt club.

Art exhibits have been alluring to many of the Chicago sojourners on the north shore. The North Shore Arts association is continuing its annual exhibition thru Sept. 7 and the Magnolia Art Gallery show will be on thru Sept. 10. The Gloucester Society of Artists has its second exhibition next week, and the annual exhibition of the Marblehead Arts association will be held Sept. 12. The Gallery on the Moors at East Gloucester closes its exhibits of oils and water colors today.

The Eastern Point Yacht club is planning an interesting program for over Labor day, with several race events on the program. John Clay of Chicago, whose summer home is in Eastern Point, is one of the flag officers of the club.

• • •

The annual kennel show of the North Shore Kennel club, benched yesterday on the Myopia Hunt club polo field at Hamilton, was one of the largest for years with more than 600 entries. All the New England states were represented and many entries were from New York and other states. Mrs. Robert B. Choate was chairman of the club committee planning the show.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Leonard Jr. of Chicago, who are at their Eastern Point summer home for the late season at Gloucester, were among those who entertained at the supper dance of the Bass Rocks Golf club. The Leonards plan to be on the north shore until September.

• • •

Mrs. Francis Challifoux of the Beverly Cove colony is one of the aviation devotees of the north shore. Mrs. Challifoux is the former Evelyn Lilly, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Clay Bartlett of Chicago and Beverly Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jackson of Chicago have been enjoying a north shore sojourn. They have been with Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Fellows at their Puritan road home in Marblehead for their stay.

• • •

The annual tennis tournament at the Annisquam Yacht club proved to be one of the most interesting in years for the younger colonists in Cape Anne. Richard Mechem of Chicago, who summers at Annisquam, was among the players.

One of the notable exhibits at the flower show of the North Shore Horticultural society of Manchester was that from the garden of Mrs. William H. Moore of Chicago at Rockmarge in Pride's Crossing. Mrs. Moore was awarded the Hunt trophy for her display of mixed flowers. One of her displays, which won the society bronze medal, was an aquatic exhibit which featured a lotus in full bloom in the center of a lily pond.

Mrs. Walter Crowell with her daughter, Miss Sara Crowell, and son, Curtis Crowell, have returned to their home in Evanston after a north shore sojourn. They were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Edward Blackburn at their summer home at Annisquam.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul S. Moore are visiting Mr. Moore's mother, Mrs. William H. Moore, at Rockmarge.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter of Chicago has returned to her Sunset Hill summer home at Cushings Point, Beverly Cove, after a pleasant visit in the Berkshires. Mrs. Carpenter was a member of the north shore committee for the benefit of the United Service Organizations and the British war relief. Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter will be at their Beverly Cove home for the early autumn season.

• • •

This month marks the 25th anniversary of the dedication of the Benjamin Stickney Cable hospital at Ipswich, given to the town by Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. of Castle Hill, Ipswich, and Chicago, and the late Mr. Crane. It serves Ipswich and surrounding communities and is one of the finest hospitals on the north shore.

Iron Mines Are Biggest Holes Made by Man

By Alden Powell.

VIRGINIA, MINN.

Even before the Arrowhead region of northeastern Minnesota became a popular northwoods vacation country, travelers were making the journey up to the fabulous Mesabi iron range to gape at the biggest man made holes on earth—the open-pit iron mines, stupendous diggings than can rank with the pyramids and the Grand canyon as great sights of the world.

Ordinarily, a mine is not much to look at—little more than a steel tower erected over a shaft. But here, where unbelievable mountains of iron ore have only a thin overburden of earth and stone, mining is done with steam shovels that literally eat themselves into chasms. You could drop the Soldiers' field stadium into one of these mines, and the miners might not discover it for several days.

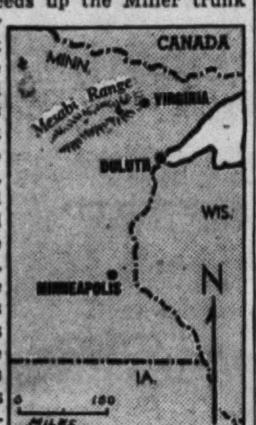
• • •

This year travelers, come to vacation among the lakes and woods of this north country, are visiting these yawning pits in larger numbers than ever before, because it is in these mountains of iron, more than in the roaring mills to the south, that the key to America's power and strength lies. All the mills and factories in the world cannot create the sinews of defense unless they receive an unending supply of iron ore—and among these hills of northern Minnesota is the greatest body of rich ore in the world.

Twenty-four hours a day the five-car trains of heavy ore crawl up out of the pits in long spirals. Day and night the huffing engines can be heard up and down the fifty miles of the range. Every hour the holes get wider and deeper as the red and purple ore in hauled to the surface, trundled by rail thru the forests to Lake Superior, and sent on its way in long freighters to the hungry mills in Chicago, Indiana Harbor, Gary, and the east.

Since 1881 the Mesabi mines and those on the nearby Vermilion range have sent 1,189,330,155 tons of ore to steel factories, and only once in the last 20 years have they shipped more than they did in 1940—47,215,146 tons. In July all records for monthly shipments were broken, when 9,174,961 tons went off to the mills.

• • •



Fifty miles north of Duluth, as the traveler speeds up the Miller trunk [highway 53], he first sights the Mesabi range—hills of iron that stretch to the west, dark and ragged against the blue sky. Just before he reaches Eveleth, his first range town, his auto tires burr smoothly on an iron highway, an experimental use of iron dating from the time, not so very long ago, when there was more iron than there were uses for iron—a curious paradox in 1941.

Across the range the iron towns step—Aurora, Gilbert, Eveleth, Virginia, Mountain Iron, Buhl, Chisholm, Hibbing; and between them and all around them are the gargantuan pocks of the open-pit mines. Some lie silent, like dead craters, mined out, mysteriously shadowed in their depths. Some have filled with water and the trees have crept down to its edge. The working mines, smoking like volcanoes, their cut sides richly colored with the ore's deep red and purple, are a sight to see. This is hole-digging such as the world has never known.

Iron was first discovered in the Superior region in upper Michigan, but there it was mined like coal. In the mid '60s a Minnesota geologist reported indications of gold in the Vermilion lake region. A government surveyor joined the "gold" rush, but he quickly returned to Duluth with his knapsack filled, not with gold, but with dark red rocks. What he had was iron ore, from the Vermilion range, and the false gold rush became a furious race for iron.

• • •

Yet this was only the prelude. South of Vermilion lake lay a strange chain of hills, rough and rocky. Indians called them Mesabi, "Great Lands." One day a timber cruiser brought back from these hills a handful of dull red dust, scooped from under the forest floor of pine needles. He knew it was iron of a sort, and for years he predicted that some day they'd make something of that dust. Years later the Vermilion rush made his sons remember that handful of red dust.

Southward out of Tower the sons hacked a wagon trail thru the pine forest. Their wagon wheels sunk deep into the forest litter. As the wheels sunk deeper, they threw up a dark red dust—dust heavy as lead—iron dust. The timber cruiser's sons had discovered the greatest deposits of iron ore on the globe. Their wagon wheels had sunk into the stuff that was to make America the largest steel producing nation on earth.

Across 50 miles of the range the rich ore lay, in huge flat pockets close to the surface. It was no job for shaft miners, but for steam shovels, and the Cornish miners spoke scornfully of the new method as "bloody ditch-digging."

• • •

Today, altho the FBI will not permit you to take pictures of the mines, you may see the colossal holes from observation platforms on their rims. This is particularly true at the Mesabi mountain iron mine at Virginia, largest ore producer on the range of the single mines, and the Mahoning Hull rust mine at Hibbing, the biggest hole in the world. The Virginia mine, 388 feet deep, 8,200 feet long, 1,200 feet wide, already has disgorged more than 75 million tons of ore, while the Hibbing miners long ago scooped more out of their pit than was excavated in building the entire Panama canal.

Ordinarily, of course, the mines are just a sideshow for vacationists who come to seek a summer haven among the lakes and forests. Lake Vermilion, largest of the thousands in St. Louis county [a county half again as large as Connecticut], lies just north of the two ranges, and upward to the Canadian border the lakes thickly stud the forest. The Arrowhead country is a wilderness playground unduplicated in the nation, forest frontier country where the northern lights flicker in the cool night sky. Only the long ore trains, rumbling thru the forest to Two Harbors and Duluth, remind you that the dark red dust of these Minnesota hills may well decide the future of the nation.

ON THE OCEANSIDE 'WAY DOWN EAST

New England's seacoast attracts "salts" of every kind. The highly seasoned sail their boats out of inlets and bays from Bar Harbor to Long Island sound. But the lure is just as strong for the salt water bather or the deep water fisherman.

Glider Meet to Start Aug. 30

FRANKFORT, Mich.—The Frankfort National Glider meet will be held from Aug. 30 to Sept. 2. So far, entries have been received from Detroit, Chicago, and Purdue university.

Hopis' Snake Dance Set for Wednesday

WALPI, Ariz.—The Hopi snake dance will be held here Wednesday, Aug. 27. The time and place for the rites are decided by the priests after a lengthy, secret ceremony. The dance, concluding with a prayer for rain, is the weirdest of American aboriginal ceremonials. It reaches its climax after nine days of Indian pageantry.

There are about 2,200 Hopis, and their villages occupy isolated and almost impregnable crags projecting out from Black Mesa, in the southwestern corner of the Navajo country. Here the Spaniards, Pedro de Tovar and Juan de Padilla, of Coronado's expedition, found them in 1540. They are the most primitive of the Pueblo peoples, whose highly developed cultures once covered the entire southwest.

For centuries the Hopis have maintained themselves in face of difficulties. Their dry farming and irrigation, in an arid land, are marvels of toil and patience. Their religious life expresses itself in elaborate ceremonies and endless pleas for the rain that spells life.

Better Than Whites.

When they learn to write, the Navajo Indians are usually better scribes than white people.

Far Northwest

● In all the world no area is richer in superb scenic wonders than the great far west of North America. In Alaska one glacier is larger than all of Switzerland. Most breathtaking of water journeys is the 1,000 mile inland voyage to Skagway, portal to Alaska's vast interior. From a trip thru the far northwest you will bring back memories of wild game, giant flowers and of the stories and landmarks of the gold rush. You will never forget the colossal peaks of the Canadian Rockies, their dense forests cut thru with beautiful riding paths and motor drives leading to smart hotels and chalets. Jasper National Park in Alberta—largest national park in the world—is renowned for its modern hotel built of logs and mountain stone, and for Maligne Lake set in a frame of indescribable loveliness.

● Consult the advertisments in the Travelers' Guide today, or let the Chicago Tribune Travel Bureau help you plan a trip to Alaska, the Canadian Rockies, Jasper National Park. This department of the Tribune Public Service Office can supply you with information about steamship, railroad, bus and plane travel, cost of transportation and accommodations en route for trips and tours to anywhere you wish to go. Drama Critic Tells History of Placid Club

By Burns Mantle.

If you don't follow the drama, the drama follows you. Up here in this beauty spot of the Adirondacks I find the resort folk fighting a vague sort of villain who is certain to gain the upper hand of them, because he has the law with him. This villain is that ol' debbil, Labor day. Once he arrives on the scene a week from tomorrow the jig is up, or practically up, and the play days are over.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y.

He is an especially tough villain this year. The resorts are literally filled to overflowing. This has been their best year, because a good many thousand people have had their choice of vacation spots limited by the war abroad and delayed by the defense program at home. They only began to take to the hills in August, and Labor day will be upon them the first day of September.

• • •

I find another extremely colorful drama in these parts, a drama that touches several thousand people and is filled with conflicts and comedy, with pathos and a touch of tragedy, if you would consider tragic the death of a slightly fantastic ideal.

This Lake Placid club was founded, as far back as 1895, by the Deweys, Melvil and his wife, Ann Godfrey Dewey. It was founded, one historian has declared, on a sneeze, because the Deweys were looking for a spot which would cure thei. hay fever. They were possessed at the time of $500 and a dream. They were educators, specialists in library work, and they hoped to establish a resort to which tired brain workers could come for rest, meditation, prayer, and recreation.

They paid the $500 down on 50 acres on the shore of Mirror lake, which joins Lake Placid on the north, and started the club by inviting their library associates and teacher friends to come up and spend the summer with them at cost. That was the beginning. In 30 years or less the club's property holdings increased to 8,000 acres, there were five major clubhouses, a large number of farms, several herd of accredited milk cows, and a rapidly expanding resort business that "slept" 1,400 people in August and entertained nearly as many for winter sports from December to February.

• • •

They also adopted a set of as high standards for the conduct of their enterprise as ever were formulated. There was to be no liquor drunk by any guest, on or off the grounds. Men could smoke in restricted areas. Women could not smoke at all. Both members and guests had to be certified. Those who objected to the rules were politely advised to stay home. And still the enterprise grew.

There were, it is true, sporadic rebellions. Women began smoking in odd corners. Occasional bottles of alcoholic cheer were smuggled into guest rooms. The younger generation discovered and secretly patronized the forerunners of present day roadhouse taverns. But no rebellion was ever tested in the open, and when it was the rebels were informed that their rooms would be needed the following week-end.

• • •

By this time the club's attractions included a handsome theater seating 1,200, a library of 8,000 volumes, a 10 piece symphony orchestra for concert programs, a dance orchestra, weekly lectures by high scholastic authorities, and a variety of entertainers. Rustic cottages were added, a few at a time, until there were 50 of them, mostly club owned, but several privately built. All were equipped with central heating and the comforts of city apartments.

Then in the early '30s came the crash, and after the crash the creditors. One reorganization plan followed another. Several compromises were reluctantly accepted. But as long as Melvil Dewey lived [Mrs. Dewey having died some years before] the club standards were maintained, and none of the unusual features of life at the club was disturbed. It was still the center of a simplified spelling campaign, where you discovered that "stud pruns" really stood for stewed prunes, that "ys" was ice, and "py" pie, with which you could drink "sertified" milk if you wanted to.

I liked the "farm sosaj" and loved the daily announcements notifying the guests that if six of them would "syn at desk" there would be a picnic organized for "mooslaj." Happily, those newcomers who read "sin" for "syn" were promptly set right by obliging employés or informed guests.

• • •

Many things have happened to the club during the last 15 years. It has, in fact, been pretty generally liberalized. Simplified spelling at Lake Placid club died with its creator. The liquor ban still is operating, as far as public drinking or display is concerned, but room parties are not too heavily frowned upon. The alert servitors [they are mostly college students] are in danger of acquiring flat feet rushing pitchers of ice at cocktail time. Women smoke when and where they please, except in the dining rooms, which is a good thing, say I. Character indorsements are still demanded, and the threat of a quick expulsion hangs over any who have an itch to grow defiant of the rules.

There now are three golf courses instead of five. The symphony orchestra is from the Rochester School of Music, and the old-timers have subscribed the better part of $7,000 for its maintenance. The theater offers two movies and several other attractions each week, and the only little theater activity I heard of was an approaching production of "The Gondoliers," with guest volunteers welcome.

I do not really believe that in the mists sweeping by the windows of Forest hall one moonlight night I actually saw the ghosts of Melvil and Ann Dewey. But I couldn't be quite certain. If they were the Deweys, I'm sure they were smiling. Perhaps they were a little happy that this is the most successful summer the club has enjoyed in 10 years.

A NEW SPORT NEAR THE CORAL ISLANDS

A sportsman in Bermuda explains the principles of bow and arrow fishing to an American visitor. Among the species which may be taken in this manner are red and green parrotfish, blue doctorfish, gray snappers, green morays, and bluefish.

Yellowstone Nears Half Million Mark

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo.—Travel is soaring to a new high, and the half million visitor mark will be reached here by Sept. 1 if the present volume continues. But the five gates must maintain their average of 6,000 visitors a day if the goal is achieved. Up to Aug. 16 there were 42,596 more visitors to the park than had been registered at the same time last year.

Farmers Celebrate End of Harvesting

One of America's unusual regional celebrations will be held Sept. 4, 5, and 6 at Mount Horeb, Wis., when residents of southwestern Wisconsin gather to celebrate the completion of the harvest in a fall frolic.

This year's frolic will be the community's 20th annual.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

MADISON FEELS SLIGHTED.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 15.—To the Travel Editor: We have noticed from time to time your travel pages in THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE and note upon several occasions, when you have run your Travel-Log for week-end trips, that Madison has not been included.

I am inclosing a copy of your July 6 issue, which shows highway 14 going directly thru Madison and highway 12 to Fort Akinson. Altho you list Janesville and Blue Mounds, you do not list Madison at all. Madison is only referred to in your story by saying that Blue Mounds and Little Norway are 25 miles west of this city.

We believe that, from the traveler's point of view, the points of interest in Madison, as well as the beautiful lakes on which we are situated are worthy of calling to the people's attention.

We are also inclosing a copy of your Aug. 3 issue, with the direction of the trip to Land o' Lakes thru Sheboygan and back thru Fond du Lac. We believe that a trip down highway 51 on this particular route would have added a great deal of interest, good roads, and an opportunity to see the capital of Wisconsin, with its beautiful university, lakes, and parks, without adding very much in the line of miles.

We are taking this opportunity of calling these things to your attention, for we realize that you are doing such a fine job of publicizing enjoyable trips to your readers that you will want to include some of the things Madison has to offer to the traveling public coming thru this area.

WILLIAM H. FREDERICK,
Secretary, Madison Business Association.

JUST A SUGGESTION.

Ahmeek, Mich., Aug. 20.—To the Travel Editor: Here is a suggestion for another week-end. It doesn't have to be an "English week-end" either, as several of your trips have been this summer.

From Chicago's loop to the Keweenaw Golf club, in Upper Michigan's Copper country, is a fairly good one-day drive—480 miles—with excellent roads, and with plenty of scenery after you cross the Wisconsin-Michigan line.

Thousands of Illinoisans can tell you about it. Ask Quin Ryan of W-G-N. He and Mrs. Ryan have spent their last three summer vacations here.

Why doesn't Bob Becker come up here? And why don't you?

OCHA POTTER,
Director, Copper Country Vacationist League.

HE SECONDS THE MOTION.

Lake Geneva, Wis., Aug. 10.—To the Travel Editor: In today's SUNDAY TRIBUNE there was a letter from Mrs. A. D. Aldrich of Houghton, Mich., asking why, when you were so close to the copper country this summer, you failed to visit it. I felt the same way about it.

Having been born and reared in Houghton, and having gone to college there, and having spent several summers working from one end of the Keweenaw peninsula to the other, and knowing what a beautiful country it is, I can only say that you have missed something.

I lived in Negaunee for seven years, and traveled around the central part of the Upper peninsula quite a bit, and to some extent the eastern part, and I still believe the real beauty of northern Michigan is to be found in the copper country.

May I suggest that you visit it at your earliest opportunity?

[REV.] E. A. BATCHELDER.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Travelers and other TRIBUNE readers are invited to send cards and letters to those unable to share in the wonders of travel. These requests have been received since the last previous list was published:

Mrs. Lucille Duncan, State sanatorium, Mount Vernon, Mo. [Mrs. Duncan will be confined to the sanatorium for a long while. She makes a hobby of collecting salt and pepper shakers.]

Mrs. LaRue Haralson, 6727 South Chicago avenue, Chicago. [Mrs. Haralson's name was published several weeks, ago, but her former address, 6145 South Ada street, was given. A transposition of type in the shut-in list made it appear that she is making a scrapbook. Because of her crippled condition, she is not able to indulge in such a hobby. Neither will she be able to answer correspondents.

Cleon Hall, Pontiac sanatorium, Pontiac, Ill. [Miss Hall will be confined to the sanatorium for several months, and perhaps longer.]

Miss Hazel Burt, Nelson, Neb.

Mrs. Mae St. John, 517 Napoleon street, Rockford, Ill.

Mrs. B. C. Kingsbury, 100 East Jeffery street, Kankakee, Ill.

Don Enger, Oak Forest, Onalaska, Wis. [Mr. Enger is 27 years old. When he was well his hobbies were hunting, fishing, and fish fly tying.]

Miss Mae Crable, Burr Oak, Kas.

THANK YOU DEPARTMENT.

Wood, Wis., Aug. 20.—To the Travel Editor: I wish to thank all the kind readers who answered my recent appeal for letters. I wish it were possible to thank each one personally, but I am still in the hospital, and am just recovering from my second operation. As I am a collector of stamps, I would appreciate hearing from readers living in, or traveling thru, other countries. I am still short on stamps from Canada, Mexico, and the countries of Central and South America. My address is Ward 8, United States Veterans' hospital.
